An important state document, bearing upon the relations between England and the United States, and said to have been surreptitiously obtained from some of the departments in Washington, will be found in our columns. It purports to be the terms upon which the Mosquito question was settled, giving the inhabitants of this disputed territory a large extent of country, and undisputed sway. This territory the Americans, in all probability, when Britain's hands are fairly off, expect to annex. The document stipulates also that the two Governments are to fix the boundaries of Nicaragua, Costa Rica, and Mosquito. If the paper is really genuine—and there seems little doubt of it—it is of unusual importance as between the two powers. The New York Tribune says of it:—"This Treaty is one of very grave character. It has no parallel in the past diplomacy of our Government, but that negotiated between Messrs. Clayton and Bulwer, which for five centries in all has rendered that instrument remarkable. Its singular and complicated provisions with respect to Greytown, or San Juan de Nicaragua; its express recognition of British Honduras and attempts to define her boundaries, are at least far out of the ordinary course of diplomacy, contrasted strongly with our current jeers at British assumption with regard to Mosquito. On the whole, we are inclined to approve and uphold this Treaty, though not without misgivings that it will ultimately involve us in worse complication than those it resolves. We consider its stipulations in the main fair and equal, though entangling and we are inclined rather to regret that exigencies exist which demand such a Treaty than to complain that those exigencies have not been more wisely met."

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS purify the secretions which enter into the composition of the blood, and thus produce a salutary effect upon every organ; for the blood feeds and sustains every fibre of the body. The cures accomplished by this famous remedy are complete, because it expels from the circulation the seeds of disease. The oldest practitioners are thunderstruck at the rapidity with which chron c dyspepsia and liver complaint are eradicated by Holloway's Pills. After all the usual means and tonics in their repertoires have been tried, in vain. The philosophy of the matter is this—Nature is first relieved of the poisonous influences which paralyze her action, and then assisted in her efforts to recuperate the system.

TORONTO. Dec. 27, 1856.

WHEAT.—Only about six loads changed hands this morning. The price remains as before noted, ranging from 6s 2d to 6s 4½d: for an extra sample 6s 5d may be realized. Farmers seem more inclined to accept the current rates, and move off the market with out hesitation. The demand is of a purely speculative character.

FLOUR.—There is no new feature to notice in the Flour market. Some few sales have taken place for local consumption, but we heard of no new transactions by which to the market; Nominal quotations are Superfine 25s to 26s 3d; Fancy 26s 6d; Extra 28s 9d: a 27s 6d per bbl.

SPRING WHEAT sells at 5s 3d to 3d per bush, and is in request.

RYE and BARLEY are in fair demand, the former at 3s 9d a 4d, and the latter at 5s 2d per bush.

OATS is held firmly at 3s 6d per bush. in store. Small quantities are some what dearer.

OATS.—are coming in freely by railroad, and prices are hardly so firm. There has been several transactions at 2s 9d and 2s 10d per bushel. The ruling figure by retail is 3s.

POTATOES—4s 6d a 5s per bush.

APPLES $3\frac{1}{2}$ a $3\frac{3}{4}$ per bbl.

BUTTER.—Fresh is more plentiful, and brings 1s 4d a 1s 5d per pound. Tub is worth 10½d to 2d for all grades.

EGGS selling freely at 1s 4d a 1s 5d.

PORK—The market is scarcely so firm, owing to the holidays of the weather. Good lots were offering to day without buyers at $7 per 100 lbs.

BEEF.—There is nothing doing at present in live beef. Slaughtered is worth $5\frac{1}{2}$ to $6\frac{3}{4}$ for all parts. Beef hides sell at $7 per 100 lbs, but the price is tending downward.

DETROIT DEC. 29, 1856.

FLOUR—Market quiet, and sales limited to the local trade. The only transaction we notice is a sale of 50 bbls Portage mills $5\frac{1}{4}$.

WHEAT—Sales from teams of about 150 bu at $1 20.

CORN—In slight request being principally for the Canadian trade. We hear of a sale of 900 bu at 56c.

OATS—Nothing doing. Nominal at 40c

DRESSED HOGS—Sales of 25 at $6 30; 40 at $6 37½, and 60 at $6 40.

NEW YORK DEC. 29.

FLOUR—Market lower. Sales 4500 bbls at $6 20 a $6 40 for common to choice superfine state; $6 20 a 6 80 for extra do; $6 20 a 6 40 for superfine western; $6 60 a 7 00 for extra do. Sales 200 bbls Canadian at $6 35 a 7 75.

WHEAT—Market heavy. Sales 10,000 bu at $1 57 a 1 58 for red winter Illinois: $1 78 for prime white southern.

RYE Steady at 90c.

BARLEY—Sales.

CORN—lower Sales of 10,000 bushels mixed western at 68 a 70.

OATS—Steady at 46 a 50c for state and western.

Special Notices

Sir Astley Cooper's Pills.

For the cure of Bile, Giddiness and Determination to the Head, these Pills, as well known, supersede all other medicines for the suppression of an undue secretion of Bile. They give relief to that sensation of fullness so frequent felt after eating, cure headaches, prevent pains, giddiness and determination of blood to the head. Habitual costiveness is obviated by their use, and for Dropsical complaints they stand pre-eminent. For strengthening the constitutions will find them particularly beneficial both before and after confinement; and for general use they cannot be too strongly recommended. They mildly and speedily remove all skin eruptions, sallowness of complexion, nervous irritability, sick headache, costiveness, depression of spirits, irregularity or general derangement of the system and by assisting the secretions, give such a healthy action to the organs as to give the color of the rose to the complexion, and tone and vigor to the whole frame.

BEWARE OF SPURIOUS IMITATIONS.—None are genuine wi hout the fac-simile of the signature of the Proprietors, MacPhail & Co. Lon ton and New York on each box, and on the directions. The Genuine Pills have also an excellent likeness of Sir Astley Cooper on the top of each box. Without these marks of authenticity, they are certainly spurious and an imposition.

Sold at 25 and 50 cents per box, and in Family boxes at $1 each. There is a great saving by purchasing the larger sizes.

For sale by Simpson and Dunspaugh, Druggists, Toronto; John M. Thornton, Dundas; Andrew Oliver Galt; A. H. Cook, Brantford, General Agents, by whom Country Druggists and Merchants will be supplied at London and New York prices.

HEALTH OR SICKNESS.

CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of diseases and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are remedied and put to flight by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alterratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endorsements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review" and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma	Sick Headaches,
Bowel Complaints	Indigestion
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflammation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits
Diarrhœa	Piles.
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venereal Affections,
Female Complaints	Worms of all kinds.

THE NEW ILLUSTRATED

Hydropathic Encyclopedia,

A COMPLETE SYSTEM OF

HYDROPATHY & HYGIENE,

IN ONE LARGE VOLUME.

EMBRACING Outlines of Anatomy, Illustrated; Physiology of the Human Body; Hygienic Agencies and the Preservation of Health; Dietics and Hydropathic Cookery; Theory and Practice of Water Treatment; Special Pathology and Hydro-Therapeutics, including the Nature, Causes, Symptoms and Treatment of all known diseases; Application to Surgical Diseases; Application of Hydropathy to Midwifery and the Nursery, with three hundred engravings and nearly One Thousand Pages, including a Glossary, Table of Contents, and a complete Index. By R. T. TRALL, M. D.

Published by FOWLER and WELLS, New York.

In the plan of the work, the wants and necessities of the People have been steadily in view. While almost every topic of interest in the departments of Anatomy, Physiology, Pathology, Hygiene, Therapeutics is briefly presented, those of practical utility are always put prominently forward. The prevailing errors, conceits, and whims of the day and age are exposed and refuted; the theories and hypothesis upon which the popular drug practice is predicated are controverted, and the why and wherefore of their fallacy clearly demonstrated. The following is a brief analysis of its contents:

History of Medicine; History of Bathing; History of Medicated Baths.

Anatomy illustrated by One Hundred and Twenty appropriate engravings.

Physiology, illustrated, comprising the Rationale of Muscular Action; the Nervous Influence; Philosophy of Mind; Mesmeric Phenomena; the Special Senses; Functions of Digestion, Circulation, Respiration, Absorption, Nutrition; Secretion, Excretion; Calorification, Temperaments, the Races of Men, and Theory of Population.

Hygiene embracing all the relations of Air, Light, Drink, Food, Temperature, Exercise, Sleep, Clothing, Bathing, and the Passions, to the growth and development of Body and Mind, the Preservation of Health and the attainment of Longevity.

Dietetics, comprising the Bible, Anatomical, Physiological, Chemical and Experimental Evidence concerning the natural Dietetic Character of Man.

Hydropathic Cookery, with Specific Directions for the Preparation of Food &c.

Dietarics, containing the Therapeutic Distinctions of Diet for Invalids.

Philosophy of Water-Cure, with illustrated explanations of all the water-cure appliances, a Philosophical Exposition of the modus operandi of water-treatment, and the true rationale of drug-treatment.

The Nature Symptoms and Treatment of all known Diseases are examined, the ill success of drug practice exposed, and the proper Medication recommended and specified.

The Treatment of surgical Diseases Illustrated and the directions for the minor operations given.

The Management of Lying-in-Women, and the treatment of Children, &c.

The work is intended to be plain, intelligible and sufficient guide for domestic practice, or home treatment, in all ordinary diseases, embracing the whole range of subjects connected with the philosophy of life, the preservation of health, and the treatment of diseases.

This great work may be had in one large volume, bound in library style. Price prepaid by mail to any Post Office in United States or Canada, only THREE DOLLARS.

The Child's Grave.

To-day, when winds of winter blow,
And Nature sits in dream of snow,
With Ugolino look of woe;

Wife from the window come to me,
Now leaves were fallen she could see
The little grave thro' shred elm-tree.

With wintriness all life did ache
For that dead darling's sainted sake;
And lips might kiss but hearts would quake.

Ho, ye who pass her narrow house,
By which the dark Death sea-ward flows;
O clasp your pretty darlings close;

And if some tender bud of light
Is drooping, as the snow-drop white,
With looks that weird wild heartstrings smite;

Think of our babe will never wake,
And fold your own till fond heart's ache,
Sweet souls, for little Marian's sake.

HEROIC CONDUCT.—On Saturday afternoon as Mrs. Wyatt of Toronto and her daughter, a girl about seven years of age, were about stepping on the ferry boat T. W. Olcott, for East Albany, the little girl slipped from the floating bridge and fell into the water. The cry was soon raised of a person overboard, and a general rush was made to the edge of the bridge A young German named Edward Kaut, hearing the distressing cries of the mother, plunged overboard and raising the young girl as she was sinking for the floating bridge and pushed it understand is an entire stranger in the city, and had but a few hours previously come from Suspension Bridge in quest of employment. He was immediately taken to the second District Station House, dry clothing procured and every care taken of him by the good Samaritans connected with the District, Mrs. W. and her daughter went to Boston, but not before rewarding the brave young German. Having friends at the East the officers at the second District procured a pass for Kant over the railroad to Boston, whither he went this morning.—Albany Journal.

ORIGIN OF THE AYRSHIRE CATTLE.—The Paris Exhibition of domestic animals, last summer, seems to have thrown some light on the long disputed question as to the origin of the Ayrshires. A breed of cattle from Denmark, exhibited on that occasion, so strongly resembled the Ayrshire, that many believed them to be descendants of that breed, as it was known that many Ayrshires had been exported to Denmark. In answer to an inquiry on this subject the editor of the North British Agriculturist, in that paper of Oct. 29, says: "We find appertaining to the Danish department a considerable importation of Ayrshire stock into Russia, Prussia and Denmark, and taken place for some years past. On seeing the cattle in the Paris Show, referred to, we inferred that they were descendants of imported Ayrshires; but the Professor of Agriculture in Copenhagen, M. Jorgensen, the Danish representative at Paris, Baron Delong, informed us that they were the indigenous breed of Holstein, and their additional representations satisfied us that this Holstein breed is the original Ayrshire. The early connection of this country with Denmark, fully confirms this conjecture, that the Ayrshires brought us with the name of their valuable domestic animals, and of these, the breed now known as the Ayrshire."

MAN SHOT.—A melancholy occurrence, says the Stratford Examiner, took place near Oman's tavern, North Bullope, on Thursday last. Mr. Wakefield of East Zorra, and his son, James, with two strangers from the State of New York, agreed to hunt together. After they had been out some time, they discovered fresh deer tracks; the father and son volunteered to go into the swamp. One of them, named Spank, thinking he saw deer running fired twice, when; horrible to relate, the last ball passed through the stock of James Waterbury's gun and lodged in the lower part of his abdomen. The young man exclaimed "I am shot, fell back, was caught in his father's arms, and instantly expired. An investigation took place before Dr. Hyde, Coroner. The jury exonerated Spank from any evil intention towards the deceased, and returned a verdict in accordance with the facts above stated. This is another sad warning to those who use guns, that they cannot be too careful of their own and other's lives.

During the gale of Sunday, an eye-witness says that "the volume of water driven over the falls of Niagara was truly appalling, carrying with it drift wood, logs and timbers from the deranged wharves and shores above. The Suspension Bridge was in great danger. The toll gates were for a time deserted, and many an anxious eye tremblingly awaited the destruction of this magnificent structure. But the winds blew in vain; the hurricane in all its terrific fury swept by, leaving the airy edifice unscathed, and falling undone hailed to the triumphant genius of the architect. The water below the Falls rose over thirty feet, entirely covering the piers of the steamboat landing, and the landing-room at the foot of the staircase to the American side.—Globe.

Brief Hints.

If the council be good, it matters not who gives it.

We are never too old to learn.

Fair words, accomplish more than all the scolding in the world; though he who thinks much, talks little, and writes less, will be least likely to make a fool of himself.

Better laugh than cry. It promotes digestion and improves the health; nots illustrating the human economy tell us that man and the poor one, is, that the poor man works to get meat for his stomach and the rich man, a stomach for his meat.

Give your friend a good character, for his reputation is yours; a man, you know, is known by the company he keeps—and birds of a feather flock together.

Finally, avoid being too sensitive. Some thin-skinned people, think—because they happen to have a wart on the nose—that every body is looking at it.

MAXIMS.—One of the difficulties of life—Talking to a deaf person in an omnibus. One of the pleasures of life, taking off new boots and putting on old slippers. One of the rarities of life—a woman thoroughly satisfied with her daughter-in-law.

BUREAU OF AGRICULTURE & STATISTICS,
TORONTO, 25th July, 1856

To Emigrants & Others Seeking LAND FOR SETTLEMENT.

THE Provincial Government have recently opened out three great lines of road, now in course of completion, and have surveyed and laid out for settlement the Lands through, and in the vicinity of, which those Roads pass.

The Roads, as advertised by the Agents of the Government, appointed to the respective localities to afford information to the Settlers are known as

THE OTTAWA AND OPEONGO ROAD,
THE ADDINGTON ROAD, and
THE HASTINGS ROAD,

The Ottawa and Opeongo Road

Commences at a point on the Ottawa River known as "Perrad's," a little above the mouth of the Bonchere River, and runs in a Westerly direction, passing through the northerly part of the County of Renfrew.

It is intended to connect this road with a projected line of road known as the "Bell's Line," (leading to the Lake Muskuko, and Lake Huron, by a branch which will diverge from the Opeongo Road in the Township of Brudnell, at a distance of about 30 miles from the River Ottawa, forming with "Bell's Line," a great leading road, or base line from the Ottawa to Lake Muskuko, 171 miles in length, passing through the Valley of the Ottawa and Huron Territory, and opening up for settlement a vast extent of rich and valuable land.)

This road, and the country through which it passes, now open for settlement, is easily accessible, and the Agent for the granting of Lands in this district is Mr. T. P. French, who resides at Mount St. Patrick, and is few, on the Opeongo Road, a few miles from the Lands which are to be granted.—To reach the section of Country under Dr. French's charge, take the Steamer at the new MONTREAL up to the Ottawa River to a place called Bonchere Point, and thence by land some twenty-five or thirty miles westward to the Township of Grattan, in which Mount St Patrick is situated.

The Addington Road

Commencing in the Township of Anglesea, in the northern part of the County of Addington, near the Village of Flint's Mills, Kaladar, runs almost due north to the River Madawaska, a distance of 35 miles, and is to be continued thence for the distance of 25 miles till it intersects to Ottawa and Opeongo Road.

The Agent for the granting of the Land in this district is Mr. E. Perry, who, for that purpose, is now resident at FLINT'S MILLS. The outlines of five townships of superior land are already surveyed and ready for settlement within the limits of the Agency, lying north of Lake Masanoka, and between it and the River Nadawaska. The Townships are all respectively Abinger, Denbigh Ashley, Ellingham, Anglesea, and Barrie.

The direct route to this section is by way of Kingston, Canada West, thence North to the Township of Kaladar, and the Village of FLINT'S MILLS, where Mr. Perry resides.

Hastings Road!

Almost parallel to the Addington Road, and at a distance West from it of about 36 miles is the HASTINGS ROAD. This road beginning at the northern part of the County of Hastings, and running due north, also inter-sects the OTTAWA and OPEONGO ROADand its extensions.

The Government Agent is Mr. M. P. Hayes, who resides at the Village of Hastings, largely called Madoc, about 23 miles north of the Town of Belleville. The Road between these places is in good order, The land to be granted by the surrender of this Agency extends from 15 to 17 miles north of the Village of Hastings The Road through this large extent of land is passable for 40 miles, and is now being completed to extend it 30 miles further, so that Settlers can get in and out without difficulty, and find a good market for surplus produce, as well as convenient facilities for bringing in whatever supplies they may require—abundance of which can be had at the Village of Hastings, where the Government agent resides.

The direct way to reach this Station, which is easily accessible, is by Kingston Canada West, thence by Steamboat up the Bay of Quinte to Belleville 66 miles, and thence by a good Road to Hastings, 28 miles.

In order to facilitate the Settlement of the Country, and provide for keeping in repair the Roads thus opened, the Government authorised Free Grants of Land along these Roads, not to exceed in each case ONE HUNDRED ACRES, upon application to the Local Agents, and upon the following

CONDITIONS

That the Settler be eighteen years of age.

That he take possession of the Land allotted to him within one month, and put in a state of cultivation at least twelve acres of the land in the course of four years—build a house at least 20 by 18 feet) and reside on the land until the conditions of settlement are duly performed; after which accomplishment only shall the settler have the right of obtaining a title to the property. Families consisting several sons, to receive location to the preferring to reside on a single lot, will be exempted from the obligation of building and of residence, (except upon the lot on which they live,) provided that the required clearing of the lands be made on each lot. The non-accomplishment of these conditions will cause the immediate loss of the property and of fund, which will be sold or given to another.

The road having been opened by the Government, the settlers are required to keep it in repair.

The Local Agents, whose names and places of abode have already been given, will furnish every information to the intending Settler.

The LOG HOUSE required by the Government to be built, is of such description as can be put up in four days by five men. The neighbours generally assist in the work. Cabin for newly arrived Settlers, without charge, and when this is done the cost of the erection is small; the roof can be covered with bark, and the space between the logs plastered with clay, and white-washed. It then becomes a neat dwelling and warm as a stone house.

The lands thus opened up and offered for settlement are, in sections of Canada West, capable both as to Soil and Climate, of producing abundant crops of winter wheat, of excellent quality, and all roughs, and a crops of every other description of farm produce, grown in the best and longest cultivated districts of that portion of the Province, and fully as good.

There are, of course, in such a large extent of country as that re-ferred to, great varieties in the character and quality of land —some lots being much superior to others, as there is an abundance of the very best land for farming purposes. The Lands in a neighbourhood of these three roads will be found to be very similar in quality and character, and covered with every variety of Timber—some with hard wood, and some with heavy pine.

Water for domestic use is every where abundant; and there are, throughout, numerous streams and falls of water, capable of being used for Manufacturing purposes.

The heavy timbered land is almost always the best, and of it, the ashes of three acres, well taken care and covered from rain—will produce a barrel of Potash, worth from £6 to £7 currency. The capital required to manufacture Potash is very small, and the process is very simple and easily understood.

The expense of clearing and enclosing heavily Timbered Lands, valuing the labor of the settlers at the highest rate, is about FOUR POUNDS Currency per Acre, which is the first wheat crop, if an average one, will nearly repay. The best timber for fencing is to be had in abundance.

A settler in the lands, possessing a capital from £35 to £50, according to the number of his family, will soon make himself comfortable, and obtain a rapid return for his investment. The single man, able and willing to work, needs little capital, besides his own arm and axe—he can devote a portion of the year to clearing his land, and in the numerous lumbering establishments he finds in the neighbourhood, obtain a liberal remuneration for his labor.

The climate throughout these Districts is good. The snow does not fall so deep as to interfere with the free intercourse by Sleighing over good roads during the winter, enabling the farmer to haul in his Firewood for the ensuing year from the woods, to take his produce to the market, and to get supplies for the future—and this covering to the earth, not only facilitates communication with the more settled parts of the District, but is highly beneficial and fertilizing to the soil.

In all the localities above named, wherever Settlers have surplus produce, there is a good market for it near to them—for produce of all kinds being in great demand by the Lumber or Timber Merchants, who are carrying on extensive operations throughout these parts of the country.

According to the ration of progress which Canada West has made during the last ten years, the value of property on an average doubles within that period, independently of any improvements which may have been made by the Settlers.

In many Counties the value of Land, once the Settlement has been effected, FIVE FOLD in the period named, but the average value of such land, according to the statistics of Canada West, Doubles every ten years in the mere lapse of time expected—of any expenditure thereon—and it is not too much to expect that this ratio will not diminish for generations to come.

In the Sections of Country opened by these roads for settlement, in the Southern part of the Great Ottawa Region, stretching from and beyond them to the shores of Lake Huron, to Lake Nipissing, and to the Ottawa River —an immense extent of country whose resources are now seeking and will rapidly obtain development.

The Ottawa Country

Lying south of Lake Nipissing and of the great River Ottawa, and embracing a large portion of the land offered for settlement, is capable of sustaining a population of eight millions of people, and it is now attracting general attention, as the more western portions of Canada are being rapidly filled up.

The Parliament of Canada in its last Session incorporated a Company for the construction of a Railway, to run through this Ottawa country from the shores of Lake Huron to the City of the Ottawa, and thence Eastward.

A survey of the River Ottawa and the neighbouring Country has been undertaken and will be completed in the present year: its principal object being to ascertain by what means the River Ottawa can be rendered navigable and connected with Lake Huron so as to enable vessels to pass by that route from the most Western Waters into the River St. Lawrence and the Ocean. The various projected works are alluded to in order to show that the attention of the Government, Parliament and People of Canada, has been fixed for some time upon this important portion of the Province.

A DAILY AND A WEEKLY FOR $3,50

Those of our readers of this paper who desire a daily review of the Cleveland, New York and other markets, may be accommodated on the following terms. For $3,50 we will send the "Commercial Gazette and Marine Record of the Lakes" for one year, and will subscribe for the Daily Clevelander for one year and send the Publisher's receipt to stay address.

ROBERT ARKELL.

The "Clevelander" is the size of this paper, is printed on minion and agate type, and on heavy white paper. The report of the leading markets will be presented to you, and we need not repeat that neither patience nor skill, will be spared to make it full and correct in every particular. The New York, Buffalo, and Oswego reports are furnished by the N. Y. associated press, and will be correctly rendered. As a newspaper the "Clevelander" is perhaps equal to any daily in the State. Recollect, only $3,50 for the "Daily Clevelander" and the "Commercial Gazette" for one year. Parts of a dollar may be sent in postage stamps. For two dollars the two papers will be sent six months.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,
AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural Arts.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the pecuniaries of different orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rod of available earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded; together with its really superior execution, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

"The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of satin surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with July, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial department: H. P. KNIGHT, JAMES SAWDEN and D. W. RAY.

The only dollar per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

N.B.— Newspapers inserting the above prospectus, and drawing attention editorially to the same, will be forwarded the ILLUSTRATED HORTICULTURIST for one year, a copy containing the advertisement should be sent in all cases to ensure attention.

NEW VOLUME OF THE AGRICULTURIST

SUBSCRIPTION REDUCED FROM 25 TO 50 PER CENT.

The Canadian Agriculturist

Has now reached the eighth volume, having been established by its present proprietor in 1848, and is too well known to the leading farmers of the British Provinces, to need any eulogium from us. The undersigned have made arrangements with the proprietor to publish the next, and probably succeeding volumes, and have resolved to make important improvements in the work, while at the same time its price will be considerably reduced.

THE AGRICULTURIST

is published Monthly, on Good Paper, each number containing 32 pages, making at the end of the year a handsome volume of 384 pages.

EVERY NUMBER WILL BE
Illustrated with Handsome Engravings

Such as Farm Implements, Portraits of Animals, designs of Farm Buildings, New Inventions &c., &c., interesting to the Farmer, and also portraits of some of the most Distinguished Agriculturists.

The Work will be conducted as usual by WILLIAM MACDOUGALL, Esq., who has resumed the position of Agricultural editor for the present volume. The active promoter of the various improvements made in our Agricultural Legislation since 1847, and having also been connected with this Journal from its commencement, he requires no recommendation from us.

PROFESSOR BUCKLAND, of the Toronto University, whose labors and writings in behalf of Canadian Agriculture are known and appreciated throughout the Province, will contribute to its columns as usual.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS
Of known ability have also been engaged. Efforts will be made to render the correspondence on subjects of a practical kind.

THE AGRICULTURIST IS NOT LIABLE TO POSTAGE.

TUITION FEE IN ADVANCE.
For entire Mercantile Course, time unlimited - - - - $40
Same Course for Ladies - - - 25
Twenty Lessons in Practical Penmanship, simply - - - - 5
For full Course in Flourishing, etc., as per agreement.
THE COLLEGIATE COURSE,
which is designed to embrace all branches PURELY MERCANTILE, has been recently enlarged, and can now be regarded as one of the most lengthy, thorough and complete ever introduced to the public in any similar Institution in the UNITED STATES.
THE BOOK-KEEPING DEPARTMENT embraces three distinct grades, viz: Initiatory, Regular and Extended Courses, and taught on Folsom's NEW METHOD, recommended by over twenty of the most reliable PRACTICAL ACCOUNTANTS of Cleveland.
THE METHOD OF TEACHING
strikes at the very germinating points of the Science, by which the great natural twofold division of the Ledger, whereby is such the proper line of demarcation between Real and Representative Property and the governing law of transfer, as regards it affecting the two classes of accounts, and those of the same class in every variety of transactions, thus stripping this most useful and beautiful science of much of its time honored mysteries, made such such by arbitrary and infallible rules, meaningless forms and false notions; and hence enables the student to acquire our solutions of accounts as embodied in actual practice.
THE INITIATORY COURSE.
embraces a regularly progressive series of manuscript cards, classified somewhat as to the variety of transactions. It aims to develop the first principles and philosophy of Accounts, rather than more routine and actual formula, by addressing the reason and judgment of the student, who studies with the view of apprehending and arriving at results and so pushes on his investigations with much greater confidence, pleasure and independence.
THE REGULAR COURSE
is intended to represent every species of business, from the smallest Retail to the heaviest and most intricate of Wholesale and Commission, as well as Banking, Railroading, etc., demanded, at present, by our vast and constantly increasing Commerce.
THE EXTENDED COURSE
embraces lengthy practical sets from various business firms, and is designed for such students as may wish to spend longer than the time required by the Regular Course, (and that gratuitously) preparatory to entering some special House.
By taking in addition the Extended Course the student will be faithfully and profitably employed six months.
PENMANSHIP, PRACTICAL AND ORNAMENTAL, in all its varieties, will be taught in the most thorough and efficient manner by one of the best teachers in the West.—Besides the usual method of teaching Business Writing, the Chirhythmographic System will also be taught. This system, so popular and recommended by our best educational men, is now taught in the Public Schools of Cleveland, Columbus and Toledo. Many other places are open for good teachers of Chirhythmography as soon as they can be qualified.
DAILY LECTURES on Practical and Theoretical Book-keeping, Mercantile Laws, Commercial Ethics, Political Economy, Art of Computation, Comercial Calculations, Mercantile Customs, Banking, Exchange, Commerce, Railroading, Commercial History, Business Correspondence, Penmanship, &c.
The new suit of rooms of this College, occupies the finest location in the city, situated as they are on the corner of Public Square and Superior street, affording a fair view of most parts of the city and the lake. The rooms are neatly and tastefully furnished, surpassing in beauty and convenience perhaps those of any similar Institution in the Union.
THE LADIES' COURSE is the same as that of the Gentlemen, affording equal facilities to all ladies who may wish to avail themselves of the Commercial Course.
The Principal having an extensive business acquaintance is enabled to secure good situations for may of his graduates.
N. B.—For particulars send for Catalogues and Circulars by mail.

Select Poetry.

Young Again.

An old man sits in the high-backed chair,
Before an open door,
While the sun of a summer's afternoon
Falls hot across the floor.
And the drowsy tick of antient clock
Has noted the hour of four.

A breeze blows in, and a breeze blows out,
From the scented summer air,
And it flitters now on his wrinkled brow,
And now it lifts his hair,
And the laden lid of his eye drops down,
And he sleeps in the high-backed chair.

The old man sleeps, and the old man dreams,
His head drops on his breast,
His hands relax their feeble hold,
And fall to his lap in rest;
The old man sleeps, and in sleep he dreams,
And in dreams again is blessed.

The years unroll his fearful scroll,
He is a child again,
A mother's tones are in his ear,
And drift across his brain;
He chases gaudy butterflies
Far down the rolling plain.

He plucks the wild rose in the woods,
And gathers the eglantine,
And holds the golden butter-cups
Beneath his sister's chin;
And nigles in the meadow brook
With a bent and naked pin.

He loiters down the grassy lane,
And by the brimming pool,
And a sigh escapes his parting lips
And he hears the bell for school,
And he wishes it never were nine o'clock,
And the morning never full.

A mother's hand presses on his head,
Her kiss is on his brow—
A summer breeze blows in at the door,
With a toss of his leafy bough,
And the boy is a white-haired man again,
And his eyes are tear-filled now.

The personal appearance of Napoleon, in the last days of his power, is thus described by Lamartine:—

"The empire had made him old before his time. Gratified ambition, satiated pride, the delights of a palace, a luxurious table, a voluptuous couch, long vigils, sleepless nights, divided between labor and festive pleasure, the habit of riding which made him corpulent—all tended to deaden his limbs and enervate his faculties. An early obesity overloaded him with flesh. His cheeks, formerly streaked with muscles and hollowed by the working of genius; were broad, full, and overhanging, like those of Otho in the Roman medals of the empire. An excess of bile mingling with the blood, gave a yellow tint to the skin, which at a distance looked like a varnish of pale gold on his countenance. His lips still preserved their Grecian outline and steady grace, passing easily from a smile to a menace. His solid bony chin formed an appropriate base for his features. His nose was but a line, thin and transparent. The paleness of his cheeks gave greater brilliancy to the blue of his eyes. His look was searching, unsteady as a wavering flame an emblem of inquietude. His forehead seemed to have widened, from the scantiness of his thin black hair, which was falling from the moisture of continual thought. It might be said that his head, naturally small, had increased in size to give ample scope between his temples for the machinery and combinations of a mind, every thought of which was an empire. The map of the world seemed to have been encrusted on the orb of that reflective head. But it was beginning to yield; and he inclined it often on his breast, while crossing his arms like Frederic the Great—an attitude and gesture which he appeared to affect. Unable any longer to seduce his countries and his soldiers by the charm of youth, it was evident he wished to fascinate them by the rough, pensive, and disdainful character of himself, of his model in his latter days. He moulded himself, as it were, into the statute of reflection, before his troops, who gave him the nickname of Father Thoughtful. He assumed the pose of destiny. Something rough, rude, and savage in his movements revealed his southern and insular origin. The man of the Mediterranean broke out constantly through the Frenchman. His nature, too great and too powerful for the part he had to play, overflowed on all occasions. He bore no resemblance to any of the men around him. Superior and altogether different, he was an offspring of the sun, of the sea, and of the battlefield,—out of his element even in his own palace, and a stranger even in his own empire. Such was at this period the profile, the bust, and the external physiognomy of Napoleon."

Getting an Opera Ticket.

The following capital sketch is translated from a late French paper. It seems, at the early representations, in Paris, of the popular opera of "the Prophet," that tickets were very high, and it was by favoritism only that strangers could procure a chance to witness the first representations. Every species of contrivance was resorted to for the obtaining of passes to the Opera House, and among others was the following scheme of a muse-mad Russian—who had with difficulty obtained leave of absence from the Czar, who had sown the road with gold in his haste to arrive, and who drove into Paris at six o'clock on the evening of the first performance. He made his way to the door of the Opera House, and offered any sum for a ticket. It was too late. Standing in despair at the principal entrance, he saw a modest-looking gentleman approach with a ticket in his hand,

"Monsieur," said he, "you have a ticket?"

"Yes."

"Will you not part with it?"

"For what do you take me, sir?"

"I will give you five hundred francs—anything you ask for it?"

"Sir?" said the holder of the ticket, "the curtain is rising, and I have no time to quarrel with you. But I tell you that you are a very impertinent fellow!"

"He is right," said the Russian, as the man hurried in; why could I imagine that a man who had a ticket for "The Prophet" would sell it at any price?"

As he made this philosophical reflection, he felt a slight twitch in his pocket, and by a prompt movement he seized the hand of a thief with the thumb and finger pinched upon his pocket-book. Much the stronger man of the two, he held the culprit firmly in his grasp, and looked round for a police-officer, but a sudden thought struck him.

"I will let you go," he said, "rogue as you are, if you will get me an Opera ticket."

"Alas, sir!" said the thief, "there are none to be procured."

"Nor were private pocket-books, a moment ago, and yet you came very near having one."

"What, sir, do you ask me to steal it?"

"Yes!—steal the ticket of the first man you see coming towards the Opera, and I will give you five hundred francs—with the additional condition, only, that you give me the name and address of the person from whom you take it."

"Five hundred francs?" exclaimed the pick-pocket, astonished, "I only ask five minutes?"

"Away with you! and see that you are not as clumsy as you were in robbing me!"

The time had not half elapsed before the dexterous rogue returned—the ticket in his hand, and a small card case, which contained the name of the unfortunate owner, who was summarily deprived of the pleasure of the evening. The Russian took the commodities, paid the money, entered the Opera and, on the following morning sent the card-case, with the subjoined note, to its proprietor:—

"Monsieur:

"I procured and used, yesterday, your ticket to the Opera, but I must, of course, try to make you a proper compensation for the pleasure of which I deprived you. As I know that the prices for this first representation were very high, I enclose you a hundred and twenty dollars, which will probably cover the loss."

Integrity of Character.

We remember reading an account of a thread merchant of Rotterdam, who had accumulated fifty thousand dollars by his own industry, punctuality and integrity; and it was remarked of him that he never let a yard of bad thread go out of his hands, and would never take more than a reasonable profit. By these means he acquired such entire public confidence, that his customers would as willingly send a blind man or a child to buy for them as to go themselves.

We refer to the case not to intimate that we have no such instances among ourselves, but for the purpose of suggesting the great value to any business man of such a character, and the exceeding agreeableness to dealers with him of the confidence he inspires. And we affirm nothing extravagant in saying that the character for strict integrity acquired, is of as much real worth to a possessor as the pecuniary savings of his industry. Let such a man lose by any misfortune all of his money; he is still a man of capital, of weight, of influence, and is the superior, on mere business calculations of many a man of large monied means.

But the beauty of the thing is this—that any man, however small his business, and limited his capital, has as good an opportunity of winning confidence as a millionaire. Integrity in small things is even more impressive than in great things. And after all that men may say in praise of the enterprise, skill, shrewdness and tact of business men there is one character towards which all minds instinctively render their reverence —and that is, the man who had rather be honest than wealthy, and who prefers integrity to gold.

Clear Grit.

Some of our cotemporaries object to the use of the party designation "Clear Grit." Many will not be able to understand why this objection to a party designation, which has been in use for seven years, should now be made. We are told it is a term of reproach. Be it so. Let but the blame rest on the shoulders of the guilty party. The first newspaper which ever used it was the Globe; and the individual to whom Mr. Brown applied it, for three or four years, was the present editor-in-chief of that journal. So that the matter lies entirely between Mr. George Brown and the editor of the Globe. No doubts they would now be willing enough to blot out the word from the political vocabulary of public finds, that was first used as a term of reproach, has now become almost traditional party designation. No doubt the name is inconvenient to those who now complain of its use; inasmuch as it revives past antagonisms, personal and other wise, over which they are most anxious to throw a veil of oblivion.—But the public who have become accustomed to the use of the phrase, and who have lost the repulsive sense of its vulgarity by hearing it continually used for a period of seven years, are not inclined to abandon it. One reason for this disinclination is that it might be very difficult to find an equally convenient substitute. In the meantime, we beg to direct obj ctors to the proprietor and the editor of the Globe who will doubtless be able properly to avoid the sin of having coined and given currency to the now obnoxious term "Clear Grit," for a period of at least four years.—Leader.

Death of Father Mathew.

Father Mathew, the renowned Apostle of Temperance, died in Cork on the 9th of December. His career has been remarkable, and his influence among his countrymen in Great Britain and America will long be felt. Theobald Mathew was born in Thomastown, Ireland, Oct. 10, 1790. He was left an orphan at an early age, adopted by an aunt and educated in Kilkenny Academy, and at Maynooth. He was ordained to the priesthood at Dublin, having previously entered upon his philantropic labours among the poor. The curse of whiskey, brought so fearfully to his notice among these wretched people, roused him to unwonted enthusiasm, and he determined upon a crusade against the demon of Alcohol. Adopting the principle of total abstinence, he commenced a series of meetings, and soon awakened the latent enthusiasm of the Irish nature to his assistance, meeting success beyond the wildest hopes. He travelled from town to town through all the Island. His spotless fame preceded him, and his progress was one triumphal march. The authorities unbent their dignity to do him honour, and the people followed and crowded around him with adoration. He administered the pledge to thousands at a time; at Nenagh to twenty thousand in one day; at Galway a hundred thousand in two days; between Galway and Loughrea to nearly two hundred thousand. From Ireland he went to England, where even the phlegmatic Saxons were infected with a corresponding enthusiasm. Thence he came to the United States, where to some hands with the Apostle of Temperance and receive his medal with a pledge of total abstinence was the highest ambition of every worthy son and daughter of the Emerald Isle. His warm reception and gratifying success in this country are well remembered. Through all this Herculean labor he never amassed a cent for himself, but was constantly in a state of personal poverty.—When he began his good work his brother was the proprietor of a large distillery. He supported Theobald until his wonderful success had ruined the distillery, and reduced the owner to bankruptcy. To meet the wants of the good Samaritan, the British government settled an annuity of £300 upon him, which sum was just sufficient to pay the premium upon an insurance policy held by his creditors as security for their claims. Since his return to Ireland, the weight of years and the exertions of his early labours have compelled his partial withdrawal from public life, and his name has been less prominently before the public. In personal address Father Mathew was courteous, benevolent and winning in the highest degree. The news of his death will be received with profound regret by every true friend of man throughout the world.

Miscellany.

THE MILLIONAIRE BUTCHER OF LONDON.—A carriage which drove by was too fine to be elegant, and was drawn by two magnificent horses. On the box, adorned with beautiful fringe, sat a black-coated coachman; there was not a wrinkle in his white cravat—his sunny gloves were spotless. In the vehicle, on downy cushions, carelessly lounged a man without a coat, his arms bare, his sleeves turned up to the shoulders, an apron with the corners turned up served him as a girdle—so that the coachman looked like a gentleman driving a mechanic in his working dress. Mr. W. asked his neighbor who and what was the strange looking occupant of the dashing carriage? "The richest butcher in London," was the reply. "He is returning in his own carriage from the slaughter-house to his residence. His forefathers were in the same business; his father left him a fortune of two millions, and he, out of his modesty, follows his profession—a very honorable custom. This gentleman butcher possesses four millions."

PROFIT AND LOSS.—The keeper of a groggery happened one day to break one of his tumblers. He stood for a moment looking at the fragments, and meeting one his loss, then turning to his assistant, he cried out:—"Tom, put a quart of water in that old Cognac!"

A DIFFICULT TASK.—Some people imagine that they can raise themselves up by standing by their neighbors' feet. Some sons sit down upon a barrow and attempt to wheel themselves, or jump into a basket and try to lift themselves up by the handles.—Success in either case will be about the same!

A BAD SELL.—The Chicago Journal says, that Mr. A. of Chicago bought 20 barrels of extra beef, and advanced $150 on account thereof. He shipped the beef east, via, Michigan Southern Railroad. On the arrival of the train, one of the barrels was found to be leaking. To stop the leak it was necessary to cooper up the barrel. The head was taken out and the barrel found to be filled with water. The remainder of the lot were found to hold the same commodity. Mr. A paid the freight rather grumblingly. A similar affair, on a smaller scale, happened in this city a week or two since. Mr. Blank bought a nice keg of oysters on Saturday evening, intending to have an oyster pie for his Sunday's dinner. Stopping in at a restaurant, where practical jokes sometimes happen, he "took a nip," and then another. During his stay the keg of bivalves was quietly opened, emptied, and then filled with Niagara water. The unsuspecting victim carried home his gallon of water, and did not discover the sell until the next morning. First he was mad, then he laughed feebly, and finally, a bright idea striking him, he corked up the keg again, and despatched it by a servant to his mother, with his filial compliments. Imagine the maternal gratitude.

The Spaniards account by a quaint legend for the constant political disturbances in their country. When St. Jago, their patron, went to Heaven, he interceded for blessings on Spain. Brave men, handsome women, a fertile soil, and a fine climate, were readily granted. The saint then asked for "good government." "No no," was the reply; "if that were conceded as well, the angels would quit heaven to live in Spain."

FALSE CHARITY.—A negro preacher speaking from "What is a man profitted if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" mentioned among other things, that many lost their souls by being too charitable. Seeing the congregation astonished beyond measure at his saying, he very emphatically repeated it, and then proceeded to explain his meaning. "Many people," said he, "attend meeting, hear the sermon, and, when it is over, they proceed to divide it among the congregation—this part for that man, and that part for that woman; such denunciations for such persons, these threats for such sinners—and so," continued the shrewd African, "they give away the whole sermon and keep none for themselves."

A witty gentleman, speaking of a friend who was prostrated by illness, remarked that "he could hardly recover, since his constitution is all gone." "If his constitution is all gone," said a by-stander, "I do not see how he lives at all."—"Oh," responded the wag, "he lives on the by-laws."

ANCIENT MUSICAL INSTRUMENT.—The Egyptian flute was only a cow's horn, with only three or four holes in it; and their harp or lyre, had only three strings. The Jewish trumpets that made the walls of Jericho fall down, were only ram's horns; the psaltery was a small triangular harp or lyre, with wire strings, and was struck with an iron needle stick; their sackbut resembled the zaqq used at Malta in the present day, a species of bagpipe; the timbrel was a tambourine, and the dulcimer a horizontal harp with wire strings, and struck with a stick like the psaltery—such as are seen about the streets of London in the present day. Imagine the discord produced by 20,000 of such instruments while playing at the dedication of Solomon's temple.

The cold during the two last days, says the Quebec Gazette of Saturday, has been intense, the thermometer, in the Upper Town being as low as 22 ◦ below zero. It is said that the ice stopped the mail before last opposite the Chaudiere, and has formed a solid bridge. If such be the case, we may shortly expect a bridge between Quebec and Point Levi.

A STRONG HINT.—"Does your arm pain you sir?, asked a lady of a getleman who seated himself near her in a mixed assembly, and thrown his arm across the back of her chair and touched her neck.

"No, Miss, it don't; but why do you ask?"

"I noticed it was out of its place, sir, that's all."

The arm was removed.

WHAT THE OPPOSITION TO THE CUNARDERS HAS COST.—The New York Times says:—"The Americans are now heavily taxed to support the Collins' line, in its competition with the Cunard line, paying it more than four times as much as we receive for its services, and more than three times as much, for each trip, as the British Government pays to the Cunard ships. In this immense struggle for speed, which has been going on for several years, between the Collins' and Cunard ships, the former won the victory. But at how great a sacrifice! Let that wail from the Arctic as she reels down into the depths of the ocean, and from the Pacific, as she crashes in destruction upon barriers of ice—answer!"

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS are administered with uniform success in inflammatory rheumatism. Warm fomentations should first be applied to the surface, in order to open the pores, and then the ointment rubbed in as briskly as possible. The aperient action of the Pills has the happiest effect in abating the fever, and it may be confidently averred that any species of external inflammation will yield to a perservering use of these two great remedies. The cases of erysipelas, salt rheum, sore legs, contusion, tumor, cancer, fistula, piles, and external injury resulting from accident, that have been cured by Holloway's Ointment, may be numbered by tens of thousands.

"Though it be not in your power," said Marcus Aurelius, "to be a naturalist, a poet or a mathematician, it in your power to be a virtuous man, which is the best of all."

The Murder in Dublin.

A brief account of the discovery of another strange clue to the assasin of Mr. Little has been discovered. The Freeman gives the annexed particulars of the affair. The information thus brought to light might lead to important results if the informant could only explain why it was that he kept secret from Friday night to Tuesday morning all knowledge of the extraordinary scene of which he professes to have been an eyewitness. Dowd, it is but right to add, bears a most excellent character:—

"An engine driver named Dowd, in the employment of the railway company, made a most important disclosure yesterday. He says that after midnight of Friday night last he had occasion to go into the yard at the rear of his house, which is situated near the carriage factory. While in the yard he saw a man come to one of the windows in the side of the building where the money was found, open it, and shove a parcel in through it, and next one and of it on the windowstool, and the other on a high embankment in a garden into which the window looked. Dowd says that the man was muffled up, and he saw him pass along the plank leading into the garden. He was dressed in white, and carried a bundle in his hand tied up in a red handkerchief. After reaching the garden he got over the hedge, and proceeded in the direction of Philipsborough, when the plank was pulled into the building by some one inside. Such is the statement which Dowd made to the police. It will be seen that the party has not yet given information of the circumstances earlier than yesterday, he answer d that he did not wish to bring any one into trouble, but, in consequence of a conversation he had with another engine driver, to whom he told what he had seen, and who advised him not to conceal the matter, he gave information. Dowd was subjected to close examination by the police, the particulars of which are kept strictly private for the present. On Dowd's statement becoming known at the terminus it was rapidly circulated through the city, and gave rise to all kinds of rumours and conjectures. The statement made by Dowd and the result of the police inquires have been forwarded to the Government authorities for their information. During the day a large number of persons visited the detective office, Exchange-court, for the purpose of seeing the razor and hammer (supposed to be the weapons used by the murderer of Mr. Little), which are shown to every person wishing to see them. Large bills are posted through the city exhibiting drawings of both, with the object of their being recognized by some one that might have seen them on some former occasion. The search at the terminus continued up to a late hour in the evening, and will be resumed this day."

The Accident to the Steamship Hermann.

The Hermann encountered the most terrific weather in the Atlantic, the wind blowing a perfect hurricane for the most part of the time, and the sea running mountain high. When about 900 or 1,000 miles from Southampton, the vessel labouring heavily, and but just able to make headway against the gale, the centre shaft carrying the side levers of one of the engines, broke, and the shock damaged the piston of the port engine, entirely disabling it. The ship was thus made completely dependent upon the power of the remaining engine. It is a most providential circumstance that the perfect discipline existing on board the Hermann, and in the engine department, caused this serious disaster to be of no injury to the vessel. The slightest delay in ungearing and stopping the machinery would probably have broken the other engine, and the Hermann would then have been left to the mercy of the waves. As it was, the wreck of the broken machine was quickly disengaged, and the head of the ship put about for Southampton, steaming with one engine driving both paddle-wheels. The "Hermann" arrived at Southampton on the evening of the 14th ultimo. The passengers have signed a testimonial to Captain Higgins, expressive of their admiration of the great seamanlike skill, courage, and praiseworthy conduct, displayed by him throughout the whole of this trying period. The Hermann's mails and passengers were forwarded to their destination by the Fulton, and the valuable cargo, after being surveyed, would be reshipped by the agents, Messrs. Croskey & Co., with all practicable speed.

By a most remarkable coincidence, the accident to the Hermann and that to the Canard steamer America occurred on the same day and about the same hour; the latter ship reporting a quar er to ten as the time when she was struck by the sea which almost engulfed her, and the Hermann's log naming 9.30 A. M. or ten minutes to ten, as the hour when her engine-shaft broke, both on the morning of the 9th December.

The Ocean Telegraph Company.

The Atlantic Ocean Telegraph Company has become a fixed fact under the patronage of the Imperial Government. It now only remains to be seen whether the mechanical part of the scheme can be carried into operation as effectively as the monetary. The following is from the New York Daily Times on the formation of the Company:

"Among the passengers by the "Baltic" are Cyrus W. Field, Esq., and family. Mr. Field has been completely successful in every respect, in relation to the Atlantic telegraph. The call of 20 per cent. on the 350 shares of £1,000 each of the Atlantic Telegraph Company, was promptly met on the day when due, namely, Friday, the 5th. On the same day, the manufacture of the cable was commenced at the works of Kuper, Glass, & Co., Greenwich. On Tuesday, the 9th, the shareholders met to elect Directors, when the following were elected:—

"LONDON.—George Peabody, Samuel Gurney, Thomas Allen Hankey, C. M. Lamson, Thomas H. Brooking G. B. Carr, J. W. Brett, Esquires.

"MANCHESTER.—John Pender, Jas. Dugdale, Esquires.

"LIVERPOOL.—William Brown, M. P. George Maxwell, Crosbie, E. Johnson, H. Harrison, C. V. H. Pickering, Esquires.

"GLASGOW.—Sir James Anderson, M. P. W. Logie, Esq., Professor W. Thompson.

"UNITED STATES.—Peter Cooper, Esq., President, New York; Cyrus W. Field, Esq., New York; W. G. Hunt, Esq., New York; H. O. Aldan, Esq., New York; Watts Sherman, Esq., New York; Professor S. F. B. Morse, Poughkeepsie; Lieutenant M. F. Maury, LL.D., Washington, D.C.; A. H. Rice, of Boston; Francis P. Corbyn, Esq. of U.S., residing in Paris.

"CANADA.—Hon. John Ross, Hon. John Young, Hon. Geo. E. Cartier.

"BANKERS.—George Peabody & Co., and Hank-ys & Co., London."

Numbers Slain in Different Battles.

At Durhar , 1346, there fell 15,000; at Halidonhill and Agincourt, 20,000 each; at Cautzen and Lepanto, 25,000 each: at Austerlitz, Jena and Lutzen, 30,000 each; at Eylau, 60,000; at Waterloo and Quatre Bras, one engagement, 70,000; at Borodino, 80,000; at Fontenoy, 100,000; at Yarmouth 150,000; at Chalons, no less than 300,000 of Attila's army alone! The Moors in Spain, about the year 800, lost in one battle 700,000; in another, near Centuria later, 180,000, besides 50,000 prisoners, and in a third even 200,000. Still greater was the carnage in ancient times. At Cannæ, 70,000 fell. The Romans alone, in an engagement with the Cimbri and Teutones, lost 80,000. The Carthaginians attacked Hymera in Sicily with an army of 300,000 men, and a fleet of 2000 ships, and 3000 transports; but not a ship nor a transport escaped destruction, and of the troops, only a few in a small boats reached Carthage with the melancholy tidings. Marius slew, in one battle, 40,000 Gauls, and in another 290,000. In the battle of Issus, between Alexander and Darius, 110,000 were slain, that of Arbela, 300,000. Julius Cæsar once annihilated an army of 363,000 Helvetians; in a battle with the Usipetes, he slew 400,000; and on another occasion, he massacred more than 430,000 Germans who had crossed the Rhine, with their herds, and flocks, and little ones, in quest of new settlements."

The Maple Leaf,

SANDWICH, JANUARY 8, 1857.

The Arctic discovery ship Resolute, which has been presented to the British Government by the United States Congress, arrived at Spithead on the 12th of last month, under the command of Capt. Hartstein.—It will not be uninteresting to notice a few points in the past history of this ship. The Resolute formed one of Sir Edward Belcher's squadron of discovery, and in the month of May, 1853, was dispatched, under the command of Captain Kellett to the Polar Seas, in search of the long lost Sir John Franklin. She was thoroughly prepared for the voyage which she was to undertake. She was double decked and double planked throughout, in order that she might more safely withstand the pressure of the ice. It would appear that every regard had been paid to the comfort of her officers and crew to the Polar Seas: an ingenious heating apparatus had been put up, which was heated with steam—the pipes running fore and aft through the body of the vessel maintained an agreeable temperature, even when the thermometer had fallen below zero. In those regions of cold she bore her gallant crew for nearly a year, notwithstanding the hardships which necessarily must have been their lot. In the month of May, 1854, just one year after she had sailed, she became frozen up in the icebergs in the latitude 77 degrees nor h, and had to be finally abandoned. She remained among the icebergs for sixteen months, when a large portion of the ice in which she had been imbedded, became detached from the mass by a thaw, and floated off, leaving her at the mercy of the wind and waves, and hurrying her out to remote seas, when in September, 1855, she was discovered by Capt Buddington of the whaler George Henry, from the United States. She had then drifted over a wilderness of water nearly twelve hundred miles, and when discovered was in latitude 66 degrees, 30 min., and longitude 64 degrees, Capt. Buddington, when he took possession of the Resolute, found that all was silence on board, though the ship had sustained but little injury. The ropes and rigging were still with the frost; the tanks in the hold were burst and the iron work was considerably rusted, and there were three or four feet of water in the hold, but she had not sprung a leak. Some of the scientific instruments were injured by exposure, but others were in excellent condition; every thing was found in complete order, although for sixteen months no human foot had trod those decks. Capt. Buddington remained on board with a part of his crew until the thaw set in, then, when the ice softened sufficiently, he made ready, and set sail for New London, in the State of Connecticut, where he arrived with her in December of 1855. In a short time she was taken to New York.

The Resolute had now become the property of a citizen of the United States, the British government having renounced all claim to her.

The idea of restoring her again to the British Government was entertained, and Congress appropriated a sum of forty thousand dollars for her purchase from the whalers, which being accomplished, he it spoken to the praise of the United States for their courtesy to the British Government; she was thoroughly repaired, and every thing replaced as when abandoned in the Polar Sea by Capt. Kellett, even to a new set of colours which had been manufactured in the Brooklin Navy yard, to replace her own set which had become rotten from exposure; the muskets, swords, telescopes and, nautical instruments &c., which she carried have been put in order, and nothing has been left undone that was necessary to her complete and thorough renovation.

She was put under command of Captain Hartstein of the United States Navy, who was to convey her to Britain and present her to the Queen. Her arrival we have already mentioned,

The Queen and Prince Albert, accompanied by some of the Royal children, paid a visit to the Resolute, which was dressed in her colours. Capt. Hartstein received the royal party at the gangway, and the officers in full uniform were grouped on either side, all presented to the Queen by Capt Hartstein, who then addressed Her Majesty in the following words:—

"Allow me to welcome your Majesty on board the Resolute, and in obedience to the will of my country and of the President of the United States, to restore her to you, not only as an evidence of a friendly feeling to your sovereignty, but as a token of love, admiration and respect to your majesty personally."

The Queen seemed touched by the manly simplicity of this frank and sailor-like address; and replied with a gracious smile, "I thank you, sir." The royal party went over and examined the ship with manifest interest. After completing the inspection the royal party retired amid the enthusiastic acclamations of the spectators.

An elegant dejeuner was afterwards served in the wardroom, when Capt. Hartstein proposed the health of the Queen and royal family; and a number of other friendly and international toasts were drunk.

On Monday and Tuesday last, the Election for Township Councillors in Sandwich took place. As was stated in last week's paper, the old set stood again for re-election, with a number of new Candidates, but it appeared from the beginning that the old ones would be elected, as they led the poll throughout, and at the close stood as follows:

L. Reaume, -	359
A. Ouellette -	308
J. Demouchelle, -	288
P. Bondy, -	278
Thos. Woolbridge,	241
— St. Louis, -	205
G. Maisonville, -	85
J. Mercer, -	61
— Geneac, -	47
— Langlois, -	30

By the above it will be seen that Messrs. Reaume, Ouellette, Demouchelle, Bondy and Woodbridge, have been elected Councillors for the year 1857.

There was a good deal of excitement got up on Tuesday, for the purpose of running Mr. Woodbraige out; but this failed most signally, and we were not a little surprised to see some of the townspeople exerting themselves to this end. The interests of the Town require that one member of the Corporation at least should be a Townsman, and had Mr. Woodbridge lost his election, we would have been without a representative at all in the Council.

The Tavern Inspectors are, H. Jannisse, P. Marentette and Clovis Ouellette.

The Tea Meeting that was announced in our last to take place in aid of St. John's Church, came off on Friday evening last, and on the whole was most successful. The attendance was very large; in fact, the rooms were crowded to excess—the fair of Sandwich and neighborhood graced the assembly in no small degree, giving it the appearance of some fairy land—the ladies never looked fairer or prettier than they did then—and if we may judge from appearances, the gentlemen were never happier.

The tables were covered most sumptuously with every thing that the heart could wish for, and after partaking of the good things provided, the assembly broke up, highly delighted with the manner in which they had been entertained. Great praise is due to the ladies, through whose exertions this sumptuous entertainment was provided.

The next evening the Juvenites were let in, and it was highly amusing to see the little fellows storming the pyramids of cakes and other delicacies when presented them selves to their view A looker on would almost suppose that he was witnessing the storming of Sebastopol, when the youngsters commenced the assault, and right earnestly did they carry it on until all had fallen —and they had become victors of the field. Three cheers were then given for the ladies, and the table army disbanded.

A movement is on foot to erect a new County, to be composed of portions of Lambton, Kent, Middlesex and Elgin, with either Bothwell or Wardsville as the County Town, most likely the former will be the fortunate place, as all the influence that can be brought to bear in the matter, will be used in its favor. The following Townships will compose the new County namely:—Oxford and Zone in Kent; Alborough and Dunwich in Elgin; Moza, Metcalf and Ekfrid in Middlesex; and Brooke and Euphemia in Lambton.

The Chathamites are rather down upon the scheme—as Jonathan would say—as it would be taking grit from their mill, to detach two of their Townships and establish a new County Town, where they would be likely to do their trading.

We regret to learn that Mr. Thomas Robertson of Windsor, son of—Robertson of Inches, came to his death by drowning on Tuesday last, while crossing the River. His body was immediately afterwards recovered, but not until life was extinct.

☞ A person by the name of Shaffer of the Township of Rochester, committed suicide by hanging himself. The cause assigned for this rash act, appears to be connected in some way with a girl that deceased had wished to marry.

The County Court and Quarter Sessions were opened by His Hon. Judge Chewett, on Tuesday last.

The following are the names of the Grand Jury sworn:—

Windle S. Wigle Esq., Foreman; Messrs. Bainsette, A. Benitesu, Thos. R. Crow, Michael Cavenah, Abraham, Halford, Laurance Kane, Jacob Lawnsbury, Pierre Marentette, Jonathan Park, Thos Quick, Jno Shay, John Wilkinson, John W. Wilkinson

A number of Civil suits are upon the Docket for trial, and will be reported next week.

DESTRUCTION OF THE GRAND TRUNK TERMINUS AT POINT LEVI.—We learn that last night, or early this morning, the watchman on duty at the terminus of the Grand Trunk Railroad, at Point Levi, discovered a fire in the lumber room. He at once opened the, door, and and the flames rushed out. The alarm was immediately given, and every effort was made to save it, but in vain. In a very short time, the entire building (which was an immense one) was one mass of flame, and was burnt to the ground. In the building a freight clerk and his wife, who sleeps over the passenger portion of the depot, barely escaped in their night clothes, with their lives. The building was a wooden one, and everything in it, consisting of cars, goods, &c., were destroyed. The safe was, however, saved. The amount of loss, or the origin of the fire, is not known. The Victoria Hotel, situated but a short distance from the terminus, was with great difficulty saved.—Mon. Pilot.

AN ENORMOUS CARGO.—The monster ship Ocean Monarch, for Liverpool, completed loading at New York on Monday.—She has the following enormous cargo on board, viz: one hundred and twenty thousand bushels of wheat and corn, one hundred and fifty tierces of rice, and one hundred bushels of tustic. She has still the capacity in her upper deck for fifty thousand more bushels; but going to her heavy draught of water, being 23 feet, her owner deemed it prudent to despatch her with her main deck empty.

THE OCEAN STEAMERS.—The agents of the Montreal Ocean Steamship Company have, we believe, purchased the property known as Jones' and Munn's wharves, at which the steamers of that line have moored while in this port. We are also informed that there is a good understanding between the Cunard Company and the "Allan" line, that they will run alternately and with a combined effort to make the St. Lawrence weekly line of Ocean Steamers the favorite line between the old and the new world. The purchase of the property above mentioned, is in favor of this side of the river, but on the other hand we find that a company of which Mr. William Chapman of London is the largest stock holder, has been formed and intend to ask for an Act of Incorporation from the Legislature, to establish warehouses, wharves or docks at Chapman's Cove, and at which wharves, if the St Charles Docks be not at once undertaken, the Cunard steamers will be located. The movement made, therefore by the City Council requires to be energetic, and something more than mere talk is essential.—Quebec Colonist.

The following advertisement appears in the London Shipping and Mercantile Gazette:—

STEAM TO CANADA.—The Liverpool and Montreal Steamship Company intend to dispatch first class steamships twice in each month during the season to Quebec and Montreal, to commence in April next.

Shareholders are informed that two ships will shortly be ready for service.

Applications for the remaining Shares will be received at the office of the subscribers, No. 22 Water-street, Liverpool.

JACOB TAYLOR & TIPPER,
Liverpool;
Or to JOHN HALY & Co.,
18 Philpot-lane, London.

This new line will, we believe, be entirely devoted to the carrying of freight. The vessels will be fitted up with the auxiliary screw. This we have before contended is peculiarly applicable to the trade of the St. Lawrence. It will enable a vessel to make three trips in one season, with a comparatively small consumption of fuel; and the time is probably not far distant when it will be nearly universally applied to first class ships. Its application on the St. Lawrence route, we believe, will be an economy rather than extra expense. There is little danger of our getting too many steam lines, if we can get the western carrying trade; and there is little doubt but certainty and regularity of communication will induce sufficient importation by the St. Lawrence for the West to insure freight both ways. People now on both sides of the Atlantic, are becoming thoroughly awakened to the advantages offered by the St. Lawrence route; and this is full of great importance to us.—[Montreal Gazette.

A notice appears in the Huron Signal, dated "Mount Forest," to the effect that application will be made at the next Session of Parliament for an act to form a new County, comprising the following Townships, viz:—Amaranth, Luther, Arthur, and Minto, now in the County of Wellington; Melancthon, Proton, Egremont, and Normanby, in the County of Grey; Garrick, in the County of Bruce, and Howick, in the County of Huron.

Fossils are said to be found in the Canadian River Thames. The Prototype says that the persons who are in the daily habit of gathering stone from the bed of the river, have discovered some fine specimens of this natural phenomenon. A gentleman of Delaware has lately found a petrified human hand, several large sea shells, and many collections of twigs, weeds, &c., also turned to stone. How the sea shells have got so far inland, is for geologists to decide.

Among the passengers by the steamer Africa, which sailed from New York to Liverpool, on Wednesday the 24th inst., were:—Hon. L. T. Drummond, Hon. John Ross and Miss Ross, Toronto; Messrs. H. M. Routh, Champion, Ross, Betts, Urquhart, Gzowski, George Crawford, Masson, Bruyere, L. Oliver, Francis Declaire and Gelt, of Montreal; John Patterson and John Egan, M. P. P.

MOST PAINFUL CALAMITY.—THREE CHILDREN FLOATING ON A CAKE OF ICE—TWO OF THEM DROWNED.—Two lovely little brothers, aged five and seven years, the only sons of John P. and Lydia H. Worthing, of this village, on Wednesday in the Mohawk River, near their fathers residence, on Saturday, the 2d ich inst., about two o'clock P. M. —They had permission to spend the afternoon with the children of Mr. S. Cary whose residence is situated on the bank of the river, about one mile from its mouth. Mr. Cary's children, with the two little boys, two sons of Mr. W. went down to the river, which was rising by the late thaw, and stepped on the ice, which extends some rods in the river, and in a few minutes they were floating into the current.

Their perilous condition was soon discovered and alarm given, but before assistance could be rendered, the float struck the main body of the ice extending across the river some distances below, and the two sons of Mr. Worthing were precipitated under the ice. Mr. Cary's little son jumped off a few rods above and waded to a small island near. Assistance immediately arrived in the shape of the bodies of the children, and prosecuted vigorously by a large number of citizens, removing the ice and dragging the river; but they were not found until the next morning.

AN AWFUL STORY.—The N. Y. Correspondent of the Philidelphia Enquirer writes:

It will be remembered that the late Corporation Attorney Lorenzo B. Shepard, Esq., was three months ago found dead in his room, after retiring the night previous in good health. The physicians reported the cause of his death to be congestion of the heart, and the coroner's jury returned a verdict in accordance therewith. The body of Mr. Shepard was placed in a receiving vault, preparatory to its final interment in the family burial ground. A few days ago Mrs. Shepard ordered the remains of her deceased husband to be taken from the vault, but those employed for the purpose were horror struck on finding the body removed several feet from the coffin, the shroud torn into shreds, and covered with blood, giving the impression that Mr. Shepard had only been lying in a trance, and had recovered after being placed in a vault. This seems almost too horrible for belief, and I understand that a relation of Mr. Shepard denies the truth of the report and asserts that such could not have been the case, from the fact that the body was packed in ice for over two days previous to its being placed in the vault. On the other hand, there are those who contend that Mr. Shepard was not dead at the time of placing his body in the vault, and that certain facts are in possession of the family which go to show that such is the case of their assertions.

PRINCE ESTERHAZY—A WALKING JEWELER. The correspondent of the London Times gives a portrait of Prince Esterhazy, as he appeared at his own State Ball: He was dressed with all that wonderful yet tasteful magnificence which has made his name famous; the dark, sable-trimmed pelisse, with streams and lakes of diamonds and pearls studding every fold and filtering through every crevice, the color of which, whether puce or black, or deep blue I cannot determine.—The tunic, covered from throat to waist with orders in diamonds, the sash and badges of knighthood; ribbons and stars, and precious stones; the purple or maroon coloured boots crusted with pearls and diamonds, and the sword with its hilt a very mirror of light.

The Rochester Union of Wednesday gives the following curious narrative of an ancdote connected with the schooner Isabella of Toronto:—

"RUNNING AWAY WITH A VESSEL.—CAUGHT IN A TIGHT PLACE.—Some time since the schooner Isabella, of Toronto, was chartered to take a cargo of grain from this port, by Messrs Rodger & Marshall of Charlotte. The contract for repairing provided for the payment of $333, but the contractors demanded something like $180 for extra work. The contract price was paid by the captain, and Mr. Beard, of Toronto, the owner, but they refused to pay the extra demand. On Saturday, Messrs. R & M., went before Justice Reed, of Greece, swore out an attachment and levied on the schooner. Finding that the process was not likely to stand a lawsuit, they came to the city and procured an attachment from the Supreme Court, and the Sheriff seized the Isabella and tied her up. The Captain and Mr. Beard were told that the first process was not good and that they had better leave with the vessel. In forring the Sheriff's papers were not better than the constable's—they left here yesterday morning for Toronto with the Isabella. A storm drove them back into port last night, and into the clutches of the Sheriff, who put them in gaol. The grand jury were in session yesterday and indicted them for a felony. They were arraigned in Court this morning and gave bail to answer. They have committed a grave offence against the laws, but, being foreigners, it is probable that they were not aware of the fact. We trust they will receive the lenity which their case seems to demand."

A NOBLE, DARING FEAT.—One of Bellot's fair daughters yesterday accomplished one of the most bold, daring and successful feats on record, and one which is not only worthy of being recorded, but which will ever be considered, among those who fully appreciate all the circumstances as almost miraculous. At about 3, p. m., the pedestrian, who cast an eye up Broadway, might have seen a gay and powerful span of West ern bays before a fine and well-robed sleigh, containing a gentleman, lady and child, dashing down the street, regardless of all restraint, at their utmost speed, which probably was not less than twenty-five miles per hour; when the lady regarding all as lost and destruction almost inevitable, with noble presence of mind and unerring fortitude, carefully prepared her little niece for a clear lunge into the first large snow drift and herself for the same. Suiting her action to the thought, she deliberately and carefully cleared herself from all entanglements, and holding the child aloft and clear over the side, quietly dropped it as intended. Then quietly drawing herself up, gave a leap which brought her nearly to her waist in snow, but on her feet, erect. Both came off unharmed, while the gentleman went the rounds and finally brought up with no serious harm. Let all beat this who can.—Beloit Journal.

ENGLISH POTTERY.—Staffordshire is the greatest of the porcelain and pottery manufactories. No less than 60,000 persons are employed in the work, and the annual value of the porcelain manufactured amounts to above $10,000,000 per annum—three-fourths of which are exported.

THE DEAD ALIVE.—An upholsterer in the neighborhood of Amsterdam, having received orders a few days since to make a coffin, proceeded to the house to take the measure of the body. The deceased had been a friend of his, and the man was naturally affected when he entered the room. Having removed the sheet with which the corpse was covered, he saw the man with his eyes wide open looking at him with astonishment and curosity. In a minute after, the supposed corpse sat upright, and said, "John, what on earth are you doing here?" The man, when a little recovered from his alarm, replied, "I came to inquire after your health." The man, it appeared, had fallen into a lethargy, from which he fortunately awoke in time to save himself from premature interment.—Galignani.

RELICS OF THE BATTLE OF FLODDEN-FIELD.—There was found, on Tuesday last, close to the base of the hill of Flodden—memorable to the scene of that battle which occupies such a conspicuous place in the history of our country—a sword and steel scabbard, imbedded about two feet below the surface of the ground. The weapon is three feet long, the hilt mounted with silver, bearing on each side the figures of a thistle, the lion rampant, and the date 1500, all quite legible. The head-piece is similar in shape to that worn by our cavalry at the present day. Although much corroded, it is apparent they have been rich and costly pieces of workmanship. It is intended to present the relics to the Museum of Edinburg.—Berwick Advertiser.

We learn from a New Orleans paper that a Frenchman of that city has purchased 8,000 acres of land from the Illinois Central Railroad company, and 3,000 acres from Messrs. A. J. Galloway & Co., near Leda Station, upon which he purposes to found a French Colony, and go into the sugar business. It is reported that the colony will embark in the culture of the "Sorgho Sucre," or Chinese Sugar Cane.—Ex.

The New Orleans Chief of Police has adopted the plan of affixing placards upon the breasts and backs of notorious thieves, burglars and pickpockets, on which is printed, in large letters, the nature of the offence for which they have been convicted. They are then marched through the streets, and made a public exhibition.—Ex.

INTERESTING SCIENTIFIC EXPEDITION.—The Madras Times, of the 14th ult., says:—"The "Gorgon," steam frigate, lately arrived here from England, on her way to the Levant, has, we understand, been expressly sent out by the Admiralty on a scientific expedition to the Island of Cos.—It would appear that the British Vice-Consul of that island has discovered the remains of what is considered to be an ancient Greek city; and that he applied to the Home Government for the means of prosecuting researches, which promise to be very interesting. The "Gorgon" has on board implements for excavating, and scientific instruments to facilitate the work. A good camera obscura and photographic chemicals have also been supplied, so that any inscription or statuary which may be brought to light will be photographed on the spot. The result, we are informed, is to be carried on under the superintendence of the Vice-Consul. The expedition, if they realize the expectations formed concerning it, will probably throw considerable light on some portion of the history of Ancient Greece. Cos is one of the islands of the Archipelago, situated in the great distance from the coast of Asia Minor. The "Gorgon" left on the 13th for Smyrna."

GREAT MEN NEVER SWELL.—It is only your three per cent individuals, who are salaried at the rate of two hundred a year, and live on potatoes and dried herrings, who put on airs and wear flashy waistcoats, swell, puff, blow and endeavor to give themselves a consequential appearance. No discriminating person need mistake the spurious for the genuine article.

TORONTO, JAN. 5. 1857

WHEAT.—The market to day was very meagrely supplied and dull. Scarcely any competition existed, and hence the small supply offering did not influence quotations. The prices paid ranged from 6s to 6s 2d per bushel.

FLOUR offered in rather deficient quantity. The demand was slack, and prices remain unaltered. We quote superfine nominally at $5 to $5 25 per barrel; fancy $5 50, and extra $5 75 to $6.

OATS.—But little has been done since our last. Prices may still be quoted at 2s 9d to 2s 10d per bushel for oats on market. In a sc ore, quotations remain without any variation.

APPLES.—But little offered in market.—Holders were asking $3 to 3 50 per barrel, with a very limited inquiry.

BUTTER met a good inquiry at 1s 2d to 1s 3d per lb. for best firkin.

EGGS were scarce, and not by any means the best., They did not meet many purchasers at 1s 4d per dozen—the price asked.

POTATOES.—Several lots of very good looking potatoes were offered at 5s per bushel.

BEEF remains steady at the rates prevailing throughout the week—$5 50 to $6 50 per 100 lbs.

HAY has been well supplied, and is no difficult of sale at from $12 to $18 per ton

NEW YORK, Dec. 3, 1857.

FLOUR—Market more steady; sales 3500 bbls at $6 10 a $6 20 common to choice superfine State—$6 40 a $6 70 for extra do —$6 20 a $6 60 for superfine Western—$6 60 a $7 10 for extra do. Canadian nominally the same.

GRAIN.—Wheat quiet; sales 3500 bush. at $1 76 for white Southern. Rye steady, at $1 20 for Northern; sales 30,000 bushels, at 68c a 70c for mixed Western, afloat and delivered. Oats steady, at 45c a 51 for state and western.

PROVISIONS.—Pork firmer; sales 700 brls, at $20 00 a $20 12 for mess — $19 37 a $19 50 for old mess—$16 87 a $17 00 for prime. Beef buoyant. Lard better; sales 800 brls, at 12¼ a 12¾. Dressed hogs active, at 8¾ a 8¾

MONEY is actively sought after, both on call and short first class paper, at full rates, Foreign exchange dull and lower, at 108¾ a 108¾.

ARRIVAL OF THE NIAGARA.

HALIFAX, Jan. 1.

The steamship Niagara arrived. The Ericsson arrived at Liverpool on the evening of the 19th. The Persia arrived on the 20th at 7 A. M. The greatest speed the Persia attained was 339 miles in 24 hours.

A steam tug had arrived from the wrecked Adriatic, and reports that should the weather keep moderate, the ship may be got off without much damage.

It is still supposed that the Congress of Paris will re assemble before the New Year, but nothing official has been stated. Meantime, there are the usual variety of rumors circulating. Count Walewski is said to propose that some compensation should be given to Russia for the loss of Bolgrade, and Russia proposes to accept a piece of land beside the River Tulpuk, and one of its tributaries.

A Paris despatch says that Austria is the only power that has not named a representative to the Congress; but Baron Hubner will probably represent Austria, and Baron Brunow, Russia.

The failure of Robt. Johnston & Co., Warehousemen, of London, and Geo. Ashworth & Co., Manufacturers, of Manchester are announced.

The fall of Herat is confirmed from Persian sources. The city was only given up when all hopes of defending it successfuly was given up.

In England a strong feeling is getting up inimical to the war with Persia.

A meeting had been held at Newcastle-on-Tyne, to denounce the Expedition against Persia.

On Friday night bills were posted about London warning soldiers against taking part in piratical invasion of Persia.

Transports are being taken up in England for conveying reinforcements to the India Expedition against Persia.

A great meeting was held at Birmingham against the continuance of the war income tax. The movement is spreading in other parts of the country.

FRANCE.

An Editorial in the Monitcur on the Neufchatel affair has attracted attention. It speaks in harsh terms respecting Switzerland, alleging against the Swiss federal government an obstinacy to be regretted, and a complete indifference to the counsels of France.

Several French papers are advocating the establishment of a Government line of steamers. The Constitution says that the present state of the money market is the sole barrier. The Siecle proposes a Government subsidy to the existing transatlantic steamers, and adds that Government is about to reconsider the subject of a transatlantic line, a question that has been adjourned so often, and which catastrophes such as the loss of the steamer Pacific, the City of Philadelphia, and the Lyonnais render more than ever, indispensable.

A lady remarked she would make a poor sailor. But, said the captain, "you would make an excellent mate."

Special Notices.

Sir Astley Cooper's Pills.

For the cure of Bile, Giddiness and Determination of Blood to the Head. These Pills, so well known, supersede all other medicines for the suppression of an undue secretion of Bile. They give relief to that sensation of fullness frequently felt after eating, cure headaches, prevent pains, giddiness and determination of blood to the head. Habitual costiveness is obviated by their use, and for dyspepsial complaints they stand pre-eminent. For strengthening and cleansing the stomach, Sir Astley Cooper's Pills are the very best remedy ever discovered. They also increase the appetite and promote digestion, giving hilarity of feeling and buoyancy of spirits.

To Ladies.—Sir Astley Cooper's Pills are especially efficacious in all the variety of ailments incidental to the Fair Sex. Ladies even of the most delicate constitution will find them particularly beneficial both before and after confinement; and for general use they cannot be too strongly recommended. They mildly and speedily remove all skin eruptions, sallowness of complexion, nervous irritability, sick headache, costiveness, depression of spirits, irregularity or general derangement of the system, and by assisting the secretions, give such a healthy action to the organs as to give the color of the rose to the complexion, and tone and vigor to the whole frame.

Beware of Spurious Imitations.—None are genuine wi hout the fac-simile of the signature of the Proprietors, MacPhail & Co. London and New York on each box, and on the directions. The Genuine Pills have also an excellent likeness of Sir Astley Cooper on the top of each box. Without these marks of authenticity, they are certainly spurious and an imposition.

Sold at 25 and 50 cents per box, and in Family boxes at $1 each. There is a great saving by purchasing the larger sizes.

For sale by Simpson and Dupuy, Druggists, Toronto; John M. Thornton, Dundas; Andrew Oliver Galt; A. H. Cook, Brantford, General Agents, by whom Country Druggists and Merchants will be supplied at London and New York prices.

A MEDICAL REVOLUTION!

THE WORLD ENANIMOUS!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

THE GREAT COUNTER IRRITANT!!

The virus of disease often makes its way to the internal organs through the pores of the skin. This penetrating Ointment, melting under the hand as it is rubbed in, is absorbed through the same channels, and reaching the seat of inflammation, promptly and invariably subdues it, whether located in the kidneys, the liver, the lungs, or any other important organ. It penetrates the surface to the inner tissue, through the countless tubes that communicate with the skin as summer rain passes into the fevered earth, diffusing its cool and regenerating influence.

Skin Diseases & Glandular Swellings!

Every species of exterior irritation is quickly reduced by the anti-inflammatory action of this Ointment. Angry Eruptions, such as Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Tetter, Ringworm, Scald Head, Nettle Rash, Scabies (or Itch) &c., to die out, to return no more, under its application. Hospital experience in all parts of the world prove its infallibility in any disorder of the skin, the muscles, the joints and the glands.

Ulcers, Sores & Tumours!

The effect of this unrivalled external remedy upon Scrofula and other virulent ulcers and sores, is almost miraculous. It first discharges the poison which produces suppuration and proud flesh, and thus the cures which its healing properties afterward complete are safe as well as permanent.

Wounds, Bruises, Burns & scalds.

In cases of the fracture of the bones, injuries caused by machinery, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Rheumatism, Stiffness of the Joints, and contraction of the sinews, it is employed and warmly recommended by the faculty. This ravaluable remedy has been introduced by its inventor in person into all the leading hospitals of Europe, and no private household should be without it.

Undeniable Testimony!

The Medical Staff of the French and English Armies in the Crimea have officially signed their approval of Holloway's Ointment, as the most reliable dressing for sabre cuts, stabs, and gun-shot wounds. It is also used by the surgeons of the Allied Navies.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases.

Bunions,	Skin Diseases,
Burns,	Swelled Glands,
Chapped Hands,	Sore Legs,
Chilblains,	Sore Breasts,
Fistula,	Sore Heads,
Gout,	Sore Throats,
Lumbago,	Sores of all kinds,
Mercurial Eruptions,	Sprains,
Piles,	Stiff Joints,
Rheumatism,	Tetter,
Ringworm,	Ulcers,
Salt Rheum,	Venereal Sores,
Scalds,	Wounds of all kinds,

A COMPLETE SYSTEM OF

HYDROPATHY & HYGIENE,

IN ONE LARGE VOLUME.

EMBRACING Outlines of Anatomy, Illustrated; Physiology of the Human Body; Hygienic Agencies and the Preservation of Health; Dieties and Hydropathic Cookery; Theory and Practice of Water Treatment; Special Pathology and Hydrotherapeutics, based on the Natural Causes, Symptoms and Treatment of all known diseases; Application to Surgical Diseases; Application of Hydropathy to Midwifery and the Nursery, with three hundred engravings and nearly One Thousand Pages, including a Glossary, Table of Contents, and a complete Index. By R. T. TRALL, M. D.

Published by FOWLER and WELLS, New York.

In the plan of the work, the wants and necessities of the People have been steadily in view, while almost every topic of interest in the departments of Anatomy, Physiology, Pathology, Hygiene, Therapeutics is briefly presented, those of practical utility are always put prominently forward. The prevailing errors, conceits, and whims of the day and age are exposed and refuted; the theories and hypothesis upon which the popular drug practice is based, dedicated are controverted, and the why and wherefore of their fallacy clearly demonstrated. The following is a brief analysis of its contents:

History of Medicine; History of Bathing; History of Medicated Baths.

Anatomy illustrated by One Hundred and Twenty appropriate engravings.

Physiology, illustrated, comprising the Rationale of Muscular Action; the Nervous influence; Philosophy of Mind? Mesmeric Phenomena the Special Senses; Functions of Digestion, Circulation, Respiration, Absorption, Nutrition, Secretion, Exoretion' Calorification, Temperaments, the Races of Men, and Theory of Population.

Hygiene embracing all the relations of Air, Light, Drink, Food, Temperature, Exercise, Sleep, Clothing, Bathing, and the Passions, to the growth and development of Body and Mind, the Preservation of Health and the attainment of Longevity

Dietetics, comprising the Bible, Anatomical, Physiological, Chemical and Experimental Evidence concerning the natural Dietetic Character of Man.

Hydropathic Cookery, with Specific Directions for the Preparation of Food

Dietaries, containing the Therapeutic Distinctions of Diet for Invalids.

Philosophy of Water-Cure, with illustrated explanations of the Water-cure appliances, a Philosophical Exposition of the modus operandi of water-treatment, and the true rationale of drug-treatment.

The Nature Symptoms and Treatment of all known Diseases are examined, the ill success of drug practice exposed, and the proper Medication recommended and specified.

The Treatment of surgical Diseases illustrated and the directions for the minor operations given.

The Management of Lying-in-Women, and the treatment of children.

The whole is interwoven in a plain, intelligible and sufficient guide for domestic practice, or home treatment, in all ordinary diseases, embracing the whole range of subjects, forming a complete Philosophy of life, the preservation of health, and the treatment of diseases.

In the Insolvent Court of the County of Essex.

IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF WILLIAM CROSBY, AN INSOLVENT DEBTOR.

WHEREAS a Petition of WILLIAM CROSBY, of the Township of Sandwich, in the County of Essex, Baker, has been filed in the Insolvent Court of the County of Essex, and the Interim Order for protection from process has been issued to the said William Crosby, under the provisions of the Act of Parliament of this Province, passed in the eighth year of the reign of her Majesty Queen Victoria, entitled, "An Act for the relief of Insolvent Debtors in Upper Canada, and for other purposes therein mentioned," the said William Crosby is hereby required to appear in the Court before ALEXANDER CHEWETT, Esquire, Judge of the County Court of the said County of Essex, acting in the matter of the said Petition on the twenty-ninth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty six, at ten o'clock of the forenoon precisely, at the office of the Clerk of the County Court in the Town of Sandwich, in and for the County of Essex aforesaid, for the purpose of being there and then examined touching his Debts, Estates and Effects, and to be dealt with according to law. And all persons indebted to the said William Crosby, or that have any of his effects are not to pay or deliver the same but to PAUL JOHN SALTER, of Sandwich in the said County of Essex, Esquire, the Official Assignee nominated in that behalf by the Judge of the County Court of the County aforesaid, acting in the matter of the said petition.

Dated 6th November, 1856.

Attorney for Petitioner.

TILES, TILES.

THE Public are respectfully informed that M. & J. H. Whitehouse are Manufacturing and have on hand a large quantity of Tiles, for Draining Cellars, Farms, &c., at their Brick Yard, Westminster, two miles from London, and a quarter of a mile from Mr. J. Nellis's Tavern, at First Toll Gate on the Hamilton Road, which they will sell at the Low Price of £4 per 1000 with Soles or Bottoms, without £2 10s. They will be found to be much cheaper than any other Material for Draining, as they facilitate greatly in the labor, also in the expense of Draining, only requiring a Drain the width of the Spade and when put down will never require removing. Samples may be seen and orders received at the Store of Mr. J. Pitzel, corner of Richmond and Dundas Streets, London.

Also Roofing Tiles and Press Bricks for fronting Buildings of a superior quality.

CREAM CHEESE.—Take one quart of very rich cream, a little soured, put it in a linen cloth and tie it as close to the cream as you can. Then hang it up to drain for two days—take it down, and carefully turn it into a clean cloth and hang it up for two more days—then take it down, and having put a piece of linen on a deep soup-plate, turn your cheese upon it. Cover it over with your linen: keep turning it every day on to a clean plate and clean linen, and in a week, which will be in about ten days or a fortnight, or may be longer, as it depends on the heat of the weather. Sprinkle a little salt on the outside, when you turn them. If it is wanted to ripen quick, keep it covered with mint, or nettle leaves. The size made from a quart of cream is most convenient, but if wished larger, they can be made so.

WETTING BRICKS.—Few people, except builders are aware of the advantages of wetting bricks before laying them. A wall twelve inches thick, built up of good mortar, with brick well soaked, is stronger, in every respect than one sixteen inches thick built dry. The reason of this is, that if the bricks are saturated with water, they will not abstract from the mortar the moisture which is necessary to its crystalization, and, on the contrary, they will unite chemically with the mortar, and become as solid as a rock. On the other hand, if the bricks are put up dry, they immediately take the moisture from the mortar, leaving it too dry to harden; and the consequence is, that when a building of this description is taken down, or tumbles down of its own accord, the mortar falls like so much sand.

CHARCOAL AND SALT FOR HOGS.—One of the best articles that can be given to swine when confined, is charcoal pulverized, and common rock salt and sulphur are also very good articles, and should be constantly supplied. We would not however be understood as urging the necessity of keeping these articles continually by them, or introducing them daily into their food. The first is necessary to obviate the bad tendency of certain kinds of aliment, and be supplied in quantities varying from one pint to two quarts, as often as once or twice a week. Salt should always be introduced as a seasoning in food. When it is not so used, it should be given twice a week, it may be placed in a box in the sty to which the animals can have access whenever they wish to partake.

TO PRESERVE HERBS.—All kinds of herbs should be gathered on a dry day, just before or while in bloom. Tie them in bundles, suspend them in a dry airy place, with the blossoms downwards. When perfectly dry wrap the medicinal ones in paper, and keep them from the air. Pick off the leaves of those which are to be used in cooking, pound and sift them fine, and keep the powder in bottles, corked up tight.

PAINTING FARM IMPLEMENTS.—A great saving may be made by keeping implements constantly under cover when not in use. But this is nearly impossible; and besides, many of them must of necessity be exposed, during their employment, to many days of hot sunand occasional showers. It is therefore very important to keep them well painted. As a general average, they will last twice as long by the protection of a cost of paid renewed as it is worn off.

The New York Herald's correspondent writes from Rio Janerio under date Nov. 2, "that Brazil is tranquil and prosperous.—Improvments in agriculture, railroads, telegraphs, canals and ship building are progressing with a rapidity little thought of a few years ago. In a previous letter I mentioned how immigration from Europe was increasing, and still continues at a double ratio. The English, Irish, Scotch and French are coming monthly in thousands, and the Government is liberal and most encouraging. Towns are being laid out in the interior already, tanneries, factories, breweries, and manufacturing have commenced in right earnest; agriculture expanding and improving, and all give a bright prospect to the future. In a word, this country is destined to be one of the greatest in the world, should prosperity progress as indications point out.

FREEDOM IN THE UNITED STATES.—The Albany Journal says:—

We chronicle another instance of proscription to day. A free white man is banished from Georgia, for writing a private letter to his father who lives in Michigan! In it he expresses his disbelief of a dissolution of the Union, and his disapprobation of Slavery; and Exile follows. There is no class of people who claim more loudly their "constitutional rights," as Slaveholders. There is no class of people who so often violate the Constitution. The constitutional right to "freedom of Speech" (Art. I) is nullified by them. The constitutional right to "be secure from unreasonable seaches and seizures of papers" (Art. IV.) is violated daily in their Post-Offices. The constitutional right of all accused persons to "a public trial by jury" (Art. IV.) is set aside, and mob assemblage and personal violence substituted in its place. A Bookseller may not sell Books they disprove of. A School Master may not speak of National questions in their daily Societies. A Lawyer may not try cases they disapprove of, in their Courts. A visitor may not speak of Slavery, unless to praise it, nor a workman write a letter home, unless, on inspection, they approve of its contents.

TOWN AND COUNTRY COURTING. — "Courting in the country" says an exchange, is altogether a different institution from the town article. In the former place you get rosy lips, sweet cider, johnny cake, 'pumpkins,' and girls made of nature; and in the latter you get starched prisses for formal manners, fine silk, jewelry, and girls got up in hoops." Always take the rural district when you want a good style of calico.

ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH.—The Atlantic Telegraph Company expect to charge eight or ten dollars for a ten word message between Europe and America. If they cannot get business enough at that price they will reduce it perhaps as low as twenty-five cents a word. A message sent from London at noon would get to New York City at seven o'clock the same morning—and the proceedings of Parliament in the evening may appear in the afternoon papers of New York, and in the San Francisco of the same morning. This will not only annihilate time but get a little ahead of it.

BUREAU OF AGRICULTURE & STATISTICS,
TORONTO, 25th July, 1856

To Emigrants & Others Seeking LAND FOR SETTLEMENT.

THE Provincial Government have recently opened out two great lines of road, now in course of completion, and have surveyed and laid out for settlement the Lands through, and in the vicinity of, which those roads pass.

The Roads, as advertised by the Agents of the Government, appointed to the respective localities to afford information to the Settler, go known as

THE OTTAWA and OPEONGO ROAD,
THE ADDINGTON ROAD, and
THE HASTINGS ROAD,

The Ottawa and Opeongo Road

Commences at a point on the Ottawa River known as "Ferral's," a little above the mouth of the Bonchere River, and runs in a Westerly direction, passing through the northerly part of the County of Renfrew.

It is intended to connect this road with a projected line of road known as "Bell's Line," leading to the Lake Muskako, in Lake Huron, by a branch which will diverge from the Opeongo Road in the Township of Brudnell, at a distance of about 58 miles from the River Ottawa, forming with Bell's Line," a great leading road, or base line from the Ottawa to Lake Muskako, 171 miles in length, passing through the heart of the Ottawa and Huron Territory, and opening up for settlement a vast extent of rich and valuable land.)

This road, and the country through which it passes, now open for settlement, and easily accessible, and the Agent for the granting of Lands in this district is Mr. T. P. French, who resides at Mount St. Patrick, near Renfrew, on the Opeongo Road. Any new lots from the Lands which are to be granted.—To reach the section of Country under Dr. French's charge, the Settler must go from Montreal by the Ottawa River to a place called Bonchere Point, and thence by land some twenty-five or thirty miles westward to the Township of Grattan, in which Mount St Patrick is situated.

The Addington Road

Commencing in the Township of Angleses, and passing through parts of the County of Addington, near the Village of Flint's Mills, Kaladar, runs almost due north to the River Nadawaska, a distance of 35 miles, and is to be continued thence for the distance of 25 miles till it intersects to Ottawa and Opeongo Road.

The Agent for the granting of the Land in this district is Mr. R. Perry, who, for the purpose, is now resident at FLINT'S MILLS. The outlines of five townships of very superior land are already surveyed and ready for settlement within the limits of the Agency, lying north of Lake Massanoka, and between it and the River Nadawaska. The Townships are called respectively Abinger, Denbigh Ashley, Effingham, Anglesea, and Barrie.

The direct route to this section is by way of Kingston, Canada West, thence North to the Township of Kaladar, and the Village of FLINT'S MILLS, where Mr. Perry resides.

Hastings Road!

Almost parallel to the Addington Road, and at a distance West from it of about 36 miles lies the HASTINGS ROAD. This road beginning at the northern part of the County of Hastings, and running a distance of 74 miles, almost due north, also intersects the OTTAWA and OPEONGO ROADand its extensions.

The Government Agent is Mr. M. P. Hayes, who resides at the Village of Hastings, largely called Madoc, about 20 miles north of the Town of Belleville. The Road between these places is in good order, The land to be granted by the Crown under this Agency stands from 15 to 17 miles north of the Village of Hastings The Road through this large extent of land is passable for 40 miles, and money is now being expended to extend it 25 miles further, so that the Village of Hastings, where the Government agent resides.

The direct way to reach this Station, which is easily accessible, is by Kingston Canada West, thence by Steamboat up the Bay of Quinte to Belleville 56 miles, and thence by a good Road to Hastings, 28 miles.

In order to facilitate the Settlement of the Country, and provide for keeping in repair the Roads thus opened, the Government authorized Free Grants of land along these Roads, not to exceed in each case ONE HUNDRED ACRES, upon application to the Local Agents, and upon the following

CONDITIONS

That the Settler be eighteen years of age.

That he take possession of the Land allotted to him within one month, and put in a state of cultivation at least twelve acres of the land in the course of four years,and build on the same not less 20 by 18 feet) and reside on the lot until the conditions of settlement are duly performed; whether such accomplishment only shall the settler have the right of obtaining a title to the property. Families comprising several settlers entitled to lands, preferring to reside on a single lot, will be exempted from the obligation of building and residence, (except upon the lot on which they live provided that the required clearing of the lands be made on each lot. The non-accomplishment of these conditions will entail the immediate loss of the assigned lot of land, which will be sold or given to another.

The road having been opened by the Government, the settlers are required to keep it in repair.

The Local Agents, whose names and places of abode have already been given, will furnish every information to the intending Settler.

The LOG HOUSE required by the Government to be built, is of such description as to be put up in a few days by five men. The neighbours generally help to build the Log Cabin for newly arrived Settlers, without charge, and when this is done the cost of the erection is small; the roof can be covered with bark, and the space between the logs plastered with clay, and white-washed. It then becomes a neat dwelling and warm as a stone house.

The lands thus opened up and offered for settlement, are, in sections of Canada West, capable both as to Soil and Climate, of producing abundant crops of winter wheat, of excellent quality and full weight, also crops of every other description of farm produce, grown in the best and longest cultivated districts of that portion of the Province, and fully as good.

There are, of course, in such a large extent of country as that referred to, great varieties in the character and quality of land —some lots being much superior to others; but there is anabundance of the very best and for farming purposes. The Lands in the neighbourhood of these three roads will be found to be very similar in quality and character, and covered with every variety of Timber—some with hard wood, and some with heavy timber.

Water for domestic use is every where abundant; and there are, throughout, numerous streams and falls of water, capable of being used for Manufacturing purposes.

The heavy timbered land is almost always the best, and of it, the ashes of three acres, well taken care and covered from wet—will yield once a barrel of Potash, worth from £6 to £7 currency. The capital required to manufacture Potash is very small, and the process is very simple and easily understood.

The expense of clearing the inclosing heavily Timbered Lands, valuing the labor of the settlers at the highest rate, is about FOUR POUNDS Currency per Acre, which the first wheat crop, if an average one, will nearly repay. The best timber for fencing is to be had in abundance.

A settler on these lands, possessing a capital from £25 to £50, according to the number in his family, will soon make himself comfortable, and obtain a rapid return for his investment. The single man, able and willing to work, needs little capital, besides his own strong arm, passing though the ordeal of the year to clearing his land, and in the numerous lumbering establishments he can, at other seasons, obtain a liberal remuneration for his labor.

The climate throughout these Districts is good. The snow does not fall so deep as to obstruct communication; and it affords material for cutting and drawing during the winter, enabling the farmer to haul in his Firewood for the ensuing year from the woods, to take his produce to market, and to lay in his supplies for the summer. Around this covering to the earth, not only facilitates communication with the more settled parts of the District, but is highly beneficial and fertilizing to the soil.

In all the localities above named, wherever Settlers have surplus produce, there is a good market for it near to them—farm produce of all kinds finding a great demand by the Lumber or Timber Merchants, who are carrying on extensive operations throughout these parts of the country.

According to the ration of progress which Canada West has made during the last ten years, the value of property on an average doubles within that period—irrespective of any improvements which may have been made by the Settlers.

In many Counties the value of Land, once opened for settlement, has increased FIVE FOLD in the period named, the average value of such land, according to the statistics of Canada West, Doubles every ten years in the mere lapse of time, exclusive of any expenditure thereon—and it is not too much to expect that this ratio will not diminish for generations to come.

The Sections of Country opened by these roads lie in and to the Southern part of the Ottawa and Huron Territory, stretching from beyond them to the shores of Lake Huron, to Lake Nipissing, and to the Ottawa River —an immense extent of country whose resources are now seeking and will rapidly obtain development.

The Ottawa Country

Lying south of Lake Nipissing and of the great River Ottawa, and embracing a large portion of that section offered for settlement, is capable of sustaining a population of eight millions of people, and it is now attracting general attention, as the more western portions of Canada are being rapidly filled up.

The Parliament of Canada in its last Session incorporated a Company for the construction of a Railway to pass through this Ottawa country from the shores of Lake Huron to the City of the Ottawa, and thence Eastward.

A survey of the River Ottawa and the neighbouring Country has been undertaken by Government, and completed in the present year, its principal object being to ascertain by what means the River Ottawa can be rendered navigable and connected with Lake Huron so as to enable vessels to pass by that route from the most Western Waters into the River St. Lawrence and the Ocean. These projected works are alluded to in order to show the great attention of the Government, Parliament and People of Canada, has been fixed upon this important portion of the Province.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,
AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can lay claim to the sovereignty of a square rod of tillable earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The Editorial department is conducted in a manner calculated: together with its really superior execution, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, "must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

"The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of pearl surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each and every month, commencing with July, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial department:—H. P. KNIGHT, JAMES SNOWDEN and D. W. RAY.

TERMS: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

A Merry Heart.

'Tis well to have a merry heart,
However short we stay;
There's wisdom in a merry heart,
Whate'er the world may say.
Philosophy may lift its head,
And find out many a flaw,
But give me that philosophy
That's happy with a straw!

If life but brings us happiness—
It brings us, we are told,
What's hard to buy, though rich ones try,
With all their heaps of gold!
Then laugh away—let others say
Whate'er they will of mirth;
Who laughs the most, may truly boast,
He's got the wealth of earth!

If life but brings us happiness—
It brings us, we are told,
What's hard to buy, though rich ones try,
With all their heaps of gold!
Then laugh away—let others say
Whate'er they will of mirth;
Who laughs the most, may truly boast,
He's got the wealth of earth!

Crossing the Pond.

I began life by running away from home. Boileau, we are told, was driven into his career by the hand of fate and the peck of a turkey, Attila started in life with no other cause or capital than an old sword, which he was all but enough to palm off for the divine weapon of Mars, and Robespierre owed his political career to wetting his stockings, and there heard 'the words which burn,' which fired his soul, and determined his course of life. My running away from home arose from a minor mortification, caused by carrying a pretty girl over a brook.

Donald Lean and myself were good friends at fourteen years of age, and we both regarded with little more than friendship, pretty Helen Graham, our eldest girl at school. We romped and danced together, and this lasted for such a length of time, that it is with feelings of bewilderment that I look back upon the mystery of two lovers continuing friends. But the time came, when come it must, when jealousy lit her spark in my boyish bosom, and blew it into consuming flames.

Well do I remember how and when the green eyed perpetrated this incendiary deed. It was on a cold October evening, when Helen, Donald and myself were returning with our parents from a neighboring hamlet. As we approached a ford where the water ran somewhat higher than ankle deep, we prepared to carry Helen across, as we were accustomed to do with hands interwoven, 'chair fashion,' thus carried our pretty passenger over the brook. Just as we were in the middle of the water—which was cold enough at that time to have frozen anything like feeling out of boys less hardy than ourselves—a faint pang of jealousy nipped my heart. Why it was I knew not, for we had carried Helen fifty times across the brook ere now, without emotion, but this evening I thought or fancied that Helen on gaining Donald an undue preference by casting her pretty arm around her neck while she steadied herself on my side by holding the cuff of my jacket. No flame can burn so quickly, or with so little fuel, as jealousy. Before we had reached the opposite bank I was wishing Donald at the bottom of the sea. Being naturally impetuous, I burst out with:

'You need na haud sae gingerly, Helen, as if ye feared a fa'. I can aye carry ye lighter than Donald can half of ye.' Surprised at the vehemence of my tone, our queen interposed with an admission that we were both strong, and that she had no idea of sparing my powers. But Donald's ire was kindled, and he utterly denied that I was at all qualified to compete with him in feats of carriage. On such topics boys are generally credulous, and by the time we had reached the opposite bank, it was settled that the point should be determined by our singly bearing Helen across the ford in our arms.

Helen was to determine who had carried her most easily, and I settled with myself privately in advance, that the one who had obtained the preference would really be the person who stood highest in her affections. The reflection stimulated me to exert every effort, and I verily believe to this day, that I could have carried Donald and Helen, one under arm, like feathers. But I anticipate.

We suffered all the rest of the party to pass quietly along, and then returned to the ford. I lifted Helen with the utmost ease and carried her like an infant to the middle of the water. Jealousy had inspired a manner love, and it was with feelings unknown before, that I embraced her beautiful form, and felt the pressure of her cheeks against mine. All went swimmingly, or rather wadingly for a minute, but alas, in the very deepest part of the ford, I trod on a treacherous bit of wood, which I rested I suppose on a smooth stone. Over I rolled, bearing Helen with me, nor did we raise until fully soaken from head to foot.

I need not describe the taunts of Donald, or the more accusing silence of Helen—Both believed that I had fallen from mere weakness, and my rival demonstrated his superior ability, by bearing her in his arms, for a long distance on our homeward path. As we approached the house, Helen, feeling it dryer and better humored attempted to conciliate me. But I preserved a moody silence—I was mortified beyond redress.

That night I packed up a few things, and ran away. My boyish mind, sensitive and irritated, exaggerated the legation which it had received and prompted me to a course which fortunately led me to better results than usually attends such irregularities. I went to Edinburg, where I found an uncle, a kind hearted, childless man, who gladly gave me a place in his house, and employed me in his business. Wealth flowed in upon me. I became his partner—went abroad—resided four years on the continent, and finally returned to Scotland, rich, educated—in short, everthing but married.

One evening while at the ball in Glasgow, I was struck by a young lady of unpretending appearance, but whose remarkable beauty and high toned expression indicated a mind of more than ordinary power, I was introduced but the Scottish, names had long been unfamiliar to my ear, and I could not catch hers. It was Helen something, and there was something in the face, too, that seemed familiar—something suggestive of mixed pleasure and pain.

But we became well a quinted that evening. I learned without difficulty her history. She was from the country, had been well educated, her parents had lost their proper y, and she was now governess in a family of the city.

I was fascinated with her conversation, and was continually reminded by the grace and refinement of manner, that she was capable of moving with distinguished success in a far higher sphere than that which fortune seemed to have allotted her. I am naturally neither talkative or prone to confidence; but there was in this young lady which inspired both, and I conversed with her as I had never conversed with any. Her opinions of the various circumstances which I was familiar, indicating a remarkable knowledge of literature, and an incredible store of information.

We progressed in intimacy, and as our conversation turned on the causes which induced me to hurry to leave their native land, I laughingly remarked that I owed my own travels to falling with a pretty girl into a ford.

I had scarcely spoken these words, ere the blood mounted to her face, and was succeeded by quite a remarkable paleness, I attributed this to the heat of the room—laughed—and at her request, proceeded to give the details of my ford adventure with Helen Graham—which I did painting in glowing colors the beauty and amiability of my love.

Her mirth during the recital became almost irrepressible. At the conclusion she remarked:

'Mr Roberts, is it possible that you have forgotten me?'

I gazed in an instant—remembered—and was dumb founded. The lady with whom I had become acquainted was Helen Graham herself!

I hate, and so do you, reader to needless ly prolong a story. We were soon married—Helen and I made our bridal tour to the old place. As we approached it in our carriage, I greeted a stout fellow working in a field who seemed to be a better sort of laborer or perhaps a small farmer, by inquiring some particulars relating to the neighborhood. He answered well enough, and I was about to give him a sixpence, when Helen waved my hand, and cried in the old style:

'Hoy, Donald, mon, dinna ye ken ye's old friend's?'

The man looked up in astonishment.—It was Donald Lean. His astonishment at our appearance, and in such a style; and it was with the greatest difficulty that we could induce him to enter our carriage and answer our numerous queries as to old friends.

Different men "start in life" different ways. I believe, however, that mine is the only instance on record of a gentleman who owes wealth and happiness to rolling over with a pretty girl in a stream of water.

The Instinct of Birds.

What can we call the Principle which directs every kind of bird to observe a particular plan in the structure of its nest, and directs all of the same species to work after the same model? It cannot be imitation, for though you hatch a crow under a hen and never let it see any of the works of its own kind, the nest it makes will be the same to the laying of a stick, with all the rest of the same species. It cannot be reason, for were animals indued with it to as great a degree as man their buildings would be as different as ours, according to the different conveniences that they would purpose to themselves. Is it not wonderful, that the love of the parent should be so violent while it lasts, and that it should last no longer than is necessary for the preservation of the young? So soon as the wants of the latter cease, the mother withdraws her fondness, and leaves them to provide for them selves: and, what is a very remarkable circumstance in this part of instinct, we find that the love of the parent may be heightened out beyond its usual time, if the preservation of the species require it; as we may see in birds that drive away their young, as soon as they are able to get their livelihood, but continue to feed them, if they are tied to the nest, or confined within a cage, or by any other means appear to be out of a condition of supplying their own necessities.—Yet how wide a difference is here between human reason and animal instinct! Reason shows itself in all occurrence of life; whereas the brute makes no discovery of such a talent, but what immediately regards his own preservation or the continuance of his species. Animals in their generation are wiser than the sons of men, but their wisdom is confined to a few particulars, and lies in a very narrow compass. Take the brute out of his instinct, and you find him deprived of understanding. To use an instance that comes under observation:—with what caution does she provide herself a nest in places unfrequented and free from noise and disturbance! When she has laid her eggs in such a manner that she can cover them frequently, that all parts may partake of the vital warmth! When she leaves them to provide for her necessary subsistence how punctually does she return before they have time to cool! In summer you find her giving herself greater freedom, and quitting her care for above two hours together; but in winter, when the rigour of the season would destroy the young ones, she grows more assiduous in her attendance and stays away but half the time. With how much nicety and attention does she observe the clock to break its prison, not to take notice of her covering it from the injuries of the weather, providing it proper nourishment, and teaching it to help itself; not to mention her forsaking the nest, if the young one in due time does not make its appearance. But, at the same time, this instinct has all this seeming ingenuity, confined in other respects, is without the least glimmerings of thought or common sense. She mistakes a piece of chalk for an egg, and sits upon it in the same manner; she is insensible of any increase diminution in the number of those she lays: she does not distinguish between her own and those of another species; and when the birth appears of never so different a bird will cherish it for her own. In all these circumstances which do not carry an immediate regard to the subsistence of herself or her species, she is a very idiot. There is not, in my opinion any thing more mysterious in nature than this instinct in animals, which thus rises above reason, and falls entirely short of it.—Addison.

The Lord of Sark.

The laws of the Channel Island are more of less feudal; but those of Sark are so entirely. The seigneur has almost every power save that of life and death, and more than that, he has authority. The simple people—who are given in marriage and forbidden to marry by him, who are expatri ted to return at his pleasure, and whom the modern comforts and elegancies of his residence appear to be the possessions of a superior being—do absolutely pay homage and obedience willingly and without cavil. The present lord, as it happens, is a refined and courteous g n l man, as hospitable (we had early proof) as any lord of the isles can be; but he has large powers possesses of the same nature, and his surprise at his own power is even greater than that of the inhabitants. He employs a vast number of workmen, is building and improving in all directions, and probably has as much good in his power to do as any monarch of the most despotic dominions. He chances to be a clergyman, but he is also ti e colonel of the militia, and has the appointment of all Sark officers clerical and lay. The way in which the seigneur is addressed by his subjects in the Sark dialect (better patois) is curious. It is (Guernsey Preach) is such as would make one believe that he is a god. They have a firm faith that he is right hand-man and confi dential adviser, but at the same time quite equal in power and dignity, of Queen Victoria. All that the Crown lays claim to in England, in the way of mines and treasure trove, and Royalties, are in Sark the seigneur's. Half profits from the waifs and strays of wrecks are also paid to him, from which he derives no trifling income. The law of primogeniture is very strict; and in cases of there being no male issue, the eldest daughter inherits before the nephew. When there is no issue at all, the property reverts to the seigneur. His great trouble is with the youngest sons, who, being portionless, must needs go forth into the world to seek their fortunes, and are afterwards desirous of returning to their native shores with their wives and families. He is obliged to prevent this, or the island would be soon over-populated; and this protecti-mi principle is, under the circumstances, necessary enough. He is compelled by his charter to have always 40 men in Sark capable of bearing arms, although he has upwards of 100, the whole population being more than 700. The men are the best shots in the Channel Islands, and are provided even with two good six pounders. They had a field-d y lately; and after excellent practice at white rocks with the guns at a long range, they feigned to see Russian men-of-war's boats, and picked the supposed invaders off with their muskets very creditably. They constantly fire volleys into the caverns, to bring down any overhanging rocks which else would fall at less expected times, and destroy the links that harbor under them.—Dickens' Household Words.

Simplicity of English Dress.

In the families of the nobility and gentry of England, possessing an annual income which of itself would be an ample fortune there is greater economy of dress and more simplicity in the furnishing of the dw elling, than there is in many of the houses of our citizens, who are amply able to supply the daily wants of their families by the closest attention to their business. A friend of ours, who sojourned not long since several months in the vicinity of some of the wealthy landed aristocracy of England, whose ample rent rolls would have warranted a high style of fashion was surprised at the simplicity of manners practised. Servants were much more numerous than with us, but the ladies made more account of one silk dress than would be thought here of a dozen. They were generally clothed in good substantial stuffs, and a display of fine clothing and jewelry was reserved for great occasions. The furniture of the mansions, instead of being turned out of doors every few years for new and more fashionable styles, was the same which the ancestors of the families for several generations had possessed, substantial and in excellent preservation, but plain and without any pretension to elegance. Even the carpets on many suits of parlors has been on the floors for fifty years, and was expected to do service for another half century. With us how different is the state of things! We are wasting an amount of wealth in his country on show and fashion, which, rightly applied, would renovate the condition of the whole population of the world and christianize civilize, and educate all mankind.—American.

Miscellany.

The catch of fish upon the New Foundland and Labrador coasts is reputed greater than for twenty years past. The price of fish and oils keep up, and the prospects of the colony for the winter are considered good.

A California paper tells the following of Lieutenant Derby, "John Phoenix," the humorist:—

One evening Phoenix observed a man sitting three seats in front, whom he thought he knew. He requested the person sitting next to him to "punch the other individual with his cane." The polite stranger did so, and the disturbed person turning his head a little he discovered his mistake—that he was not the person he took him for. Fixing his gaze steadfastly on the play and affecting unconsciousness of the whole affair, he left the man with the cane to settle with the other for the disturbance, who, being without an excuse, there was, of course, a ludicrous and embarrassing scene—during all which Mr. Phoenix was profoundly interested in the play. At last the man with the cane asked rather indignantly,

"Didn't you tell me to punch that person with my stick?"

"Yes!"

"And what did you want?"

"I wanted to see whether you would punch him or not!"

THE SPHYGMOSCOPE.—A London physician has invented a noble instrument called the sphygmoscope, for indicating the movements of the heart. The instrument consists of a small chamber filled with spirits of wine, or other liquid, provided with a thin India rubber wall, where it is applied to the chest. At the opposite extremity, the chamber communicates with a glass tube which rises above the level of the chamber. The liquid is put into the instrument until it stands in the tube a little above the level of the chamber; the pressure of the liquid in the little tube acts upon the elastic or yielding wall of India rubber and causes it to protrude. When the India rubber chest piece receives an impulse on its exterior, it causes the liquid to be forced up the tube. The protruding wall of India rubber is driven inward when it is brought in contact with that portion of the chest which is struck by the apex of the heart, and a rise in the tube takes place. The tube is supplied with a gradual scale, to denote the rise and fall with exactitude; on the top of the glass tube is a collar, to prevent the egress of the liquid; when employed this collar or valve is left open for passage of the air.

We learn from New Brunswick that the new company into whose hands the "St. Andrews and Quebec railroad" has fallen, are manifesting great activity in pushing on that work. Sections of the road, extending from the 25th to the 40th mile from St. Andrews, have recently been let out to contract and notwithstanding the obstacles which our writers throw in the way of prosecuting such a work, it is expected that these sections will be completed by the time spring opens.—Toronto Col.

The people of London, C. W., are becoming alarmed at the prospect of injury to their city by the opening of the Grand Trunk and Buffalo and Lake Huron Railroads; and in order to counteract the evils they apprehend, the propose to build a line of Railroad so as to open up the townships to the North-west of London, which, they think, would bring the trade of these townships still to their market.—Toronto Col.

POPULAR ERRORS.—It is astonishing to witness the degree of ignorance that prevails in the land upon the diseases of domestic animals, and the consequent barbarity that is two often practised upon them, with a view to alleviate their distresses. If we take for instance, what is termed 'horn ail,' or a hollow horn,' we venture that more than nine tenths of those who own neat cattle regard this as a disease, when in fact it is but a symptom of disease. If the bases of the horn are cold, it is only an evidence that the animal is laboring under some disease which disturbs the natural circulation of the blood, and causes the extremities to be cold and the remedy should be applied to the seat of the disease, and not resort to that cruel and almost universal practice of thrusting a gimlet into the horn and thereby mutilating that most delicately formed organ. Another practice, no less barbarous, and also the result of the ignorance which prevails of animal physiology, is that of splitting open for 6 inches in length, the lower extremity of a cow's tail, and to complete the cruelty, cramming the incision with salt, to cure some imaginary disease, because that portion of the animal's tail is found for a space of 3 inches lacking of bone. This is the case with the tails of all animals of that class, whether in sickness or in health, and is only an evidence of the wisdom displayed by the Creator in so peculiarly adapting that instrument (the tail) to the purpose for which it was formed.—Farmer's Journal.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Rush of blood to the head is often primarily caused by a bad condition of the stomach and bowels. Invigorate the stomach, regulate the excretions, and purify the fluids with this world renowned medicine, and you will be exempt from vertigo, dimness of sight, headache, and other alarming apoplectic symptoms which frequently accompany dyspepsia and habitual constipation. The impurity of the blood, as well as an excess of it in the brain, has much to do with cerebral affections, and as Holloway's Pills operate upon the chemical process which generate that fluid, as well as upon the circulation itself, they are infallible in this class of maladies.

"Boy," said a fashionably dressed young man to the servant of one of his companions, "is your master at home?"

"Yes, sir," replied the boy, "master is at home, but he's confined to his room. He's a growin' of moostashers, and an't allowed to see any body but his'airdresser."

CATCHING WHALES BY STEAM.—In Scotland it is proposed to fit out steamers instead of ships to engage in the whale trade. The Philadelphia Ledger, in speaking of this fact, says:

"It is but three or four years since the bomb has been in use. This saves much trouble and many lives. After the harpoons and lines are once attached to him the whale is fatally wounded, if not literally blown to pieces by the explosion of gunpowder in the deep wound made by the lance. Now, it is proposed to employ steam in the pursuit, which doubtless will pay largely, as so much more of the surface of the ocean can be scoured in quest of them, and when once perceived they will rarely escape."

VERY LAUGHABLE.—At a church of 'color' about twenty miles from Albany, the other evening, the minister noticing a number of persons, both white and colored, standing on the seats, during singing service,—called out in a loud voice. "Git down on dem seats, both white men and color, I care no more for one man dan I does de odder." Imagine the pious minister's surprise, on hearing the congregation suddenly commence singing, in short metre:

Git down off dem seats
Boff white men and color,
I cares no more for one man
Dan I does de odder.

A GOOD ONE.—The Boston Traveller tell sthe following story relating to the chirography of J. W. Brooks, the great Railroad Manager, who was once Superintendent of the old Auburn and Rochester Railroad: Brooks had written a letter to a man on the road, notifying him that he must remove a barn, which in some manner incon voled the road, under penalty of prosecution. The threatened individual was unable to read any part of the letter but the signature, but took it to be a free pass on the road, and used it for a couple of years as such, none of the conductors being able to dispute his interpretation of the document.

VERY COOL.—A gentleman was accosted with the words, "Do you know the time, sir?" Upon which the man pulled out his watch, and after consulting it returned it to his pocket, coolly replying to the interrogative, "Yes, sir, I do," and then walked off, leaving the questioner abashed at his own ridiculous way of inquiring the time.

The Right Hon. Elizabeth Jerningham, widow of the seventh Caron Stafford in the peerage of Great Britain, died at Costessy Hall, in the county of Norfolk, England, on the 19th of November. Her ladyship was one of the three daughters of the late Richard Caton, Esq., of Baltimore, (grand daughters of Charles Carroll of Carrolton, the last surviving signer of the Declaration of Independence,) who married English peers, viz: the late Dowager Marchioness of Wellesley and the Duchess of Leeds. Lady Stafford was married May 25, 1826, and became a widow October 4, 1851.

An old miser owning a farm, found it impossible to do his work without assistance, and accordingly offered any man food for performing the requisite labor. A half starved man hearing of the terms accepted them. Before going into the field in the morning he invited his help to breakfast; after finishing the morning meal, the old skin flint thought it a saving of time if they should place the dinner upon the breakfast. This was readily agreed to by the unsatisfied stranger, and the dinner was soon dispatched. 'Suppose now,' said the frugal farmer, 'we take supper; it will save time and trouble, you know. 'Just as you like it," said the eager eater, and went at it. 'Now we will go to work, and the delighted employer. 'Thank you' said the laborer, 'I never work after supper.'

The Army.

It is with much pleasure that we call attention to the new orders of the Duke of Cambridge, which we publish this evening, with respect to Staff appointments in the army. They constitute, in effect, a full acknowledgment of the principle for which we have contended so long, and an answer to the multitude of objections which have been made to our arguments by those who support the existing system either from interest or dislike of change. It would be difficult to overrate the importance of such a measure as is likely to be promulgated. We all know what appointments to the Staff have been heretofore. Even the posts on the General Staff have been for the most part filled by men whose only claim was good interest at head-quarters, while every General surrounded himself with his sons, nephews, and personal acquaintance without shame or scruple. There is no need to go far for the many scandals which are in the memory of those who take an interest in the subject, nor to dwell on the notorious heart-burnings and discontents to which the present practice has given rise. Whatever devotion an officer may feel for the service is likely to be cooled when he sees the men who have no merit except connection with some ruling personage or his set delivered from regimental duties, from the dreary life of Ireland or India, from the hardships of Caffre warfare or the dangers of West India residence, and while yet little more than a boy, placed in extra pay and privileges in an important situation on the Staff. Infine of war the mischief is even greater, for then not only are private feelings wounded, but the public interest suffers greatly, and often irremediably. We cannot doubt that the history of every contest great or small, in which the nation has been engaged for many years, would, if known, exhibit the evils of the present system. But the late campaign in the Crimea is accepted by every one as sufficient evidence. What occurred two years since will long live in the memory of Englishmen, and the lesson has not been lost. An entire change in all the whole system of Staff appointments has nearly received the sanction of the Horse Guards.

We may briefly recapitulate the regulations which will probably be framed. Before any officer is appointed to the Staff he will have to undergo a proper course of instruction, under officers of experience, in the duties he will be called upon to perform.—In order that none but efficient officers be selected for the appointments, it is suggested that the inspecting general officers should each half-year call upon the commanding officers of regiments to bring forward the name of any one under their orders who may have given proofs of superiority in his profession. The officer so brought to notice will undergo a preliminary examination, and should this be, in the opinion of the Commander-in-Chief, satisfactory, his name will be placed on the list of candidates for Staff appointments, and, as vacancies occur, the senior officer on the list will undergo a course of instruction, at the public expense, to qualify him for the Staff. Those on this establishment of instruction will be periodically examined, and the most efficient officer will be selected and appointed to the first vacant Staff appointment. It need not be said that these regulations, if actually adopted, well be all that the country can require. The great military monarchies of Europe, which have carried the organization of armies to the highest point of efficiency, have long made such appointments that reward of the bravest, the most skilful, and the most diligent officers. In the French army an aspirant to the Staff must have served, we believe, in the infantry, cavalry and artillery, and be moreover, a man of considerable scientific attainments, Prussia and Austria are even still more strict; and what the Czar Nicholas did for the education of his officers all the world knows. The result of such a system is seen when a campaign comes. The troops may not be as good, man for man, as our own, yet though we are always fighting somewhere or another, all the Powers educate their armies only by theory, with nothing more practical than a review, yet we get into embarrassment and disaster before we see the enemy while they can move their 100,000 men with ease and rapidity.

Horrible Particulars of the Negro Troubles in Kentucky and Tennessee.

The Canton (Ky.,) Despatch publishes a letter from a citizen of that place, in whose statements it says all confidence can be placed, giving some of the details of the recent negro troubles in Kentucky. The letter is dated, Pembroke, Dec. 23, and from it we make a few extracts:—

Tuesday morning. * * * * I went to Dawson, and arrived there about 2 o'clock. The people had hung four negroes at 11 o'clock that morning, and two more then in town to be hung. I got to the place of execution in time to see the last one go off. Of the six that were hung, three had been preachers. They were all proved to be ringleaders. I learn that the last negro forge were at work whipping the truth out of their negroes, so I rode out there that night, and was up with them all night. I never had such feelings in my life. I saw a list of negroes that had been whipped, and was told what they all had stated, and then I heard the balance examined. Some got five and some asking six hundred lashes before they would tell the tale — but when they did tell it, it was the same that all the others had told.

Some told the whole story without taking a lick. Those that were examined were not permitted to see those that were not; they were kept entirely separate, and a guard over each. One of the negroes of the forge died from whipping, that night several hours after the operation.

We are at work to-day. We have one negro in chains, and will hang him, I think, certain; if the committee will not, the committee are determined to do it. I think we will have quite an exciting time before we get through. I have no doubt that it is a universal thing all over the southern States, and that every negro fifteen years old, either knows of it or is into it, and the most confidential house servants are the ones that are to be most active in the destruction of their own families. The negroes, everywhere they are examined, all agree that the men, women, and children were to be slain, and that the young women are to be kept as wives for themselves, and a good many of them, about dover and the furnaces, went so far as to select their future companions.

A New Plank.

The policy of the member of Lambton and his party in reference to our commercial relations, has at length received significance in the advertising columns of the Globe. It is therein announced that that journal, the leading organ of the opposition, purposes to adopt "Free trade" as a plank in its platform. But instead of the bold avowal of Mr. Brown in favor of uncompromising free trade and direct taxation, we have a saving clause which runs thus "so far and so rapidly as public credit will permit." This may mean anything, while on the other hand, a proposition for direct taxation implies unrestricted free trade and the total dependence of the burden of the state upon individual liabilities.

Perhaps there is no public man in this country sufficiently well read in political economy, and at the same time who devotes sufficient consideration to its study, to qualify him as an authority on the subject so glibly stated in the Globe. Mr. Brown did not attempt to argue the subject at length at the Wardsville banquet. He merely took up one feature of the question, and so far he put it forcibly to his auditors. He dwelt upon the question as it related to the consumer and instanced the manner in which the present mode of taxation affected the public. Suppose, he said, an imported article costs four dollars abroad, and is subject to two dollars revenue in Canada, does not the retailer charge a profit upon the six dollars and not upon the four? This is about the sum total of the argument which the leader of the opposition brought to bear upon his case, which for some reasons best known to itself, the press in his interest did not report. It would be premature to enter into the details of this purely commercial question at present in its abstract bearing. It will be sufficient for our purpose at present—as we merely desire to show that the question is one which cannot be dealt with flippantly, nor pronounced upon, though dogmatically—that free trade and direct taxation cannot be adopted by any ministry without encountering many difficulties in its operation. Suppose, for instance, we declare a direct poll tax, we are at once met with the obstacles presented in taxing a migratory population.

How are we to make our mechanics and others pay tribute who have no settled place of residence in any particular town? And how are we to get rid of the inquisitorial tendency of direct taxation, the application whose greatest desire is to be thought no wealthy than they really are? And how are we to deal with the security or the uncertainty of the different classes of incomes? These interrogatories, embracing the practicability of the question await a decision before a conclusion in favor of the subject is arrived at.—Herald

The Approaching Conference at Paris.

The affairs of Prussia and Switzerland, and the difficulty between Persia and England continue to be the leading topics.

No day is fixed for the re-assembling of the Conference. As already intimated, Count Walewski will preside. There is some preliminary business to get through, but it is anticipated the day of meeting will not be far distant. A preliminary meeting will probably be held in a few days.

A statement is made in the London Times that England and France are now agreed upon the points of discussion with Russia. We know nothing to be finished but that relating to Bolgrad and the Isle of Serpents two or three sittings will suffice. All the Plenepotentiaries, including the Turkish Minister, have now received their instructions as regards the Neufcha el question.

Prussia continues her preparations for invasion, and Switzerland for defence; but there exists a belief that the other Powers will prevent actual hostilities. There is even a rumour that England had agreed to mediate in the matter, but it is doubtful.

A large space is devoted by the continental journals to discussions on the question of peace but they contain little beyond surmises.

From other parts of Europe there is little or nothing to report.

The English papers contain a report of the Portsmouth banquet to the officers of the Resolute.

Sir John Miller, the geologist, was found shot in his house—supposed accidentally.

It is supposed negotiations are broken off between the British Minister at Constantinople and Ferout Khan, the Persian Envoy, and the latter is proceeding to Paris, having meanwhile requested further instructions from his Government. Great Britain demands the evacuation of Herat, the payment of expenses,—the dismissal of the Persian Prime Minister, and the establishment of British Consuls in various places. Persia is reported to have assented to the return of Mr. Murray, the English Minister, and to consent to the withdrawal of the other points are in abeyance. We have nothing more respecting the progress of hostilities.

The Asia brings 80 passengers and upwards of $100,000 in specie.

Health and Beauty.

How to Secure Them.

The tenderest care, the utmost solicitude which we can bestow upon woman in seasons of sickness, are but a light payment of the debt we owe her—a debt contracted in our cradles and constantly augmenting until we die. No man has more faithfully discharged that debt than the great English Physician, Professor Holloway. His remedies have probably done more to relieve the various diseases especially incident to the sex, than all the potions and external applications with which medical practitioners have afflicted them since the commencement of the Christian Era. Drastic aperients, pernicious stimulants, and poisonous lotions and emulsions, have ruined the constitutions and blighted the loveliness of thousands of the gentle sex; but we trust that the day when the lives of those who are desirous to please us could thus be trifled with past. At length, wives and mothers begin to understand the danger of being subjected to such treatment. The mild, soothing and restorative influence of Holloway's great internal and external remedies, in all the complaints to which women are subject, are now generally admitted. They have been administered with marked and unvarying success in those disturbances of the system which occur in the various stages of adolescence, during the season of maternity, and at a later period of life. Every disorder, bodily and mental incident to this sequence, seems to be relieved and modified by the gentle and purifying effect of Holloway's Pills.

We should not venture, in a matter of such vast importance, to hazard an opinion on questionable grounds; but we cannot hesitate to believe the testimony which has been placed before us. Ladies of the highest respectability, rightly thinking that squeamishness is out of place where health and life are concerned, have certified to the efficacy of the remedies in nearly all the complaints to which the sex is liable, and have recommended them in the strongest terms as preservatives of that external beauty which depends upon health, as well as of health itself.

If it be true—and who so insensate as to doubt it?—that

"The world was sad, the garden was a wild. And man, the hermit, sighed till woman smiled," surely it behoves us to point out and urge upon her attention the means of relieving her suffrings and turning her sadness into joy.—N. Y. "Sunday Times."

CLEAR GRIT GATHERING.

On Thursday the 8th inst; by circular, a number of Clear Grits and ultra radicals were called together, by George Brown, and one or two more, of a like kidney, to meet in Toronto under the watchful eye of that gentleman, for the purpose it would appear of entering into a combination to forward the designs of the member for Lambton and his followers, in placing him at the head of a faction, and if possible to overthrow the present Ministry, in the hope of raising their Clear Grit leader to power. But so small was their portion of success, in this their first attempt, and so few were the members of parliament who are willing to trust themselves to Brown's leadership, that it must be evident to every thinking person, that the whole affair is a total failure; and Mr. Brown will again have, as he has heretofore done sit in Parliament as a humble member of the opposition, without power and with very few supporters. Having by this move altogether separated himself and his party from the Lower Canadian Members of the opposition, by the extreme measures which he would attempt to force upon them, and without even consulting any of their party. The opposition press of Lower Canada have taken a proper view of the matter, and have determined to denounce the faction of which George Brown would be the leader.

The whole scheme would appear plausible enough if their antecedents were not known, but the very persons alone, whose names are attached to the circular, would be sufficient to damn the cause, even were it a good one, in which they were labouring. And how can it be expected that confidence will be placed in a set of men whose political career, has been dishonest in the extreme, and who have applied themselves to disturb the peace of the country because they were unable to force themselves into power. Such men as these, are the very last, from whom we may expect reforms, as they would strive to lead the public to believe, that they are working for.

Then again representation by population they bring forward as the great inducement for supporting them—but how do they commence, they have taken the very course which will delay the accomplishment of this object, in which the Upper Province is so much interested, they would attempt to force this measure down the throates of Lower Canadian Members, without their consent, and have even now, created so strong a feeling against the measure, in the Lower Province, that every energy will be exerted, to prevent its accomplishment.

We give below the circular which was put forth by the Grits, as a bait to catch as many loose fish as were innocent enough to take.

SIR,

The undersigned are deeply impressed with the belief that an urgent necessity now exists for an efficient political movement to oppose the reckless administration of public affairs, under which Canada now suffers.—Sustained in office mainly by the Representatives of one section of the Province, the Government systematically pursues a sectional policy, humiliating to the inhabitants of Western Canada, and most injurious to the moral and material interests of the whole country. Composed of men who held opinions prior to their "cession to office, utterly antagonistic to each other,—bound together by no tie but that of office —the Administration has been unable to initiate any beneficial public policy; but has occupied itself in creating new sources of patronage to sustain itself in power, and in concealing the internal discords produced by its distribution. The expenses of the State have vastly accumulated—the public debt is enormously increased—the taxes are largely augmented—equality of Representation is denied—our noble National School system is assailed—the Provincial revenues are appropriated to local and sectional objects, sustained in other sections by local taxation—the most easterly city of Eastern Canada is formally selected as the permanent Seat of Government—and principles of Legislation have resorted to, every emergency ominous to public credit and demoralizing to our public men.

The time seems to have arrived when a vigorous, and united effort should be made to put an end to these abuses, and to secure a wiser and more patriotic administration of public affairs. From various causes unnecessary to recapitulate here, the Liberals of Upper Canada have for some time past been disunited: but these causes are now in a great measure removed, and it is thought that no serious obstacle now stands in the way of a thoroughly efficient organization for practical ends. After consultation with many friends, we have resolved to make the attempt to bring about such a union. We believe that the best remedy for the evils Canada now labours under will be found in the adoption of the following fixed principles of government and remedial measures:

Representation by Population, without regard to a separating line between Upper and Lower Canada.

No Legislation by the Representatives of the people in matters of religion, and no appropriation of public money to sectarian uses.

Uniform Legislation for the whole Province, and gradual assimilation of the local institutions of the two sections.

Nati nal education, impartial, and free from sectarianism.

Constitutional restraints on the power of the administration, to stay the rapid and alarming increase of the public debt and the reckless system of Legislation pursued of late years.

Free Trade

Administrative Reform.

Registration of Parliamentary voters.

Incorporation of the Hudson's Bay Territory as Canadian soil.

We believe that it is on such principles that united Canada can alone advance satisfactorily and harmoniously. They involve no injustice to any one—no partiality to one section over the other, and by their adoption sectarian animosities would be banished, at least from the political arena.

We have resolved to invite six prominent Liberals from each Parliamentary constituency in Upper Canada to meet at Toronto on Thursday, the 8th of January, 1857, for the purpose of forming an Association to put these ends. If you approve of these principles and measures—if you are prepared to stamp them on your political banner, apd unsedduced by the temptations of office, to struggle with a single eye for their accomplishment, we respectfully invite you to join us on the 8th, and aid us with your counsel and influence in uniting all earnest men in good cause.

Departure of Huntington, the Forger, for the State Prison.—Charles B. Huntington, the forger, took his departure for Sing Sing yesterday, in custody of the deputy sheriff, Ingles. At half past one o'clock he was informed in his cell that the officer was waiting. He heard the announcement with an air of indifference and continued smoking his cigar. In a few minutes he came down and stepped into the Warden's room, where he had a conversation with three or four of his friends. As he passed the grated door leading into the outer passage, he shook hands with three or four of the keepers, with whom he had become acquainted, and having bid them a "good bye, boys," as his farewell, he went into the street.—Huntington seemingly felt but little concern in the matter. Several of his friends, however, evinced a profound appreciation of the solemnity of the proceedings. One old gentleman who parted from him on the sidewalk, and gave him many good wishes for his future success, the prospects of which now looked so gloomy, showed much emotion; and the parting was not without effect up n Huntington himself, who manifested for the first time during the proceedings a show of feeling.—Huntington took his seat in the carriage, followed by two of his friends and Sheriff Ingles; the door was closed, the driver mounted the box, and in a minute the carriage was whistling off towards the Chambers street station.—N. Y. Herald, Saturday.

Important Postal Convention with France.—Washington, January 7, 1857.—An important postal convention has been tendered to the United States by the French government, which will greatly simplify our correspondence with foreign powers. This convention provides that we may transmit letters prepaid in the United States through France to all the powers with which she has postal conventions, and she has more than any other nation at present.

The postage will be per quarter ounce—for France, 15 cents; England, Belgium, &c., 21 cents; Austria, Italy, &c., 28 cents; Constantinople via Levanti, &c., 42 cents; the East Indies 38 cents, &c. This I understand to be the general scheme, though I may not have all the figures exact.

The convention was brought out by Sartiges the other day. It practically gives us the benefit of all the French postal conventions, and is regarded by those who have been made acquainted with its terms, as of the greatest national import.

The Sarnia Observer says that its readers will remember that a case was tried at last assizes in which Mr. Ketchum was charged with embezzlement of a sum of money belonging to a person named McDonald,—also that the Judgement of the Court was deferred on a point of law, Mr. K being in the mean time held to bail to appear at the next assizes to receive sentence. The Clerk of Assize has lately received notice from the Court of Toronto, that it has been determined by the Court that the evidence was not sufficient in law to sustain said conviction, and that no judgment thereon can or ought to be given. The case thus virtually falls to the ground.

The N. Y. Herald publishes a comparative statement of its receipts for the years 1855 and 1856. In the former years there were,—advertisements, $102,902; sales, $224,972; total 418,874. In 1856,—advertisements, $180,258; sales, $345,687; total, $531,945. Increase $113,071. During 1856, the highest daily circulation reached was 79, 680, and the lowest 56,000 —the average circulation during the year being something over 60,000.

Melancholy Suicide.—We are informed that Capt. Case, who commanded one of Crawford's propellers engaged in the Western trade, committed suicide at Ogdensburg on Sunday. He had lately returned from the west, and was staying at the house of Mr. Crawford. He appeared ill at ease, and a medical man was consulted, who discovered some symtoms of mania. Notwithstanding the watch that was set upon him the unfortunate man made his escape from the house during the night and was found next morning hanging by the neck from a rigging of a vessel at the dock.—Globe

Attempted Suicide.—Yesterday morning, a man who gave his name as New, and stated that he was lately from England, was brought into the station house, having cut his throat deeply. So determined did he seem to end his existence, that when the wound was first bound up, he tore it open again. It was then thought needful to bind him hand and foot, and in that manner he was carried to the station. Delirium (supposed to be brought on through drink) is considered the principal cause of the attempt. The wretched man said that he had no relations in Canada, though several in England. —Herald.

The Washington correspondent of the N. Y. Herald learns that there is some foundation for the report that Vanderbilt has deputed an agent to negotiate a loan with Costa Rica, of five hundred thousand dollars, provided the funds are used in exterminating Walker from Nicaragua. It is understood that the administration are aware of the movement, and the object of it is to defeat Walker that Vanderbilt may get possession of steamboats and other property which formerly belonged to the old Transit Company, Marcy having informed Vanderbilt that he could take his property wherever he could find it.

Steam to Australia.—One of our most enterprising Australian firms, who have hitherto restricted their operations to sailing ships, are laying down auxiliary screw steamers of 4,000 tons register. The sooner the plan is followed by others the better. Liverpool Albion.

The Havre journal has a Cayenne letter of Nov. 5th, stating that gold had been discovered in several parts of the colony.

Many shipping casualties are reported from the Mediterranean.

The British Government is about to lay a telegraph line across the Persian Gulf.

Export trade was dull, a few orders had been received from South America and Spain, and but very few from the United States; nevertheless the position of commercial affairs was regarded as not unfavorable. Corn was falling, though slowly, in all the markets of France.

Letters from Rouen mention that the market for manufactured goods has been quiet, with but little difference in rates.

The London Times of the 16th ult, says: —"The time will come, when apart from more economical considerations, France will become ashamed of presenting before the eyes of Europe the spectacle of a commercial system carried out in defiance of the most clearly ascertained truths, and relying on propositions so monstrous that no speculative thinker, and very few practical statesmen, can be found to support them."

Rupture of Diplomatic Relations between Prussia & Switzerland.—"Baron de Sidow," says the Berlin correspondent of the Post of Brussels, "has received orders to break off all relations with the Swiss Government and all to leave Berne."

Apprehension of the Murderer of Mr. Little.—An operative, lately employed on the Midland Railway, has been arrested on board the packet for Liverpool. He confessed to the murder of Mr Little; but he is supposed not to be the principal in that atrocious act.

The English war floating batteries have been tested and a bulkhead, 14 feet by 12, has been erected in Woolwich arsenal marshes, for the purpose of carrying out experiments. Twenty four rounds were fired from one of the heaviest guns, 68 pounder, weighing 95 cwt., and charged with 16 lb. of powder, and 8 inch shot, and twenty-one effected no damage, two fell wide of the mark, and one pierced the target.

The Paris Patrie 19th ultimo, thus takes notice of the possibity of a new war between England and Russia:—Russia, who has promised Persia, effective sur port in case of an attack, sees perhaps without repugnance an opportunity, if not to take revenge for the part she was forced to take in the seige of Sebastopol, at least to show that the colossal war from which she has just emerged has not rendered her impotent to act in favor of an ally.

It is stated by the New York Herald that President Comfort has made offers to the United States government to place Mexico under the control of the United States, as the surest means of security from internal and external enemies.

"There were Giants in Those Days." —A day or two since some workmen engaged in subsoiling the grounds of Sheriff Wickham at the vineyard in East Wheeling, came across a human skeleton. Although much decayed, there was little difficulty identifying it by placing the bones, which could not have belonged to other than a human body, in their original position The impression made by the skeleton in the earth, and the skeleton itself, were measured by the sheriff and another gentleman, both of whom were prepared to swear that it was 10 feet 8 inches in length. Its jaws and teeth were almost as large as those of a horse. The bones are to be seen at the sheriff's office.—Wheeling Time.

The Woodstock Gazetteer gives an account of a fearful accident in the Messrs. Sandwerth's Steam Saw Mill, at Sweaburg, in West Oxford, by which a man named Wm. Thompson lost his life. The deceased's duty consisted in carrying the boards as they were sawed off, and if perfect, discharging them from the saw on the well cleined plane. If not perfect, but wanted "edging," that is the slab edge sawed off, his duty then was to carry it to another small circular saw, where the operation was performed. The unfortunate man in attempting to lift the board over the large saw in order to carry it to the smaller one (as by so doing he would save himself a few steps round), touched the teeth of the large saw, which, suddenly jerking the poor man forward, flung across the saw, and he was cut completely in two across the body from a little below his right shoulder to the left thigh. The unfortunate man leaves a wife and seven children—the oldest but 14. A subscription is being taken for them.

Sir Astley Cooper's Pills.

For the cure of Bile, Giddiness and Determination of Blood to the Head. These Pills, so well known, supersede all other medicines for the suppression of the secretion of Bile. They give relief to that sensation of fullness frequently felt after eating, cure headaches, prevent pains, giddiness and determination of blood to the head. Habitual costiveness is obviated by their use, and for dropsical complaints they stand pre-eminent. For strengthening and cleansing the stomach, Sir Astley Cooper's Pills are the very best remedy ever discovered. They al o increase the appetite and promote digestion, giving hilarity of feeling and buoyancy of spirits.

The Genuine Sir Astley Cooper's Pills are especially efficacious in all the various disorders of stomach and bowels to which the female constitution is subject. Ladies even of the most delicate constitutions will find them peculiarly beneficial both before and after confinement, as a general use they cannot be too strongly recommended. They mildly and speedily remove all skin eruptions, sallowness of complexion, nervous irritability, sick headache, hysterics, depression of spirits, irregularity or general derangement of the system; and by assisting the secretions, give such a healthy action to the organs as to restore the color of the rose to the complexion, and tone and vigor to the whole frame.

Take care of Spurious Imitations. None are genuine wi hout the fac-simile of the signature of the Proprietors, MacPhail & Co. London and New York on each box, and on the directions. The Genuine Pills have also an excellent likeness of Sir Astley Cooper on the top of each box. Without these marks of authenticity, they are certainly spurious and an imposition.

Sold at 25 cents and 50 cents per box, and in Family boxes at $1 each. There is a great saving by purchasing the larger sizes.

For sale by Simpson and Dunnpaugh, Druggists, Toronto; John McTurnitin, Dundas; Andrew Oliver Gait; A. H. Cook, Brantford, General Agents, by whom Country Druggists and Merchants will be supplied on the London and New York prices.

Sandwich, 20th Nov., 1856.

WHOLESALE & RETAIL.
Grocery and Provision Store

At 559 Jefferson Avenue, four doors above the Theatre, Detroit.

THE Subscriber has opened a store in the above line of business, where he will be most happy to attend upon all his old friends. He proposes by selling at a small living advance upon cost prices to be able to secure the custom of his friends, as well as to give general satisfaction to all who may favor his establishment with a call

J. J. BENITEAU.

Detroit Dec. 1856.

JESSOP'S HOTEL,

SANDWICH CANADA WEST.

THE Subscriber having leased those large and commodious premises, formerly occupied by MISS HALL, intends to fit them up as a Hotel and when completed will not be surpassed by any in the county.

The house will be repaired and enlarged, and newly furnished throughout. He would invite his old friends to give him the same encouragement which he received at his old stand

The rooms are large and well adapted for boarders and private families, who will have every attention paid to their comfort.

The stables attached to this house are large and will afford ample accomodation to all who may favor him with their patronage.

GEORGE. JESSOP, Proprietor.

Dec. 1856.

SANDWICH BAKERY,

THE SUBSCRIBER has opened, and purposes to continue, his establishment for Baking Bread that cannot be surpassed in the adjoining counties; and with a good assortment of Cakes and Crackers, which will always be on hand, begs to solicit a share of Public patronage.

HEALTH OR SICKNESS.

CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endorsements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review," and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflammation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits
Diarrhœa	Piles,

IN ONE LARGE VOLUME.

EMBRACING Outlines of Anatomy, Illustrated; Physiology of the Human Body; Hygienic Agencies and the Preservation of Health; Dietics and Hydropathic Cookery; Theory and Practice of Water Treatment; Special Pathology and Hydro-Therapeutics, including the Nature, Causes, Symptoms and Treatment of all known diseases; Application to Surgical Diseases; Application of Hydropathy to Midwifery and the Nursery; with three hundred engravings and nearly One Thousand Pages, including a Glossary, Table of Contents, and a complete Index. By R. T. TRALL, M. D.

Published by FOWLER and WELLS, New York.

In the plan of the work, the wants and necessities of the People have been steadily in view. While almost every topic of interest in the departments of Anatomy, Physiology, Pathology, Hygiene, Therapeutics is breifly presented, those of practical utility are always put prominently forward. The prevailing errors, conceits, and whims of the day and age are exposed and refuted; the theories and hypothesis upon which the popular drug practice is predicated are controverted, and the why and wherefore of their fallacy clearly demonstrated. The following is a brief analysis of its contents:

History of Medicine; History of Bathing; History of Medicated Baths.

Anatomy illustrated by One Hundred and Twenty appropriate engravings.

Physiology, illustrated, comprising the Rationale of Muscular Action; the Nervous Influence; Philosophy of Mind? Mesmeric Phenomena; the Special Senses: Functions of Digestion, Circulation, Respiration, Absorption, Nutrition, Secretion, Excretion, Calorification, Temperaments, the Races of Men, and Theory of Population.

Hygiene embracing all the relations of Air, Light, Drink, Food, Temperature, Exercise, Sleep, Clothing, Bathing, and the Passions, to the growth and developement of Body and Mind, the Preservation of Health and the attainment of Longevity

Dietetics, comprising the Bible, Anatomical, Physiological, Chemical and Experimental Evidence concerning the natural Dietetic Character of Man.

Hydropathic Cookery, with Special Directions for the Preparation of Food

Dietaries, containing the Therapeutic Distinctions of Diet for Invalids.

Philosophy of Water-Cure, with illustrated explanations of all the water-cure appliances, a Philosophical Exposition of the modus operandi of water-treatment, and the true rationale of drug-treatment.

The Nature Symptoms and Treatment of all known Diseases are examined, the ill success of drug practice exposed, and the proper Medication recommended and specified.

The Treatment of surgical Diseases Illustrated and the directions for the minor operations given.

The Management of Lying-in-Women, and the treatment of Children, &c.

The work is intended to be plain, intelligible and sufficient guide for domestic practice, or home treatment, in all ordinary diseases, embracing the whole range of subjects connected with the philosophy of life, the preservation of health, and the treatment of diseases.

Cause of Perspiration.

There are two kinds of perspiration, sensible and insensible. When we see drops of water on the surface of the body as the result of exercise, or subsidence of fever, that is sensible perspiration, perspiration recognized by the sense of sight. But when perspiration is so gentle that it cannot be detected in the shape of water-drops, when no moisture can be felt, when it is known to us only by a certain softness of the skin, that is insensible perspiration, and is so gentle that it may be checked to a very considerable extent without special injury. But to use popular language which cannot be mistaken, when a man is sweating freely, and it is suddenly checked, and the sweat is not brought out again in a very few moments, sudden and painful sickness is a very certain result.

What, then, checks perspiration? A draft of air while we are at rest, after exercise, or getting the clothes wet and keeping at rest while it is so. Getting out of a warm bed and going to an open window or door, has been the death of multitudes.

A lady heard the cry of fire at midnight; it was bitter cold; it was so near, the flames illuminated her chamber. She left the bed, hot-bed though it was, she could not feel it a moment. From that hour, until her death, a quarter of a century later, she never saw a well day.

A young lady went to her window in her night clothes to look at something in the street, leaning her unprotected arms on the stone window-sill, which was damp and cold. She became an invalid, and will remain so for life.

Sir Thomas Colby being in a profuse sweat one night, happened to remember that he had left the key of his wine cellar on the parlor table, and, fearing his servants might improvidently make free with it, drank some of his wine, he left his bed, walked down stairs, the sweating process was checked, from which he died in a few days, leaving six million of dollars in English funds. His illness was so brief and violent that he had no opportunity to make his will, and his immense property was to be divided among five or six day laborers who were his nearest relatives.

The great practical lesson which we wish to impress upon the mind of the reader is this: when you are perspiring freely, keep in motion until you get to a good fire, or to some shelter, for you are perfectly sheltered from any draft of air whatever.

[The above is from Hall's Journal of Health, and we cannot but commend it to general attention. There are but few persons, we believe, who cannot recall some case within their own observation, of violent sickness, consumption and sudden death, caused by perspiration being suddenly checked. We have known many such cases ourselves. No one requires to be informed that checked perspiration is oftentimes the cause of diseases; but there are so many who are liable to forget or overlook this fact, that it is good and necessary to give frequent warnings like the above.

APPLE WINE.—Take pure ciders made from sound ripe apples as it runs from the press Put from 40 to 60 pounds of common brown sugar (according to the sweetness desired) into 15 gallons of the cider and let it dissolve then put the mixture into a clean barrel, and fill the barrel up to within two gallons of being full with clean cider; put the cask in a cool place, leaving the bung out for 48 hours; then put in the bung, with a small vent, until fermentation wholly ceases and bung it up tight, and in one year the wine will be fit for use. This wine requires no racking; the longer it stands upon the lees the better.

PROTECTING DRIED FRUIT FROM WORMS.—Place it in a tin steamer, and set it over a kettle of boiling water; then cover it closely with several folds of flannel or cotton, to prevent the escape of steam. It should remain until thoroughly heated, when it can be put into a cotton or linen bag, tied up tightly, and hung in a cool place. Twice in the season, say in May and July, will be sufficient. I will warrant this to be effectual. —Country Gentleman.

PRESERVING EGGS.—The North-Western Farmer has tried the following method of preserving eggs, and recommends it. Take a sieve, and cover the bottom with eggs; then pour boiling water upon them a sufficient to give them a thorough wetting, permitting the water to pass off through the sieve. Take them out and dry them; then pack them in bran, the small ends down; and your eggs will keep forever.

BLACKBERRY DIARRHŒA CORDIAL.—The following is said to be not only an excellent and pleasant beverage, but a cure for diarrhœa, &c.

To half a bushel of blackberries, well mashed, add 1lb of allspice, 2 oz. cinnamon, 3 oz. cloves. Pulverize well, mix, and boil slowly till properly done. Then strain or squeeze the juice through homespun or flannel, and add to each pint of juice one pint of loaf sugar. Boil again for some time, take it off, and while cooling, add half a gallon of best cognac brandy. Dose—for an adult, half a gill to a gill; for a child, a teaspoonful or more, according to age.

IMPORTANT IF TRUE.—To secure from cattle, mate or female progeny at will.—According to an article in the Annals of the Luxenburgh Agricultural Society, communicated by a Belgian farmer, a heifer calf is invariably produced when the cow is put to bull before milking, and a male calf when the cow is put to bull just after milking. The compound salt, after it has absorbed all the moisture possible, is removed to be used for manure, and fresh salts applied in the same way. This is an excellent plan for keeping stables dry and healthy.

BUREAU OF AGRICULTURE & STATISTICS
TORONTO, 25th July, 1856

To Emigrants & Others Seeking LAND FOR SETTLEMENT.

THE Provincial Government have recently opened out three great lines of road, now in course of completion, and have surveyed and laid out for settlement the Lands through, and in the vicinity of, which those roads pass.

The Roads, as advertised by the Agents of the Government, appointed to the respective localities to afford information to the Settler, are known as

THE OTTAWA AND OPEONGO ROAD,
THE ADDINGTON ROAD, and
THE HASTINGS ROAD,

The Ottawa and Opeongo Road

Commences at a point on the Ottawa River known as "Ferrar's," a little above the mouth of the Madawaska River, and runs in a Westerly direction, passing through the northerly part of the County of Renfrew.

It is intended to connect this road with a projected line of road known as "Bell's Line," leading to the Lake Muskako, and Lake Huron, by a branch which will diverge from the Opeongo Road in the Township of Brudnell, at a distance of about 58 miles from the River Ottawa, forming, with "Bell's Line," a great leading road, or base line from the Ottawa to Lake Muskako, 171 miles in length, passing through the heart of the Ottawa and Huron Territory, and opening up for settlement a vast extent of rich and valuable land.)

This road, and the country through which it passes, now open for settlement, is easily accessible, and the Agent for the granting of Lands in this district is Mr. T. P. French, who resides at Mount St. Patrick, near Renfrew, on the Opeongo Road, 25 miles from the Lands which are to be granted.—To reach the section of Country under Dr. French's charge, the Settler must go from Montreal up the Ottawa River to a place called Bonchere Point, and thence by land some twenty-five or thirty miles westward to the Township of Grattan, in which Mount St. Patrick is situated.

The Addington Road

Commencing in the Township of Anglesea, in the Midland District of the County of Addington, near the Village of Flint's Mills, Kaladar, runs almost due north to the River Nadawaska, a distance of 35 miles, and is to be continued through the same distance, 25 miles till it intersects to Ottawa and Opeongo Road.

The Agent for the granting of the Land in this district is Mr. R. Perry, who, for that purpose, is now resident at FLINT'S MILLS. The outlines of five townships or very superior land are already surveyed and ready for settlement within the vicinity of the Agency, lying north of Lake Massanoka, and between it and the River Nadawaska. The Townships are called respectively Abinger, Ashley, Effingham, Anglesea, and Barrie.

The direct route to this section is by way of Kingston, Canada West, thence North to the Township of Kaladar, and the Village of FLINT'S MILLS, where Mr. Perry resides.

Hastings Road!

Almost parallel to the Addington Road, and at a distance West of it from 6 to about 36 miles is the HASTINGS ROAD. This road beginning at the northern part of the County of Hastings, and running a distance of 74 miles, almost due north, also inter-sects the OTTAWA and OPEONGO ROAD and its extensions.

The Government Agent is Mr. M. P. Hayes, who resides at the Village of Hastings, upon Crow River, about 36 miles due north of the Town of Belleville. The Road between these places is in good order, The land to be granted by the Crown under this Agency extends from 15 to 17 miles north of the Village of Hastings The Road through this large extent of land is passable for 40 miles, and money is now being expended to extend it 30 miles further, so that Settlers can get in and out without difficulty, and find a good market for surplus produce, as well as convenient facilities for bringing in whatever supplies they may require—abundance of which can be had at the Village of Hastings, where the Government agent resides.

The direct way to reach this Station, which is easily accessible, is by Kingston Canada West, thence by Steamboat up the Bay of Quinte to Belleville 56 miles, and thence by a good Road to Hastings, 28 miles.

In order to facilitate the Settlement of the Country, and provide for keeping in repair the Roads thus opened, the Government authorized Free Grants of Land along these Roads, not to exceed in each case ONE HUNDRED ACRES, upon application to the Local Agents, and upon the following

CONDITIONS

That the Settler be eighteen years of age.

That he take possession of the Land allotted to him within one month, and put in a state of cultivation at least twelve acres of the land in the course of four years—and a house at least 20 by 18 feet) and reside on the lot until the conditions of settlement are duly performed; after which accomplishment only shall the settler have the right of obtaining a Patent to the property. Families comprising several settlers entitled to lands, preferring to reside on a single lot, will be exempted from the obligation of building and of residence, (except upon the lot on which they live provided that the required clearing of the lands be made on each lot. The non-accomplishment of these conditions will cause the immediate loss of the assigned lot of land, which will be sold or given to another.

The road having been opened by the Government, the settlers are required to keep it in repair.

The Local Agents, whose names and places of abode have already been given, will furnish every information to the intending Settler.

The LOG HOUSE required by the Government to be built, is of such description as can be put up in four days, by aid of the neighbours generally help to build the Log Cabin for newly arrived Settlers, without charge, and when this is done the cost of the erection is small. The roof can be covered with bark, and the spaces between the logs plastered with clay, and white-washed. It then becomes a neat dwelling and warm as stone house.

The lands thus opened up and offered for settlement, are, in sections of Canada West, capable both as to Soil and Climate, of producing abundant crops of winter wheat, of excellent quality and full weight, also crops of every other description of farm produce, grown in the best and longest cultivated districts of that portion of the Province, and fully as good.

There are, of course, in such a large extent of country as that referred to, great varieties in the character and quality of land —some lots being much superior to others; but there is an abundance of the very best land for farming purposes. The Lands in a neighbourhood of the settled roads will be found to be very similar in quality and character, and covered with every variety of Timber—some with hard wood, and some with heavy pine.

Water for domestic use is every where abundant; and there are, throughout, numerous streams and falls of water, capable of being used for Manufacturing purposes.

The heavy timbered land is almost always the best, and of it, the ashes of three acres, well taken care and covered from axe—will usually afford a barrel of Potash, worth from £9 to £7 currency. The capital required to manufacture Potash is very small, and the process is very simple and easily understood.

According to the rule of counting acres, enclosing heavily Timbered Lands, valuing the labor of the settlers at the highest rate; is about FOUR POUNDS Currency per Acre, which itself would, in many, if an average case, be a nearly repay. The best timber for fencing is to be had in abundance.

A settler on these lands, possessing a capital from £500 to £300, according to the number of his family, will soon make himself comfortable, and obtain a rapid return for his investment. The single man, able and willing to work, needs little capital, besides his axe and provisions for a year—he can devote a portion of the year to clearing his land, and in the numerous lumbering establishments he can, at other seasons, obtain a liberal remuneration for his labour.

The climate throughout these Districts is good. The snow does not fall so deep as to obstruct communication; and it affords material for sleighing for much during the winter, for farmer to haul in his Firewood for the ensuing year from the woods, to take his produce to market, and to lay in his supplies for the further season, and his covering for the earth, not only facilitates communication with the more settled parts of the District, but is highly beneficial and fertilizing to the soil.

In all the localities above named, wherever Settlers have surplus produce, there is a good market for it near to them—firm produce of all kinds being in great demand by the Lumber or Timber Merchants, who are carrying on extensive operations throughout these parts of the country.

According to the ratio of progress which Canada West has made during the last ten years, the value of property on an average doubles within that period—irrespective of any improvements which may have been made by the Settlers.

In many Counties the value of Land, once opened for settlement, has increased FIVE FOLD in the period named, but the average value of wild land, according to the statistics of Canada West, Doubles every ten years in the mere lapse of time, exclusive of any expenditure thereon—and it is not too much to expect that this ratio will not diminish for generations to come.

The Sections of Country opened by these roads lie in and to the Southern part of the great Ottawa Region, stretching from a point beyond them to the shores of Lake Huron, to Lake Nipissing, and to the Ottawa River —an immense extent of country whose resources are now seeking and will rapidly obtain development.

The Ottawa Country

Lying south of Lake Nipissing and of the great River Ottawa, and embracing a large portion of the land offered for settlement, is capable of sustaining a population of eight millions of people, and it is now attracting general attention, as the more western portions of lands are being rapidly filled up.

The Parliament of Canada in its last Session incorporated a Company for the construction of a Railway to pass through this Country from the Shores of Lake Huron to the City of the Ottawa, and thence Eastward.

A survey of the River Ottawa and the neighbouring country has been completed, and will be completed in the present year; its principal object being to ascertain by what means the River Ottawa can be rendered navigable and connected with Lake Huron so as to enable vessels to pass by that route from the most Western Waters into the River St. Lawrence and the Ocean. These projected works are alluded to in order to show that the attention of the Government, Parliament and People of Canada, has been fixed upon this important portion of the Province.

The New York, Buffalo, and Oswego reports are furnished by the N. Y. associated press, and will be correctly rendered. As a newspaper the "Cleveland-er" is perhaps equal to any daily in the State. Recollect, only $3.50 for "Daily Cleveland-er" and the "Commercial Gazette" for one year. Parts of a dollar may be sent in postage stamps. For two dollars the two papers will be sent six months

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, flowers and Journal as a "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beauties the work.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rod of tillable earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove a most valuable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded: together with its really superior execution, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

"The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of pearl surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with July, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial department: P. BARRY, KNIGHT, JAMES SNOWDEN and D. W. RAY.

TERMS: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

☞ Newspapers inserting the above prospectus, and drawing attention editorially to the same, will be forwarded the ILLUSTRATED HORTICULTURIST for one year, a copy containing the advertisement should be sent in all cases to ensure attention.

NEW VOLUME OF THE

AGRICULTURIST

SUBSCRIPTION REDUCED FROM 25 TO 50 PER CENT.

The Canadian Agriculturist

Has now reached the eighth volume, having been established by its present proprietor in 1848, and is too well known to the leading farmers of the British Provinces, to need any eulogium from us. The undersigned have made arrangements with the proprietor to publish the next, and probably succeeding volumes, and have resolved to make important improvements in the work, while at the same time its price will be considerably reduced.

THE AGRICULTURIST

Is published Monthly, on good Paper, each number containing 32 pages, making at the end of the year a handsome volume of 384 pages.

EVERY NUMBER WILL BE
Illustrated with Engravings

Such as Farm Implements, Portraits of Animals, designs of Farm Buildings, New Inventions, &c., &c., relating to the Farmer, and also portraits of some of the most Distinguished Agriculturists.

The Work will be conducted as usual by WILLIAM MACDOUGALL, Esq., who has resumed the practice of Agriculture near this city. The active promoter of the various improvements made in our Agricultural Legislation since 1847, and having also been connected with this Journal from its commencement, he requires no recommendation from us.

PROFESSOR BUCKLAND, of the Toronto University, whose labors and writings in behalf of Canadian Agriculture are known and appreciated throughout the Province, will contribute to its columns as usual.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS

Of known ability have also been engaged. Efforts will be made to extend the corres pondence on subjects of a practical kind.

Select Poetry.

England--Scotland--Ireland--Canada

BY WILLIAM PITMAN LETT.

Hurrah! Hurrah! for ENGLAND!
The Goddess of the sea—
The empire island of the brave,
The birth-place of the free.
The land of honor, wealth and fame,
Of lore and commerce too—
The land of many a noble name,
From Nile to Waterloo.

Hurrah! Hurrah! for SCOTLAND!
The soil of ancient worth,
Where learning her fair ensign waves,
And science had its birth;
The land of Bruce of Bannockburn,
And many a hero more—
The land of bright tradition,
And tartaned clans of yore.

Hurrah! Hurrah! for IRELAND
The land of love and song,
Where genius with a lavish hand
Flings light among the throng;
The land where minstrel warriors
First struck the deathless strain—
That made the shamrock valley ring,
With music's prestine reign,

Hurrah! hurrah! for CANADA!
The fairest, brightest gem
That graces—happy, proud, and free,
Victoria's diadem!
Prosperity extend her flag,
By enterprise anfurled—
And British Union long remain
The envy of the world.

Sunset on the Rhine.

BY MISS COTELLO.

Sunset! on the plain that spreads
Onward to the glowing Rhine:
Sunset on the purple heads
Of Alsatia's mountain line:
Red sunset on the vines that creep,
Far along the rocky steep,
Till those giant forests rise
Dark against the clear, broad skies,
All streak'd and flecd'd with sunset's glow,
Down to the river's banks below.

Silver Neckar! crimson'd o'er
With the beam, from shore to shore,
Silver Neckar! devious still,
Doubling, turning at thy will,
Circling through the meadows' maze,
Joyous in the golden haze,
Till thy waters, full and free,
Swell the Rhine's majestic sea.

Odenwald! in misty grey
Fade thy crowning heights away;
But fair Heidelberg stands out,
All her ruins girt about
With a diadem of gold,
Such as crown'd her once of old,
When two royal lovers stood,
Gazing from this charmed grove,
Blest in tender solitude,
Till ambition conquered love.

My Deaf Aunt's Deaf Lover.

BY ELIA M. HALPINE.

"For mercy sake! Evelyn, do come to the window quick, and tell me who is this antiquated specimen of humanity that has stopped just outside the gate. Saint Jerome! he is actually getting off his horse to come in; quick, Evelyn, who is he?"

"That," said Evelyn, coming nearer to the window, "why, Katy, this is old Simon Hornet."

"And who, in the name of wonder, is old Simon Hornet?" I enquired.

"O, he's a widower, and the very oldest mortal you ever saw. He lives just over the hill, in that little old fashioned red house that I pointed out to you yesterday, when we were riding on horseback."

"I should have guessed as much," I replied; "the house looks as though it was built some time before the flood, and this old Simon Hornet, as you call him, looks comical enough to be father Noah himself. But what on earth can the droll old fellow be coming here after?"

"Ah, that's the funniest of it," laughed Evelyn. "You see, Kitty, he's lived there nearly twenty years, and never stepped his foot inside of our house till three months ago, and now he stops here almost every time he goes past, on his way to town. For a long time we couldn't imagine what it meant; till all at once we discovered that it's Aunt Sarah he's after."

"Aunt Sarah?" I exclaimed, perfectly astounded. "Aunt Sarah?" re-echoed Jane and Rebecca; and Richard, and Harry, as they all rushed to the window to catch a view of the audacious personage, who threatened to "molest the ancient solitary reign" of our venerable and highly respected aunt.

We—that is, myself, and the said Richard, Harry, Rebecca and Jane—had just got home from school. We had been away nearly three months, and had, of course, on our return home a score to learn about matters and things at home and in the neighbourhood. But nothing we had heard had so completely astonished us as the fact of Aunt Sarah's having a lover.

Aunt Sarah had been a fixture in the family ever since my earliest remembrance. She was very tall and very straight, eccentric and very deaf. She was, moreover, extremely averse to all society except her own, which she seemed to enjoy vastly; for many a time I have watched her with childish awe, as she would sit in her rocking chair knitting, and all the while talking to herself as busily, (as uncle used to say,) as ten bumblebees in a pumpkin blossom."

Sometimes I used to ask her who she was talking to, but this enquiry always offended her, and as I was invariably sent down stairs as a punishment for my inquisitiveness, I soon leaned the policy of repressing my curiosity.

Mr. Simon Hornet; was also very tall and thin. We watched him with breathless interest, while he fastened his sorrel colored nag to a tree outside of the fence; and then opening the gate proceeded with slow and solemn steps across the lawn to the side entrance.

Like old Grimes, he wore a "a long blue coat, all buttoned down before," with bright brass buttons. The bottoms of the snuff colored pants were tucked carefully into his boots, and on his head he wore a "stove-pipe" hat pitched back from his brow in such a manner as to bear a striking resemblance to the leading chimney. He wore around his throat a white cravat, tied in front with a double bow knot, and in his hand he carried a heavy whip, which, regardless of the bell, he applied to the door with thundering force.

"Come, Kitty, you must go to the door," said Evelyn; "for Margaret can never make him hear in the world."

"Not hear!" I exclaimed in amazement, "what, he isn't deaf, is he?"

"Yes, deaf as a post," laughed Evelyn. "But there, he's commenced knocking again! run quick, Kitty, or he will batter the door down."

Away I flew, and in a moment later stood vis-a-vis with Aunt Sarah's nondescript suitor.

"Is yer Aunt Sarah about hum?" he enquired, stretching his neck forward and raising one hand to his ear, the better to hear my reply.

"Yes, sir; will you walk in?"

"Aint in, hey? Expect her back before long?"

"I ask you if you would walk in and take a seat," I replied, raising my voice.

"O! coming back in a week?"

"I say, sir, she is at home. Will you please to walk in and take a seat in the sitting room?" I fairly screamed, turning purple in the face with the exertion; while a suppressed laugh from the adjoining room warned me that my companions were highly enjoying my enforced merriment.

"Ho, ho!" he exclaimed, finally comprehending; "thank ye, mum, don't keer if I dew. Sometimes I ca'n, I'm a leetle hard o' hearing."

"No mistake about that," thinks I to myself, as I returned to the sitting room.

"Brave! Kitty, you did first rate," exclaimed Richard, "I really had no idea your lungs were so strong. Upon my word, I believe he is deafer than Aunt Sally."

"I should judge they were just about on a par in that respect," laughed Harry, "By George!" it's a most equitable match."

"But at all events," I remarked, "there is one difference; for he frankly owns up to being a "leetle hard o' hearing," but you never could persuade Aunt Sarah that she was deaf the least mite. But where is she, Evelyn—in her room?"

Evelyn replied in the affirmative, and up stairs I posted to notify her of Mr. Hornet's arrival, and desire to see her.

"Aunt Sarah," I exclaimed, bursting into the room, Simon Hornet has come!"

"Seen your bonnet!" said Aunt Sarah looking up drowsily from her work. "La, no child, I haven't seen nothing of yer bonnet."

"No, no, aunty," I said, exerting myself to the utmost to speak distinctly, so as to be understood, "I said Simon Hornet was down stairs."

"Well, who said it wasn't down stairs?" snarled Aunt Sarah. "Why don't you go down and get it; if you want it?"

"Gracious heavens!" I said, pausing to wipe the perspiration from my forehead, "I believe it's of no more use to try to make her hear. However, here goes once more."

Taking a long breath, and placing my lips close to her her ear, I shouted:

"Aunt Sarah, old Simon Hornet is down in the sitting-room!"

"Well, what of it?" she returned testily.

"He wants to see you, aunty," I yelled in reply.

"Well, you needn't scream so, child, she returned petulsily; "any one would suppose by the way you holler, that I was deaf. Tell old Simon Hornet I'm"

"Yes, Aunty."

"Well, I don't see what on airth the critter wants; but hand me my cap and specacles, Kitty, and I'll go down and see."

I obeyed with alacrity, and then hastened down stairs to acquaint my companions with the result.

After a short consultation we agreed to adjourn to a small clothes-press, situated between the dining and sitting room, with a door opening into it from both apartments, as the top of the very place of concealment was a window covered with blinds, so that we could both see and hear without being seen ourselves.

We had hardly stowed ourselves snugly in, when Aunt Sarah made her appearance, with "Good morning mum! glad to see you looking so well, mum," responded Mr. Hornet, generally.

"Yes, sir, pretty good; thank you," returned my aunt, mistaking his remark for an enquiry after her health.

"I said, mum, I was glad to see you looking so well," repeated Mr. Hornet, placing his lips close to her ear.

"I heard you, sir," said aunt Sarah, drawing back with an air of offended dignity. "My health is very good; I hope your's is the same, Mr. Hornet."

"Yes, mum! but I found it pretty cold riding over the hill this morning."

"Ah, got a bad cold: I am sorrow to hear it; somehow or another a great many people are ailing with colds lately. There's my niece, Sarah Jane, she was here yesterday, and she was so hoarse that I could scarcely hear a word she said, and her little boy was taken with the croup the other night, and liked to have died."

"I didn't say anything about having a cold," said poor Mr. Hornet, getting slightly riled up, "I said the weather was pretty cold for the season."

"Yes, I expect the cold weather is the reason," said Aunt Sarah, crossly. "When folks takes cold, it's most generally on account of the cold weather; any fool knows that."

"Do you mean to tell me to my face that I an a fool, madam?" shouted Mr. Hornet, flushed up as red as boiled lobster.

"La sakes," said Aunt Sarah, coolly taking a pinch of snuff, "I don't know but I may as well say it to your face as behind your back. But what is the use in your hollering loud enough to take a body's head off?"

"I don't know how you are to hear me if I don't," said Mr. Hornet, still louder.

"I hope you don't think all the world is deaf because you happen to be?" screamed Aunt Sarah.

"If you are not deaf, I never saw anybody that was!" replied Mr. Hornet emphatically

"I guess you never looked in the glass, then?" retorted the lady, sarcastically.—"People who are deaf as a post themselves are very apt to imagine everybody else is."

"You havn't heard a straight word I have said this morning!" gasped Mr. Hornet, choking with rage.

"Then it's because you talk so crooked, that the very old scratch couldn't understand you."

"I shall go home, ma'am; shan't stay here any longer to be insulted! exclaimed Mr. Hornet, jumping up furiously.

"You had better be showing your back if you know what is good and safe for you and the expectant old lady, seizing the duster and brandishing it threateningly around her head.

"You're a vixen!" shouted Mr. Hornet retreating towards the door.

"You're a ridiculous old idiot!" shrieked my aunt, letting the duster fly at his head.

"You're a confounded old scold!" yelled Mr. Hornet dodging the duster, and kicking the cat by way of revenge.

"Wretch, monster!" screamed my aunt, pitching a cricket at him, and catching up the poker. "Touch that cat again, if you dare, you dried up bit of poperjer."

Mr. Hornet paused a moment and glared wildly around the room; then seizing his hat rushed headlong from the house.

Snatching up the abused Mrs. Tabby, Aunt Sarah marched off with her in triumph to her room; giving as an explanation to vent our pent-up mirth which we did long and loud.

Mr. Simon Hornet never again ventured to trust himself within the precincts of our domicile, and our Aunt Sarah will in all probability live and die an "old maid."

Antidote for Strychnine.

The Dublin correspondent of the Medical Times and Gazette says:—"The Rev. S. Haughton, a Fellow of Trinity College, has just given an account of some experiments on the properties of nicotine and strychnine, at a meeting of the Royal Irish Academy. He stated that he was induced to make the experiments by the consideration of the specific action of strychnine and nicotine upon the muscular system, which appeared to be so opposite in their character as to lead him to a conviction that they would prove to be equally antidotes to each other's action. It is generally believed that strychnine exerts a specific action upon the lower or lumbar portions of the spinal column, exciting the muscular system (at least the voluntary muscles) into a state of tetanic contraction, and ultimately producing death indirectly, by rendering respiration mechanically impossible, by virtue of the permanent contraction of the pectoral muscles, and not, as was once supposed, by its action upon the heart. It is also well known that the most powerful agent we possess for relaxing the action of the muscles, is nicotine, whether administered in the form of tobacco smoke or infusion of the leaves. From these well known facts he (Mr Haughton) was led to believe that these powerful poisons might be used as antidotes to each other's action; and with the view of testing this conjecture he made several experiments. Four of these went to show the effects of the two poisons separately. The fifth and sixth are important, as they appear conclusive to Mr. Haughton as to the action of nicotine in retarding, and in certain cases counteracting, the effects of strychnine. In the fifth experiment, a frog had lived for 47 minutes in a mixture of two solutions, of which one would have destroyed life in 5 minutes, and the other would have produced paralysis in one minute, and destroyed life in 23 minutes; and yet in the mixture the animal had lived 47 minutes, and afterwards for 24 hours. In the sixth experiment, a frog immersed in a similar mixture of the poison for 10 minutes, had ultimately recovered. The effects of the strychnine being completely obviated by the action of the nicotine. Mr. Haughton expressed a hope that further inquiries would be instituted into the action of strychnine and nicotine upon some of the warm blooded animals, as he believed that in nicotine, which was always easily procurable in the form of tobacco leaf infusion, would be found a valuable antidote in at least some cases of strychnine poisoning, whether intentional or accidental."

A Good Story.

We are kindly permitted to copy the following good anecdote from a private letter just received by a gentleman of this city, from a brother now in Nebraska. The Yankee referred to is the right kind of man to deal with the 'border ruffians in Kansas.—We do not remember to have seen this story in print. Here it is:

You know the test to which the Missourians subject all travellers who make their appearance at any of their ferries, and asked to be crossed into Kansas. Some days since a slab sided Yankee arrived at one of the Northern Missouri landings, with a long train of plunder of various sorts. By way of testing him the ferryman asked him what stock he had.

'Wall,' says the Yankee. 'I've got two horses, a yoke of oxen, and two kows.'

'That's enough,' replied the ferryman, 'you can't cross here.

'Why not,' inquired the Yankee.

The ferryman told him that his instructions were not to cross anybody that couldn't pronounce the word cow.

'But I said kow persisted the Yankee.

Well, you can't cross here, rather gruffly replied Charon.

'But I have got tickets outfitting me to cross,' urged the Yankee.

The ferryman replied that he did not know of anybody who had a right to sell him tickets.

'But I've got them any way.'

The ferryman demanded a sight of the tickets, whereupon Mr. Yankee stepped back a little, hauled out a revolver in each hand, crying—'them's the tickets, and I am bound to cross this ferry, kow or no kow?' And he crossed.

THE DETECTION OF MURDER—ANOTHER TRIAL.—It will be recollected that some time since an article was published by a celebrated physician in England, which alleged that the last scene viewed by a dying man would remain impressed upon the retina as does the impression upon a daguerreotype plate. Experiments were made in the case of a murdered man at Auburn last summer, which were pronounced satisfactory by the physicians. A series of experiments have recently been made by Mr. Pollock, an artist of Chicago. In each experiment that Dr. P. has made, he has found that an examination of the retina of an eye with a microscope reveals a wonderful as well as a beautiful sight, and that almost in every instance there was a clear, distinct, and marked impression.

The New York Tribune announces the introduction of the Garrotte method of robbery into the city, and says it was successfully practiced one night last week on a printer who happened to be out rather late. The garrotte trick has been in practice in London for a year or two, and is all the rage with the more daring thieves. It is an imitation of the strangling system of the Thugs of India, rather than the Spanish mode of execution, from which it has been named. Garrotting consists in seizing a man by the throat and choking him so that he can give no alarm, while a confederate rifles his pockets. He is left strangled and almost senseless, and before he can get breath the robbers are beyond reach. It is not so much practised in winter, as men are so muffled up that their windpipes cannot be easily reached; but if the fellows who are now trying it occasionally, just to get the hang of it, should make it work satisfactorily, we look for great doings in the new business when warm weather returns. Being much safer than the knocking down system, it is of course much more genteel, and will tickle the fancy of the swell mob, who always like to do business in a quiet manner.

PROPOSED CANAL.—A gentleman of Toronto, who has purchased a large tract of land in the township of Delaware, has proposed cutting a canal from a point of the River Thames, a short distance east of Lobo bridge, to another point of the same river, close to the village of Delaware. "As a fall of about twenty-two feet is thus cured, and also the water now running by way of the river for several miles will be brought into about a mile and a-half, a force will be obtained, enough to propel any kind of machinery. Grist mills, a brewery, distillery and other buildings, where water power is required, are expected to be erected immediately after the completion of the canal. If a settlement can be made in time with parties holding land on the proposed route, the canal will be commenced early in the spring.—Herald.

FUNERAL OF FATHER MATHEW.—The funeral of the Rev. Father Mathew, "the apostle of temperance," took place in Cork, on the 9th, and was, perhaps, the most remarkable one ever witnessed in that city.—The cortege was more than three miles long, and took an hour and a half to pass any particular point. It was attended by the Corporation and City Officers, in mourning, by several dignitaries and clergymen of the Established Church, as well as by a vast number of the Protestant gentry of the surrounding country. It was estimated that not fewer than 50,000 people were assembled in and around the cemetery on the occasion; the deepest sympathy was expressed by the greater number of those present, many of them shedding tears. The Roman Catholic Bishop and seventy priests officiated at the obsequies in the Catholic Church of the Holy Trinity.

FIRST ARRIVAL FROM LAKE SUPERIOR OVERLAND.—Messrs. P. White, Chas. T. Harvey, Hubbard Netts, Samuel Peck, and Norman Day, reached this city last evening having left Marquette Lake Superior, on the 5th instant. They came to Bay de Noquet by teams, thence to Menominee river in a sail boat, thence to Fond du Lac by teams, and were eleven days in making the trip.—They report the snow in the vicinity of Marquette is about three feet deep, but the weather had been mild in that region. The propeller Gen. Taylor arrived there on the 29th of November, and discharged a large quantity of supplies at that place, which makes them fully prepared for winter. The propeller is supposed to have laid up for the winter in the new harbor at Ontonagon. Lake Superior is believed to have ample supplies at all points for winter consumption, and mining operations in copper and iron were brisk with most promising prospects.—Chicago Press.

The inhabitants of Three Rivers held a meeting on the 30th ult., to take into consideration the report of the Committee heretofore appointed to collect Statistics relative to the fire on the 15th November, with a view to petition Parliament for a loan to enable the sufferers to rebuild the houses that were destroyed. The report was adopted, and Mr. Polette requested to take the application into his charge, and present it to the Legislature.—Leader.

The "State of Maine" announces that arrangements have been completed for the maintenance of a line between Liverpool and Portland. The first vessel is to be the "Circassian," 2,300 tons and 300 horse power. She is to leave Liverpool on the 7th of March for Portland, calling at St. John's and Halifax. The line will be a monthly one. Messrs. Rhynas and Co. are the Portland agents.

The Cunard Company have made an arrangement under which, for the first time, they will extend their operations to other waters than those of the Atlantic. They have formed a combination with the new Australian Steam Company by which, with their vessels Etna, Jura, and Indus, they will undertake the Mediterranean portion of that route, the portion between Suez and Melbourne being carried out by the original promoters.—Globe.

The long disputed question whether Purcell or Handel was the author of the grand music of the Old Hundredth, has been set at rest by a discovery made a few days since in Lincoln Cathedral library. Purcell died in 1695, and Handel in 1750. But in the Cathedral library a French psalter, printed in 1540, contains the music of the Old Hundredth, exactly as it is now sung, so that it could not be the production of either of the great musicians to whom it has been attributed. In like manner, "God save the King," has turned out to be a French composition

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Glandular swellings in the throat, neuralgia, the dolourcux, rheumatism, gout, lumbago, and other diseases affecting the glands, muscles, and nerves of sensation, are permanently eradicated by the persevering application of this healing, anti-febrile, pain destroying preparation. Irritating eruptions, running sores, open wounds, burns, scalds, the bites of venomous insects or reptiles, and, in short all the varieties of superficial inflammation, soon lose their angry and painful character when treated with Holloway's Ointment.—The Pills have never yet been administered in dyspepsia, liver complaint, or disorders of the bowels, without producing the desired results.

ACCIDENTS IN 1855.—In the United States during last year one hundred and ninety-five persons have lost their lives by railroad accidents, and six hundred and twenty-nine have been wounded. Of this number 26 were engineers, and 28 firemen. This is a large increase over 1855. During the same period there have been twenty-five steamboat accidents on rivers, lakes and bays, killing three hundred and fifty-eight, and wounded one hundred and twenty-seven persons. An increase on number killed during the preceding year.

During the last 25 years, 6,773 men have been executed in Italy for political offences. Of this number 1,715 suffered in the Two Sicilies. Austria has been most brutal, for in Lombardy the executed exceed 4,300.

"Ma," said a little urchin the other night "I am so cold on this hard straw bed," "Be quiet my child, till your sisters come home from meeting; they have got the feather beds on for bustles."

A spirit of dissontent prevails among the officers of the U. S. army, on account of the low pay they receive The New York Herald says:—"It Congress do not increase the pay of the officers of the army, that arm of the public defence will soon lose many of the most gallant gentlemen in the service. Brevet Lieu. Col. Eaton, Captain of the Third infantry, has thrown up his commission solely because of his inability to support his family, upon the meagre allowance provided by government."

A CUTE BOY.—"James, my son, take this letter to the post office and pay the postge on it." The boy retuned highly elated and said "Father, I seen a lot of men putting letters in a little place and when no one was looking I slipped in yours for nothing, and I bought a ginger cake with he money. Ain't I cute, pa?"

London.

A city having two and a quarter million of inhabitants; which boasts of 10,000 acres of bricks and mortar; which has 796 board and lodging houses; 330 dining room and 883 coffee shops, with 393 hotels and taverns; 126 brewers and 60 distillers; 4,340 publicans, 902 beer-shop keepers, 88 ale and porter agents, 770 wine merchants, and 20 makers of British wine; 853 private academies; 132 district and parochial schools; 62 British and foreign, 17 national, and 50 collegiate institutions for granting degrees; 462 printers; 780 publishers, and 285 newsvenders; which has 1,412 shopkeepers burning the name of "Smith," which annually consumes 100,000 bullocks; 776,000 sheep; 26,000 lambs; 27,000 pigs; 120,000 hogs of fish; 11,000 tons fo butter; 13,000 tons of cheese; 12,000,000 quarters of wheat besides large quantities of ——— imported; 10,000,000 gallons of milk; 65,000 pipes of wine; 2,000,000 gallons of spirits; 2,000,000 barrels of ale and porter, and 3,000,000 tons of coals; which nightly consumes 300,000 cubic feet of gas, obtained from 12 gas companies from 180,000 tons of coals; which constantly employs 380 lamplighters, and 3,400 policemen; which daily discharges from its sewers 130,000 tons of refuse, and consumes 330,000,000 hogsheads of water every year.

Nicaragua as it is.

We have before us a map of Nicaragua, which we have examined with some attention. It shows that while the republic is in the extent of its territory quite formidable, amounting in all to something like 50,000 square miles, Walker has at no time been able to make a lodgement at more than two or three points. To be sure, these are near the lake, and thus are important points, if he could have maintained himself there. Nicaragua is 250 miles in length, by about 150 in breadth in the widest part, and this includes both lakes; but not any portion of the Mosquito Territory. The level of Lake Nicaragua above the Pacific Ocean is 128 feet, and that of Lake Managua above the Pacific is 155 feet. The population is estimated at 268,000, and thus divided:

Whites - - - -	30,000
Negroes - - - -	19,000
Indians - - - -	84,000
Mixed - - - -	135,000

The principal places are thus inhabited:

	Population
Leon - - - -	30,000
Managa - - -	16,000
Managua - - -	13,000
Granada - - -	12,000
Omotepe - - -	11,000
Viaiego - - -	1,400
New Puebla - -	3,300
Teleca - - - -	1,200
Chichigalpa - -	3,000
Posaliga - - -	1,100
Acoyapa - - -	1,100

In this connection, and as possessing interest, we subjoin the population of Central America, which is divided into five states, as follows:

	Miles	Population
Guatemala	43,370	855,000
San Salvador	9,700	397,000
Honduras	30,000	357,000
Nicaragua	50,000	258,000
Costa rica	13,000	126,000

It will be seen that the total square miles of the five states is over 155,000, and the total population over 2,000,000. The climate and scenery are said to be equal to those of any portion of the world.

THE AMERICAN PRESIDENT AND HIS PROGNITORS.—It may not be known to most of the readers that the new President of the contiguous Republic is a Scotsman in everything except the place of his nativity. Therefore followed for many generations farming pursuits in the county of Dumbarton, dividing their attention between the production of "bread-stuffs," and breeding of cattle. For many years (as we are informed by a North British correspondent) Buchanan pere filled the office of elder in the parish of Strathhill, and was noted for a vein of dry and caustic humor, some of his spruch sprechings being still remembered at that portion of the country.

Though far from bearing the character of an ultra democrat, old Buchanan was largely seasoned with liberal opinions, and after the declaration of Independence, he removed to Dollardom, and became a settler in Pennsylvania, in 1787. His celebrated son was born in 1791, and consequently is now in his sixty-sixth year.—From an early period, the youth was distinguished across for his psychologic and physical accomplishments, and "bore away the bell" from his compers both in scientific and athletic feats.

At the age of 23 the future President was called to the bar, and shortly after became a member of the House of Representatives at Washington, where he soon waxed quite famous as an adept of the "Munro doctrine," the drift of which is to claim for Jonathan the entire possession of this continent, "stock, lock, and barrel." How far these modest aspirations are destined to be carried out by the son of the Bonthil elder, time alone can tell.

We may add, on the authority of our correspondent aforesaid, that the new "master of the United States" (as Sam Slick hath it) is a cadet of the family of the illustrious George Buchanan. Curious enough that after the lapse of more than three centuries a descendant of the author of the semi-republican treatise "De Jure Regni" should be so prominently identified with the crown-adjuring form of government.—Toronto Globe.

The New English Minister.

(From the N. Y. Evening Post, Jan. 7th)

It has at last been officially announced to our government that the Right Hon. Charles Pelham Villiers, brother of the Earl of Clarendon, and one of Her Majesty's Privy Councillors, has been appointed British Minister to this country, and may soon be expected at Washington. The announcement only confirms a rumor which it has prevailed for several months, although it was not anticipated that a minister would be sent here during the administration of Mr. Pierce.

The new minister, who has just entered his fifty-sixth year, was educated for the bar, and for many years held the position of one of the Examiners in Chancery, an office of great respectability and responsibility, and affording a moderate emolument. He has been engaged in various other public duties, most of them, however, having reference to his professional training and experience, and for a great number of years has represented the borough of Wolverhampton in the House of Commons.

As a legislator he was distinguished for the pertinacity with which year after he brought forward his motion for the repeal of the Corn Laws. His opposition to this measure long antedating that of Cobden and the Anti-Corn League, was distinguished by great ability and courage, at a time when it required some fortitude, and subjected a member to no little ridicule, to make a motion of this character. He was so liberal—as with this opposition, and occupied himself so exclusively with his annual motion and its fate in the House, that some of his opponents nick-named him "single motion" Villiers. Since the repeal of the Corn Laws, he has been less prominent as a debater, but has occupied a respectable and honorable position as a member of committee, in which capacity his professional experience has been of considerable service to him. He continues to occupy his seat, and is, of course, a supporter of the ministry.

We are not aware that Mr. Villiers has had much, if any, diplomatic training, although he belongs to a diplomatic family—his father, the Honorable & Rev. Charles Villiers being been minister to Portugal, and the services and capacity of his distinguished brother being well known; but his discharge of the delicate and arduous duties pertaining to the office of Judge Advocate General, in the Crimea, builds, justifies us in supposing that he will successfully compete with his successor, Mr. Crampton. The Judge Advocate General is brought into frequent and embarrassing relations with military men—a class peculiarly sensitive and difficult to deal with on many accounts; but Mr. Villiers has uniformly shown so much tact and good sense as to bring out no complaints of the service. The duties require a considerable legal experience, which Mr. Villiers is known to possess in an eminent degree.

From what we are able to learn of the capacity of the new minister, he is not a man of first-rate abilities, but rather a sound and discreet statesman, of irreproachable personal integrity, upright in his intentions and generally clear in his judgment. He possesses much genuine kindness of heart and bonhommie, and is reputed a pleasant companion and readily accessible.

Mr. Villiers is about the middle height, of square frame, with light and brown hair. He is described as a good specimen of the English gentlemen. He is "given to hospitality," and may be expected to receive at Washington in a manner in accordance with the traditions of the British Legation. He is a bachelor, but whether he is destined to meet the fate of other single gentlemen who have come from abroad as ministers to this country, rests, of course, with the "women," as Mr. Benton would say. It is rather a singular circumstance that the majority of the ministers sent by Great Britain to Washington of late years, have been bachelors. The list includes the names of Mr. Fox, Sir Henry Vaughan, and Mr. Crampton, to which must be added that of Mr. Villiers.

Women's Rights in New York.

The blue stocking Amazons are again petitioning the New York Legislature for "women's rights." Mr. Scott, a member of the House, from Saratoga, a very modest gentle man too, presented a petition this morning. The speaker immediately referred the subject to the judiciary committee. That committee is not yet announced, but all eyes are turned towards Judge Foot as the chairman. At the last session the Judge had charge of the same interesting subject, and made a report. This is a copy of it, which we insert, for general information to those interested:—

"The petitioners ask that there may be established by law an equality of rights between the two sexes. The judiciary committee is composed of married and single gentlemen. The bachelors on the committee, with becoming diffidence, have left the subject pretty much to the married gentlemen. They have considered it with the aid of the light they have before them, and the experience many of the latter have given them. Thus aided, they are enabled to state that ladies have the best piece of choicest bit but at table, the warmest place in winter, and the coolest place in summer. They have their choice on which side of the bed they will lay, from first to last. A lady's dress costs three times as much as that of a single beau, and at the present time, with the prevailing fashion, one lady occupies three times as much space in the world as a gentlemen of your committee, being a majority, (the bachelors being silent for the reasons mentioned,) as they stand now. For the further reason that they are still suitors for the favours of the gentler sex) that if there is any inequality or oppression in the case, the gentlemen are the sufferers. They, however, have presented no petition for redress, having doubtless made up their minds to yield to an inevitable fate. Under all the circumstances, the committee have concluded to recommend no measure except that, as they have observed several instances in which husband and wife have both signed the same petition—in such cases they would recommend the parties to apply for a law authorizing them to change dresses so that a husband may wear the petticoats and the wife the breeches, and thus indicate to their neighbours and the public the true relation in which they stand to each other.'

As it is not very probable that the Judge has changed his mind since he last session, there is good reason to suppose that he will refer the Bloomer petitioners to his opinions enunciated then, which stand recorded in the Assembly journals, as above quoted.

FROM NICARAGUA.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 15th.

The steamship Texas, from San Juan, Nicaragua, has arrived below this city.

The purser reports that the Costa Ricans supported by the English fleet, had seized every steamboat on the San Juan River.—The steamer San Charles left Virgin Bay on the 3rd of January, but was captured by the Costa Ricans soon after she got into the river.

Col. Lookbuiga with 250 men, had possession of Punta Arenas, but the Costa Rican force of 1000 men held every other point on the river. It is confirmed that General Henrigsen had beaten the allies at Granada, and joined Walker at Rivas.

Walker's army is represented to have been in good spirits, and never more confident of success, while the allies were fighting among themselves.

Additional by the Texas.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 15.

The Texas left San Juan on the 10 inst.—Gen. Henningsen received reinforcements at Grenada on Dec. 8th, and one the 19th after a siege of 9 days. He succeded in driving the enemy before him, killing 1400 of the enemy with a loss of 200 only of his troops. The odds against him was 60 to 1. All military stores, artillery and public documents at Granada were removed to Riva uninsured, Walker having previously taken possession of the latter city without opposition the enemy retiring on hearing of his approach. The Costa Ricans, however had taken possession of all the boats on the San Juan River thus cutting off all of Walker's communication. A special dispatch of the New York Associated Press states that Costa Ricans were protected by the English in the latter affair. 300 recruits had arrived at Punta Arenas, proceeded up the river. Just as the Texas was leaving a messenger reached San Juan saying that Walker had recapturad Ft San Carlos, which had been taken by the enemy, and was then coming rapidly down the river scattering all before him.

The above dispatch was furnished by the Purser of the Texas and is evidently highly colored.

SECOND DISPATCH.—Returned Nicaraguans give contradictory but generally rain or dismal accounts of affairs at Nicaragua. The capture of the boats on the San Juan river was effected by a man named Spencer formerly mate on board one of the company's boats ruled by 300 Costa Ricans. Besides Spencer all the river boats, together with the fort Castille, the head San Carlos, they also took both of Walker's large lake Steamers, leaving him only one Schooner and a few boats. Several of Walker's officers came passengers on the Texas. Some of them say that Walker's case is hopeless while others are more sanguine. A meeting' of Walker's friends who came on the Texas will be held here in a few days. It is reported here that Spencer is in the pay of Vanderbilt and that the British assisted him with gun boats. 300 of Walker's men at Punta Arenas, under Lockridge attempted to retake the boats laying there but the British commander gave notice that he would not allow it.

SANDWICH CLERGY RESERVE MONEY.

The following letter, written by Mr. Towe of the Windsor Agency of the Bank of Upper Canada, in relation to the money that was supposed to have been deposited with him for the township, should have appeared in last week's issue. Our excuse for its not appearing then is simply this, that if the letter had then been inserted without comment from us, a very erroneous impression might have been made as to the parties in fault. This we did not wish, as the matter is one of the utmost importance to the community, and we were unable to satisfy ourselves in time, and obtain such information, to warrant us in commenting upon the extraordinary proceeding of the Township Treasurer in this matter.

The facts of the case appear to be these. The sum of £1100, the proportion to which the Township of Sandwich became entitled, was received by the Township Treasurer by cheque; the council then passed a resolution directing that it should be deposited in the Bank of Upper Canada as follows:

"That the sum of eleven hundred pounds, the share of the municipal fund (derived from Clergy Reserves) due the township, be placed in the Agency of the Bank of Upper Canada at Windsor, to the credit of said township, which said money shall be subject to the disposal of the council of said township and to be paid out at intervals to the Treasurer of the said Township upon the order of the Reeve in council assembled, and that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to Thomas E. Trew, Esq., agent at Windsor.

The Treasurer of the Township was duly informed of this resolution of the council; but contrary to its intention, and in violation of the direction implied in it, that he should endorse the draft by which the money was remitted to him in his capacity of Treasurer, and have the money on deposit with the agent of the Bank of Upper Canada at Windsor, he withdrew the Funds on his own cheques as appears from Mr. Trew's Books as follows:—

October	25th £230
October	29th £250
November	6th £200
December	15th £420

By an omission on the part of the Township Clerk, Mr. Trew was not furnished with a copy of the resolution above quoted; the original of which will be found entered on the minutes of the proceedings of the council.

I regret to have to make this further statement, that previous to publishing my Letter containing the assertion that the Township of Sandwich had £1100 deposited on the Bank untouched, I called upon the Township Treasurer and asked him if such were not the case and he said it was so.

I am glad that the reference made by me to this Fund belonging to the Township has brought out the fact, that the monies have been withdrawn from Mr. Trew by our Treasurer, and I have only to assure the public and the ratepayers of Sandwich, that so far as I am concerned I shall use the earliest means to have the intentions of the council signified in the resolution above quoted carried into effect, and the Township Treasurer compelled to comply with its terms.

Yours Truly,
THOS. WOODBRIDGE,
Reeve.

CONVENTION OF THE SABBATH SCHOOL TEACHERS.

The Committee appointed to arrange for the holding of this meeting at Kingston, on the 11th of February next, have issued two circulars respecting it: one, addressed to Ministers, Superintendents, and Teachers, and signed by about sixty Ministers and Superintendents, representing the various evangelical denominations, invites every Sabbath school in the Province to send delegates to the Convention, and alludes to some of its anticipated benefits. The other signed by the Secretaries of the committees, contains much information of delegates and explains the arrangements which have been made to reduce travelling and other expenses. Accompanying these there are blank railroad certificates, which, when filled up in the manner designated in one of the circulars, will entitle delegates to a passage over the road at the very low rate of one cent per mile. Only one of the eight working railroads in Canada is not mentioned as having made this liberal concession.

It is expected that the meeting will be one of great interest. The committees, without interfering with the privilege of delegates to choose subjects for their discussion, have suggested several, which are of great importance to the success of Sabbath schools, and the invigoration of the cause; but quite free from sectional or other objectionable bearings. The moral obligation of bringing ancient for children under the influence of religious instruction, the best means of making the Sabbath School attractive to children, and of interesting them in missions are among the topics suggested. In addition to the interest which such subjects will afford, much may be expected to arise from the presence of gentlemen experienced in Sabbath Schools, of whom four have been invited from the United States.

Parties, who have not received circulars, may have them by applying by letter, either to J. Joseph Woodhouse of Toronto, or Mr. James W. Taylor of Montreal.

A Judicial Fracas.

A dispute between a member of the Bar at St. Thomas, and his Honor Judge Hughes has led to an occurrence almost unprecedented in this part of Canada. It appears, from the communication we have received, that Mr. Stanton, a well known member of the bar at St. Thomas, in the course of some remarks to the Court on Tuesday became excessively impertinent, and expressed the opinion that his own judgment in the matter in dispute was much more sound than that of the Court. The Court could not be quite apparent that language of such a nature, and calculate to lessen the respect of the public for the character of the Bench, was highly reprehensible and needed a sharp rebuke. Judge Hughes, it seems, considered it necessary to commit Mr. Stanton to prison for twenty-four hours for contempt of court, which was done accordingly. A considerable amount of public censure has been passed upon Judge Hughes for having gone on with the hearing of a case of no importance when Mr. Stanton was absent, and while he had deprived him of the opportunity of pleading by sending him to jail, the result of the seduction case being against the defendant, whom Mr. Stanton had undertaken to defend.

Some of the inhabitants of St. Thomas were so disgusted at this, and formed a procession to the jail on Friday morning and gave Mr. Stanton a public reception on leaving jail, followed up by a public entertainment at which Dr. Southwick, M. P. P., was present. This not being deemed sufficient, the St. Thomas Band was brought out, when every available sleigh and cutter was pressed into requisition to form a monster procession around the town in honor of the liberated Mr. Stanton. What more will be done we are unable to say, but it is rumoured that petitions will be addressed to the government for the removal of Judge Hughes. In the absence of direct information as to the amount of provocation given by Mr. Stanton it will be difficult for the public to form any just conclusion as to the merits of the case, but it will be at once apparent to all that the dignity of the Bench must be supported and that anything like insolence from a legal practitioner to a Judge while exercising his judicial capacity should not be tolerated for a moment. Judge Hughes has made a very decided stand, and we can scarcely suppose that so serious a step as that of committing a member of the Bar to jail has been taken without sufficient ground.—London Free Press.

All the Employees in any way implicated in the late disastrous collision on the Great Western, have been dismissed from the Company's service.

The St. Louis Democrat has the following in despatch from Kansas, dated the 7th inst:—"The Free State Legislature met at Topeka on the 6th, and after a short session adjourned till next day. Governor Robinson has resigned. Lieutenant Governor Roberts is in the Territory, but failed to attend. Much dissatisfaction prevails. The U. S. Deputy Marshal arrested seven members of the Legislature, under a writ issued by Judge Cato. Over thirty names were attached to the writ. The prisoners will be taken to Tecumseh for trial. The President of the Senate would deliver a message as acting Governor. A determination exists to push work through the Legislature if possible."

The British Government have placed the Retribution, steam frigate of 28 guns at the disposal of the United States officers who went home with the Resolute, to convey them back to New York. They are expected to arrive in the latter city in a few days, and the intention of the citizens of New York is to receive the officers of the Retribution with all possible distinction, in acknowledgment of the honor shown to the American officers of the Resolute in England. Such interchanges of civility, we trust, will have the effect of promoting sincere kindly feelings between the two countries.—Ex.

Arrival of the Washington.

IMPORTANT FROM CHINA.

CANTON ATTACKED BY THE BRITISH FLEET.

THE CITY BOMBARDED.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.

The steamer City of Washington has arrived. She left Liverpool on the 31st of December. Her dates are four days later.

The Africa arrived out at nine, a. m., of the 28th ult.

The news is highly important. Intelligence had quite unexpectedly been received from China, that on the 24th of October, the British fleet, under Admiral Seymour, commenced bombarding the city of Canton. The bombardment had continued two days, and it was reported that the city walls had been breached and the Bogue forts taken.

Commerce was completely paralyzed, and in the British markets a considerable advance on teas—equal to 1d @ 1½d. per pound—had taken place. The cause of the hostilities was the seizure of several Brit ish sailors.

The difficulty between Switzerland and Prussia had assumed no new phase, but the latest rumours favour peace.

The British Government had appointed a new Minister to Washington. The name is as yet secret, but it is not Mr. Villiers.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 30th.—Richardson, Spence & Co. report as follows:—Breadstuff—for wheat, holders were demanding an advance, which eh cked business; white is called 9s. 3d. @ 10s. per bushel; red, 8s 2d @ 9s 2d.

Flour quiet—Western canal 32s @33s—Ohio 35s. @36s. Corn steady at 35s 6d for yellow and mixed, and 35s @ 36s for white.

Provisions generally without extensive change.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.—Consols for money 94 and 94¼.

There has been no change in the tone of the Money market.

Second Despatch.

The collision at Canton is owing to the seizure of 12 British seamen on board a vessel in the river. The British Consul remonstrated and was insulted and threatened with violence. The matter was then placed in the hands of Admiral Seymour, who commenced hostilities.

The forts of Canton were taken October 24th, and several destroyed.

The government continued to reject Seymour's demand for satisfaction.

The bombardment was opened on the 27th on the walls and government palace. The walls were breached and stormed on the 29th, and troops penetrated to the palace but were withdrawn in the evening.

The British lost three killed and 12 wounded.

Attempts at negociation continued fruitless.

The city was bombarded on the 4th November. On the 6th twenty three war junks were destroyed by a British steamer.

Further time was given, but the Chinese remained obstinate.

The Bogue forts were captured. The foreign factories were evacuated, property to a large amount buried, and commerce paralyzed.

Prussia and Switzerland continue their preparations for war, but the recent intelligence is favourable. The demands of Prussia are diminishing, and it is reported that Napoleon has made a conciliatory offer of arrangements to the federal authorities. A Russian journal says that the American Envoy offered to form a $200,000 to Switzerland, in case of need; while Austria strongly protests against war. The Federal Assembly met at Berne. The President made a warlike speech. The Council asked for leave to exert all necessary measures for defence for unlimited credit, and permission to contract a loan of $200,000. The Wartenburg Chambers protest against the passage of Prussian troops across their territories. The first troops passed through Berne, on 22d ult, on their way to Basle. Fifteen thousand more were marching en route to Rhenish and Lisenthal, and the same number to Schleinfunsen.

It is stated that Count Kisseleff, Russian Embassador at Paris, has, formally agreed to the Bessarabian frontier proposed by the Allies.

The London Observer, the Government journal, says :—"Arrangements are nearly completed for a full resumption of diplomatic intercourse with the United States," and that the Minister selected will probably arrive at Washington before the 4th March. No name is given, but the Observer says, when made known, it will be well received on both sides of the Atlantic.

Rumours are afloat in France of another loan.

Eighteen hundred Swiss residents in Paris have demanded passes for home.

Several French ships of-war are fitting out for China.

A MEDICAL REVOLUTION!

THE WORLD UNANIMOUS!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

THE GREAT COUNTER IRRITANT!!

The virus of disease often makes its way to the internal organs through the pores of the skin. This penetrating Ointment, melting under the hand as it is rubbed in, is absorbed through the same channels, and, reaching the seat of inflammation, promptly and invariably subdues it, whether located in the kidneys, the liver, the lungs, or any other important organ. It penetrates the surface to the interior, through the countless tubes that communicate with the skin as summer rain passes into the fevered earth, diffusing its cool and regenerating influences

Skin Diseases & Glandular Swellings!

Every species of exterior irritation is quickly reduced by the anti-inflammatory action of this Ointment. ANGRY ERUPTIONS, such as SALT RHEUM, ERYSIPELAS, TETTER, RINGWORM, SCALD HEAD, NETTLE RASH, SCABIES (or Itch) &c., to die out, to return no more, under its application. Hospital experience in all parts of the world prove its infallibility in diseases of the skin, the muscles, the joints and the glands.

Ulcers, Sores & Tumours!

The effect of this unrivalled external remedy upon Scrofula and other virulent ulcers and sores, is almost miraculous. It first discharges the poison which produces suppuration and proud flesh, and thus the cures which its healing properties afterward complete are safe as well as permanent.

Wounds, Bruises, Burns & scalds.

In cases of the fracture of the bones, injuries caused by steam explosions, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Rheumatism, Stiffness of the Joints, and contraction of the sinews, it is employed and warmly recommended by the faculty. This marvellous remedy has been introduced by its inventor in person into all the leading hospitals of Europe, and no private household should be without it.

Undeniable Testimony!

The Medical Staff of the French and English Armies in the Crimea have officially signed their approval of Holloway's Ointment, as the most reliable dressing for sabre cuts, stabs, and gun-shot wounds. It is also used by the surgeons of the Allied Navies.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases.

Bunions,	Skin Diseases,
Burns,	Swelled Glands,
Chapped Hands,	Sore Legs,
Chilblains,	Sore Breasts,
Fistula,	Sore Heads,
Gout,	Sore Throats,
Lumbago,	Sores of all kinds,
Mercurial Eruptions,	Sprains,
Piles,	Stiff Joints,
Rheumatism,	Tetter,

A COMPLETE SYSTEM OF

HYDROPATHY & HYGIENE,

IN ONE LARGE VOLUME.

EMBRACING Outlines of Anatomy, Illustrated; Physiology of the Human Body; Hygienic Agencies and the Preservation of Health; Dietics and Hydropathic Cookery; Theory and Practice of Water Treatment; Special Pathology and Hydro-Therapeutics, including the Nature, Causes, Symptoms and Treatment of all known diseases; Application to Surgical Diseases; Application of Hydropathy to Midwifery and the Nursery; with three hundred engravings and nearly One Thousand Pages, including a Glossary, Table of Contents, and a complete Index. By R. T. TRALL, M. D.

Published by FOWLER and WELLS, New York.

In the plan of the work, the wants and necessities of the People have been steadily in view. While almost every topic of interest in the departments of Anatomy, Physiology, Pathology, Hygiene, Therapeutics is breifly presented, those of practical utility are always put prominently forward. The prevailing errors, conceits, and whims of the day and age are exposed and refuted; the theories and hypothesis upon which the popular drug practice is predicated are controverted, and the why and wherefore of their fallacy clearly demonstrated. The following is a brief analysis of its contents:

History of Medicine; History of Bathing; History of Medicated Baths.

Anatomy illustrated by One Hundred and Twenty appropriate engravings.

Physiology, illustrated, comprising the Rationale of Muscular Action; the Nervous influence; Philosophy of Mind? Mesmeric Phenomena; the Special Senses; Functions of Digestion. Circulation, Respiration, Absorption, Nutrition, Secretion, Excretion' Calorification, Temperaments, the Races of Men, and Theory of Population.

Hygiene embracing all the relations of Air Light, Drink, Food, Temperature, Exercise' Sleep, Clothing, Bathing, and the Passions, to the growth and developement of Body and Mind, the Preservation of Health and the attainment of Longevity

Dietetics, comprising the Bible, Anatomical, Physiological, Chemical and Experimental Evidence concerning the natural Dietetic Character of Man.

Hydropathic Cookery, with Special Directions for the Preparation of Food

Dietaries, containing the Therapeutic Distinctions of Diet for Invalids.

Philosophy of Water-Cure, with illustrated explanations of all the water-cure appliances, a Philosophical Exposition of the modus operandi of water-treatment, and the true rationale of drug-treatment.

The Nature Symptoms and Treatment of all known Diseases are examined, the ill success of drug practice exposed, and the proper Medication recommended and specified.

The Treatment of surgical Diseases illustrated and the directions for the minor operations given.

The Management of Lying-in-Women, and the treatment of Children, &c.

The work is intended to be plain, intelligible and sufficient guide for domestic practice, or home treatment, in all ordinary diseases, embracing the whole range of subjects connected with the philosophy of life, the preservation of health, and the treatment of diseases.

This great work may be had in one large volume, bound in library style. Price prepaid by mail to any Post Office in United States or Canada, only THREE DOLLARS.

Prevention Better than Cure.

One of the best systems of medical practice ever known, and which will probably stand at the head of the list for coming time, is NURSING. Good care will do more than all the medicine in the world without it. Medicine is sometimes very good, but the most skilful physicians have found they could do but little with serious cases without that intelligent and careful watching at all required for the removal or prevention of irritating causes, and known as good nursing.

The writer once owned a horse suffering from an excessive cough. Numerous remedies were prescribed by kind neighbours enough, doubtless to have killed him at once. It was concluded to discard all, to give the best attention to his wants, and avoid everything which causes or prolongs a cold. This was during the changeable weather of autumn, and he was changed whenever a cool air was apprehended; he was well and very moderately, always avoiding perspiration, and he was fed on succulent food which was supposed to favor expectoration, and especially young clover. In a few weeks nature had performed a perfect cure; and if any one of the nostrums had accidentally been employed, and had not proved very prejudicious it would unquestionably have received high praise for its efficacy. It is of the most importance to discriminate between a recovery by virtue of a medicine, and a spite of it.

To keep animals in health, is more important than to cure sick ones, and for this purpose a few leading rules should be always observed, and which cannot be out of place here.

1.—Always feed regularly, as to time and quality. Many animals are made sick by starving at one time, and stuffing at another. Especially, never overfeed.

2.—The same rule must be observed with watering—and let the water be pure.

3.—Never overwork an animal—regular and moderate exercise will enable a well animal to do more the year through, by all odds, than any hurried driving at one time and resting and overfeeding at another; and be infinitely less liable to disease.

4.—Allow a regular supply of salt—it is useful, but an observance of the preceding rules without salt, will be less unexpectedly better than their infraction with it.

5.—Never feed musty or bad food. It musty fodder must be used, pass it through a rapid cutter, and moisten, salt and mess it.

6.—Avoid unwholesome or poisonous plants in pastures and in hay.

7.—Guard all animals against cold rain and snow falling on them, and against lying on cold wet ground.

8.—All changes of food must be gradual. If from hay to grass, let the grazing be but an hour the first day, two hours the next, three the next, &c. The same caution must be carefully observed in beginning to feed with roots, grain, &c.

9.—Be careful that animals always have enough of exercise—and plenty of pure, fresh air. Stables must be well ventilated —animals often become sick from breathing foul air.

10.—Lastly, and by no means least, let cleanliness be observed. All animals, even pigs, kept clean and curried, are found to maintain their flesh better, or fatten faster, than when dirty and neglected—and cleanliness is more important to health than for flesh.

Knowledge of Entomology

How much the farmer, and the gardener, need this knowledge—by we mean the knowledge of the nature, habits, and haunts of the insects that infest their crops and fruits. These are some of the reasons why they need this knowledge. Some knowledge will enable him to prevent their ravages, by destroying the eggs. It will enable him to remedy their ravages by destroying them were they exist. It will enable him to economize time and strength, by doing the needful work exactly at the right time. It will enable him to decide whether he should make any effort at all; for in certain cases the evil is incurable. It will give him patience and courage, for he will, in many cases, learn that the pests are only ten-peral, and that a few years will witness their departure. It will suggest to him that new remedies may be tried, based on the habits in which it will instruct him. It will show him how great results may follow a single observation—how a whole district may be visited with an insect pest, or escape that visitation by a single negligence, or a single precaution. It will enable him to aid others who need the information he has gathered, but whose opportunities have not permitted them to gain it for themselves.—Ohio Farmer.

EVIDENCES OF GOOD FARMING.—The requisites and evidence of good farming have thus been enumerated by good authority: "A good soil well tilled, and kept free from various weeds; lots well fenced, and suited in number to the size of the farm; substantial and convenient barns and stable of sufficient dimension to contain the produce of the farm, and to comfortably house the cattle kept on it; a judiciously arranged dwelling, in a neat condition, with a filtering cistern; convenient buildings to facilitate the economical management of the farm—such as a wood house, a waggon and tool house, a workshop, granary and corn house, a convenient piggery, an ice-house, salt and seed house—all secured from decay by being well raised from the ground and neatly painted and whitewashed; convenient yards attached to the barns and stables, so arranged as to prevent waste of the liquid manure, well sheltered from the blast of the winter, and provided with water for the use of cattle. Lot yards laid with grass and flower-beds, and shaded by ornamental trees, findicating the dwelling of taste, health and comfort; a kitchen garden highly cultivated, and containing the various species of vegetables raised in our climate, with strawberry and asparagus beds; a fruit garden or orchard, where choice apples, cherries, plums, raspberries, gooseberries, blackberries, currants, &c., are found."

REMEDY FOR SWEENEY.—Mr. J. H Shepherd, of Mile Centre, New York, says that he has found the following remedy for sweeny very effectual, and confidently recommends its trial by others:—"Take equal parts balsam of sulphur and spirits of turpentine. Mix, apply, and hold a hot iron near enough to heat but not to scorch. Apply every other day until a cure is effected—usually from ten days to two weeks. The animal can be worked right along during the treatment."

BUREAU OF AGRICULTURE & STATISTICS.
TORONTO, 25th July, 1856.

To Emigrlants & Others Seeking LAND FOR SETTLEMENT.

THE Provincial Government have recently opened out three great lines of road now in course of completion, and have surveyed and laid out for settlement the Lands through, and in the vicinity of, which those Roads pass.

The Roads, as advertised by the Agents of the Government, appointed to the respective localities are as follow:—

From OTTAWA AND OPEONGO ROAD, THE ADDINGTON ROAD, and THE HASTINGS ROAD.

The Ottawa and Opeongo Road

Commences at a point on the Ottawa River known as "Bytown Flats," a little above the mouth of the Bonchere River, and runs in a Westerly direction, passing through the northerly part of the County of Renfrew.

It is intersected by the Addington road with a projected line of road known as "Bell's Line," (leading to the Lake Muskako, and Lake Huron, by a branch which will diverge from the Opeongo Road in the Township of Brudnell, at a distance of about 58 miles from the River Ottawa, forming with "Bell's Line," a great leading road, or base line from the Ottawa to Lake Muskoka, 171 miles in length, passing through the heart of the Ottawa and Huron Territory, and opening up for settlement a vast extent of rich and valuable Land.

This road, and the country through which it passes, now open for settlement, is easily accessible, and the Agent for the granting of Lands in the Township of Wylie, Mr. P. P. French, who resides at Mount St. Patrick, near Renfrew, on the Opeongo Road, a few miles from the Lands which are to be granted.—To reach the section of Country under Mr. French's charge, the Settler must go from MONTREAL up to the Ottawa River to a place called Bonchere Point, and thence by road some twenty-four or thirty miles westward to the Township of Grattan, in which Mount St. Patrick is situated.

The Addington Road

Commencing in the Township of Anglesea, in the northern part of the County of Addington, near the Village of Flint's Mills, Kaladar, and runs through the north to the River Nadawaska, a distance of 35 miles, and is to be continued thence for the distance of 25 miles till it intersects to Ottawa and Opeongo Road.

The Agent for the granting of the Land in this district is Mr. E. Perry, who, for that purpose, is now resident at FLINT'S MILLS. The outlines of five townships of very superior land are already surveyed and ready for settlement within the limits of the Agency, lying north of Lake Masanoka, and between it and the River Nadawaska. The Townships are called respectively Abinger, Denbigh Ashley, Effingham, Angleses, and Barrie.

The direct route to this section is by way of Kingston, Canada West, thence North to the Township of Kaladar, and the Village of FLINT'S MILLS, where Mr. Perry resides.

Hastings Road!

Almost parallel to the Addington Road, and at a distance West from it of about 36 miles is the HASTINGS ROAD. This road begins at the most northerly part of the Township of Hastings, and running a distance of 74 miles, almost due north, also intersects the OTTAWA and OPEONGO ROAD and its extensions.

The Government Agent is Mr. M. P. Hayes, who resides at the Village of Hastings, largely called Madoc, about 23 miles north of the Town of Belleville. The Road between these places is in good order. The land to be granted by the Crown under this Agency extends from 15 to 17 miles north of the Village of Hastings. The Road through this large extent of land is passable for 40 miles, and money is now being expended to extend it 30 miles further, so that Settlers can get in and cut without difficulty, and find a good market for surplus produce, as well as convenient facilities for bringing in whatever supplies they may require—abundance of which can be had at the Village of Hastings, where the Government agent resides.

The direct way to reach this Station, which is easily accessible, is by Kingston Canada West, thence by Steamboat up to the Bay of Quinte to Belleville 56 miles, and thence by a good Road to Hastings, 28 miles.

In order to facilitate the Settlement of the Country, and provide for keeping in repair the Roads thus opened, the Government authorised Free Grants of Land along these Roads, not exceeding in each case ONE HUNDRED ACRES, upon application to the Local Agents, and upon the following

CONDITIONS

That the Settler be eighteen years of age.

That he take possession of the Land allotted him within one month, and put in a state of cultivation at least twelve acres of the land in the course of four years—build a house (at least 20 by 18 feet) and reside on the lot until the conditions of settlement are duly performed; after which accomplishment only shall the settler have the right of obtaining a title to the property. Families comprising several members may be located preferring to reside on a single lot, will be exempted from the obligation of building and of residence, (except upon the lot on which the land may be given) that the gradual clearing of the lands be made on each lot. The non-accomplishment of these conditions will cause the immediate loss of the assigned lot of land, which will be sold or given to another.

The road having been opened by the Government, the settlers are required to open it in front.

The Local Agents, whose names and places of abode have already been given, will furnish every information to the intending Settler.

The LOG HOUSE required by the Government to be built, is of such description as can be put up in four days by five men, "The Log House," generally help to build the Log Cabin for newly arrived Settlers, without charge, and when this is done the cost of the erection is small; the roof can be covered with bark, and the spaces between the logs plastered with clay, and white-washed. I then becomes a neat dwelling and warm as a stone house.

Roads have thus opened up and offered for settlement, are, in sections of Canada West, capable both as to Soil and Climate, of producing abundant crops of winter wheat, of excellent quality and full weight, also crops of every other description of farm produce, grown in the best and longest cultivated districts of that portion of the Province, and fully as good.

There are, of course, in such a large extent of country as that referred to, great varieties in the character and quality of land —some lots being much superior to others; but there is an abundance of the very best land for farming purposes. The Lands in the neighbourhood of these three roads will be found to be very similar in quality and character, and covered with every variety of Timber—some with hard wood, and some with heavy pine.

Water for domestic use is every where abundant; and there are, throughout, numerous streams and falls of water, capable of being used for Manufacturing purposes.

The heavy timbered land is almost always the best, and of it, the sugar-bush of three acres, well taken care and covered from wet—will produce a barrel of Potash, worth from £6 to £7 currency. The capital required to manufacture Potash is very small, and the process very simple and easily understood.

The expense of clearing and enclosing heavily Timbered Lands, valuing the labor of the settler at the highest rate, is about FOUR POUNDS Currency per Acre, which the first wheat crop, if an average one, will nearly repay. The best timber for fencing is to be had in abundance.

A settler on these lands, possessing a capital from £25 to £50, according to the number of his family, will soon make himself comfortable, and obtain a rapid return for his investment. The single man, if he be also willing to work, needs little capital, besides his own arm and axe—he can devote a portion of the year to clearing his land, and in the summer season find employment for his oxen, at other seasons, obtain a liberal remuneration for his labor.

The climate throughout these Districts is good. The frosts are not fall so deep as to obstruct communication; and it affords material for good roads during the winter, enabling the farmer to haul in his Firewood for the ensuing summer, and from the towns to take his produce to market, and to lay in his supplies for the future—and this covering to the earth, not only facilitates communication with the interior settled parts of the District, but is highly beneficial and fertilizing to the soil.

In all the localities above named, wherever Settlers have made a beginning, there is a good market for it near to them—farm produce of all kinds being in great demand by the Lumber or Timber Merchants, who are carrying on extensive operations throughout these parts of the country.

According to the ration of progress which Canada West has made during the last ten years, the value of property in as many more doubles within that period—irrespective of any improvements which may have been made by the Settlers.

In many localities the value of Land, once opened for settlement, has increased FIVE FOLD in the period named, but the average value of such land, according to the statistics of Canada West, Doubles every ten years in the more lapse of time, exclusive of any expenditure thereon—and it is not too much to expect that this ratio will not diminish for generations to come.

The Sections of Country opened by these roads lie in and to the Southern part of the Great Ottawa Region, stretching from and beyond the Southern shores of Lake Huron, to Lake Nipissing, and to the Ottawa River —an immense extent of country whose resources are now seeking and will rapidly obtain development.

The Ottawa Country

Lying south of Lake Nipissing and of the great River Ottawa, and embracing a large portion of the land offered for settlement, is capable of sustaining a population of eight millions of people, and it is now attracting general attention, as the more western portions of Canada are being rapidly filled up.

The Parliament of Canada in its last Session incorporated a Company for the construction of a Railway to pass through this Ottawa country from the Shores of Lake Huron to the City of the Ottawa, and thence Eastward.

A survey of the River Ottawa and the neighbouring Country has been undertaken and will be completed in the present year; its principal object being to ascertain by what means the River Ottawa can be rendered navigable and connected with Lake Huron so as to enable vessels to pass by that route from the most Western Waters into the River St. Lawrence and the Ocean. These projected works are alluded to in order to show that the attention of the Government, Parliament and People of Canada has been fixed upon this important portion of the Province.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,
AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and akilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rod of tillable earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded: together with its really superior execution, both in the matter of typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

"The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of calendered paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with July, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial department: H. P. KNIGHT, JAMES SOWDEN and D. W. RAY.

TERMS: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

N.B.—Newspapers inserting the above prospectus, and drawing attention editorially to the same, will be forwarded the ILLUSTRATED HORTICULTURIST for one year, a copy containing the advertisement should be sent in all cases to ensure attention.

Address,
C. REAGLES, Publisher,
Illustrated Horticulturist

NEW VOLUME OF THE AGRICULTURIST

SUBSCRIPTION REDUCED FROM 25 TO 50 PER CENT.

The Canadian Agriculturist

Has now reached the eighth volume, having been established by its present proprietor in 1848, and is too well known to the leading farmers of the British Provinces, to need any eulogium from us. The undersigned have made arrangements with the proprietor to publish the next, and probably succeeding volumes, which will enable us to make important improvements in the work, while at the same time its price will be considerably reduced.

THE AGRICULTURIST

Is published Monthly, on good Paper, each number containing 32 pages, making at the end of the year a handsome volume of 384 pages.

EVERY NUMBER WILL BE

Illustrated with Engravings

Such as Farm Implements, Portraits of Animals, designs of Farm Buildings, New Inventions, &c., &c., interesting to the Farmer, and also every variety of the most Distinguished Agriculturists.

The Work will be conducted as usual by WILLIAM GOGGAL, Esq., who has resumed the practice of agriculture near this city. The active promoter of the various improvements made in our Agricultural Legislation since 1847, and having also been connected with this Journal from its commencement, he requires no recommendation from us.

PROFESSOR BUCKLAND, of the Toronto University, whose labors and writings in behalf of Canadian Agriculture are known and appreciated throughout the Province, will contribute to its columns as usual.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS

Of known ability, have also been engaged. Efforts will be made to extend the correspondence on subjects of a practical kind.

THE AGRICULTURIST IS NOT LIABLE TO POSTAGE.

Rosa and Her Truant Brother.

BY MRS. R. T. ELDREDGE.

Sailling o'or the deep blue waters,
Mother, watch thy darling boy;
By his side thy fairy daughter
Clings to him with childlike joy;
Tremble not, they're safely gliding,
They will need a mothers chiding.
See, they're landing, anxious mother,
Rosa and her truant brother.

See thy brave boy, proudly standing
In his little fragile bark;
See him moor her on the landing,—
Clouds are gathering thick and dark;
Joy! they're safe upon the land—
See them coming hand in hand;
Soon they'll greet thee, anxious mother,
Rosa and her truant brother.

See thy fairy daughter, gliding
By the side of thy brave boy;
O, how soon a mother's chiding
Will have power to mar their joy.
See them, full of life and beauty,
Swerve not from a mother's duty;
Chide them gently, anxious mother,
Rosa and her truant brother.

Chide them, else they may forget thee,
As their barks glide o'er life's ocean.
Chide them, and they will protect them,
Mid rough storms and wild commotion.
Tell them that they must obey thee;
Do thy duty now, I pray thee;
They'll be grateful, anxious mother,
Rosa and her truant brother.

Aunt Sally's Muff.

BY CHARLES M. KENDALL.

MISS SALLY STRONG was a peculiar woman. For sixty years she had retained her name, which exactly suited her hardy nature; and the man having the assurance to ask for exchange it for his own, would have been a rare companion for Cummings in his tiger hunt in the jungles of Africa.—At least, no one in the village of B—— would dare to question his manhood.

She was one of those who seemed to have been born an old maid in perspective. Before she arrived at her teens, she used to stone the boys with a malignant delight; and ere she was out of them, her contempt for the opposite sex was so strikingly manifest, that all prudent young men, if accidentally walking upon the same sidewalk, to avoid a meeting, would very quietly cross to the other side and allow her the whole of it.

Yet she was a privileged person, and people would smile at an ill-natured remark from her as though it were a compliment. Even the young minister of the parish treated her with marked respect, although he was certain to have his last sermon wofully criticised, in answer to his kind inquiry regarding her health. The secret of all this might have been written in three words—she was rich; and even the clergyman was worldly minded to desire to be on good terms with one who was the largest contributor to his support.

Aunt Sally, as the villagers universally called her, had received the bulk of her property from a deceased aunt, which her shrewd business qualities had enabled her to invest so advantageously, that she increased in wealth as she did in years, and like many other rich people well advanced in life, had scores of affectionate young relatives who each hoped to obtain a large slice of the cake of real estate, which would be cut up in the event of her decease. Her cold gray eyes were too shrewd not to see through their eager attentions to the very selfishness of their source.

One nephew, however, did not belong to this class of schemers. On the contrary, the old lady was very often the victim of his jokes, and he would dispute with her just for the fun of having a hot argument. Yet for any real service, she would oftener apply to him than any one else. She had even loaned him a sum sufficient to stock a fine store, but still the Frederick so often annoyed and vexed her, that public opinion—extending no further, of course, than the limits of this village—was about equally divided as to whether he would be the favorite heir, or be cut off with a shilling.

One evening, upon the meeting of the parish tea-drinking at the house of the clergyman, this nephew perpetrated a joke upon his aunt, the result of which he never forgot. She, unlike most maiden ladies, considered these gatherings fashionable nuisance, but usually was present in order to indulge in her sarcastic remarks. Her nephew was there ostensibly to wait upon his aunt, but the fairy Lucy, daughter of the worthy practitioner Dr. Blood, particularly allured him with her charms,

"Did it ever occur to you, girls," said the old lady, "what you are here for?"

"To be sure, aunt," answered one of her nieces: "simply to make clothing for the poor heathen."

"Where may these objects of your pity reside?"

"O, in Siam, Burmah and other like places."

"Indeed! Well, heavy woolen shirts are very serviceable garments, upon my word, for people living under a tropical sun. They will doubtless be very grateful for clothing so suited to their climate."

"Well done, aunt!" exclaimed Frederick. "A good shot and no mistake. But these circles are grand affairs, after all."

"Grand affairs, indeed, for young men to say soft things, and silly girls to listen to them! Grand affairs to dispense the accumulated gossip of a month! Grand affairs for scandal mowing, and for everything but the purpose they profess!"

And Aunt Sally looked about her with a triumphant glance, as though her charges were unanswerable.

In fact, too many felt the justice of her rebuke to measure words with her. Even Frederick agreed so much with her in the abstract, that he was content to remain silent. Having achieved such a moral victory, the lady continued in unwonted good humor during the rest of the evening.

When the party broke up, as Frederick was taking leave of his young friends, with his aunt upon one arm and the fair Lucy upon the other, the old lady suddenly remembered that she had left her muff

"O, never mind, aunt," said the young man. "I will get it and send it up to you in the morning"

"But I do mind, Fred Strong, for it is not my way to leave things about in this manner. But where can it be? I certainly left it with my bonnet and cloak."

"Where can it be?" echoed all her affectionate nieces, diving into sundry places in their eagerness to assist in the search.

"Somebody must have taken it!" cried one.

"That is impossible," answered another, "for aunt's muff is unlike all others."

"That is as true," said Fred, laughing, "as a barrel is unlike a two-gallon." And he gave Lucy a mischievous glance, which she interpreted to mean that he knew the whereabouts of the missing article better than any one else.

"It certainly is not with any of the ladies' things," said one of her young relations.

"O, plague upon you all!" was the kind reply. "I must hunt it up my myself, I suppose."

"Deacon Gray, you haven't taken aunt's muff, by mistake—have you?" asked Fred, maliciously.

That functionary drew himself up stiffly, as though the imputation was was unworthy of an answer, and stepped aside.

"Well, I never!" exclaimed one of the young ladies.

"Who could have done it?" added another.

"Be silent—will you?" cried the irritable maiden; "or tell me where I can find it."

"Why, it is in Deacon Gray's hat, and pressed in so tightly that we cannot remove it."

"O, fie upon you, aunt! Such a hint, and the deacon only a recent widower!" exclaimed the laughing nephew.

Aunt Sally seized her muff, but the hat adhered most affectionately to it. By an angry wrench it was liberated, and the unoffending hat flew across the entry, projected by the vigorous foot of the incensed maiden. When it arrived at the terminus of its short journey, it had assumed a most questionable shape, and its condition might certainly have been termed "shocking bad."

"I will pay you for this, young man."

"Don't trouble yourself, dear aunt. So far as I am concerned, you are entirely welcome."

"You will perhaps tell me that you have had no hand in this matter?"

"No, I will tell no falsehood about it; but I intended it as a joke upon our staff deacon, as much or more than upon yourself."

"At best, it is but an ill trick you have played upon me, and now mark my words: You shall have reason to remember this muff to the latest day of your existence."

"As you please, aunt, since you take it so seriously; but I didn't think a silly joke would have thus offended you."

Time passed on, and young Strong prospered famously in his business. He had amassed sufficient means to repay his aunt the sum she had loaned him, but she declined receiving it, alleging that she preferred to have it remain on interest. In the meantime, he had also persuaded the gentle Lucy to share his fortunes. As for Aunt Sally, a singular mania seemed to possess her. In the matters of real estate, stocks, etc. she had become a perfect alchemist, turning all to gold.

The neighbors looked on and wondered, but none ventured to remonstrate with her. She was often seen to visit the office of Squire A——, and it was rumored that she was making the final arrangements for the bestowal of her property after her decease. The affair of the muff was not forgotten, and it was current with the good villagers that Fred would have to pay dearly for that joke.

One morning the village was all action.—During the night, the spirit of the redoubtable lady had quietly taken its flight. She was found dead in her arm-chair, and had died, as she had lived, alone. She had alarmed no one during the night, nor had she suffered previous illness. Curiosity, of course was intense on the subject of her will, and it was generally known as decency would allow. All her connections were present, and their eager, hopeful, anxious countenances would have furnished a rare subject for the pencil of an artist. The reading of the will proceeded until it was finished, except a single codicil. Each of her relatives, excepting her nephew, had been remembered—some to a greater extent than others, but none considerably.

At all events, not one third of her fortune had been dispensed, and as the codicil only remained, all eyes were turned to Frederick Strong as the lucky one, after all. But what was their surprise when they found it only made him the recipient of her old sable muff and contents. The word "contents" again excited their curiosity, and to satisfy them, the article was produced and found only to contain a simple paper sewed on to the lining. When detached and opened, in the bold handwriting of Aunt Sally was only found these words:

"DEAR NEPHEW:—You will doubtless appreciate this, the last joke I shall ever be guilty of, as I appreciated yours on a certain time you will remember. God bless you and yours. Farewell."

Frederick declared he was satisfied. The old lady had fairly retorted upon him, and he certainly deserved nothing better at her hands."

But what had become of Aunt Sally's money? That was the mystery, and it became more than a "nine days' wonder" to the worthy villagers who discussed it on every occasion. She was known to have large sums of money at various banks, but all this the anxious relatives ascertained was drawn out a few days before her death.—Squire A—— was consulted, who had drafted the will, but he stoutly maintained that the will covered the whole of her property, and would have nothing further to do with it.

One evening, about six months after the old lady's death, while Frederick was conversing with his wife, the subject of the muff was introduced.

"That was a costly joke of yours, dear Fred," said his wife, gayly.

"But I got the muff, at all events, Lucy, and what is better, no one has come forward to claim the three thousand dollars which she loaned me. I feel confident that she intended to present it to me, and therefore destroyed my note."

"Let us have a look at the old relic, Fred: if the moths have not eaten it wholly up.—I will return with it in a moment."

The muff was produced, and as Lucy predicted, the lining was wofully moth-eaten. "My dear wife, you must look to this, for I prize it dearly, on good Aunt Sally's account. I think you had better rip out the lining and renovate the whole with camphor.

Lucy took her scissors and commenced at once upon the task.

"What can the old lady have stuffed it with, I wonder? Why, Fred, instead of cotton, she has wadded it with dirty brown paper."

"Dirty brown paper, indeed!" exclaimed her husband, springing from his chair and catching her by the wrist, as she was about to throw a bunch of it into the grate. "Why, it is a bank notes—or I am dreaming."

She mystery of the word "contents" was now explained. Note after note was drawn out, until thirty thousand dollars lay upon the table before them. A letter also was found from the aunt, which stated that she always intended him for her heir. His own note also came to light from which his name had been torn off. This new revelationof course create an immense sensation among the villagers, but Frederick and his kept on the even tenor of their way—respected by all not for their wealth simply, but for themselves. One evening, during each year, they open their splendid mansion to all. It is a famous affair for the villagers, and is known as the anniversary of "AUNT SALLY'S MUFF."

Cultivation of the Chinese Sugar Cane in Illinois.

Just now, when the extraordinary high price of Sugar is attracting the attention of the mass of the people of this country, the following communication which we find in the Graysville (Ill.) Herald of a late date, from an intelligent farmer, will command general attention. If this species of Sugar Cane can be successfully cultivated in the northern States, then may it be safely said that very soon will the United States raise enough of Sugar within their borders, not only to supply all our domestic wants, but can export large quantities.

Being requested by many to publish a statement, through the columns of your paper, of my experience with, and the value of the Chinese Sugar Cane, I therefore send you the following statement, which you will please insert:

On the 25th of May I planted about half an acre of ground, one year old. A portion of the soil was low and wet: in the fact I covered the seed with mud, the other part was high and sandy; the consequence was when the dry season set in the wet looked hard, but the high burnt up for want of rain. I plowed it when about ten inches high, and that was all the working it got, with the exception of a slight hoeing previous to plowing; my object was to ascertain the amount of saccharine matter contained in the stalks, and supposed enough would grow to make the experiment. Many of the stocks grew from sixteen to twenty feet high, (in the low ground twelve feet.)—Having made a mill on which to grind it, I commenced on the 24th of September. The cane then received two or three frosts, which slightly injured the taste of the juice. I am convinced that the amount of stalks I used can be grown on less than a quarter of an acre. The amount of water obtained from the piece was 270 gallons from which I made forty five gallons, which in flavor and beautiful bright red color, is far superior to any molasses obtained from the South. I did not try to grain any of it, as it will not grain after being frosted; but I am convinced there will be no difficulty in graining it if tried previous to frost. If it is planted by the middle of May it will ripen by the end of August, and remain in good condition until frost, and if cut up and put in sheds (in apprehension of frost) it will keep well for a month or more.

I will give a statement of what may be made to acre, judging from the amount of water obtained from each stalk. One of my neighbors, Mr. A. Degan, obtained from seven choice stalks one gallon of water, and in another trial made by Mr. McCleary, Sr., and myself, we pressed from ten stalks one gallon and a quart. The number of stalks in a hill should be from four to six. I only estimate one quart of water to the hill, allowing sixteen hills to square rod, which will make 2,560 hills to the acre, and this, at one quart to hill, will make 640 gallons of water, which will make 110 gallons of molasses. Valued at 75c. to gallon, it would amount to $82 50 per acre, and I do not hesitate in saying that the amounts may be doubled. I would urge upon the famers of the Western country to try it. You will not only save, but make money by the operation. I am well convinced that in 1860 the Southern planter will have no sale for his sugar in the State of Illinois. From present indications there will be 100 acres raised in Wabash county next year, which will save the county $10,000. The time to commence working the cane is when the seeds have changed from green to a dark red hue, although it will remain good until fairly matured.

Should any person wish to make the experiment I have some seed to spare—one quart will plant an acre.

A Scientific Question Settled.

A distinguished member of the 'Scientific Congress,' who has taken an active part in discussing the various experiments for rendering the rotation of the earth on its axis visible to the naked eye, was lately quite astonished by the sudden irruption into his library of his negro servant Sam, who exclaimed with a triumphant air,

'Ho massa! You's right. De Earf does rotate on it's axle tree—exactly. I'se seen it —jus' as plain as a cartwheel,

"Indeed," said the astronomer, dipping a pen in his inkstand, preparatory to making an accurate record of his servant's experience; 'now, Sam, my boy, how was it? Be very precise in your statements.'

'Yes massa. You see I put double de usual quantity ob brandy in de water.—'

'What do you mean, you rascal?' exclaimed the philosopher, enraged at the idea of being imposed upon, and having of his favorite theory held up to ridicule'

'Don't be angry, massa, said Sam; 'it am a fac. I put double de usual quantity ob brandy in de water, and in five minutes I drank it all. I saw de Earf rotate on its axle-tree wid a certainly dat was significant to bof of my naked eyes."

The savan threw down his pen, quite satisfied with the result: for, although he had gained no information worth speaking of, he had added an anecdote worth telling anywhere.

A BIG BOY.—A Pennsylvania farmer lately had his son arrested for running away from home. The old gentleman said the youth was only nineteen years of age, and consequently not to be trusted with the guidanceof himself. The "infant," when brought into court, proved to be a likely child, six feet two inches high, and weighing 200 pounds. He was surrendered to his father, and the old yeoman went home with his "baby," rejoicing.

ANOTHER STICK.—People can't be too careful how they speak of their neighbors—wife, and he." I said a stick of it. People freeze to death in her parlor. There's never more than two sticks of wood on." A few days afterwards, however, he made a call, and when the footman announced his name, Barkins was overwhelmed by hearing the lady of the house say, in a loud clear voice, "Put another stick of wood on the fire, John."

AT Caledonia, on the 15th, a dispute arose between a Mr. Hannah and a Mr. Richard Ferguson. Both parties were partially intoxicated and had been advised to leave the tavern by different doors, and go home. This they did; but immediately afterward Hannah returned with a bowie knife dripping with blood, which he said was drawn by Ferguson to stab his antagonist. Hannah wrenched the weapon from Ferguson and stabbed him, who instantly expired. The verdict of the inquest was that Ferguson died from a blow inflicted by Hannah, but left the criminality an open question.

Hannah is in custody, having surrendered himself.—Spirit of the Times.

FREEZING TO DEATH.—That to be frozen to death must be frightful torture, many would consider certain, from their own experience of the effects of cold. But here we fall into the usual error of supposing that the suffering will increase with the energy of the agent, which could only be the case if sensibility remained the same. Intense cold brings speedy sleep, which fascinates the senses, and fairly beguiles men out of their lives. The most curious example of the seductive powers of cold, is to be found in adventures of the botanical party, who, in Cook's first voyage, were caught in a snow storm on Terra del Fuego. Dr. Solander, by birth a Swede, and well acquainted with the destructive deceits of a rigorous climate, admonished the company, in defiance of lassitude, to keep moving on. "Whoever," said he, "sits down will sleep—and whoever sleeps will perish." The doctor spoke as a sage, but he felt as a man. In spite of the remonstrances of those whom he had instructed and alarmed, he was the first to lie down and die. The same warning was repeated a thousand times in the retreat from Moscow. Alison, the historian, to try the experiment, sat down in his garden at night, when the thermometer had fallen four degress below zero, and so quickly did the drowsiness come stealing on, that he wondered how a soul of Napoleon's unhappy band had been enabled to resist the treacherous influence.—London Quarterly.

TRAVELLING IN CENTRAL ASIA.—Alexander von Humboldt has just received a letter from Robert Schlagintweit, dated from Leh, in Ladak, 25 September last. announcing that he and his brother had succeeded in crossing the chain of the Kueniun mountains, and reached Elshi, the capital of Khotan, where no European had set his foot since the time of the Benedictine monk, Goes, in 1604. (Leh, the town from whence the letter is dated, is situated in 24 deg, 10 min. north latitude in little Thibet, close to the sources of the Indus, in the angle formed by the spur of the Himalaya and the Kemenlun, to the northward of which lies Khotan, in the so called High Tartary.)

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate beneficially not only upon the diseased organs, but upon the constitution of the invalid. To quicken the torpic stomach, enable the disordered liver to secrete a due portion of healthy bile, and remove obstructions from the intestines, are important objects; but Holloway's Pills do more than this. They recruit the stamina of the patient, and infuse tone and vigor into the whole vital machinery. The animal spirits, sympathising with the physical powers, become light and buoyant, and that greatest of earthly blessings "a sound mind in a sound body" is the result. Thousands of persons who have been cured of chronic dyspepsia, and its attendant depression, by this powerful alternative and tonic, know this to be literally true.

MAKING ENVELOPES.—A ream of paper, or about 500 sheets, is placed under a knife of a shape corresponding with an envelope when entirely opened, which is forced down by a powerful screw press, worked by a hand lever. The pieces cut out, slightly adhering at the edges from the action of the knife, resemble a solid block of wood, until broken up. The flap is afterwards stamped, by a similar process, a boy being able to prepare 50,000 per day in this manner, taking one, two, or three envelopes at each movement of the hand. They are then taken by 100 girls seated at long table, by whom they are folded and gummed. A single girl will apply the gum to 60,000 or 70,000 in a day, and 5000 to 7000 may be folded in the same time. In these processes the girls acquire great celerity and skill. —London Journal.

A LIVING MOP.—A valuable poodle dog, monetarily considered, but worthless under any other consideration, disappeared from a family of whom it was the ornament, rendering its distressed owner inconsolable at its loss. She had her servants out in every direction searching for it, and called upon the police to help her in finding her woolly favorite. Their search was for a long time in vain. At last a policeman found it, and brought it back to its owner, who was delighted to receive her pet in her arms again. She was profuse with her thanks, and left the officer where he had found the little dear. "Why," said he, "a big nigger up here a bit, had him, who had tied him to a pole and was washing windows with him." The lady immediately had him washed with eau-de-cologne to remove the ignominy.—Galaxy.

LOOKING QUEER.—A correspondent from Paris says that the political news of France just now, consists of two items—viz, the number of Bibs the Emperor is shooting at Compeigne, and the fact that the police of Paris is occupied every morning from four till six o'clock in putting down and defacing the revolutionary placards posted during the night. One hundred and fifty of these placards which I saw not quite defaced bore the words. "Bread for two sous, or the head of Napoleon."

A NEW TOY.—A Paris correspondent of the New York Evening Post speaks of a new toy which is making the fortune of its inventor, and is thus described:—His invention consists of a balloon, which appears to be made of a bladder coloured red and inflated by hydrogen gas but I am assured they are made of gutta percha or India rubber. The public gardens present a singular appearance with hundreds of these balloons in the hands of children floating with swan like grace a yard above their heads. At a little distance the string becomes invisible, and they seem to follow the children by a sort of magnetic attraction.—Now and then, a negligent child lets the string slip out of his hand, the balloon rises majestically, despite the tears of the child, the screams and leaps of the nurse, and the "agitation" of the crowd, until it is lost to sight.

INDIAN OPINION ON THE WAR WITH PERSIA.

(From the Calcutta Englishman, Nov. 8)

The proclamation, amounting to a declaration of war against Persia, appeared in an extraordinary Gazette on Saturday last. The Persian government is accused of an open hostility against Great Britain. The Russian war was probably expected by the Shah to last long enough to permit the completion of the conquest of the long coveted territory of Herat, and it cannot be doubted that contingent assistance was promised by the Czar to measures which would favour his ulterior objects. Herat in the hands of the Persians would be almost a Russian province. With steamers on the Volga, and the entire command of the Caspian, the Russian can at any time land an army at Asterabad before any force could even be suspected by the other European Powers. From Asterabad to Herat is a march of about four hundred miles, chiefly through a fertile country where no opposition would be given to the invaders. The valley of Herat is stated by the most recent and impartial travellers to be capable of supporting any force which the Russians might establish there, and then how long would they be in advancing to our frontier and keeping the whole of the northwest in a constant state of alarm?

Friendly remonstrance with Persia has failed, says the proclamation, and therefore the British government is about to convince the Persians that its engagement cannot be be violated with impunity. The force assembled at Bombay is to proceed to the Gulf and to be guided by instructions.—Of course, and also to secure guarantees against further breaches of the faith, in the shape, it may be supposed, of sundry cities and towns to be held as long as it may be convenient. As for the promise or protestations of Persian Princes, all of which may be had in any number for asking, they are of no value whatever. It is to be hoped that the example set by Russia will be followed, and that Persia will be compelled to pay the expenses of the war. The whole external commerce of the country must pass through the hands of British officers, and the usual duties should be levied for as many years as may be necessary to repay the charge incurred.

So after a peace of about seven months, great Britain is again at war, though not with so formidable an antagonist as Russia. It is nevertheless formidable enough to pull the wires of the Persian puppet, and give the Bombay expedition no small trouble to obtain the effectual guarantee required.

Movements of the Anglo-Indian Army.

(From the Bombay (Extraordinary) Gazette Oct. 17.)

In consequence of instructions received from Bombay electric telegraph late yesterday evening, a sudden order was issued for the immediate march of the First company First battalion of European artillery and the reserve details, which arrived the other day from Allahabad, and they accordingly left Poona at a very early hour this morning for Oolwa, en route to the Presidency, to join the force proceeding to the Persian Gulf. The company, with light field battery (six twelve pounders) attached, consists of one hundred and sixty-six men and drivers, and two hundred and fifty horses, and is commanded by Captain Hatch.

The squadron of the Poona irregular horses, under the command of Major Tapp, will leave Sercor on the 18th inst. Positive orders to this effect have been forwarded to Major Tapp by express.

The 3d Rifles, under command of Colonel Hontor, are ordered to leave Poona for the Presidency on Saturday morning. They will proceed from Compooloo to the Presidency by railway.

Two companies of the Sappers and miners will proceed from Oolwa either on Monday next, and Blake's (the 3rd troop of horse artillery start to morrow morning. The former will be taken from Campooloo to Bombay by rail, whilst the latter will proceed to Oolwa, from whence they will be conveyed across the harbour in boats. The reason of this is that the railway authorities are not prepared to convey the guns and ammunition waggons by the trains.

The orders for these movements were issued at 10 o'clock last night, upon the receipt of instructions by electric telegraph.

The troops under orders to join the expedition have for some days past been thoroughly equipped and ready to start at a moment's notice. The men are in the highest spirits, and all are rejoiced at the prospects of the approaching cold weather campaign.

A report has just reached us that the force to be sent from Poona from the 3d Bombay Presidency alone, is to be increased from five to fifteen thousand men.

English Trade Returns.

(From the London Post, Dec. 29)

The Board of Trade returns for the month and eleven months ended on the 30th inst. have been published to-day. The importations during the past month, except in one or two instances, present no features of more than ordinary interest. The trade in those commodities, indeed, appears to have been rather inactive than otherwise—these having been, upon the whole, less in value of when compared with last year. Indeed the only remarkable feature in the return of imports is the enormous increase in the importation of wheat and barley—the receipts of the former grain during last month being 99,932 quarters against 163,229 quarters in November 1855, thus showing an increase of 245,953 qrs. In the case of barley, the difference is even greater, 105,668 qrs. having been imported last month against 7,881 qrs. in the corresponding month of last year, thus showing the enormous increase of 97,787 qrs. Of flour and oats, the quantities imported were nearly the same as last year. There was also an increase in wines imported, but a large decrease is shown in the quantities of spirits. The total declared value of the articles of British and Irish produce, and manufactures exported, amounts to £10,872,075 against £8,758,840 in the corresponding month of last year, showing an addition of £1,512,129 in the declared value of the exports.—Upon the whole the returns may be considered to show a tolerably healthy condition of trade, although it would undoubtedly have been more satisfactory to find that the home consumption of what may be considered to "comforts" had been rather larger. It is quite evident that the extreme high value of money and of provisions had begun to tell seriously upon the condition of the mass of the people. It is to be hoped, however, that the severity of the pressure has for the time passed away, and that the consumption of articles not absolutely necessaries, may again show an improvement in the condition of the masses.

ACTION OF UNITED STATES MINISTER IN AFFAIRS OF SWITZERLAND.

[From the Liverpool Post, December 31.]

The statements current of Austria having opposed the offer of interposition of good offices by Sardinia and the United States, are not likely to make friends for that unpopular power. The United States will assuredly feel keen resentment. Of all the governments in Europe, that of Austria is the most hated by the people of America; and should war grow out of the obstinacy of the King of Prussia, it seems very likely that a decided manifestation in favour of the Swiss republic would be made by that of the United States. "Austria," says the London Herald, "probably fears that if the sympathy of the Americans should be allowed to take an official form, encouragement would be given to malcontents to look for aid from that quarter as other side of the Atlantic, and that the idea of a war of principle might be revived through the expectation that the latter would take part in it." Whatever may have been the motive of Austria, she has acted unwisely in betraying her fears or her spite, for her conduct towards Sardinia at the same time shows she is not free from the meanness of that unworthy feeling.

Arrival of the Atlantic.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.

The Atlantic arrived this evening with Liverpool dates to the 7th.

Lord Napier is appointed Minister to Washington. He is a practised diplomatist —having served in Prussia, Austria, Russia, Naples and Turkey.

The Archbishop of Paris, while officiating in church, was stabbed to the heart by a discharged Priest, named Verges, and instantly expired.

In the Conference of Paris the proceedings remain obscure.

La Pays says that the Conference met on the 3rd ultimo. The Moniteur is silent on the subject.

The delay is attributed to new disagreement of detail, not of principle, respecting the compensation to be paid Prussia. No apprehension is felt of any other than a pacific result.

The Swiss difficulty remains as before, but expectations of a settlement increase.—A favourable augury is drawn from the apparently cordial reception given by Napoleon to the Swiss Envoy.

The London Gazette publishes an official account of the hostile operations against China, confirming previous details.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

Liverpool, Jan. 6th—Breadstuffs—The quotations of wheat are reduced 2d a 3d per 70lbs. There is much doing at the decline. Flour is fully supported. Corn rather dearer. Wheat—white and mixed 9s a 10s; red 8s. 8d a 9s. Western Canal flour 31s a 33s; Ohio, 34s a 35s. Corn—yellow, 34s a 34s 6d: mixed, 34s a 34s 6d; white, 33s a 33s 6d.

Consols 94¼.

The Africa arrived out on Sunday, the 4th instant.

The London Times objects to the appointment of Lord Napier, on the ground that though well qualified to represent his country in the East or at any of the despotic military courts of continental Europe, he is not the right man for Minister at Washington.

When the Archbishop of Paris was stabbed, a Sister of Charity, who had observed the movement of the assassin, attempted to throw herself before the Archbishop, and was wounded in the hand. Verges was formerly a Priest of the diocese of Meaux, and had been suspended for preaching against the dogma of the Immaculate Conception. The general opinion is that the assassin is deranged.

A secret Conference was held at Rome, on the 15th December, in which the state of the Roman Church in Mexico and South America was considered.

The Pope complains bitterly of the doings of the new Government of Mexico, and declares all the measures which it has taken against the authorities of the Apostolic Chair, to be null and void. He also denounces their prises, which he claims belong to the countries in which they live, rather than the instructions forwarded from Rome.

The Swiss Government has declared its willingness to put a stop to all the proceedings against the insurgents, if France and England will promise their efforts to procure the complete independence of Neufchatel, and withdraw their adhesion to the Protocol of 1852.

The greatest enthusiasm prevails among the Swiss.

It is estimated that should war ensue 400,000 men would be under arms.

The Government of Geneva being in want of 80,000 francs for arms, that sum was subscribed at the Town-hall in twenty-four hours.

Arrival of the Persia.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.

The Cunard steamer Persia arrived at noon with Liverpool dates to Jan. 10, three days later than by the Atlantic. The news is important, inasmuch as it states that the Swiss difficulty is virtually settled by the interposition of France, supported by England.

Napoleon undertakes that Prussia shall renounce all claim upon Neufchatel, in consideration of the release of the prisoners.—France further undertakes to prevent any aggression by Prussia against Switzerland.

Switzerland approves these terms, and the Federal Assembly is summond to ratify them.

The Congress of Paris closed on the 6th instant, having signed a protocol, which is expected to terminate all difficulties in the fulfilment of the treaty of peace. Russia cedes Belgrade and Talobi to Moldavia, and the town of Komrat on the right bank of the river Gulboketo and a territory of three hundred square versts. The Isle of Serpents is decided as belonging to the mouths of the Danube and goes with them.

The boundaries shall be fixed, and the Austrian troops and British shall have evacuated the Turkish Territory by 20th of March next. Immediately thereafter the Congress shall reassemble at Paris to ratify their proceedings.

The Maple Leaf.

SANDWICH, JANUARY 29, 1857.

The County Council of Essex, met on Monday last, in the Court House in this town. The following Reeves were present:

Theodore Malott, Mersea.
S. S. Macdonald, Windsor.
Thos. Woodbridge, Reeve, Sandwich.
Gabrille Bondy, Dy. Reeve "
Henry H. Cuningham, Anderdon,
Solomon Wigle, Gosfield.
John Brush, Colchester.
Wm. Flanagan, Rochester.
G. W. Leggatt, Amherstburg.
Fabien Marrentette, Maidstone.
John Caldwell, Malden.
Peter Desjardans, Tilbury West.

The election of Warden being the first business before the Council, and a wish having been expressed that the Reeves were in favour of a Warden from one of the back Townships, Mr. Macdonell came forward and proposed that Mr Theodore Malott be elected Warden, which was carried without opposition. Mr. Macdonell, in laying aside his claims for that office, to bring forward Mr. Malott, is certainly praiseworthy in the extreme.

Mr Malott, we have no doubt, will fill the Warden's chair with credit to himself and the County, and from the length of time that he has been Reeve, we believe, longer than any other in the Council, will have given him that experience in Municipal matters which will greatly assist him, in the discharge of his duties.

To the Editor of the Maple Leaf.

SIR,—

Any person who saw the worthy Member for Essex during the first two days of the session of the County Council, lobbying and scheming for the purpose of inducing the Reeves to discharge their old and tried officers, so that he might get such of his pliant tools appointed as would do his bidding, at every nod or wink of their master, must have thought that he was playing the big man in small business to perfection.—But he was not alone in this very successful undertaking; for of necessity petty manimals must take part with their head and master in the dirty work which he had undertaken, and which he so unsuccessfully accomplished, as the sequel shows. He was not satisfied with the removal of one or two of the principal officers who were not, and could not, be made subservient to his will, but, if report be true, (and I have no reason for doubting it,) that honorable gentleman canvassed for the removal of no less a personage than the Messenger to the Council. Now, Mr. Editor, only think to what an extremity this county has been reduced. The Member, in a popular contest with the Messenger to the County Council, and to get defeated, must be extremely mortifying to our worthy M. P. P. But such is life! The highest are made to humble themselves before the lowliest. Rankin and his men of all work were buzzing about, like bees in a sugar barrel, securing, as they thought, a nice little hive of honey; but, alas! how unfortunate and useless all their scheming and attempts to deprive the present officers of their places. In this he was about as successful as he was in the late township election, when he attempted to present the election of Mr. Woodbridge, and the vile and contemptible means that were adopted to prevent his re-election as Reeve. But the plot was discovered in time to be rendered quite harmless, and I am happy to say that all his attempts in the County Council have also proved fruitless. I need hardly say, to the credit of that body.

Now, Mr. Editor, what could possibly have come over Mr. Rankin, that he should be reduced to such petty manœuvering? Is it, that he finds that his day has gone by, and in his downfall wishes to do all the mischief he can? What other motive he can have, I confess, is more than I know how to divine, or become, I cannot conceive. However, I fancy he is quite satisfied at all events that the Reeves are not so easily gulled as he in his sharpness, supposed they were. He must certainly have entertained a preciously flattering opinion of the Council, to suppose that the Reeves could not understand his dodges, and those of his brace of urchins, who are always ready to do the filthy jobs of their Lord of Thornhcld.

Finding that he could not succeed, in one way, he attempts to choke off the Reeves with a tremendous feed, thinking I presume, that roast beef and plum pudding would have more weight than all the arguments which a shallow pate could bring forth. Thus he imagines that he can buy up the Reeves with a feed. How silly to suppose that so intelligent a body of persons as the present Council could be bought with a little whiskey and roast beef.

Now upon the whole, Mr. Editor, I think that the member for Essex has played rather a small game for a man in his position. As for his precious tools, you could expect nothing else from them, for they were only basking in the sunshine of their delight when doing little mean actions, but from a Member of Parliament, one looks for something above a pettifogger.

I remain, Sir, yours truly,

A LOOKER ON.

In the Township Council of Sandwich the appointment of officers resulted in D Moynahan being appointed Town Clerk, Victor Oveillett, Treasurer, with this provision, however, that the £1100 should be deposited in the agency of the Bank of Upper Canada at Windsor, as he was directed to do by the resolution of the Council, which did not appear to have been done at the last meeting of that body.—We will endeavour to inform the public when it is done. John A. Askin and W. Johnson were appointed Auditors. E. Boismere, Collector. Richard Barrett, Lambert Reaume, and Laurent Bondy, Assessors.

We would refer to a notice in another Column, of the Ball to be given by the Essex Troop of Cavalry, on Friday the 6th of February, in the Village of Kingsville. We have no doubt that it will be a splendid affair, and we will look forward with the greatest pleasure to the opportunity that will again be given of meeting the Troop, particularly under such favourable circumstances. We have no doubt whatever but that there will be a large attendance.

Mr. Moynahan, in attempting to justify his conduct in relation to the £1100 job, of course very naturally attempts to cast the blame upon the shoulders of Mr. Woodbridge. This has been attempted throughout, and the very persons who were most interested have been loudest in attempting to lay it upon Mr. Woodbridge's shoulders. Now, if Mr. Woodbridge had told him that it was only necessary to hand a copy of the resolution to the Treasurer, Mr. Moynahan should have known his duty sufficiently to comply with the terms of the resolution, which expressly state that a copy be forwarded to Mr. Trew. The Canadian chimes in, of course, and wonders how Mr. Moynahan can be blamed for not doing his duty—when he furnished the Township Treasurer only with a copy. This we are bound to believe, thereby making the case much worse against the Treasurer, who acted knowingly when he received a copy of the resolution. The Canadian is forced to wonder, why the Treasurer does not explain his conduct—so do we. But we fancy the less said the better. We fear that we will have yet to enter into particulars, if he does not.

☞ Parliament, it is announced by the Leader, will meet for the despatch of business on the 26th February.

NEW RAILWAY CARRIAGE.—A railway is about to be established from Lyons and the Croix Rousse, and notwithstanding the steepness of the ground, no cutting or tunnel will be required, a system of carriage invented by M. Bourget, civil engineer, rendering any such proceeding quite unnecessary. His method consists of a break placed under the carriage, and which seizes a third rail, so fixed as to be subjected to its action. The part which seizes on the rail opens by the effect of the movement and closes with great force the moment the train is arrested. A great number of trials of the plan were made with such constant success that the council of the Ponts-et-chausees was unanimous in giving its authorisation for the employment of the system. The Lyons journals state that the shares issued for raising the necessary capital to execute the line were subscribed in three days.

A New Material for Gas.

Last evening, Professor Hind delivered his annual lecture before the Mechanic's Institute, on "the Gases Employed or Generated during the Processes of our Manufacturing Industry." A considerable portion of the lecture was devoted to the subject of "Illuminating Gas," and the various modes of its preparation; and much interest was excited by an experiment in which a very light gas was produced from a species of bituminous shale—a rock very common in Canada, there being in the Province many cubic miles of it. It extends from Lake Ontario at Oshawa on Lake Ontario, to Collingwood on the Georgian Bay, and is found also in great abundance in other parts of Canada. Professor Hind stated that the gas produced from Utica slate, the substance in question, has a per centage of the illuminating principle, double of that produced from coal. Another advantage possessed by the slate over coal, is the production of gas, is the fact that the former does not swell in the retorts when subjected to heat. Some of our practical men ought at once to look it to this matter. If Whitby and Collingwood slate is better adapted than coal for producing illuminating gas, by all means let it be used to good account in that way as speedily as possible.—Globe.

THE TOWN OF CORNWALL NEARLY SUBMERGED.

From the Freeholder, Jan. 20.

On Friday last, shortly after noon, nature exhibited to the wondering and affrighted inhabitants of Town, one of her most extraordinary and unexpected freaks. The ice, which, owing to numerous "shoves," covered the river and shores to an immense depth, and was supposed to be firm and immoveable for the present winter, commenced moving in one vast, conglomerated mass. Accompanied by a noise, resembling the rumblings of an earthquake, or the hoarse roar of distant thunder, on it passed, piling up in huge misshaped mounds, anon assuming pyramids and other fantastic shapes; presenting to the beholder a scene of grand and almost inconceivable interest. The spectacle was strange and awe-inspiring in the extreme. But the rapid rise of the water warned the people that the time had arrived for energetic action. They hastened to the mills and other places threatened by a deluge, and there labored with untiring and most commendable alacrity, so long as there existed any possibility of rescuing property from destruction. Their efforts availed much, but we regret to say that Mr. Elliot, and the Messrs Hitchcock have suffered to a very considerable extent. These gentlemen have the warmest sympathies of the public. No one anticipated such a flood. Col. Vankoughnet, who preserves a distinct recollection of such events during the past half century, said he once saw of himself and family at great hazard from a like irruption of the waters, assures us that the rise of Friday is unprecedent. From reliable authority we learn that it reached twenty seven feet above summer level. All the locks and basins in the canal to Lake St. Lawrence filled, and a stream flowed over the lower locks. Readers at a distance may form a correct idea of the state of affairs, from the fact that the water rushed into the canal from the mills. Had it risen another foot, the Town must have become a lake. Horses and cattle were saved by swimming. Pigs and poultry, in numbers, were drowned. In one instance the pigs floated, and the occupants being fastened one by one to an upper story of the mill, but some of them had ceased grunting, having perished from cold. The water subsided as rapidly as it rose.

At Montreal, on the morning of the 15th when the man who lights furnaces in the Parish Church of Notre Dame entered the upper portion of it, he heard the noise of a person walking above. The Pilot says, he gave the alarm, and the gas of the Church was immediately lit, when it was found that all the poor boxes of the Church had been broken open and their contents taken. The Church was searched, when a man, giving his name as Ferrari Spernandio, and who says he belonged to the Italian Legion, was found hid under the seats of a pew. On his person being searched, the sum of 15s. 11½d in cash, was found. He was brought up before the Superintendant of Police this morning, and committed to gaol to stand his trial. He admits his guilt, and says he was starving, and entered the Church for the purpose of robbing it.

A distressing accident occurred in the store house of the Great Western Railway, at Hamilton, on the morning of the 21st. The Spectator says, that the driving wheel of a locomotive was laid down on the floor, and, as was thought, securely against the wall of the store house, but it unexpectedly fell, and striking the leg of one James Heslop, produced a compound comminuted fracture of the bone, a few inches below the knee. Dr. Ferrie and Billings attended him during the day, and, as they succeeded in reducing the fracture, it is to be presumed that recovery will ensue.

FINAL ARCTIC SEARCH.—There is little or no doubt as to the intention of the government to despatch final expeditions in search of further traces of Sir John Franklin. They will probably consist of three parties, one overland, another via Behring's straits and a third via Davis's straits. Behring's straits expedition will probably be commanded either by Captain Collinson (should he volunteer his services), or Captain Rochfort Maguire, an officer of great energy and much active experience The Baffin's bay expedition will, it is supposed, be offered to Captain M'Clintock, but we have as yet heard no one mentioned to command the overland party.

TRAGEDY IN FRANCE.—A horrible tragedy has occurred in the Rue Grenelle St. Germain. A man who with his wife had lived for some years in separation, returning home not to see his wife or child as usual, and he looked for them everywhere, but in vain. At last he descended to the cellar, and there he found them lying in a pool of blood with their throats cut; the child was quite dead, but the woman who held him in her arms against her breast was still breathing, though she was unable to speak a word. Medical assistance was procured for her; but it was not considered likely that she could recover. The woman is thought to have murdered her child, and then cut her own throat in a fit of temporary insanity. Her motive for committing the crime is attained, as she and her husband were well off in the world, and entertained the most devoted affection for each other and their child. —Galignani's Messenger.

Mr. Rawson writes to the New York Times:—"The garotte robbery is not carried on by men alone, but by boys from 12 to 15 years of age This may not generally be known, but it is not an unfrequent occurrence that children of 12 years and less are met, in broad day, and robbed, by the Garotte system. My son has twice been robbed in this way, in passing through Madison street, near she Fourth Ward. While one boy would hold his arms behind him, another would catch him by the throat with one hand, and with the other hold his mouth, so it would be impossible to make the least noise, whilst the third would search his pockets. This is a growing evil. It has become so of late that I dare not intrust him with the least article of value, or even with a few pennies, he should be half robbed and robbed; and this, too, in the broad day."

The New York Herald publishes very important intelligence from Japan. A grand revolution of the Mikado or spiritual Emperor has decided to permit no foreigner to visit the interior; therefore the efforts of the English, Russians, and Americans to open trade with that country have proved of no avail. The Japanese simply supply our vessels with provisions, and receive in payment only gold and silver. The Dutch, on the contrary, are in high favour, and enjoy a monopoly of foreign traffic. The Japanese are making rapid progress in naval knowledge, and they have appropriated two million and a half of dollars for getting up a fleet of vessels of war, on the European plan, to be commanded by Dutch naval officers. Four of the vessels are to be screw steamers.

On Monday, a lady stopped at the Madison House, Covington, Ky., with her husband and thirty two children. She was the mother of all of them. If this can be beat, we are extremely desirous of receiving the information.

COUNTERFEIT FORGER, BIGAMIST AND FUGITIVE.—The Syracuse Journal mentions the arrest of John R. Miller, at Zanesville, formerly of Cazenovia, Onondaga county.—About four years since, he was indicted for counterfeiting and forgery, and released on bail, his brother-in-law, Benj. Holden, becoming his surety. Miller decamped before the trial came on, and succeeded in keeping out of the reach or knowledge of his bail until the period of limitation had elapsed. Recently she visited her husband in prison, and received the admission of this statement from him, she again fainted. Miller had gained the confidence of the community to such an extent, that many were incredulous, until a letter from his son, found in his possession, made his rascality indisputable.

ADVANCE IN TEA.—The news of the bombardment of Canton has materially increased the price of tea. Housekeepers are in the state of a cup of Souchong at its last drawing—all that can be drawn out of them, now that meat and drink both have gone up to starvation point. We have meat and poultry at famine prices—the wine crop destroyed—no more brandy coming—vegetables worth their weight in gold—house rent up and rising, and the very air, light and water doled out to us by monopolists. Where are these things to end.—Trib.

The danger of photographic counterfeits, it appears is not confined to Bank Notes. A small check on one of the largest Wall street Banks was prepared as a test, and upon presentation was paid without hesitation by the teller. It was absolutely a perfect simile. The party presenting it afterwards reclaimed the cheque and returned the money. Banks cannot be too careful of these photograph counterfeits, and should require their dealers to use two colored checks, one color to be blue, which can not be photographed.—Leader.

AIRING A CLERGYMAN.—A Rev. Mr. Dodge, who pretended to be a Baptist clergyman, was lately taken by the citizens of Grand county, Missouri, plunged naked into a sour bank, and afterwards taken out of town on a rail. He was otherwise maltreated, though not injured bodily. The cause of this was an arrangement having been made by the aforesaid Mr. Dodge to elope with another man's wife, a respectable woman of the country, whereat the indignant people took the law into their own hands.

MICHIGAN TO MAKE TWO STATES.

On Tuesday of last week, Mr. Sherman, of Ontonagon, presented to the Michigan House of Representatives a memorial in the following words:—

"We, your petitioners, citizens of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, being firmly convinced that great advantages would be derived by the people of this Peninsula by its separation from the Lower Peninsula of this State and the cession of it to the government of the United States or State, and knowing that it is almost the unanimous desire of our people to have this project consummated, respectfully pray your honorable body to enact such laws as will secure to us this most desirable measure. In thus urging this project upon your consideration we are actuated by no feelings of disrespect or disloyalty to our State, but, being fully satisfied that nothing would so much tend to develope our resources, and that many incalculable advantages would arise under a separated government, we do not hesitate to respectfully urge your favorable action upon the subject."

The signatures to this paper number seventy-six, and are those of the most substantial citizens of Ontonagon.

Fearful Case of Poisoning

BALTIMORE, Jan. 21.

A terrible tragedy occurred here today.

A druggist filled a prescription ordered by Arnold, a German physician, for a child. The child took the medicine, and died immediately.

Arnold took the remainder of the medicine of the druggist, and told him he had made a fatal mistake. The druggist persisted that the medicine was right, and to show his confidence in his correctness, he swallowed a portion himself: he was immediately attacked by horrible convulsions, and died in five minutes.

The Doctor, who merely taste l the preparation and spit it from his mouth, was also attacked and with difficulty saved.

The affair occasioned great excitement. The druggist had mixed cynuret of potassium with lemon juice, developing enough of prussic acid in the preparation to have killed 300 people.

Beef—do $4 to $5.

TORONTO, Jan. 26, 1857.

The attendance both of buyers and sellers in market this morning was very thin; and the quantity of farming produce offering scanty.

WHEAT.—Competition still prevails in market, and prices since our last have remained steady at 6s 4d to 6s 7d per bushel. The amount offering this morning was very small—the severe cold weather of the last two days having probably operated as a check to farmers sending their wheat into market and availing themselves of the high rates which that article now brings.

FLOUR offered in market this day at from $5 50 to $6 per barrel, for Miller's best. By wholesale, quotations are nominal at from $5 25 per barrel, for superfine to $5 for extra.

BARLEY is still in active request at 5s 7d to 5s 9d per bushel with a small supply offering.

OATS may be quoted at 2s 6d to 2s 10 per bu with a good demand.

PEAS are held at 3s to 4s per bushel.

POTATOES have been scarce, and holders demand very high prices. As high as 5s 6d per bushel was demanded for potatoes in market to-day. Buyer evinced no inclination to purchase at such a figure.

DETROIT, Jan. 20, 1857.

FLOUR—Nothing doing. Prices steady at $5 a 5 50 for the range of red and white.

WHEAT—Nothing doing except the receipt of a few loads in the street, for which $1 25 was paid.

CORN—Nominal at 66c. None in market of consequence

DRESSED HOGS—But few in market, and held at $8 50. A small lot of smoked ha m sold at $12 50 per cwt.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26, 1857.

FLOUR—Market dull and easier; sales 3000 bls at $6 35 a $5 50 for common to choice superfine State: $5 50 a $6 90 for extra do; $6 35 a 6 60 for superfine Western; $6 70 a 7 10 for extra do; Canadian $6 60 a 7 62.

Health and Long Life.

The citizens of the United States and Canada suffer much from disorders of the Liver and Stomach, scarcely any are free from the influence of bilious and digestive maladies, hence life wears fast. The Fair Sex, certainly the most handsome in the world, up to a certain period, when, distressing to say many lose their teeth and good looks, while yet in the heyday of life; such sad events may be effectually remedied by constantly keeping the blood free from the Liver and Stomach in a healthy action, when life will flow smoothly, and resemble plants in a congenial clime, where an eternal spring appears to reign. As it regards the preservation of the human frame, and the duration of life, much may be effected, and we say fearlessly, that health and life can be prolonged for many years beyond their ordinary limits, if Sir Astley Cooper's Pills are taken to purify the Blood, according to the rules laid down for health, contained in the directions which accompany each box.

Thousands who have been afflicted in every possible way, are daily bearing their grateful testimony to the great benefits they have received from their use, and are now rejoicing in a renewed state of health, after having long despaired of ever possessing it again.

CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.—Observe that on the top of each box of the Genuine Pills there is an excellent likeness of the late Sir Astley Cooper, from the celebrated painting by Lawrence; also the fac simile signature of MacPhail & Co., the Sole Proprietors, London and New York, on each box, and on the directions. Without these marks of authenticity they are certainly spurious and an imposition.

Sold at 25 and 50 cents per box, and in Family boxes at $1 each. There is a great saving by purchasing the larger sizes.

For sale by Simpson and Dunspaugh, Druggists, Toronto; John M. Thornton, Dundas; Andrew Oliver Gair; A. H. Cook, Hamilton; General Agents, by whom Country Druggists and Merchants will be supplied at London and New York prices.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of the miserable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endorsements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review," and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma	Sick Headaches,
Bowel Complaints	Indigestion
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflammation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits
Diarrhœa	Piles,

THE NEW ILLUSTRATED

Hydropathic Encyclopedia,

A COMPLETE SYSTEM OF

HYDROPATHY & HYGIENE,

IN ONE LARGE VOLUME.

EMBRACING Outlines of Anatomy, Illustrated; Physiology of the Human Body; Hygienic Agencies and the Preservation of Health; Diseases and Hydropathic Cookery; Theory and Practice of Water Treatment; Special Pathology and Hydro-Therapeutics, including the Nature, Causes, Symptoms and Treatment of all known diseases; Application to Surgical Diseases; Application of Hydropathy to Midwifery and the Nursery; With three hundred engravings and nearly One Thousand Pages, including a Glossary, Table of Contents, and a complete Index. By R. T. TRALL, M. D.

Published by FOWLER and WELLS, New York.

In the plan of the work, the wants and necessities of the People have been steadily in view. While almost every topic of interest in the departments of Anatomy, Physiology, Pathology, Hygiene, Therapeutics is briefly presented, those of practical utility are always put prominently forward. The prevailing errors, conceits, and whims of the day and age are exposed and refuted; the theories and hypothesis upon which the various modes of practice is predicated are controverted, and the true and wherefore of their fallacy clearly demonstrated. The following is a brief analysis of its contents:

History of Medicine; History of Bathing; History of Medicated Baths.

Anatomy illustrated by One Hundred and Twenty appropriate engravings.

Physiology, illustrated, comprising the Rationale of Muscular Action; the Nervous Influence; Philosophy of Mind; Mesmeric Phenomena; Special Sensory Functions; Digestion, Circulation, Respiration, Absorption, Nutrition, Secretion, Excretion; Calorification, Temperaments, the Races of Men, and Theory of Population.

Hygiene embracing all the relations of Air Light, Drink, Food, Temperature, Exercise, Sleep, Clothing, Bathing, and the Passions, as the grounds for the development of Body and Mind; the Preservation of Health and the attainment of Longevity.

Dietetics, comprising the Bible, Anatomical, Physiological, Chemical and Experimental Evidence concerning the natural Dietetic Character of Man.

Hydropathic Cookery, with Special Directions for the Preparation of Food.

Dietaries, containing the Therapeutic Dietaries of Diet for Invalids.

Philosophy of Water-Cure, with illustrated explanations of all the water-cure appliances, a Philosophical Exposition of the modus operandi of water-treatment, and the true rationale of fever treatment.

The Nature Symptoms and Treatment of all known Diseases are examined, the ill success of drug practice exposed, and the proper Medication recommended and specified.

The Treatment of surgical Diseases illustrated and the directions for the minor operations given.

The Management of Lying-in-Women, and the treatment of children, &c.

The work is intended to be plain, intelligible and sufficient guide for domestic practice, or home treatment in all ordinary diseases, embracing the whole range of subjects connected with the philosophy of life, the preservation of health, and the treatment of diseases.

This great work may be had in one large volume, bound in library style. Price prepaid by mail to any Post Office in the United States or Canada, only THREE DOLLARS.

CHARLES BABY, CLERK PEACE ESSEX

Office of the Clerk of the Peace, Sandwich, January 12th 1857.

Wheat, from whence Derived?

Our readers will probably remember some experiments having been made on the transformation of wheat, by repeated cultivation of a grass called by botanists Ægilops ovata and a native of those countries bordering the Mediterranean, which have been considered the original home of the cereals from time immemorial. The experiments were made by M. Fabre, and a translation of his paper respecting them was published in the Journal of the Royal Agricultural Society. We confess that the facts advanced by M. Fabre appeared to us conclusive, and to have been conducted so as to secure, as far as possible, immunity from hybridization, by carrying on the experiments amidst vineyards, at a distance from the fields of wheat. It appears, however, that there exists a difference of opinion on this subject among botanists, both in this country and on the continent. In England the majority of them were disposed, we believe, to adopt the nonhybridizing view of the question while in Germany and France the opposite opinion appeared to have prevailed.

A writer in the columns of a contemporary lately stated that Dr. Regel, the Director of the Imperial Botanical Garden at St. Petersburgh, has recently informed him that having repeated the experiments of M. Fabre, he has satisfied himself that the reported transformation is merely the effect of repeated processes of hybridization. Dr. Regel, it appears, wore directly to the experiment of hybridizing the ægilops with the pollen of wheat. He declares the result to have shown that there is nothing of a gradual transition from one plant into another, but that by hybridization he obtained from Ægilops ovata a plant exhibiting a much greater affinity to wheat than the ægilops. The plants did not differ, he says, the least from each other: there was nothing like a gradual change.

With respect to the cases stated in M. Fabre's experiments of other transitions, Dr. Regel considers them as giving rise to the following questions:—1. Whether there are in reality any of these transient forms? 2. Whether they have not been produced by the return of the hybrid towards one of its parents? And lastly, Whether they are not to be explained by the repeated fecundation of the hybrid by one of its parents? In expressing himself in favor of the last supposition, he admits however that he has not himself seen the latter transition. He admits also that a hybrid when perennial cannot return to one of its parents by sexual propagation, but contends that it is different with the sexual propagation, where experiments with newly-raised hybrids, fertile even in their pollen, must decide, and can only decide the question. Dr. Regel further adds, that he has left some specimens of his hybrids between wheat and Ægilops, and others with bearded wheat. He then adverts to a theory started by Dr. Lindley, to the effect that the Ægilops ovato and Triticum vulgare are extreme forms of one species. This opinion he considers to be disposed of by his hybrid having pollen which is entirely sterile. At the same time, he admits the question to be still open whether this hybrid may not fertilize itself by means of its own pollen.

At the late meeting of the British Association, Professor Henslow read a part on some read some experiments which he had made for the purpose of deciding the question. These had so far succeeded in changing the character of Ægilops squamosa as to lead him to conclude that the original statement of M. Fabre that Ægilops ovata was the origin of Triticum sativa was not altogether without foundation. He exhibited specimens in which Ægilops squamosa had undergone considerable change, but he had not yet succeeded in obtaining the characters of Triticum sativa of wheat. For ourselves we confess that, putting aside the questions in physical botany to which this alleged transformation of Ægilops into wheat gives rise, we were disposed to treat the experiments of M. Fabre as offering a solution to a very puzzling question, that of the native country of wheat in a wild state. The fact that Ægilops is indigenous to those countries bordering the Mediterranean, which have from time immemorial been known as the birth-place of wheat and the early scene of the exploits of Ceres, appeared to furnish strong a priori evidence in favour of M. Fabre's researches. If wheat is not derived by cultivation from Ægilops, from what grass is it derived; and if not from any, where is its native country? Who ever saw wheat wild, except when it had escaped from the hants of man? Who ever saw it, any more than a wild red cabbage, or a cauliflower, or a wild swedish turnip? Wheat must have had some wild original; and if it is not Ægilops, what is it?—Farmer's Magazine.

Horses and Carrots.— A correspondent of an American Journal, gives his experience in feeding carrots to horses as follows:—"For two months past I have fed my two horses upon carrots and hay. My horses are in constant service on the road; and under this treatment they usually come out at the end of the "pile" looking better than when they commenced. My dose is two quarts morning and noon, at night four, to each horse; they have as much good, sweet hay as they will eat, and cut, whether fed to them dry or other ise This latter I have always practiced ever since I have had the management of horses; and I am satisfied that it is the cheapest and best way in which it can be given to the horses; there is no waste, and horses eat it better, and have more time to rest, which is quite an important consideration, where the horse is liable to be taken from the stable at any moment. I am satisfied there is no better way of feeding horses, nor is there any cheaper one—that I have ever tried—than the one mentioned. If there is, will not some one who knows, please report? I always cut them quite fine before using.—Carrots are most excellent for horses whose wind is any way affected—such as the heaves, &c. Those who have tried them for this purpose will, I think, agree with me in this; if not, just try the experiment and be satisfied. They are unusually cheap, compared with other articles of food of equal nutritiousness. Last year I paid nine dollars per ton, this year eleven, and at the latter price I prefer them to oats—measure for measure.

"Your horse has a tremendous long bit," said a friend to Theodore Hook. "Yes," said he, "it is a bit too long."

To Emigriants & Others Seeking
LAND FOR SETTLEMENT.

The Provincial Government have recently opened out three great lines of road, now in course of completion, and have surveyed and laid out for settlement the Lands through, and in the vicinity of, which those Roads pass.

The Roads, as advertised by the Agents of the Government, appointed to the respective localities to afford information to the Settler, are known as

The Ottawa and Opeongo Road,
The Addington Road, and
The Hastings Road,

The Ottawa and Opeongo Road

Commences at a point on the Ottawa River known as "Ferral's," a little above the mouth of the Bonchere River, and runs in a Westerly direction, passing through the northerly part of the County of Renfrew.

It is intended to connect this road with a projected line of road known as "Bell's Line," (leading to the Lake Muskako, and Lake Huron, by a branch which will diverge from the Opeongo Road in the Township of Brudnell, at a distance of about 58 miles from the River Ottawa, forming with "Bell's Line," a great leading road, or base line from the Ottawa to Lake Muskako, 171 miles in length, passing through the heart of the Ottawa and Huron Territory, and opening up for settlement a vast extent of rich and valuable land.)

This road, and the country through which it passes, now open for settlement, is easily accessible, and the Agent for the granting of Lands in this district is Mr. T. P. French, who resides at Mount St. Patrick, neat Renfrew, on the Opeongo Road, a few miles from the Lands which are to be granted.—To reach the section of Country under Dr. French's charge, the Settler must go from MONTREAL up to the Ottawa River to a place called Bonchere Point, and thence by land some twenty-five or thirty miles westward to the Township of Grattan, in which Mount St Patrick is situated.

The Addington Road

Commencing in the Township of Anglesea, in the northern part of the County of Addington, near the Village of Flint's Mills. Kaladar, runs almost due north to the River Nadawaska, a distance of 35 miles, and is to be continued thence for the distance of 25 miles till it intersects to Ottawa and Opeongo Road.

The Agent for the granting of the Land in this district is Mr. E. Perry, who, for that purpose, is now resident at FLINTS MILLS· The outlines of five townships of very superior land are already surveyed and ready for settlement within the limits of the Agency, lying north of Lake Massanoka, and between it and the River Nadawaska. The Townships are called respectively Abinger, Denbigh Ashley, Effingham, Anglesea, and Barrie.

The direct route to this section is by way of Kingston, Canada West, thence North to the Township of Kaladar, and the Village of FLINT'S MILLS, where Mr. Perry resides.

Hastings Road!

Almost parallel to the Addington Road, and at a distance West from it of about 36 miles is the HASTINGS ROAD. This road beginning at the northern part of the County of Hastings, and running a distance of 74 miles, almost due north, also intersects the OTTAWA and OPEONGO ROAD and its extensions.

The Government Agent is Mr. M. P. Hayes, who resides at the Village of Hastings, largely called Madoc, about 23 miles north of the Town of Belleville. The Road between these places is in good order, The land to be granted by the Crown under this Agency extends from 15 to 17 miles north of the Village of Hastings The Road through this large extent of land is passable for 40 miles, and money is now being expended to extend it 30 miles further, so that Settlers can get in and out without difficulty, and find a good market for surplus produce, as well as convenient facilities for bringing in whatever supplies they may require—abundance of which can be had at the Village of Hastings, where the Government agent resides.

The direct way to reach this Station, which is easily accessible, is by Kingston Canada West, thence by Steamboat up the Bay of Quinte to Belleville 56 miles, and thence by a good Road to Hastings, 28 miles.

In order to facilitate the Settlement of the Country, and provide for keeping in repair the Roads thus opened, the Government authorised Free Grants of Land along these Roads, not to exceed in each case ONE *H*UNDRED ACRES, upon application to the Local Agents, and upon the following

CONDITIONS

That the Settler be eighteen years of age.

That he take possession of the Land allotted to him within one month, and put in a state of cultivation at least twelve acres of the land in the course of four years—build a house (at least 20 by 18 feet) and reside on the lot until the conditions of settlement are duly performed; after which accomplishment only shall the settler have the right of obtaining a title to the property. Families comprising several settlers entitled to lands, preferring to reside on a single lot, will be exempted from the obligation of building and of residence, (except upon the lot on which they live provided that the required clearing of the lands be made on each lot. The non-accomplishment of these conditions will cause the immediate loss of the assigned lot of land, which will be sold or given to another.

The road having been opened by the Government, the settlers are required to keep it in repair.

The Local Agents, whose names and places of abode have already been given, will furnish every information to the intending Settler.

The LOG HOUSE required by the Government to be built, is of such description as can be put up in four days by five men, The neighbours generally help to build the Log Cabin for newly arrived Settlers, without charge, and when this is done the cost of the erection is small; the roof can be covered with bark, and the space between the logs plastered with clay, and white-washed. It then becomes a neat dwelling and warm as a stone house.

The lands thus opened up and offered for settlement, are, in sections of Canada West, capable both as to Soil and Climate, of producing abundant crops of winter wheat, of excellent quality and full weight, also crops of every other description of farm produce, grown in the best and longest cultivated districts of that portion of the Province, and fully as good.

There are, of course, in such a large extent of county as that referred to, great varieties in the character and quality of land—some lots being much superior to others; but there is an abundance of the very best land for farming purposes. The Lands in the neighbourhood of these three roads will be found to be very similar in quality and character, and covered with every variety of Timber--some with hard wood, and some with heavy pine.

Water for domestic use is every where abundant; and there are, throughout, numerous streams and falls of water, capable of being used for Manufacturing purposes.

The heavy timbered land is almost always the best, and of it, the ashes of three acres, well taken care and covered from wet—will produce a barrel of Potash, worth from £6 to £7 currency. The capital required to manufacture Potash is very small, and the process is very simple and easily understood.

The expense of clearing and enclosing heavily Timbered Lands, valuing the labor of the settlers at the highest rate, is about FOUR POUNDS Currency per Acre, which the first wheat crop, if an average one, will nearly repay. The best timber for fencing is to be had in abundance.

A settler on these lands, possessing a capital from £25 to £50, according to the number of his family, will soon make himself comfortable, and obtain a rapid return for his investment. The single man, able and willing to work, needs little capital, besides his own arm and axe—he can devote a portion of the year to clearing his land, and in the numerous lumbering establishments he can, at other seasons, obtain a liberal remuneration for his labor.

The climate throughout these Districts is good. The snow does not fall so deep as to obstruct communication; and it affords material for good roads during the winter, enabling the farmer to haul in his Firewood for the ensuing year from the woods, to take his produce to market, and to lay in his supplies for the future—and this covering to the earth, not only facilitates communication with the more settled parts of the District, but is highly beneficial and fertilizing to the soil.

In all the localities above named, wherever Settlers have surplus produce, there is a good market for it near to them—farm produce of all kinds being in great demand by the Lumber or Timber Merchants, who are carrying on extensive operations throughout these parts of the country.

According to the ration of progress which Canada West has made during the last ten years, the value of property on an average doubles within that period—irrespective of any improvements which may have been made by the Settlers.

In many Counties the value of Land, once opened for settlement, has increased FIVE FOLD in the period named, but the average value of such land, according to the statistics of Canada West, Doubles every ten years in the mere lapse of time, exclusive of any expenditure thereon—and it is not too much to expect that this ratio will not diminish for generations to come.

The Sections of Country opened by these roads lie in and to the Southern part of the Great Ottawa Region, stretching from and beyond them to the shores of Lake Huron, to Lake Nipissing, and to the Ottawa River—an immense extent of country whose resources are now seeking and will rapidly obtain development.

The Ottawa Country

Lying south of Lake Nipissing and of the great River Ottawa, and embracing a large portion of the land offered for settlement, is capable of sustaining a population of eight millions of people, and it is now attracting general attention, as the more western portions of Canada are being rapidly filled up.

The Parliament of Canada in its last Session incorporated a Company for the construction of a Railway to pass through this Ottawa country from the Shores of Lake Huron to the City of the Ottawa, and thence Eastward.

A survey of the River Ottawa and the neighbouring Country has been undertaken and will be completed in the present year; its principal object being to ascertain by what means the River Ottawa can be rendered navigable and connected with Lake Huron so as to enable vessels to pass by that route from the most Western Waters into the River St. Lawrence and the Ocean, These projected works are alluded to in order to show that the attention of the Government, Parliament and People of Canada, has been fixed upon this important portion of the Province.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,
AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rod of tillable earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded: together with its really superior execution, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

"The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of pearl surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with July, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial department: H. P. Knight, James Snowden and D. W. Ray.

Terms: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

N.B.—Newspapers inserting the above prospectus, and drawing attention editorially to the same, will be forwarded the Illustrated Horticulturist for one year, a copy containing the advertisement should be sent in all cases to ensure attention.

NEW VOLUME OF THE AGRICULTURIST

SUBSCRIPTION REDUCED FROM 25 TO 50 PER CENT.

The Canadian Agriculturist

Has now reached the eighth volume, having been established by its present proprietor in 1848, and is too well known to the leading farmers of the British Provinces, to need any eulogium from us. The undersigned have made arrangements with the proprietor to publish the next, and probably succeeding volumes, and have resolved to make important improvements in the work, while at the same time its price will be considerably reduced.

THE AGRICULTURIST

Is published Monthly, on good Paper, each number containing 32 pages, making at the end of the year a handsome volume of 384 pages.

EVERY NUMBER WILL BE
Illustrated with Engravings

Such as Farm Implements, Portraits of Animals, designs of Farm Buildings, New Inventions, &c., &c., interesting to the Farmer, and also portraits of some of the most Distinguished Agriculturists.

The Work will be conducted as usual by WILLIAM MACDOUGALL, Esq., who has resumed the practice of Agriculture near this city. The active promoter of the various improvements made in our Agricultural Legislation since 1847, and having also been connected with this Journal from its commencement, he requires no recommendation from us.

PROFESSOR BUCKLAND, of the Toronto University, whose labors and writings in behalf of Canadian Agriculture are known and appreciated throughout the Province, will contribute to its columns as usual.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS
Of known ability have also been engaged. Efforts will be made to extend the correspondence on subjects of a practical kind.

THE AGRICULTURIST IS NOT LIABLE TO POSTAGE.

POETRY FOR THE TIMES.

BY A BOY WITH A BEARD ON.

You watch your neighbor's actions
More than you do your own;
You cannot, or you will not,
Let his affairs alone!
In short, your neighbor's business,
Whom none concerneth you,
You meddle with till yours
Is clearly out of view.

You see your neighbor's failings,
But do not see your own;
And think that you are worthy
To cast at him the stone—
When, if you'd wipe the mirror,
Till you yourself could see,
You'd find you're just as erring
And full of faults as he.

The way you judge a person
Is by the cloth he wears;
You do not stop to notice
The inward heart he bears.

If his dress is growing seedy,
Or ragged, old and torn,
You pass him by unnoticed.
Or look at him in scorn.

But if he has fine garments,
And wears a golden chain,
You hesitate no longer
That person to ordain;
A gentleman, you praise him,
You laud him to the skies.
No matter if he dresses,
If he isn't good and wise.

You feel yourself above those
Not quite so rich as you.
Too proud and vain to speak with
The man whose dimes are few.
Well, do so, if you wish to—
But in Heaven, beyond the sky,
Ye proud shall be humbled,
And lowly ones made high.

"ONE CENT REWARD."

A very respectable married lady residing at the South End, was detained half an hour after dark, one day last week, down town, and having made several purchases of dry goods, she turned her steps homeward. The omnibusses she hailed one after another chanced to be crowded, and placing her inconveniently large parcel upon her arm, she determined at length to walk home.

A short distance above Boylston market, a spruce-looking, well dressed young fellow approached her, and after following her a little ventured to accost her with—

"Good evenin, mum?"

The lady started, turned away, and hurried along, somewhat disconcerted by this appeal. But the puppy closed up with her, quickly, and repeated the salute.

"Shent I—see you—home, mum?"

The lady looked at him, and instantly resolved to accept his services, under the circumstances. He sidled up, again, and with an awkward salem, offered this lady his arm.

The compliment was declined, however.

"Let me a-hem!—let me take your bundle, mum," continued the gallant.

The lady hesitated an instant, then passed the parcel into his hands.

"It's a fine evenu', mum."

"Yes was the response.

They walked along, the beau changed the package from side to side, and at length remarked that it was "rather heavy,"

"Yes," was the reply.

"A warm night, mum."

"Very," said the lady.

"Live in Common street, mum?"

"Yes."

"A—hem" added the gallant, as they turned the corner.

They moved on, and suddenly the lady halted before her own domicil.

She opened the door, took the huge parcel from the fellow's hand, and depositing it quickly within the hall, requested him to wait a minute.—The polite young man a hem'd once more, when his fair friend coolly drew out her purse, opened it, and taking out a cent, presented it to the dumbfounded youth.

"Sorry to have troubled you, sir," remarked the lady, "but this will pay you I presume?"

The rusty old cent lay on the fellow's palm, a forcible "a-hem" escaped him. He was quickly aroused from his temporary stupor by the slam of the front door in his face, and the echo of a loud laugh which rang through the hall at the same instant.

The manner in which he turned the first corner immediately afterward, and the celerity with which he disappeared, was nobody's business! A fact, this.

OLD ENGLISH MANNERS.

In the reign of James I, men and women wore looking-glasses in public—the men as brooches or ornaments in their hats, and the women at their girdles, or their bosoms, or sometimes, (like the ladies of our day,) in the centre of their fans, which were then made of feathers inserted into silver or ivory tubes.

At feasts, every guest brought his own knife, and a whetstone was placed behind the door, upon which he sharpened his knife as he entered.

In 1664, a Dutchman named William Boonen, brought the first coach into England; and it is said the sight of it put both horses and men into amazement. Some said it was a crab shell brought from China; and some imagined it to be one of the Pagan temples in which the cannibals adored the Devil.

In 1634, two rich widows desired to marry the Earl of Huntington for the sake of the title. One of them offered to lay down £10,000 on the day of her marriage. The other offered £5,000 a year during his life and £6,000 cash down—he to go with her to the church and marry her; but immediately after the ceremony, they were to leave at the church door, and never to see each other again.

In Clarendon's paper is the following:—At Henley upon the Thames, a woman, speaking against taxation imposed by Parliament, was ordered by the committee to have her tongue fastened by a nail to the copy on a tree by the wayside on a market day, which was accordingly done, and a paper in great letters, setting forth the heinousness of her crime,—English Annals.

CHOOSING A PROFESSION.

What an important thing for a young man, or for his parents, to decide, is the choice of a profession—the decision shaping his whole future career. Yet how many there are who decide unwisely, and are wrecked through life for mistaking their vocation. We constantly see misplaced men in various walks of life—lawyers without clients, doctors without patients, actors without applause, who are useless to the world, from incapacity, but who might have served it well had not whim or undue influence, instead of aptitude and vocation, decided their choice of a career. Addison, who considered the question, said: "The misfortune is, that parents take a liking to a particular profession, and therefore desire their sons may be of it; whereas, in so great an affair of life they should consider the genius and abilities of their children more than their own inclinations." Addison wrote, however, in another country, and in the days of old fogyism, when and where matters were managed very differently than with us and in our own times. The fault does not, we fancy, lie so much with parents as with children themselves, who are led astray by caprice and inclination. A blue coat and bright buttons lures many a youngster into the navy, who is no more fitted to tread the quarter deck than an elephant is to dance the tight rope—though, by the way, some elephants dance the tight-rope very cleverly. Young people ought betimes to study themselves very carefully; to consult with friends, and to ascertain how far their capacities agree with their inclinations, before they commit themselves for life to any career. Let them remember that a man is only respectable and successful when he exactly fits a place in life, and that it is not the epaulette that makes the soldier, nor the gown the divine. That an easel don't make a painter is very easily (easel-y) demonstrated. "A sober, frugal person of slender parts might have thrived in trade, though he starves upon physic; as a man would be well enough pleased to buy silks of one whom he would not venture to feel his purse or buy his legal rights."

EDUCATION OF THE AGRICULTURIST.

No man is so high as to be independent of the success of this great interest; no man is so low as not to be affected by its prosperity or decline. Agriculture feeds us; to a great degree it clothes us; without it we could not have manufactures, and we should not have commerce.—These all stand together, but they stand together like pillars in a cluster, the largest in the middle—and the largest is Agriculture. We live in a country of small farms and freehold tenements; a country in which men cultivate with their own hands their own free simple acres, drawing not only their substance, but also their spirit of independance and manly freedom, from the ground they plow. They are at once its owners, its cultivators, and its defenders. The cultivation of the earth is the most important labor of man. Man may be civilized, in some degree, without great progress in manufactures, and but little commerce with his distant neighbors; but without cultivation of the earth, he is in all countries, a savage. Until he fills up the chase and fixes himself to some place and seeks a living from the earth, he is a roaming barbarian. When tillage begins, other arts follow. The farmers, therefore, are the founders of human civilization.—Daniel Webster.

CHINESE SUGAR CANE.

A correspondent of the Southern Farmer gives his opinion of this plant as follows:

Last spring a friend gave me a few grains of the end of this cane—enough to plant some twenty or twenty-five hills, which he had received from the Patent Office. I placed no value upon it, but planted it simply because it was new, and I was anxious to see its growth. It was planted in a poor border in my garden, and its cultivation was at first almost entirely neglected. It, however, came up well, grew up vigorously, and suckered freely. I thought upon observing its growth, that it might be made valuable as an article for soiling cattle, and therefore late in the season, gave it one good working, and kept it free from grass. I saved about three quarts of seed, and about this time I met with some articles stating its abundant supply of saccharine matter. I concluded to give my hogs a taste of it, and was surprised to find the avidity with which they chewed up every portion of the stalk, leaving other green food, such as sweet potato vines and late green corn, too late to mature for roasting ears, and therefore in its prime for this purpose, and selecting these bare stalks in preference.

So satisfied am I of its value for this purpose, that I intend planting the seed I have saved on good land next year, and giving it the usual culture of Indian corn, if for no other purpose to feed my hogs; and, I believe it will pay well—for the stalk is so solid that I do not doubt it may be kept for many weeks without becoming too dry for this use.

INGENUITY OF THE WASP.—As Dr. Darwin was walking one day in his garden, he perceived a wasp upon the gravel walk with a large fly nearly as big as itself, which it had caught. Kneeling down, he distinctly saw it cut off the head and abdomen, and then taking up with his feet the trunk or middle portion of the body, to which the wings remained attached, fly away; but a breeze of wind, acting on the wings of the fly, turned round the wasp with its burden, and impeded its progress. Upon this it alighted again on the gravel walk, deliberately sawed off first one wing, and then the other, and having thus removed the cause of its embarrassment, flew off with his booty.

Further by the Arabia.

BOSTON, Jan. 30.

The steamer Arabia reached her dock about half-past 4 o'clock p. m She came in collision with the brig Scotland, near the mouth of the ice channel, causing some detention, but no serious damage. Her progress up the channel was slow. The ice remains thick, solid, and hundreds of people lined the narrow pathway from Castle to her dock.

The foreign files contain little additional news to that contained in the dispatches sent from Halifax.

Queen Victoria's accouchement was expected to take place in March.

Redpath who swindled his employers of nearly a million dollars, was convicted by the Jury after an absence of five minutes.—His alleged accomplice Reed was acquitted. Redpath was immediately sentenced to transportation for life.

A terrible hurricane devastated the Philippine islands Oct. 21st. All the suburbs of Manilla and the neighboring villages were reduced to heaps of ruin. The number of houses destroyed at that place alone was about 3,000. Official returns show that more than 10,000 houses were destroyed within a circuit of about eight leagues around Manilla. Six foreign vessels in the roads of Manilla were also driven ashore.

Lord Napier's American Mission: Affairs at Home.

The appointment of Lord Napier to represent Queen Victoria at Washington has received much attention from the British press, which is tolerably unanimous in its views. The journalists approve and applaud to complete restoration of official intercourse, inasmuch as it may tend to consolidate the existing cordial relations; but they have not the same congratulations to offer on the choice of person that has been made. On the first point we entirely agree with them; though it is not a little curious—and may be noted by those who thought the world was coming to an end when Mr. Crampton was dismissed—that a most delicate and difficult treaty has been agreed upon, and unwonted displays of international good feeling have taken place, during the interregnum that has prevailed. As to Lord Napier's qualifications for the post, it seems to us that our correspondent, in his sanguine fit of enthusiasm for straightforward dealing, assume more than they are warranted to assume. They take it for granted that his Lordship's diplomatic education and training must of necessity be a drawback to his success. Perhaps they would have such plain-spoken persons as the present Sir Robert Peel, whose latest escapade is detailed on another page, and who certainly exhibits as little delicacy, finesse, or circumlocution as any man that ever figur ed in public life. But does it follow that because Lord Napier is sensible for a cultivated mind to fight a host of intellectual sharpers with their own weapons—does it follow we say, that a man versed in the arts and trickeries of a profession must needs have recourse to them? We think not, and instance a memorable instance to the contrary which has not yet escaped the world's recollection. There was at St. Petersburg, before the late war broke out, a certain Sir Hamilton Seymour, whose direct grappling with a potent, acute, and unscrupulous monarch earned deservedly no little fame. And who was this honest and able Englishman? Was he brought up in a blunt school? Quite otherwise. The odour of diplomacy was in his nostrils from early youth. From 1617 to 1854, a period of nearly forty years, he was learning or practising at half the courts in Europe those accomplishments, at which just now we are all turning up our noses. And so, in an extreme need, Englishman-like he spoke out his country's language, so have we a right to expect that Lord Napier will not be found wanting. We should occupy more space than we can conveniently spare, if we were now to enter a delicate investigation as to the morality of the political stamen at Washington. Perhaps some of our readers are better informed than ourselves, whether there be, after all, a superabundance there of candour and directness of communication—whether, in short, the spirit of intrigue be entirely banished from the District of Columbia.

Beyond an increasing anti-income-tax agitation, and the sort of murmur that precedes a general Election, even as mysterious sounds foretell a coming storm at sea, there is not much in the register of domestic events that claims comment in our "abstract and brief chronicles of the time."—Friends, connected and otherwise, still surprise and vex communities wherein an expensive mode of life is fast becoming imperative. The wisdom of the realm is adrift on the sore subject of the treatment of criminals; whilst criminals are industriously stalling themselves of the sympathies wasted upon them. Mr. Chas. Lefevre, the efficient Speaker of the House of Commons, will retire upon a Peerage and a pension, when the present Parliament is dissolved. A silly fuss is said to have been made in London concerning the exclusive privileges given to the Atlantic Telegraph Company to the British Government, on whose territory is placed the Company's Alpha and Omega. We had an inkling of this absurdity among the Senatorial Anglo phobists at Washington, who thought it hard that there should be a more direct communication between the head and limb of our Empire and certain of its distant members, than between this Republic and its representatives or allies abroad. We say this, not knowing precisely the nature of this London-American complaint, but having read with a very strong feeling of the remark apply to the appropriation of shares, it is altogether beyond our province; if it be a second edition of General Cass's protest, it is nonsense.

THE RIFLED GUN.—Col. Wilmot, the chief officer of the gun department at Woolwich, visited this neighborhood last week for the purpose of inspecting experiments on Whitley Sands with the rifled gun, which for a considerable time has been engaging the attention of Mr. G. W. Armstrong, already so well known in connection with the successful application of hydraulic machinery. Two targets 9 feet square, and a solid block of elm timber 3 feet thick, were fired at from distances of 1,500 and 2,000 yards, and the results exhibited the extraordinary accuracy and power of this gun.—After the range had been tested by a few trial shots, the timber block, which was only 5 feet in breadth, was struck at every succeeding discharge, and although the weight of the bullets was only 5 lbs, they either went entirely through the block, or lodged within a few inches of the opposite side. The targets were fired at with shells at the distance of 1,500 yards. The shells were projected horizontally, like the bullets, and exploded by impact. Only one shell failed to take effect upon the targets, which after a few shots were so perforated as to require repair. At the conclusion they presented a riddled appearance, and the ground was strewed with chips. At 2,000 yards the firing was equally remarkable, but the failure of daylight prevented it being continued. We believe that nothing approaching these results has hitherto been realised in the practice of gunnery.—Newcastle Chronicle.

PORTSMOUTH DOCK-YARD; TROOP-SHIPS; FLOATING BATTERIES.—The dockyard is looking busy again in bringing forward five of our heavy iron screw troop frigates, viz., Simoom, Megera, Assistance, Resolute, and Transit. Each ship can accommodate from 1000 to 1200 soldiers, and it is supposed they will proceed to India. We hear it rumoured that 10,000 troops are to embark without delay. The same mistrust is visible in every one's countenance as existed on the commencement of the Russian outbreak three years since; we are however, on this occasion better prepared. The dockyard is full of stores, all marked and numbered; our batteries and steamers have their sea stores on board; and in one month we could send in any direction, 100 heavy ships of the line, 150 screw gun-boats, and 100 mortar vessels, besides half a dozen huge iron-cased floating batteries; but of these last we have no opinion, nor even had, from the launching at Blackwall the first of these abortions, and the late practice at Plumstead marshes, with 68-pound shot at from 400 to 600 yards has proved that they would sink the strongest of them. When the order was first given for building these expensive and useless batteries, the Morning Herald suggested that the same experiment should be tried, and thereby save us lost their supposed invulnerability. Now it has proved that they are totally unfit for the object intended. and here is another half million of money thrown away.—Morning Herald.

The London correspondent of the New York Tribune, in a recent letter, says:—

"Barnum is in London as the agent of Cordelia Howard. This being the season of pantomime, there is little chance of his securing an engagement for her before March. He is said to be in low spirits and bad health. Even Tom Thumb, who is exhibiting here on his own account, suffers pecuniarily from Barnum's book. The English are a matter of fact people, and what the Americans laugh at as an amusing 'humbug,' they seriously denounce as a 'vile imposition.' Hence the press here denounces Barnum and Thumb, and Barnum, to some breath. The London Atlas of Saturday, in speaking of the latter, says: 'Barnum's confessions have certainly opened the eyes of the public, and none but the idle and foolish will now be likely to attend the General's levee. If they want to see sights there are plenty in this large city for them, and will not afterward be ashamed of having visited.' Poor Barnum! He 'went up like a rocket,' but his injudicious book and his crazy clock speculations brought him 'down like the stick.'"

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The Tribune publishes a letter from Nicaragua dated Castillo Jan. 1st. It gives farther particulars of the Costa Rica version of affairs in that region.

The writer says; "We have about 500 fellows from the mountains of Costa Rica now in Fort San Carlos. They have two 24 pounders, two brass 12 pounders and three 8 pounders.

Plenty of amunition and provisions and firm resolution to hold the river or perish to a man.

We have all the steamers except the San Carlas which I expect will be over with the passengers in a few days.

We have a strong garrison at Sarapiqui with cannon &c., also at Castillo where Costa Rica has inaugurated a Governor.

Last night Gen. Mora and 300 more men were placed in Fort San Carlas, that place having been taken by us the night before without firing a single gun.

We have accomplished a complete and rapid succession of surprises until we are in possession of the whole River from Punta Orenas to Fort San Carlas. The plan of operations is such as to ensure that Walker will desert the country or fall a victim to starvation in less than three weeks.

Walker Driven out of Nicaragua

A special dispatch to the New York Tribune of yesterday, dated Aspinwall, January 19, 1857, states that the British mail steamer Thames had arrived at that place nine days from Greytown, on the 3rd inst, to the 18th inst. She brought thirty five of WALKER'S men, who were immediately transferred on board of the Granada, which steamer left this day for Greytown, to receive on board and convey to New-Orleans the filibusters brought out by the Texas steamer Empire Adger. It was calculated that most of the filibusters would leave by the Granada.

WALKER has evacuated or been driven out of Rivas, and was at St. George surrounded by the allies, who had offered him terms of surrender; and as he had no means of receiving supplies of provisions, &c., it was hourly expected that his followers would ground their arms. The remnant of 7,000 men, sent at various times from the States to WALKER, are now reduced to 500.—Walkerism in Nicaragua has ceased to exist.

In reference to the present position of affairs in China, the N. Y. Herald says:—

"We desire strongly to urge upon the government the duty of co-operating energetically with the governments of France and England in an inaugurating a general Christian policy of civilization against the Chinese. We do not desire to exterminate these poor people. We do not wish to deprive them of liberty or independence. All that we desire is that they will let us sail our steamers up their rivers and peddle our wares in their big towns, without having our throats cut: and this we want to do, paying our way, and behaving fairly to all men. If the Chinese refuse, why, then, we want the three great governments of the world, France, England and the United States, to force them into our views. It will come to this sooner or later; it is only a question whether Mr. Pierce has the sagacity to anticipate events, or will leave the glory to his successor."

The Grand Trunk Railway's Through Ticket System.

The Times appears to be kept "posted up" in Grand Trunk affairs. An article which appeared in this journal, just before Mr. Ridder left this country for England, is thus worked up in the money article of that journal of the 9th inst.:

"The Grand Trunk Railway of Canada are making arrangements to establish a system of through tickets, by which passengers from Europe may secure their route to any part of Canada or the United States without the necessity of making any subsequent payment or inquiry. The necessary agreements with all the leading railways of the United States have already been completed, and the plan is likely to effect the important service of putting a stop to the base impositions by which emigrants and other travellers to America have hitherto been defrauded."

D. C. Stuges writes to the N. Y. Tribune in reference to the recent threatened negro insurrection, that a letter has been received from the daughter of a physician and planter resident in Tennessee (and whose father was the owner of a "a valuable and intelligent negro" employed at the Dover Iron Works,) in which it is stated that twenty of the negroes engaged at the latter place had been whipped to death and decapitated, and that their heads had been placed upon poles along the Cumberland River! The same letter speaks of a white man who was squeezed to death in a cotton-press!—Globe.

The Maple Leaf,

SANDWICH, FEBRUARY 5, 1857.

The County Agricultural Society for the County of Essex, will hold its annual meeting in this town, on Saturday, the 21st inst., for the purpose of electing officers, receiving the annual report, and also to receive the Township reports. It is necessary that all Township Societies should forward to the Secretary of the County Society their reports before the meeting, in order that they may receive their portion of the public grant.—Last year, only a very few of the Townships sent in their reports, as directed by the statute; but we hope that no neglect or want of interest will be shown in this very important matter during this year. Instead of inaction, let there be energy and perseverance displayed by agriculturists in the Townships.

No action whatever appears to have been taken on behalf of the Township of Sandwich Society; no meeting having been called for the election of Directors, &c.—Who is to blame for this? Why should not our Society be kept up? We have been informed that there is a considerable sum of money in the hands of some person, belonging to the Society, which will be lost if no steps are taken to revive it. We certainly hope to see a better feeling shown towards Agriculture than to let the societies all die out.

We would impress it upon the minds of the different secretaries of branch societies to prepare their reports, and forward them in time to the secretary of the County Society; and as the time is fast approaching, there should be no time lost.

It affords us great pleasure in being able to state, that, at the last meeting of the County Council, it was decided upon to place at the disposal of the Grammar School Trustees, two rooms in the old Court House, for the purpose of reviving the school. It is to be hoped that immediate steps will be taken by the Trustees to open again, and afford an opportunity to the public, to give more than an ordinary English education to their children.

There are at present, we are informed, a sufficient number of boys in one school in this town, to make up the complement required to keep open the Grammar School, who are sufficiently far advanced. And we have no doubt, that if an union with the Common School could be accomplished, or if the Common School could be made a stepping stone to the Grammar School, there would be no difficulty whatever in securing a large attendance.

We would advise that one of the room be used as a Common School, and the other as the Grammar School, so that the boys may be transferred from one to the other as soon as they are sufficiently advanced in the Common School, to warrant their being placed under the Grammar School Teacher.

The public will look for immediate action upon the part of the Trustees, and they can have no excuse whatever in not immediately opening the school. Better rooms could not have been found than those handed over to the Trustees, and the opportunity should not be lost sight of.

PRESTON'S BANK NOTE AND COMMERCIAL REPORTER.—This is the title of a new work just started in Detroit; it is published semi-monthly by D. Preston and Co, Bankers, at the very low price of One Dollar a year, as well as a Coin Chart to accompany it. The work appears to be carefully and correctly made up and will be of the greatest advantage to merchants and others, in giving a correct list of all Banks upon the continent and their condition. We would recommend to all our business men the advantage to them, of taking Preston's Bank Note Reporter.

☞ We are requested to state that Capt. Joseph Mercer is desirous of raising a Volunteer Rifle Company having its head quarters at Sandwich. Persons wishing to join will please apply to him and have their names enrolled.

This Company is intended to be organized under the new Militia Act.

☞ The New Court House and Gaol will in a few days be occupied. The Council having given directions for an immediate removal from the old building, of the prisoners. Some of the public offices have already been taken there, the Sheriff's in particular.

The building is convenient and well adapted for a prison—and will be a great improvement upon the old gaol.

☞ A smart, active lad is wanted at this office, as an apprentice to learn the business

NEW HOPE.—On Wednesday the inhabitants of New Hope were thrown into a state of consternation by the appearance of a mad dog in their streets. The animal was at once pursued, but managed in his career to bite 14 dogs, all of which were at once destroyed. One man who followed the maddened beast had a narrow escape. He threw a pitchfork at the animal, but missed him, and the dog at once turned upon him. The man, seizing a stick had a very hard fight for his life, as the brute several times got hold of the weapon with his teeth. The opportune arrival of other pursuers, however, relieved the poor fellow from his peril and after another short run the dog was destroyed.—Galt Reporter.

The Montreal Argus says:—"We are informed that three heroes, James Somerville, jun., Daniel Carmichael, and Richard J. Robertson, ventured to cross the ice over the Lachine Rapids to the "Devil's Island." These three pioneers can say they were the first and only men that ever walked over the above mentioned rapids. Such a circumstance did not fail to excite the admiration of every spectator."

We are sorry to notice that the Printing Office of our contemporary, the St. Catherines Post, has been destroyed by fire, and that the loss to the proprietors has been serious. The paper is temporarily suspended, but we trust that it will speedily reappear with increased strength and spirit. We expect no less from the enterprise of the publishers.—Ex.

In the Patent Office, London, provisional protection has within the last few weeks been granted to James Hartas Headley, of Canada, Inventor and Engineer, for an improved mode of manufacturing artificial granite in various forms, and plating or veneering the same with marble, so as to present an exterior of marble and an interior of stone or granite."

The Niagara Mail of the 20th says that on Sunday last an old female named Mrs. Ross, who lived with her grand daughter a child aged 3 years, was found dead lying on the floor about 3 o'clock, P. M. During the day the neighbours had noticed that the shutters remained closed and hearing the child cry in the house they opened a window got in and found the body of Mrs. Ross, in its night dress stretched on the floor. Mrs. Ross as far as could be ascertained from the child, got up during Saturday night and after drinking something, fell down and begged the child to go tell a neighbor to come in. But the child could not open the door and the poor woman died so. The child being terrified got into bed and remained there until next afternoon before it was rescued from its painful situation.

OUTRAGEOUS PUNISHMENT.—At a recent meeting of the Board of "Ten Governors," in New York a communication was received from the Randall's Island, stating that Mrs. Jackson, the principal teacher in the primary department of the school on that Island, had punished a child for talking, by putting his tongue on the stove. He says that the teacher acknowledges that the child put his tongue upon the stove; though, as she says, the stove was not very hot. One of the associate teachers said that she saw the tongue immediately after the occurrence, and it was blistered. The warden says that, as far as he can learn, this mode of punishment has been practiced before on other children, or at least they have been threatened by it.

The St. Mary's Argus says, that on the 22nd January a woman was frozen to death while riding from Stratford to North Easthope, in an ox-sleigh. Her husband who was driving and riding in the sleigh, was not aware of the sad occurrence, until, on reaching home, he lifted his wife from the sleigh a frozen corpse.

The Consul at Canea in Crete, H. S. Ongley, Esq., has forwarded to the Times an official statement of the injury to the life and property caused by the severe earthquake in that island, which took place on Sunday morning, the 12th October. It appears that 6,512 buildings were destroyed, and 11,317 injured; 538 persons were killed, 638 wounded.—Globe.

ADVANTAGES OF LIFE INSURANCE.—The Montreal Argus, in a notice of the death of the late Wm. Gunn, Esq., of Quebec, Cashier of the branch of the Montreal Bank in the city, says they were recently informed that he had his life insured in the "International" office for the snug sum of £1,500 sterling or $7,500. It further adds that this sum properly invested, would yield £150 or $500 a year, sufficient to maintain in moderate circumstances, a small family. We only allude to this one fact to show the advantages accruing from Life Assurance. At the same time it shows with what care those men, connected with our large Monetary Institutions, choose their offices to insure in."

The Clear Grit "Alliance,"

The editor of the Prescott Telegraph who signed the call for the Clear Grit Caucus at Toronto, thus speaks of the result of the gathering:—

"When the 'Circular' was sent to us, we unhesitatingly signed it, as we approved of the principles therein laid down; at the same time we were of the opinion that the movement was premature; that although the intentions of Toronto were good, the means to carry them into practical effect were not in a position to do so. Besides, the platform should have been broad enough for a large portion of the Lower Canadians to stand upon, without whose countenance and support no minister can exist. We must also confess that there has of late been so much political quackery, so many platforms and planks, and nostrums, for the cure of the diseases of the body politic, that we have come to the conclusion to place little confidence in the practicability of any of them until we can get men on whom the country can rely, to effect those reforms which are needed. When we reflect that some of the leaders in this late movement were the men who, ever since the inauguration of a Reform government, have been systematic fault-finders, being jealous and uneasy when we remember that they are the parties who assisted in driving Mr. Baldwin from office, and who are at this moment responsible for the present order of things, we cannot bring ourselves to believe that the 'demonstration' will be productive of such important results as some of our contemporaries imagine. The simple truth is, we want men—men of firmness, foresight, not given to change for the novelty of the thing and startling political integrity. The country is hoping, longing, praying for the right men to arise, and take the right place. No such man is now in Parliament; and until a new election shall 'bring him out,' we must only grin and bear such rule as the present ministry may choose to inflict upon the country.

With these sentiments we know that some of our co-laborors of the reform press do not agree. We cannot help it; we judge of men by their acts; and we pin our faith to the sleeve of no one. We hope and trust, however, that the great meeting before mentioned will not prove fruitless; but that it may lead to better understanding, and that the initiation of a policy quite different to that which has marked the course of those who claim to be leaders of the great Reform party of Upper Canada. Dearly have these gentlemen paid for their various extravaganzas in former years; much has the country suffered in consequence. May they learn wisdom and moderation from the past.

Serious Railroad Accident

BERLIN, C. W., Feb. 2.

About 6 o'clock, last evening, (Sunday, the up freight train, which was due here on Saturday, ran over two cutters, containing in all five persons, causing the death of Mary Moyer and severely injuring three others, viz.: Esther Moyer, thigh broken; Moses Moyer, skull fractured and not expected to live, and Benjamin Bowman, badly bruised about the head, shoulder bone broken and hand badly hurt. The three Moyers were all of the family of Abraham Moyer, farmer, Berlin. The other escaped unhurt by jumping from the cutter. The road near the crossing is in a hollow in the vicinity of the Grand River Bridge, runs alongside of the track for some distance, and the train coming up behind the cutters, frightened the horses and rendered them unmanageable,—they ran furiously for the crossing, which they reached just as the train was passing over, and were crushed beneath it.

The Montreal Argus of Monday says:—"On Saturday morning, after the unequalled cold days of last week, the River St. Lawrence at Lachine, from the point where the parsonage stands, as far as the eye could reach, appeared to be frozen across. Never in the memory of the oldest inhabitant, has this been seen before. The point alluded to is immediately opposite Caughnawaga, where the Grand Trunk pier connecting the Montreal and New York Railroad, and where the current is most rapid and strong. We have not heard whether the steamer Iroquois was prevented from crossing; but, judging from the appearance of the ice, we should think she was. We observed, also, that the steamer along the banks of the river rising, indicating the passage to be stopped further below. Another day or two of such weather and a passage for sleighs or pedestrians might be made from the Indian Village opposite to Lachine."

The "Persia" when she arrived at New York on Saturday, bore unmistakable evidence of having had a rough passage. Ice in thin sheets in some places, and in huge fantastically formed masses in others, covered her hull from stem to stern. The wheel houses were lost to sight, and the figure-head could hardly be traced through the glittering folds of the icy mantle that enveloped it. From the spectacle she presented, one could form some idea of the severity and difficulty of a passage across the ocean in mid-winter.—Globe.

Some time since we alluded to some cases of Hydrophobia that had occurred on the farm of A. McNeledge, Esq., near Dover, where a horse had bitten by a rabid dog. This was over three months ago, and a few days since the horse died in a most unusual and rather strange manner, but was driven to Vittoria and back and afterwards to Dover and home. On the following day he was given some medicine, and put into the barn by himself; his head appeared much affected, and he seemed to lose his eyesight, snapping at every thing before him, while his hind limbs appeared very weak. He grew worse, and in the evening it was deemed advisable to kill him; he was therefore shot and his carcass burned. The horse was a very valuable one.—Conservative Standard.

EAST INDIAN JUGGLERY.—Madame Pfeiffer, in her 'Second Sourney Round the World, gives the following description of certain unexplainable feats of jugglery witnessed by her while sojourning through the East Indies: "At the close of the entertainment, the performance of Hercules was really curious in its way. He appeared with nothing on but a pair of drawers, and a cord was passed around his neck, and with his hands and arms were firmly tied behind him that he could not make the smallest movement. He came to us to have the knots examined, and then he crept under a high covered basket, beneath which various garments were placed; and after the lapse of a few minutes, the basket was lifted up, and the Hercules made his appearance completely clothed in them. Then he crept again under the basket and came out without them, &c. All this would, of course, have been nothing in a theatre, where assistance might have been given him, but this was in a meadow, where no assistance was possible. One of the gentlemen present offered him twenty-five rupees for his mystery but he declined the offer."

COAL VERSUS GOLD.—It appears that the coal exported from the mines of Pennsylvania the last year has been equal to the sum of forty millions of dollars, which is well up to the yield of the gold mines of California; and yet while we have heard little or nothing of Pennsylvania coal, all the world has been running crazy after California gold.

THE NEW CENT.—We are indebted to the Director of the U. S. Mint, Col. J. Ross Snowden, for several of the new cent coins just produced. They are a decided improvement on the old and necessarily heavy cent. The new piece is rather larger than a quarter eagle. On the one side is a side view of an eagle flying; around the border being the words. "United States of America," and at the bottom the date 1856. On the other side is a wreath formed of ears of corn, heads of wheat, rye, and other cereals, and grape vines, and inside is the designation "one cent," the lettering of which seems to be too light. The coin is neat and convenient. Being alloyed with silver, the color is much lighter than that of the common cent. The most obvious objection to it is, that it will be too readily mistaken by careless people for a quarter eagle—North American.

The fire-alarm of Boston is the most perfect, probably of any in the world. The city is divided into seven fire districts. In each of these districts there are a number of little cast iron boxes, fastened to the sides of buildings. These are the signal stations. When a fire breaks out near one of these stations, the watchman, or the man who keeps the key, goes to the box and turns the crank in it slowly six times. That sends the alarm along the wires to the central office, in Court Square, and the man there knows just where it came from, and he strikes the number of the district upon the bells. There are about forty of those signal boxes, and each has its wire running to the central office. Then there is another set of wires that lead from the office to the bells.

A machinist at Memphis, Tennessee, has contrived what he calls a marine locomotive, which he is confident can be constructed so as to make thirty miles an hour. The invention consists in using two huge parallel hollow screws in place of the present keel, and revolving them by means of steam power, so that they will cut their way through the water as a common screw cuts into wood.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Skin diseases cannot be cured by lotions and embrocations. A detergent capable of reaching and neutralizing the sources of irritation that lie under the superficial integuments can alone eradicate these unsightly disorders, Holloway's ointment, when rubbed into the skin, quickly disappears.—It dives down to the nucleus of the malady, and reduces outward inflammation by extinguishing its elements. The cures it accomplishes in cases of scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, mercurial eruptions, blotches, boils, ringworm, scald head, and other affections of the skin and glands, are therefore as they are rapid. The operation of the Pills upon the internal organs is of the same thorough character.

Health and Long Life.

The citizens of the United States and Canada suffer much from disorders of the Liver and Stomach, scarcely any are free from the influence of these destructive maladies, hence life wears fast. The Fair Sex, certainly the most handsome in the world, up to a certain period, when, distressing to say many lose their teeth and good looks, while yet in the heyday of life; such sad events may be effectually remedied by continually keeping the blood pure, and the Liver and Stomach in a healthy action, when life will flow smoothly, and resemble plants in a congenial clime, where an eternal spring appears to reign. As it regards the preservation of the human frame, and the duration of life, much may be effected, and we say fearlessly, that health and life can be prolonged for many years beyond their ordinary limit, if Sir Astley Cooper's Pills are taken to purify the Blood, according to the rules laid down for health, contained in the directions which accompany each box.

Thousands who have been afflicted in every possible way, are daily bearing their grateful testimony to the great benefits they have received from their use, and are now rejoicing in a renewed state of health, after having long despired of ever possessing it again.

CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.—Observe that on the top of each box of the Genuine Pills there is an excellent likeness of the late Sir Astley Cooper, from the celebarted painting by Lawrence; also the fac-simile signature of MacPhail & Co., the Sole Proprietors, London and New York, on each box, and on the directions. Without these marks of authenticity they are certainly spurious and an imposition.

Sold at 25 and 50 cents per box, and in Family boxes at $1 each. There is a great saving by purchasing the larger sizes.

For sale by Simpson and Dunspaugh, Druggists, Toronto; John M. Thornton, Dundas; Andrew Oliver Galt; A. H. Cook, Brantford, General Country Agent, by whom Country Druggists and Merchants will be supplied at London and New York prices.

TORONTO, Jan. 3, 1857.

The daily arrivals of farming produce in market during the week have averaged about the usual amount. A good demand has prevailed.

WHEAT.—The supply, this week, has been somewhat larger than that offering the previous week. The advanced rates prevailing at the close of last week's market, have been fully maintained, and in several during the week, a still further advance was obtained for some loads of superior Wheat. Those high rates result from the keen competition still existing among buyers. The extreme figure of the week was 6d 9d. per bushel. Spring Wheat has been in active enquiry, and sold for 5s 3d to 5s 4d, per bushel.

FLOUR has been in very good demand—the supply for the last two days being rather better than that offering in the earlier portion of the week. Prices remain firm at last rates. Superfine has been enquired for at $5 25 per barrel, but was generally held at 25c advance. Fancy is held at $5 75, and Extra at $6 to $6 50 was paid for best quality in some instances.—Farmer's Flour has been sold at from $5 25 to 5 50 per barrel, in bags.

RYE sells at 3s 6d. to 3s 9d. per bushel.

BARLEY has been in good demand and prices advanced to 6s 1d per bushel, on the day. The general figure, however has been 6s per bushel.

OATS have offered, in pretty fair supply at 2s 10d. per bushel during the week. But purchasers have been chary in making purchases at a higher rate than 2s 9d per bush. In store they are held at 2s 9d per bushel.

PEAS sell at from 3s 9 to 4s per bushel.

A MEDICAL REVOLUTION!

THE WORLD UNANIMOUS!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

THE GREAT COUNTER IRRITANT!!

The virus of disease often makes its way to the internal organs through the pores of the skin. This penetrating Ointment, melting under the hand as it is rubbed in, is absorbed through the same channels, and, reaching the seat of inflammation, promptly and invariably subdues it, whether located in the kidneys, the liver, the lungs, or any other important organ. It penetrates the surface to the interior, through the countless tubes that communicate with the skin as summer rain passes into the fevered earth, diffusing its cool and regenerating influences

Skin-Diseases & Glandular Swellings!

Every species of exterior irritation is quickly reduced by the anti-inflammatory action of this Ointment. ANGRY ERUPTIONS, such as SALT RHEUM, ERYSIPELAS, TETTER, RINGWORM, SCALD HEAD, NETTLE RASH, SCABBES (or Itch) &c., to die out, to return no more, under its application. Hospital experience in all parts of the world proves its infallibility in diseases of the skin, the muscles, the joints and the glands.

Ulcers, Sores & Tumours!

The effect of this unrivalled external remedy upon Scrofula and other virulent ulcers and sores, is almost miraculous. It first discharges the poison which produces suppuration and proud flesh, and thus the cures which its healing properties afterward complete are safe as well as permanent.

Wounds, Bruises, Burns & scalds.

In cases of the fracture of the bones, injuries caused by steam explosions, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Rheumatism, Stiffness of the Joints, and contraction of the sinews, it is employed and warmly recommended by the faculty. This marvellous remedy has been introduced by its inventor in person into all the leading hospitals of Europe, and no private household should be without it.

Undeniable Testimony!

The Medical Staff of the French and English Armies in the Crimea have officially signed their approval of Holloway's Ointment, as the most reliable dressing for sabre cuts, stabs, and gun-shot wounds. It is also used by the surgeons of the Allied Navies.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases.

A Great and Good Book for Everybody

THE NEW ILLUSTRATED

Hydropathic Encyclopedia,

A COMPLETE SYSTEM OF

HYDROPATHY & HYGIENE,

IN ONE LARGE VOLUME.

EMBRACING Outlines of Anatomy, Illustrated; Physiology of the Human Body; Hygiene and its Agencies and the Preservation of Health; Diotics and Hydropathic Cookery; Theory and Practice of Water Treatment; Special Pathology and Hydropathic Therapeutics, including the Nature, Cause Symptoms and Treatment of all known diseases; Application to Surgical Diseases; Application of Hydropathy to Midwifery and the Nursery; with three hundred engraving, and nearly One Thousand Pages, including a Glossary, Table of Contents, and a complete Index. By R. T. TRALL, M. D.

Published by FOWLER and WELLS, New York.

In the plan of the work, the wants and necessities of the People have been steadily in view. While almost every topic of interest in the departments of Anatomy, Physiology, Pathology, Hygiene, Therapeutics is freely presented, those of practical utility are always put prominently forward. The prevailing errors, conceits, and whims of the day and age are exposed and refuted; the theories and hypothesis upon which the popular drug practice is predicated are controverted, and the why and wherefore of their fallacy clearly demonstrated. The following is a brief analysis of its contents:

History of Medicine; History of Bathing; History of Medicated Baths.

Anatomy illustrated by One Hundred and Twenty appropriate engravings.

Physiology, illustrated, comprising the Rationale of Muscular Action; the Nervous Influence; Philosophy of Mind? Mesmeric Phenomena; the Special Senses; Functions of Digestion, Circulation, Respiration, Absorption, Nutrition, Secretion, Excretion, Calorification, Temperaments, the Races of Men, and Theory of Population.

Hygiene embracing all the relations of Air, Light, Drink, Food, Temperature, Exercise, Sleep, Clothing, Bathing, and the Passions to the growth and development of Body and Mind, the Preservation of Health and the attainment of Longevity.

Dietetics, comprising the Bible, Anatomical, Physiological, Chemical and Experimental Evidence concerning the natural Dietetic Character of Man.

Hydropathic Cookery, with Specific Directions for the Preparation of Food in

Dietaries, containing the Therapeutic Distinctions of Diet for Invalids.

Philosophy of Water-Cure, with illustrated explanations of all the water-cure applian ces, a Philosophical Exposition of the modus operandi of water-treatment, and the true rationale of drug-treatment.

The Nature Symptoms and Treatment of all known Diseases are examined, the ill success of the practice exposed, and the proper Medication recommended and specified.

The Treatment of surgical Diseases illustrated and the directions for the minor operations given.

The Management of Lying-in-Women, and the treatment of Children, &c.

The work is intended to be plain, intelligible and sufficient guide for domestic practice, or home treatment, in all ordinary diseases, embracing the whole range of subjects connected with the philosophy of life, the preservation of health, and the treatment of diseases.

This great work may be had in one large volume, bound in library style, Price pre-paid by mail to any Post Office in United States or Canada, only THREE DOLLARS.

CHARLES BABY, CLERK PEACE ESSEX

Office of the Clerk of the Peace, Sandwich, January 12th 1857.

Select Poetry.

Song of the Peasant Wife.

BY THE HON. MRS. NORTON.

Come, Patrick, clear up the storm on your brow;
You were kind to me once—will your frown
on me now?
Shall the storm settle here when from heaven
it departs,
And the cold from without find its way to our hearts?
No, Patrick, no! sure the wintriest weather
Is easily borne, when we bear it together.

Though the rain's dropping through, from the roof to the floor.
And the wind whistles free where there once
was a door,
Can the rain or the snow, or the storm wash away
All the warm vows made in our love's early day!
No, Patrick, no! sure the dark stormy weather
Is easily borne, if we bear it together.

When you stole out to woo me when labor was done,
And the day that was closing to us seemed begun,
Did we care if the sunset was bright on the green,
Or if we crept out amid darkness and showers?
No, Patrick! we talked while we braved the wild weather,
Of all we could bear, if we bore it together.

Soon, soon, will these dark dreary days be gone by,
And our hearts be lit up by a beam from the sky!
Oh, let not our spirits, embittered with pain,
Be dead to the sunshine that came to us
then?
Heart in heart, hand in hand, let us welcome
the weather,
And sunshine or storm, we will bear it together.

The Death-Grasp.

I.

Through the whole length and breadth of England, there are but very few human habitations, from the magnificent palace of the sovereign down to the wretched hut of the peasant, where the inmates do not anxiously look forward to Christmas. It is a season of rejoicing for young and old, rich and poor; a season when friendships are strengthened and injuries forgotten; a season when people open not only their houses but their hearts, a season, in a word, when even the most sceptical and misanthropical cannot fail to perceive the threads of kindness, gentleness, charity and faith, running through the dark woof of life, just as the glorious gold border, which we have all so much admired and coveted as boys, was interwoven in every piece of muslin, however coarse, that our mothers' fingers ever transformed into gowns, caps, or habitshirts.

One of the few places, to our knowledge, where an exception is to be found to the general mirth and rejoicing that characterises Christmas, is Coldbrook Hall, in the little village of Fulford-le-Hope, on the coast of Essex. Christmas is there a time of gloom and desolation. A week before Christmas Day the family leave the old building, to which they do not return for ten days or a fortnight. During their absence, it is completely uninhabited; not a single person is left behind, and while sounds of merriment and joviality are heard in every house, red bright lights stream from almost every window in the village, to human voice echoes, beneath the roof of Coldbrook Hall. Those, however, who are sufficiently curious and daring to approach the ancient pile during the period its masters have deserted it, may see and hear strange things. Such, at least is the belief of all the inhabitants of the neighbourhood for miles around, not one of whom is ignorant of the legend of the Death-Grasp.

During a short stay we made, last summer at Fulford-le-Hope, we heard this legend from Mr. Massey, the civil and obliging landlord of the Coldbrook Arms, an excellent inn, which we recommend to such of our readers as may chance to visit the village. Mr. Massey, like his forefathers for now more than two centuries, was formerly in the service of the Arnells, who are the possessors of Coldbrook Hall, and related to the family of the same name in Devonshire. It was from him that we learned the reason which induce the family periodically to abandon their ancestral seat in the manner we have mentioned. The following is, in all essential points, the purport of his story.

II.

On Christmas Eve, 1630, the only members of the family then stopping at Coldbrook Hall were Hugh Arnell and his cousin Margaret Brill, a rich young heiress.—Her father and mother being dead, she had been confided to the guardianship of her uncle, Sir Marmaduke Arnell. The latter, together with his wife and second son, Thomas, had gone to spend their Christmas in London. Hugh had also been invited, but, on some pretext or other, had refused the invitation. Margaret, too, had not gone, on account of ill-health.

About seven o'clock on the evening in question, Hugh Arnell was in the library, a large and lofty apartment, three sides of which were occupied by al eves filled with books. On the fourth side were six windows reaching down to the floor. They were now concealed by heavy crimson curtains. Two massive silver candelabra, with wax tapers, spread a strong light for a circumscribed space around the table, drawn up near the huge fireplace, inside which half a dozen persons, at least, might have seated themselves with ease. So vast, however, were the proportions of the apartment, that the light, strong and brilliant though it was, could not entirely illuminate it, and its further extremities were veilled in a kind of half obscurity. On the hearth blazed an immense wood fire, to which Hugh Arnell kept adding logs after log, until the heat became almost unbearable, despite the snow and frost without. He threw on, also, large pieces of some other substance than wood, which curled up, and sputtered in the hot sales, emitting, at the same time, a faint and smouldering odour. While he was thus engaged, a knock was heard at the door at the opposite end of the room

"Who is there?" he exclaimed, suddenly turning round and shutting the lid of a strong oak chest placed between the table and the windows. "Who is there?"

"It is I; Margaret," replied a voice out side.

"What do you want? I am reading; I am busy," he answered, going towards the door, which was secured by a heavy bolt.

"I would speak to you on something of the greatest importance; I entreat you to let me enter," said Margaret.

"Impossible," returned Hugh, glancing round to the fireplace, and then examining the ponderous bolt. What was his surprise to see the bolt shoot back, apparently of its own accord, for only those who might be inside the room could gain access to it, and he himself, the only person there, had not touched it. He staggered back a few paces with an air of astonishment and incredulity; the door opened, and Margaret entered.

Margaret Brill was a young and beautiful creature, of about two and twenty. She was tall and somewhat slim, but eminently graceful in every gesture and every movement. The outline of her face formed a perfectoval, lighted up by a pair of lustrious black eyes. At the moment of her entering the apartment, they beamed with more than usual brilliancy; while her long, glossy black hair, unconfined by comb or band, streamed over her shoulders. She was dressed in a loose white wrapper—not whiter, however than her face, which more resembled that of a corpse than of a human being.

"What do you require?" stammured forth Hugh. "What, Margaret! You are ill, darling. You are deadly pale."

Paying no attention to what he said, Margaret slowly advanced towards the table, Hugh retreating before her, and seemingly incapable of arresting her progress, however he might feel inclined to do so. She put down on the table the light she was carrying in her hand, and then said—

"I have come to ask you concerning Edward Noris."

"Edward Noris," repeated Hugh.

"Ay, Edward Noris. It is strange that I should come on such an errand, is it not? Stranger still is the reason of my doing so. You are his rival. You would fain be my husband. Your father, my uncle and guardian, also wishes me to become your wife.—Perhaps he would not be sorry to see you master of the large property I have inherited, and which he still holds, although times that I shall never wed Edward Noris, I am kept here a close prisoners, to prevent my doing so. I saw no means of escaping from this tyranny until three days ago."

(To be Continued in our next.)

A Yankee editor has just received from his friends a new overcoat. He is as ethusiastic about it as a boy in his first boots and says: "It fits as well as if he had been melted and poured into it."

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing numerous original engravings, beautiful pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, readers such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" peculiarly necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features, each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

Practical Farmers, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rod of tillable earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion, at the extraordinary low price at which it is afforded: together with its really superior execution, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

"The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of pearl surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with July, 1855. To Emigrants & Others Seeking LAND FOR SETTLEMENT.

THE Provincial Government have recently opened out three great lines of road, now in course of completion, and have surveyed and laid out for settlement the Lands through, and in the vicinity of, which those Roads pass.

The Roads, as advertised by the Agents of the Government, appointed to the respective localities to afford information to the Settler, are known as

THE OTTAWA AND OPEONGO ROAD,
THE ADDINGTON ROAD,' and
THE HASTINGS ROAD,

The Ottawa and Opeongo Road

Commences at a point on the Ottawa River known as "Ferrat's," a little above the mouth of the Bonchere River, and passing in a Northerly direction, passing through the northerly part of the County of Renfrew.

It is intended to connect this road with a projected line of road known as "Hall's Line," leading to the Lake Muskako, and Lake Huron, by a branch which will diverge from the Opeongo Road in the Township of Brudnell, at a distance of about 58 miles from the River Ottawa, forming with "Bell's Line," a great leading road, or base line from the Ottawa to Lake Muskako, 171 miles in length, passing through the Townships of Lyndoch and Huron Territory, and opening up for settlement a vast extent of rich and valuable land.)

This road, and the country through which it passes, lies open for settlement, is easily accessible, and the Agent for the granting of Lands in this district is Mr. T. P. French, who resides at Monfort St. Ryan, next Renfrew, on the Opeongo Road, a few miles from the Lands which are to be granted.—To reach the section of Country under Dr. French's Agency, the Settler must go from MONTREAL up to the Ottawa River to a place called Bonchere Point, and thence by land some twenty-five or thirty miles westward to the Township of Grattan, in which Mount St. Patrick is situated.

The Addington Road

Commencing in the Township of Anglesea, in the northern part of the County of Addington, near the Village of Flint's Mills, Kaladar, runs almost due north to the Ottawa River, a distance of 35 miles, and is to be continued thence for the distance of 25 miles till it intersects to Ottawa and Opeongo Road.

The Agent for the granting of the Land in this district is Mr. E. Perry, who, for that purpose, is now resident at FLINT'S MILLS. The outlines of the Township have been surveyed and are already surveyed and ready for settlement within the limits of the Agency, lying north of Lake Massauska, and between it and the River Kaladwaska. The Townships are called respectively Abinger, Denbigh Ashley, Effingham, Anglesea, and Barrie.

The direct route to this section is by way of Kingston, Canada West, thence North to the Township of Kaladar, and the Village of FLINT'S MILLS, where Mr. Perry resides.

Hastings Road!

Almost parallel to the Addington Road, and at a distance West from it of about 36 miles is the HASTINGS ROAD. This road beginning at the northern part of the Township of Hastings, and running a distance of 74 miles, almost due north, also intersects the OTTAWA and OPEONGO ROAD and its extensions.

The Government Agent is Mr. M. P. Hayes, who resides at the Village of Hastings, largely called Madoc, about 23 miles north of the Town of Belleville. The Lands open to these places is in good order. The land to be granted by the Crown under this Agency extends from 15 to 17 miles north of the Village of Hastings. The road through the Township of Madoc is passable for 40 miles, and money is now being expended to extend it 30 miles further, so that Settlers can get in and out without difficulty, and find a good market for surplus produce, as well as convenient facilities for bringing in whatever supplies they may require—ambundance of which can be had at the Village of Hastings, where the Government agent resides.

The direct way to reach this Station, which is easily accessible, is by Kingston and Cobourg Week, thence by Steamboat from Bay of Quinte to Belleville 56 miles, and thence by a good Road to Hastings, 28 miles.

In order to facilitate the Settlement of the Country, and provide for keeping in repair the Roads thus opened, the Government authorised Free Grants of Land along these lines of road, not to exceed in each case ONE HUNDRED ACRES, upon application to the Local Agents, and upon the following

CONDITIONS

That the Settler be eighteen years of age.

That he take possession of the Land allotted to him within one month, and put in a state of cultivation at least twelve acres of the land in the course of four years—build a house (at least 20 by 16 feet), and reside on the lot until the conditions of settlement are duly performed; after which accomplishment only shall the settler have the right of obtaining a title to the property. Parties comprising several settlers entitled to lands, preferring to reside on a single lot, will be exempted from the obligation of building a house (at least 20 by 16 feet), except on that on which they live provided that the required clearing of the lands be made on each lot. The non-accomplishment of these conditions will cause the forfeiture of the lands of the assigned lot of land, which will be sold or given to another.

The road having been opened by the Government, the settlers are required to keep it in repair.

The Local Agents, whose names and places of abode have already been given, will furnish every information to the intending Settler.

The LOG HOUSE required by the Government to be built, is of such description as a settler can put up in a few days by five men. The neighbours generally help to build the Log Cabin for newly arrived Settlers, without charge, and when this is done the cost of the whole does not exceed $8. The roof is covered with bark, and the space between the logs plastered with clay, and white-washed. It then becomes a neat dwelling and warm as a stone house.

The lands thus opened up and offered for settlement, are, in sections of Canada West, capable both as to Soil and Climate, of producing abundant crops of winter wheat, of excellent quality and full weight, also crops of every other description of farm produce, grown in the best and most profitable manner, and that portion of the Province, and fully as good.

There are, of course, in such a large extent of country as that referred to, great varieties in the character and quality of land —some lots being much superior to others; but there is anabundance of the very best land for forming purposes. The Lands in the neighbourhood of these three roads will be found to be very similar in quality and character, and covered with every variety of Timber—some with hard wood, and some with heavy pine.

Water for domestic use is every where abundant; and there are, throughout, numerous streams and falls of water, capable of being used for Manufacturing purposes.

The heavy timbered land is almost always the best, and of it; the sales of three acres, well taken care and covered from wet—will be first class wheat crop, if an orange one, will nearly repay. The best timber for fencing is to be had in abundance.

A settler on three lands, possessing a capital from £20 to £30, according to the number of his family, will soon make himself comfortable, and obtain a rapid return for his investment. The single man, able and willing to work, even with little capital, besides his own arm and axe—he can devote a portion of the year to clearing his land, and in the numerous lumbering establishments he finds employment, and will obtain a liberal remuneration for his labor.

The climate throughout these Districts is good. The snow does not fall so deep as to obstruct communication, and affords material for good roads during the winter, enabling the farmer to haul in his Firewood for the ensuing year from the woods, to take his produce to market, and to bring in his supplies for the future—and this covering to the earth, not only facilitates communication with the more settled parts of the District, but is highly beneficial and fertilizing to the soil.

In all the localities above named, wherever Settlers have surplus produce, there is a good market for it near at hand, the produce of all kinds being in great demand by the Lumber or Timber Merchants, who are carrying on extensive operations throughout these parts of the country.

According to the ration of progress which Canada West has made during the last ten years, the value of property in an average of localities will in general—irrespective of any improvements which may have been made by the Settlers.

In many Counties the value of Land, once opened for settlement, has increased FIVE FOLD in the period named, but the average value of such land, according to the statistics of Canada West, Doubles every ten years in the mere lapse of time, exclusive of any expenditure thereon—and it is not too much to expect that this ratio will not diminish for generations to come.

The Section of Country opened by these roads lie in and to the Southern part of the Great Ottawa Region, stretching from and beyond them to the shores of Lake Huron, on Lake Michigan, and to the Ottawa River —an immense extent of country whose resources are now seeking and will rapidly obtain development.

The Ottawa Country

Lying south of Lake Nipissing and of the great River Ottawa, and embracing a large portion of the land offered for settlement, is capable of sustaining a population of eight millions of people, and it is now attracting general attention, as the more western portions of Canada are being rapidly filled up.

The Parliament of Canada in its last Session incorporated a Company for the construction of a Railway to pass through this Ottawa country from the Shores of Lake Huron to the City of the Ottawa, and thence Eastward.

A survey of the River Ottawa and the neighbouring Country has been undertaken and will be completed in the present year; the object of which is to show how by such means the River Ottawa can be rendered navigable and connected with Lake Huron so as to enable vessels to pass by that route from the ocean to the Lakes Huron Michigan or St. Lawrence and the Ocean. These projected works are alluded to in order to show that the attention of the Government, and the people of Canada generally, has been fixed upon this important portion of the Province.

The Last Request.

Dear Nancy:—Since often, so often I've written,
In vain for a "Yes" or a "No,"
Pray show me some favor, or give me the mitten
And ease my suspense and my woe.

'Tis my last supplication
For your approbation,
And the only salvation.
For my comfort through life.
Depends altogether
(Not the least on the weather,)
But just simply whether
We become man and wife.

I know that I once took the lease of affection,—
O, tell me how soon 'twill be o'er!
I'd renew it forever—'twould be blissful reflection,
To see it dissevered no more!

Your beauty is maddening,
Your smiles were all gladdening,
But your silence is saddening,—
Too grievous to bear!
It may be but fancy,
But in sooth, my dear Nancy,
I think that I can see.
That for me you don't care!

Alas! that I ever so long should have tarried,
Depending the while on your charms!
For father and mother now bid me get married,
If I take even a black to my arms!

Thou, spirit that gave me,
I pray thee to save me!
And all shall be well!
But if you don't choose me,
And so much abuse me,
The result I can't tell!

But go, my dear creature—I will not upbraid ye,
Though the wound you've inflicted is sore.
But time shall yet heal it, though I may not persuade ye
To show me your love any more.

Now, Nancy, you'd better,
As you are my debtor,
Soon answer this letter,
Or else look for another:
For though underrated
By you I'm not fated
To be always unmated—
So I'll marry some other

The Death-Grasp.

II. Continued,

"Three days ago," repeated Hugh, with an involuntary shudder, which he in vain endeavored to suppress.

"Yes, three days ago. About this hour, as I was sitting alone, a sort of indescribable, light bluish vapour, seemed to fill my chamber. It continued to grow thicker and thicker, until at last it entered my body through every pore, and pervaded my entire being. I then felt an irresistible impulse, penetrating and filling the inmost recesses of my soul."

"Why Margaret, what childish nonsense is this? You must surely have been dreaming!" exclaimed her companion with a laugh, which however, was heard by a nervous twitching at the corners of his mouth.

"I was not dreaming, Hugh Arnell," returned Margaret, "any more than I am at the present moment. I still feel the same impulse that I did then; and, moreover, a firm and steadfast conviction that what I yearn for will be granted."

"What is it, Margaret?" asked Hugh.—"Perhaps it is no such important matter after all."

"I have come to beg that you will take me to Edward—nay, do not interrupt me—that you will cease your useless addresses and give up your pretensions to my hand."

"Take you to Edward! Margaret, you are abusing my good nature, or ridiculing me. Such a thing is impossible," replied her companion.

"Do not say so, for I know you are wrong. As surely as I now address you, shall I pass Christmas Day with Edward Noris, and you are the person by whose means I shall do so."

"This is absurd. Such a thing cannot be!" answered Hugh.

"Can not be!" exclaimed Margaret.—"Why can it not be? After what I have told you, you could never think of wedding me, or," she continued, in a solemn tone "to the dead!"

For a moment, Hugh was completely overwhelmed by her question, and the strange, peculiar manner in which it was put. At length, however, he was about to make some reply, when she interrupted him.

"Hush!" she exclaimed, "hush! hush! not a word!"

Her whole appearance was changed. Her face grew even paler than before, and her slim frame quivered like a leaf. By degrees she became calmer and calmer, till she resembled a statue carved in stone. With fixed glance, and body half leaning forwards, as if listening to some one, she stood silent and motionless for a considerable time.

During several minutes did Hugh remain looking at her, as if he had been rooted to where he stood. At last he broke silence.

"In Heaven's name, explain this strange behaviour!" he said.

"Hush!" she answered; adding, after a short pause, "did you not hear it?"

"What? hear what?" he inquired eagerly.

"You did not hear it, then? Listen while I tell you," replied Margaret, in a calm, death like voice, "Yes, I will tell you; though he spoke plainly enough."

"He! who!" asked her companion.

"Edward," she answered.

"When?" inquired Hugh.

"This instant," she replied.

"Where?"

"Here!"

This is utter madness!" exclaimed Hugh; but his haggard look proved that he was more affected by his companion's words than he cared to avow.

Margaret continued, without heeding him—

"When you were in London, whence you returned only this evening, you met, Edward. Your plan was instantly taken. He spoke to you frankly, and like a gallant gentleman. He told you that you must give up your pretensions to me, or meet him sword in hand, to support them, for he was determined to deliver me, from the degrading state of dependence in which I was so unjustly kept. You replied, that you loved me far too much ever to cause me the slightest sorrow, and that, therefore, you would no longer oppose his suit. You begged him to say nothing of your interview, not even to mention that you had seen him, until you could arrange matters, and obtain your father's consent to your abandoning your attentions to myself. You added, that you were willing to forget all past differences; and ended by inviting him to come and see you the next evening at the inn where you were stopping, in the Borough. Deceived by your apparent sincerity and frankness, he consented. You went home, but you took with you a heavy chest, which you told the porters who carried it was filled with books. It contained stones, not books. Those stones you carried off, and threw away during that night and the next day. Your guest arrived at the appointed hour, three nights ago. You received him with hypocritical cordiality, and promised that he should pass the Christmas Day with me."

"Enough of this! Your words are raving madness; I will listen to you no more!" exclaimed Hugh; but he did not move from the spot where he stood, as though spell bound.

"That promise you will keep. I am sure of it, as I have already told you." continued Margaret, in a low, cold voice, which froze the marrow in his bones.

"I made no such promise; I never saw him," said he, with a look of agony.

"You rose from your chair as if to reach a glass," Margaret went on to observe, calm and unmoved, and, apparently without hearing him; "and, as he was in the act of drinking, you bound your scarf, which you had ready, round his throat. The next day you gave out that you were ill, and did not rise, but lay with the body of your victim beneath your bed. In the evening you placed the body in the chest you had prepared, and which you sent down yesterday. Your measures were well taken; your victim made no noise and was not missed, for no one saw him enter."

Margaret paused, still as if listening to some one whispering into her ear. Hugh stood with his gaze fixed on her, and the large drops of sweat falling from his forehead. He made several attempts to speak, but his parched tongue clove to the roof of his mouth. At last he suddenly drew himself up with a sudden effort, and muttered in a husky tone."

"Were any one but yourself to accuse me of such a crime, I—"

He did not complete his sentence, for Margaret interrupted him. While relating her horrible tale, she, had been in a sort of dream and spoke as one inspired. She now seemed to be suddenly restored to consciousness. Her cheeks flushed a hectic red, her eyes dilated, and her breast heaved violently. As she heard his last words, she exclaimed,—

"A crime! what crime? Hugh Arnell, what crime?"

"Your brain is disordered, Margaret," he replied.

"Ay," she continued, "it is! I have had a dreadful—a horrible dream. I dreamed—but no!" she added, with a piercing shriek, which sounded like nothing human, as her eyes fell upon the oak chest. "No! it was not a dream! it was the truth revealed by the help of Heaven itself! Hugh Arnell, you know it was the truth!"

So speaking, she ran to the chest, and, throwing back the lid, exposed to view the mangled remains of a human corpse.

"Here! there! Hugh Arnell," she shrieked hysterically; "what say you now? And yonder, among those glowing logs, what is that? What were you looking when I interrupted you? Your victim's body!"

It is impossible to describe by mere words the appearance of Hugh. His colour came and went with inconceivable rapidity.—One instant he was ashy pale, and the next a deep crimson, while waves of tremulous emotion rolled, as it were, through his whole frame. His legs tottered beneath him, but he managed to reel up to where Margaret stood

"Murderer!" exclaimed the latter. "Murderer!"

"For Heaven's sake, silence!" he said.

"Are you not the murderer of Edward Norris!—your guest—my fond, devoted lover!"

"Margaret! if I am," replied her companion, falling on his knees before her, "have pity on me! forgive me! It was love for you which urged me on. Forgive me; it was for your sake I did it!"

"He appeals to me," said Margaret, "to me, the destined bride of his victim. Murderer, murderer! Help, help!"

"Silence!" he exclaimed, "silence! you will raise the household."

"I would, I will," she replied, making towards the door.

"Stop, Margaret," he said, holding her back. Stop, and reflect what you are about to do. You would consign me to a scaffold?"

"What other resting-place is there so fit for so base and dastardly a murderer?" she answered, struggling to escape.

Hugh's danger was now most imminent. If she eluded him, he felt certain of his fate; the intensity of his agony lent him courage.

"If you persist," he resumed, in a low, but ominous voice, "your life or mine will be the forfeit. Keep this secret, and I promise to leave the house, the country, and never to see you more."

"No—no—no!" cried the young creature, wrestling with him; "no—never!—Help, help!"

"You will have it," said Hugh, between his clinched teeth, and, snatching up the knife he had already been using in the previous part of the evening, and which was still on the table, he struck at her with his full force. The handle emitted a dull, muffled sound as it came against her body. A small red speck instantly appeared upon her white dress, growing every instant larger, and larger, until Hugh withdrew the knife, when the blood bubbled and entirely overspread the dress.

"I told you I was sure I should pass my Christmas Day with him, and by your means," she ejaculated as she fell back, with a smile on her lips, "See, see, he is with me now. Murderer! I am beyond your power—but you cannot—are not—you never will be—you or yours—beyond—his."

These were the last words she ever spoke. Her eyes became glazed over with a sort of film; her breathing grew shorter and more difficult, and she sank back upon the oaken floor—dead!

III.

Hugh Arnell felt his brain whirl round with a thousand conflicting emotions, but the idea of self-preservation was indistinctly and unconsciously predominant. He was a murderer for the second time, he scarcely knew how. He had but a confused recollection of the causes which had led him to perpetrate this first crime. All his faculties were concentrated in the one great fact, that it was necessary for him to dispose, in some way or other, of his victim, in order that the murder might not be discovered.—He leaned down for the purpose of raising the body, but found that, slim and light as it was, he could not do so. Not that it appeared too heavy for him, but there seemed some power at work opposed to his own, and which held down the corpse in the position it occupied. Again and again he endeavored to carry out his intention, and each successive time did he fail. He imagined doubtless, that his physical strength had deserted him and determined to test the point, for he rose and proceeded to the oak chest. Grasping it firmly with both hands at either end, and, straining every muscle to the utmost, he raised it, heavy as it was, with ease. Again he went up to the body, and renewed his attempt. Again was he unsuccessful. All at once his glance alighted upon the hands, which seemed to be firmly retained, as in a vice. He examined them more closely. When he touched them, they could be moved about freely enough in all directions but, immediately he tried to lift the body, they ones more were tightly grasped. Staggered, bewildered, and half-unconscious of what he was doing, he rolled back the sleeve from one of the arms. Round the wrist he distinctly beheld the impression of the fingers and thumb of what appeared to have been a human hand. Discovering the other wrist, he perceived there, likewise, the same blueish marks, corresponding to four fingers and a thumb. He was looking carefully, first at one arm and then at the other, when he was startled by the noise of something moving on the hearth. He turned round, as quick as thought itself. The fire had gone down considerably, and an immense blood hound was scraping with its paw among the outer edge of ashes. It had just dragged forth a large bone, with some scorched shreds of flesh still adhering to it.

"Ah! Nero! Nero, sir," exclaimed Hugh advancing to the hound. But the latter, although a favourite, and also generally fond of its master, avoided him, and ran, still carrying its horrible booty in its mouth, out of the library.

Hugh now perceived, for the first time, that the door had been left open ever since Margaret had entered. He hastily rushed up and locked it. He lingered for some minutes at the extremity of the apartment, evidently unwilling to return near his cousin's corpse. He passed and repassed his hand frequently over his brow with anxious haste, and at last, however, he walked straight up to the spot, knelt down on one knee, and, putting his arm under the waist, was about to make another effort to lift the body, when he suddenly let slip from his hold. His hair rose perceptibly on his head with horror. His eye balls were bloodshot, and so distended that they seemed about to start from their sockets. His lower jaw dropped, and his whole bearing and demeanour indicated the most abject and terrible fear. His glances were fixedly directed towards two bright spots, like stars piercing the misty gloom in which the extreme sky of the library was shrouded. Those two spots were two human eyes glaring at him with such intensity that they almost appeared to touch him, and transfix him like two sharp daggers. His agony of that moment must have been terrible. He had not been alone with the victim when performing the work of murder! Every word spoken had been heard, every blow dealt had been seen by the third person, for now, despite of the obscurity, he could make out the form of a man, a sort of sailor, standing in a recess, generally concealed by a curtain, behind which, no doubt, the man had hitherto been hid.

The stranger advanced a step or two.—Still Hugh did not move. He saw nothing, but those two eyes, which glared at him with supernatural brilliancy through the gloom, and which curdled his blood. The stranger continued in advance until opposite Hugh. With his eyes still fixed upon the latter, he said, pointing first to the oak chest, and then to Margaret's lifeless form—

"Murdered! Murdered!"

Hugh shuddered, but he could not move.—The two eyes were glaring upon him, eating, like live coals, into his soul. No sooner, however, were they withdrawn for an instant, to look on Margaret, than gathering himself up, for a supreme effort, he bounded like a tiger at the stranger's throat exclaiming, as he did so—

"Help! murder! Help, there!"

The stranger instantly divined his assailant's intention. It was evident that Hugh had resolved to shift suspicion and the consequences of his crime, from his own shoulders to those of a man perfectly innocent of it, and who, in fact, was the only witness against him. The idea, though devilish in the extreme, was admirably calculated to serve the assassin's purpose; for who would for a single moment, believe the statement of a man, sea-faring man, such as the stranger, judging by his exterior, was, when opposed to the oath of a gentleman of family, and the heir to immense estates! All these considerations, and a thousand others, flashed with the rapidity of lightning through the stranger's mind as he grappled with Hugh, who held him firmly, while he continued his cries for assistance. No time was to be lost. The cries had aroused the household, for the sound of men's feet rapidly mounting the stairs was heard approaching nearer and nearer; at last they stopped outside the library.

"Break open the door," gasped forth Hugh. "Break open the door! there is murder going forward!"

There was now the sound of persons running down stairs. Presently they returned, and heavy blows, dealt with a sledge hammer, or some other ponderous instrument, echoed against the door. But the latter was formed of massive oak, and defied the efforts made by those outside to force it.—But no obstacle, however strong, could possibly hold out long against such violence.—The stranger clearly felt convinced of this, and his conviction seeming to increase up to the highest pitch. He had, for a minute or two, opposed Hugh more feebly, and the latter had nearly succeeded in dragging him up to the door, which he might then have opened. But the stranger had merely done so to regain his well nigh exhausted strength. Just as his adversary's hand was within an inch of the bolt, he gathered himself up, pressed his lips closely together, and, again, with force across the room.

Hugh fell heavily against the bookcase and remained for the moment insensible.—Seizing an enormous book around him, the stranger sought some outlet by which to flee. His eye lighted upon the curtains before the window nearest to him. Running up, he drew them hastily on one side, and opening the lattice, looked out. The distance to the ground was about thirty feet. The stranger involuntarily drew back. At this instant, the door gave way with a frightful crash, fragment of it being projected completely across the room. Hesitation was tantamount to death. The stranger swung himself over the sill, but remained still hanging by his hands, which convulsively clutched it. He was endeavouring to find a resting place for his foot on the trellis work against the wall.

"Yonder he is," exclaimed Hugh, rising from the place to which he had been hurled. "Yonder—at the window! Pursue him! Capture him! He is the murderer of my cousin!"

The servants darted to the window. The two hands were still clinging spasmodically to the sill, every vein in them standing out in relief like whip cord. One of the servants drew his sword across them.—The blood spurted up into the air, and a heavy fall was heard on the ground beneath.

"He is wounded!" cried Hugh "Quick, quick, follow me! He cannot escape."

So speaking, and accompanied by his retainers, he descended the stairs, and ran with furious haste out of the house, in time to see, in the moonlight, the stranger retreating at full speed across the park. They instantly followed, and were rapidly gaining upon him, when the object of their chase reached the transparent brook from which the hall takes its name.

"He has escaped us, curse!" exclaimed Hugh! "He has missed the bridge!"

But Hugh Arnell was mistaken. Looking once behind him, the stranger dashed into the water. His pursuers were so near him that they could hear the thin coating of ice on the brook break as he plunged in.

"Fire on him, fire on him!" cried Hugh, in a voice hoarse with excitement and rage

"Fire on him, fire on him!"

Three or four shots responded to this order but they missed their intended victim. By the time Hugh and his followers had arrived at the bank, the stranger was far on the other side and soon lost to view.

Although they did not give up the pursuit, it was useless. They proceeded to the village, and continued their search the entire night, aided by the blood-hound Nero, but in vain. From the moment the stranger had reached the highway every trace of him was lost. He had run along the middle of the road, and his footsteps were no longer distinguishable. The hound, too, was at fault. An active search was kept up for several days, but with the same result, and the general impression was, that the supposed murderer had escaped in one of the numerous smuggling vessels hovering about the coast. This impression was the more likely to be correct, as it was at the sea-shore that the blood-hound had lost the scent.

Hugh Arnell's account of the murder was to the following effect. On his return from London, and after having remained in the library a short time, he had proceeded to his bed-chamber for the purpose of changing his riding-dress. He had just done so, when he heard screams issuing from the library. He rushed down to see what was the matter. Immediately he entered the apartment, the door was closed and bolted behind him, and he found himself in the presence of his cousin and her murderer. How he gave the alarm and pursued his intended victim, we know.

This story gained implicit belief. Hugh escaped even the shadow of suspicion, but people remarked a change in his behaviour. He was depressed and gloomy. The members of the household fancied he always shuddered when he entered the library, and looked as if he would have drawn back, but was irresistibly pulled forward. Such motions were, however, laughed at as idle dreams. He was constantly in the library, apparently fascinated to the place. A remarkable fact, also, which people afterwards remembered, was, that he generally wore large gauntlet gloves, extending half way up his fore arm, and, when this was not the case, that deep lace ruffles fell over his hands and reached nearly to his knuckles. He seldom, too, shook hands with anyone.

(To be Concluded in our next.)

Miscellany.

QUEEN ELIZABETH'S COURTSHIP.—The courtship of this monarch was like everything else she did in her life,—there was in it an eye to business. The account of her tenderness, is nevertheless, curious. It is related by a French contemporary,—a sort of French Pepys. The Duke of Alencon was the favourite person on whom she bestowed her—broth! The duke crossed the sea, arrived in London, and lodged the first day with the Ambassador of France, and after wards in the royal palace at the queen's expense, who saw him the second day two miles without the town. It is said that relating to the marriage, there were rather vague words spoken than any likely to lead to a conclusion, though present were exchanged. It is said also that every morning the queen carried him a cup of broth with her own hand, and that the duke showed himself to her in a doublet of flesh-coloured silk to prove he was not humped, as had been told her. But from all we hear they negotiated any affairs rather than those of the marriage; or to express myself with more propriety, the sage queen held out this bait to keep Monsieur in check, and strength en him in his hatred to Spain. It was believed that the Queen of England, the Duke of Alencon, the King of Navarre, the Prince Casimir, and the Prince of Orange, were all agreed to carry the war into Spain.—Lives of the Queens.

TALL MEN.—Burns, a famous Irish giant, who died in London some years since measured eight feet two inches. Cornelius Magrath, who died in the year 1760, measured seven feet eight inches. Edward Malon, another Irishman, was seven feet seven inches and was nearly equal in stature and size to Daniel Cardanus, a Swedish giant. Dr. Chesselden, a famous anatomist, speaks of a skeleton discovered in a Roman camp near St. Albans, England, which he judged to have been eight feet four inches. Goliath of Gath, according to Bishop Cumberland, was eleven feet high, and Maximinius, the emperor, was nine feet; tall toys, all of them.—Curious Facts.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are of infinite benefit to persons suffering from nervous tremours and general feebleness. They renovate the nervous system, and brace the muscles, as well as give tone to the stomach. Their purgative action is unaccompanied by pain, and as they have powerful stomachic as well as aperient and purifying properties, they literally carry on the work of invigorating the digestion, relieving the bowels, and regulating the secretions at one and the same time. This cannot be said of any other medicine in existence.

CHURCHES IN ROME.—A recent estimate of the value of the churches in the Eternal City has been made, by which it would seem that the outside world will have formed of any approximate judgement of the immense amount of treasures collected within the walls of these temples of Chris. worship. St. Peter's independently of its invaluable treasures of art, cost over $50,000,000, and the annual expense of repairs is some $31,000! There are also other churches in Rome equally magnificent in the style and splendor of their decorations and some two or three of which would buy all the churches in Boston and New York.—New York Mirror.

MR. Partington says the only way to prevent steamboat explosions, is to "make the engineers bile their water on shore."—In her opinion all the bustin' is done by cookin' the steam on board.

Arrival of the Africa.

NEW YORK, February 6th.

The steamship Africa arrived at 3 p. m. She left Liverpool on the 24th, and brings three days later dates than those brought by the Baltic.

The Swiss difficulty was considered virtually settled, but the details of the adjustment were to be submitted to a conference of the several powers.

The British fleet had taken possession of Bushero and the Island of Karrack in the Persian Gulf. It is also reported that the Russians had occupied Astrakan.

Latest advices from China are to the effect that the government of Canton continued obdurate, that the British had taken and destroyed the French Folly fort, that the Chinese had set fire to the factories, and that all the Hongs were destroyed. The oriental, opera and mercantile junks had been burned. It was reported that the shelling of Canton had commenced just before the departure of the mail.

Richardson, Spence & Co, report markets generally dull, with decline of 2d per bushel on wheat, and 6d per barrel on flour. Quite slight demand. Western Canal flour was quoted 31s a 31s 6d; Ohio 34s a 35s; mixed corn 33s a 33s 6d; white 34s a 35s.—Provisions generally dull, without material alteration. Lard 67s a 68s. Teas unsettled and excited, an advance of ¾d a 1d is quoted.

London Money Market rather easier but unchanged. Consols for money closed at 93¾ a 93¾. American securities steady.

The Africa sailed at 8 o'clock on the morning of the 24th.

The London Morning Herald announces that at a Cabinet Council, held on the 21st, the subject of the re-construction of the Cabinet was discussed, and that offers of another Coalition were made some weeks ago.—Among other changes it is said, that Gladstone will be replaced in the Exchequer.

The merchants of the principal commercial cities of France have applied to the Emperor on behalf of French citizens who suffered by the destruction of Greytown by the American frigate Cyane.

China.

The China Mail Extra, dated Hong Kong, Nov. 24, brings nice days later intelligence than that received by the last mail.

The Russians having entirely demolished, the Americans intend to retire from the quarrel, it is said, and wait the issue of Admiral Seymour's demonstration before again operating. The French have also withdrawn their men-of-war's men from the factories, and report has it, have taken possession of the Bogue forts on the west of the branches of the river. These they intend holding pending the arrangement of some matters which they, too, have to present to the Government of China, the recent cruel torture and murder of the missionary Chapdelaine having yet to be explained to the authority qualified to receive the explanation—M. de Montigny—now on his way here from Cochin China.

Dissappointed in the hope of bringing the Canton Government to a proper sense of duty by the harsh means reported in our last summary. Admiral Seymour now relies, apparently, and with reason, on coercion by famine. With this, on some such view, his Excellency is intrenching the foreign quarter, has had captured junks filled with the remains of demolished forts, and is sinking them in those parts of the river where danger from fire rafts has to be apprehended—booming off those tracks which it may be found necessary to open on an early occasion. Every native boat that approaches the factories is fired on, though few, since the Niger has been guardship, have had the temerity to come within reach of her unsparing sharp-shooters.

A covered way from the British factory to the Hong-merchants' corner of the river wall is in contemplation too is reported, so rendering the next attack on the city a work of comparative ease and safety. In place of the withdrawn French and American guards some companies of her Majesty's 59th Regiment have been sent hence, though but few are required, the Sikh and Lascar sepoys disposed, being quite sufficient to keep at bay as many Chinese as can be brought against them on the land side; and it would be quite possible for Admiral Seymour, even with the force at present under his control, to take possession of and to hold securely all that quarter of the new city extending West from the Governor-General's official residence, and North up to the wall of the old city, distant but a few yards from the extremity of the building spoken of.

From Nicaragua.

The steamer "Cahawba" has brought several days' later intelligence from the scene of Walker's operations. The reports as to his position were contradictory. Fifty-one men who had served under Walker and been discharged upon the expiration of their time, had found their way to Greytown and reported that his position at Rivas had been undisturbed—and that he had from 400 to 500 effective men under his immediate command. Subsequently some Costa Ricans, who came down, stated that Gen. Walker had been forced to leave Rivas with all his force, and take position at San George, where he was surrounded by the allied forces, and being nearly out of provisions, had offered to capitulate. The San Juan correspondent of the New York Times gives an account of an exciting affair which occurred at Punta Arenas on the 16th January. A boat's crew from the British ship Cossack landed at that place, under the command of Captain Cockburn, and protection was offered to any British subject who might be detained among the "recruits" against their will. The filibustierer in command, Colonel Lockbridge, protested against this as an improper interference, but finally agreed to parade his men on the beach, and allowed Captain Cockburn to read a paper, offering protection to any British subjects who chose to avail themselves of it. On this being done, ten men stepped from the line and claimed protection, which was at once extended to them. Col. Lockridge protested, and the British retired to their vessel

We recently stated that certain parties had been arrested in New York on a charge of being concerned in "filibustering" enterprises against Nicaragua. They were examined before one of the Judges of New York on the 4th inst. The defendants, in the course of their cross examination, offered to read a letter from the private secretary of President Pierce of Col. Fabens, which, they said, contained evidence of the complicity of the President in the Colonel's movements. The superscription was marked, "Free, Frank Pierce," but pending the discussion as to the admissibility of the letter, the Commission adjourned. The defendants' counsel did not deem it prudent for their cause to let the reporters see the communication, but whether it will be admitted or not, they avow that it shall appear in print. The supposition is that if the letter contains evidence of the complicity hinted at, the prosecution will go no further. The defendants, it is said, will, if put on their defence, call to the stand as witnesses Mr. Secretary Marcy, Mr. Nicholson, editor of the Washington Union, and Mr. Sidney Webster, Pierce's private Secretary. There is a prospect of some very unpleasant disclosures, likely to place Mr. President Pierce and his Government in rather an awkward position. But the probability is that efforts will be made to prevent the disclosures from taking place.—Colonist.

The Maple Leaf,

SANDWICH, FEBRUARY 12, 1857.

With this week's issue, the publication of the Maple Leaf has been commenced in Amherstburgh as well as in Sandwich, and hereafter the inhabitants of that Town may expect through the columns of this Journal a strong advocacy of the interests in which they will be most affected. Their interests heretofore have not been advocated in a manner that was at all adequate to their wants. Situated as it is upon the banks of the Detroit River, at a point near Lake Erie, it is well adapted for a port, and the principal part of the grain exported from this county from its favourable position, passes through its store-houses; and wood appears also to be an article of great value to the commerce of the place, and the immense quantities that are piled up on its docks and in various yards, show plainly that the inhabitants are determined to do a large business so soon as navigation is open as the majority of the large fleet of Steamers plying upon the Lakes are in the habit of wooding in that Town. This article alone is of the greatest advantage to the place, assisting the merchants to dispose of large stocks of goods in exchange for wood, for which the cash is realized without any difficulty from Steamers. The trades of the place appear to be all in a prosperous condition, and from their numbers, and the activity and energy with which they are carried on, show clearly that business is active, and the trade of the place in a prosperous condition. We are happy to see that a number of new buildings are in course of erection and many have just been completed. The merchants, are doing well, and their trade in Produce and Cord Wood is large and remunerative. Although there may not be the same activity as is shown in some of the new Towns, yet there is a good healthy trade carried on and a steady and substantial course of improvement noticeable.

We had the pleasure of being conducted through the principal places of business such as the Foundry of Messrs Jones & Co., which is doing a large and flourishing business. The Manufactory of Tin Ware by Mr. Borrowman, the Cabinet Shop of Mr. McGregor, and a number of other places where all appeared to be doing well.

The Southern Railway office in the hand. some building erected by Peter Menzies, Esquire, is well adapted for the purpose to which it has been applied, and through the kindness of that gentleman we made a full inspection of the premises.

We had the pleasure, on Friday last, of attending the ball given by the Essex Troop of Cavalry, in Kingsville, and we may safely say that it has hardly ever fallen to our lot to witness so pleasant an entertainment as was given on that occasion—it was every thing that the most exacting could wish for. The decorations of the ball room were neat and tastefully arranged, and reflect great credit upon the persons through whose exertions they were made. Then we must not forget the chief feature that contributed mainly to the pleasure of the evening, and in which the gentlemen always on such occasions feel so deep an interest, and, moved by this gentle influence, cast aside the cares produced by daily labours, enter gaily into the pleasures of the mazy dance, as if all care had been lost, and a charming paradise gained. We need hardly say that this charming effect was produced by the beautiful and lovely fair ones who graced the ball with their presence—in beauty and fairness they could not be surpassed. We have never seen an assembly where all the ladies, without exception, looked more charming than they did at the Kingsville Ball. We dare not attempt to enumerate those that looked best, for should we commence, we would have to name them all. Even we ourselves could not resist the influence of the general charm; but were forced to take part in the gaieties of the night, and right merrily did we join in and "trip the light fantastic toe."

Then the music, which was by Lucker's Band could not be surpassed. The band appeared determined to do their best, in producing heart-stirring strains, which was responded to by the gay dancers in excellent style. The Troopers in their neat and handsome uniforms produced a nice effect; we could not help noticing with pleasure their handsome appearance in the ball room, as before we had occasion to praise their appearance while on duty.

The dancing room which was on the second floor of the Town Hall was nearly filled, there being present from sixty to seventy couple, which were as many as the room could conveniently hold. At midnight supper was announced, and upon entering the spacious room upon the first floor, the eye was greeted with a most sumptuously spread table arranged in such a manner that all present were comfortably seated, in order to gratify the inner man upon the many choice dishes before them. After refreshments were partaken of, the ball room was again entered and dancing resumed with the same spirit that had marked the gaieties of the whole evening, and continued until five in the morning, when, we believe, all retired highly delighted with every thing and every body that they had seen and met. For our own part, we could not have enjoyed our selves more, and the attention bestowed upon the guests from a distance by the members of the Troop will not be forgotten in many a long day. We have only to hope that that this will not be the last occasion when we shall have the pleasure of again passing so delightful an evening with the same parties.

The Inner Mission

"PRESERVE AND REGULATE, NOT DESTROY."

There is in Germany a vast organization, known by the designation of the "Inner Mission," which is without parallel in the variety and extent of its religious objects.—What this organization is to the spiritual darkness of mankind, Professor Holloway's world-embracing system of medical agencies is to their bodily infirmities. As the German institution disseminates through its innumerable colporteurs religious instruction and consolation among the people of every land, so the agents and representatives of this indefatigable philanthropist, proffer the means of cure to the sick of all regions. His remedies are as potent to control disease and preserve and prolong life, as their tracts and homilies are to check vice and promote virtue. His, too, is an Inner Mission, for there is no internal disorder which does not yield to that most powerful and infallible, yet safest of all antidotes, Holloway's Pills. Probably half the mortality which annually occurs among civilized nations, might be traced to neglected derangements of the stomach. This delicate and important organ is fearfully abused.—Luxury on the one hand and privation on the other, disorder its stimulated, paralysed —in every way misused, and from the chronic dyspepsia and other forms of indigestion engendered by this maltreatment, hundreds of terrible maladies, affecting every portion of the system, inevitably spring.—Doctors are called in, and what is their prescription? Calomel! The mischief done by the disease is consummated by the so-called remedy! Corrosive poison forms no part of Professor Holloway's irresistible curatives. His Pills composed exclusively of hygean vegetable substances, reach and neutralize the destructive elements of disease in the animal fluids with as much celerity as light banishes darkness. That they should fail to produce this effect is a chemical impossibility. Nor is this all. They act as an invigorant, restoring to the stomach its normal activity, strengthening the constitution and infusing fresh vitality into every torpid organ. Equally salutary is the effects, and those who rely upon his two great remedies, to the exclusion of all other medical preparations, will never find that their confidence has been misplaced.—Plymouth Journal.

The North Shore railroad question seems to be fast approaching its solution. The Corporation of the city of Quebec, acting upon the advice of Mr. Cassaus, has resolved to cede its rights and to thus undertaking from £100,000 to £300,000. This resolution has of course to be submitted to the rate payers for ratification; and after that has been done, the work is to be commenced, within four calendar months and completed within three years.

We are not called upon to discuss the merits of this enterprise in a commercial point of view; or to judge by the receipts of the parallel section of the Grand Trunk, on the south side of the river, whether it is likely to be a paying work. That is the business of the parties who embark in it. The citizens of Quebec, for example, find themselves cut off to a certain extent from the road on the south side of the river, by the floating ice which sometimes renders crossing very difficult in winter; and are willing to pay something for the conveniences of a more accessible road. In a still stronger degree this motive operates with the 300,000 people along the proposed line of railway. What they feel the want of, and what they seem determined to secure, is the convenience of a railroad. Quebec, having taken the initiative in the matter, is almost certain to be followed by the other municipalities on the line. The subscriptions already amount to £515,000. Should St. Maurice and Three Rivers double their sub scriptions, the whole amount of subscribed capital will be brought up to £570,000.

The adoption of Mr. Cassaus's advice so far, shows that the opposition to it was powerful and unscrupulous. Already has he achieved a single victory over his opponent. He has done more, he has awakened the slumbering energies of his countrymen, who have shown that they possess a vigor and determination, the want of which has often been made a subject of reproach.—Leader.

The Winter on Lake Superior.

Many eastern and western exchanges received by last week's mail contain statements to the effect that the inhabitants of the Lake Superior region are suffering for supplies and would be likely to suffer severely during the present winter for the lack of the necessaries of life. The Buffalo Express, in an article appealing to the people of the lower lake cities to render such assistance as is in their power, paints the following gloomy picture of existing social condition.

"The aggregate amount of provisions and other necessaries which will be available for winter consumption, is far below the minimum known to be absolutely indispensable, and it is not difficult to foresee the consequence, which will appear in actual suffering, if something cannot immediately be done to relieve the famine-threatened inhabitants. The communication will be closed; even the mails from there will reach us only at long and irregular intervals, and the poor miners and settlers will be shut out from human sympathy for months the gloom of the situation heightened by the cold of the season."

So far as these statements pertain to this section, they are without the least foundation in truth. We have an abundance of provisions, and they are selling at prices much cheaper than any previous winter.—Flour can be purchased at from ten to twelve dollars per barrel, meas beef for seventy-two dollars, and other articles in proportion. Our latest dates from the other points on the lake represent that they have a larger supply of provisions than usual on hand, and quite sufficient to last until the opening of navigation.

We hope our friends in the east will give themselves no uneasiness because of our seemingly isolated condition. We believe our people, generally, are comfortable, contented, and happy; and would not exchange the healthy and pleasant winters of Lake Superior for those of any other section of the Union to the south or east.—Superior Chronicle.

What it costs to kiss a girl if her Father finds it out.

Last week a young man was brought up before Squire Wickham, in York Township, for assault on a lady and damaging her wearing apparel. It appears that on the Sunday previous the young man was escorting the object of his affections home from church, what was their precise subject of conversation, while they were thus walking slowly together, we do not learn, but the discourse was suddenly interrupted by the young man trying very imprudently, we admit, to give his lady love a kiss, and, in the attempt, broke her bon. The young lady, arriving home with a broken sable, her father enquired into the cause, and the next day had the unfortunate youth brought to justice. The case however did not come to trial, it was settled by the young man paying the girl's father $2 for the bon and $1 costs to the magistrate. The young lady was present, but not being as well versed in legal terms as her father, she could not understand how a kiss could be an assault, and successfully disinvered against there being any grounds for action, so far as the assault was concerned.

The Quebec papers tell us that many persons got their cheeks frost bitten going home from church on the same Sunday here referred to. Now, we know, but the young men only wanted to keep the frost out of his charmer's ruby lips.—Economist.

THE TRANS ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH.—The United States Senate have passed a bill appropriating $70,000 per annum for the support of the Trans-Atlantic Telegraph, and voting the use of the ships to lay down the thither half of the cable. Mr. Field, the Agent, and one of the members of this Company, it will be remembered, went to England and obtained from the Imperial Government a grant of £14,000 sterling per annum for the use of the line, and the offer of a ship to lay down the British end of it. Annexed to the grant was a condition that the English Government of the United States in the event of their entering into an arrangement similar in principle to that of the British Government; in which case the proposals of the two Governments were to have priority in the order in which they should arrive at the stations. Upon the basis of this agreement with the English Government, the bill to which we allude has been introduced and passed through the Senate.—There can be no doubt that this great enterprise will be carried on and completed, and that in a short time we shall be placed in hourly communication with Europe. The Montreal Telegraph Company are alive to the interests of Canadians in this matter, and intend to make us perfectly independent of the United States. To this end they mean to lay down a submarine cable along the bed of the river and gulf of Cape Breton. And a contemporary states that some of our Canadian merchants contemplate, should the great experiment succeed, going even further than this, and laying down a Canadian Ocean Line to connect with Ireland.—Transcript.

MURDERER SENTENCED.—The sentence of death was pronounced on Anniss Tousanins, by Mr. Justice Duval, at Quebec, on the 3rd inst., after a long and patient trial, for the murder, by poisoning, of her husband, Joseph Bacon. The sentence is to be carried out on the third day of April.

The prisoner seemed much affected while the awful sentence was being pronounced, and sobbed the whole time. Judge Duval spoke with much emotion, and many of those present in Court shed tears.

When the Judge had concluded speaking, the Clerk of the Crown asked the prisoner if she had anything to say why execution should not be awarded according to the judgment.

The prisoner (who was still crying) answered "I am not guilty" (Je ne suis pas coupable.)

Mr. Alleyan, her Counsel, put in a plea of pregnancy, and prayed for a reprieve.

The Judge ordered the issue of a writ of Venire for a jury of matrons, to inquire into the fact, and the prisoner was then removed from the bar.

TREMENDOUS FLOODS AT ALBANY, CHICAGO.

OSWEGO Feb. 9th.

The ice on the river began to move yesterday and rushed down with great force; tore six schooners from their moorings, sweeping all into the Lake. Much damage was done to vessels in the harbour. Several canal boats are loose on the Lake. Steamtugs have started out in pursuit.

ALBANY, Feb. 9th.

As anticipated yesterday, a tremendous flood occurred, damaging property last night to an amount impossible to conjecture, but which cannot fail to reach 2,000,000 dollars. All last night the city was in a confusion and excitement. The citizens were engaged all 1 st night, in the docks and lower part of the city, in removing goods and storing them away in the second stories of buildings where it was thought the flood could not reach, but their calculations proved erroneous. About half-past ten the ice commenced moving in the river with tremendous force, threatening the bridge on the streets for some time. The water rose so rapidly that those who were on the docks and piers were compelled to make a rapid retreat.—The water in the river continued rising until the ides answering, when it reached a point three feet higher than was ever known before. The entire lower part of the city was flooded as high as Green-street. Persons who had retired to bed, thinking themselves safe, were aroused by horsemen who rode through the waters, knocking at the doors of houses, to arouse the sleepers to a sense of their danger. By this time considerable rain availed; the people in the lower part of the city having barely time to escape with their lives.—About three o'clock the alarm bells were sounded for fire, when flames were discovered bursting forth from houses in different parts of the city. R. C. Warner and Son's Store, on Pearl, Building on South-street and Broadway; Gibson & Kalter's planing mills, at the foot of the Fourth-street, and W. H. Barrett's fire-brick store on the piers were all in flames at the same time, the fires having originated through the quickening of lime. The height of the water rendered it impossible for the engines to reach the scene of confusion, but the firemen put off in boats with buckets, and confined the flames to the buildings where they originated. About this time the wind changed and became piercingly cold.

The propeller Western World, lying in front of Barrel's store, caught fire and was scuttled and sunk, to save her cargo of 4,000 bushels of corn.

MELANCHOLY AND FATAL ACCIDENT.—A fatal accident, resulting in the death of a young man occurred in the Township of Derby, on Saturday last. Two men were chopping in company, when one fell upon on one of them named Johnson Raney, striking him upon the back part of the head fracturing his skull so severely that he died on the Sunday morning following. He was interred in the burial ground of St. Paul's Church, Derby, on Tuesday last, when a most impressive address was delivered to the assembled mourners by Rev. A. H. R. Mulholland, from the text, "The night cometh, when no man can work;" in which he urged the necessity, and the solemn duty, of all Christians labouring to make "their calling and election sure;" lest the "night" should come, when "no man can work." Accordial was manifested by the Orange rites. Raney was a single man, 30 years of age.—Owen Sound Times.

Mr. Charles Morey, of Boston, who has been in France on business, was arrested on some frivolous pretext of debt, in Paris, about a month ago and imprisoned for debt. While in Paris he was deliberately shot by the sentry on guard. It appears that the sentries have orders to prevent any of the prisoners from looking out of their windows, and if prisoners persist in doing so the sentries are authorised to shoot them,—a most singular order, surely. Mr. Morey refused the command of the sentry to withdraw from the window, and the latter, exasperated at the refusal, fired at him and shot him dead.

HAMILTON AND THE GEORGIAN BAY CANAL.—The Hamilton Board of Trade has resolved to secure a survey in order to ascertain whether a canal from that point to the Georgian Bay be practicable. This shows the general interest which is beginning to attach to the question of connecting the Georgian Bay with the waters below it, by water, and thus bringing the city and the different towns on the Ottawa and Huron with Montreal to have the connection made with that river. Toronto finds in Hamilton a competitor for the Upper projected line of connection between the Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario. The former city has got the start of the latter in this matter; but it is a question whether she keep it; for just when the survey from this point has come to a stand for want of money, another is on the point of being commenced from Hamilton to Toronto, having commenced the matter, going to allow itself to be outbid by Hamilton.—Leader.

The produce circular of Thomas C. Orr Glasgow, of January 1st, says.—"The chief feature of our import list is the liberal supply of wheat and flour we have this year received from Canada and the United States; amounting in the first named articles, to one half of the total imports, coastwise and from every quarter. The imports at Glasgow and Canada, were,—of Flour, 36,300 barrels; and of wheat, 350,804 bushels.

A Washington correspondent of the New York Commercial Advertiser, alluding to a paragraph in a letter from Toronto stating as a rumour, that the reciprocity treaty was to be abrogated by government, says: "Far from this, every effort is to be made in our negotiations with foreign governments for the extension of the principles of that treaty. It is proposed to extend it to the trade with the British West India Islands, if that be practicable, and to obtain from the Spanish Government some relaxation of the restrictive policy in regard to trade with Cuba and Porto Rico, and, if possible, an entire new system of commercial reciprocity.

AN OFFICIAL WRETCH.—A public watchman at Richmond, Virginia, has just been arrested for altering the hours in the passes of negro slaves, and then taking the poor slaves to prison, to be whipped, in order to make the mayor think him very vigilant in the discharge of his duty.

EXPERIMENT.—An Irishman in Leechburg, Pennsylvania, on New Year's day undertook to convert a pair of candle-moulds into a noise making machine. He placed a heavy charge of powde in one of the tubes, wadding it down to make a "loud crack," and, applying his segar to the end, the machine exploded loud enough, but it recoiled, penetrating his brain, and killing him instantly.

An enthusiastic admirer of the Czar was repeatedly saying to a stranger, "the Czar is great," "Yes," was the reply, "but God is greater," "Ah!" exclaimed the Russian, "but the Czar is young yet."

BLACK AND WHITE.—We read in the Normandie:—"A wonder has occurred in Conteville. The daughter of a fisherman, Marie C——, who married a year ago John G——, a negro sailor, native of an English colony, has just given birth to twins, a girl and a boy. The former is white like the mother, and the other black, like the father.

An exchange has discovered that Schottische is a corruption of the words "Scotch itch," and that the famous dance owes its name to the resemblance of its motions to those of a person afflicted with the Scotch pague aforesaid. Awful.

A judge and a joking lawyer were conversing about the doctrine of transmigration of the souls of men into animals. "Now," says the judge, "suppose you and I were changed, you into a horse, and I into an ass, which would you prefer to be?" "The ass to be sure," replied the lawyer. "Why?" rejoined the judge. "Because," was the lawyer's reply, "I have heard of an ass being a judge, but a horse—never."

A GOOD RETORT.—It is reported of Thomas F. Marshall, that a judge having once fined him thirty dollars for contempt of court, he rose and asked the judge to lend him the money, as he hadn't it and there was no friend to whom he could so readily apply as to his honor. This was a stumper. The judge looked at him, and then at the clerk, and finally said, "clerk, remit Mr Marshall's fine. The State is better able to lose thirty dollars than I am."

TORONTO, Feb. 9, 1857.

Farming produce has been on the whole in rather better supply during the week.

WHEAT.—The demand during the week has been very active, and the supply large for the season. Prices have ruled high in consequence of the competition prevailing among the buyers. In more than one instance 6s 9½d per bushel has been paid, and at 6s 9d per bushel, the transactions have been numerous. To day's supply was, indeed, principally bought at that figure.—Prices ranged 6s 7d per bushel to the above rate.

A decline took place in the market this afternoon, in consequence of the Africa's news, when buyers refused to pay higher than 6s 7d per bushel.

Spring Wheat brings 5s 4d to 6s 6d per bushel.

FLOUR.—The business done in Flour this week has been very slight. In the retail market a dullness has been noticeable for some days past. Miller's best has been offering with but few purchasers at $6 per barrel. In some instances 2s 10 per bushel, but transactions at that rate are very limited. The general selling figure is 2s 9d per bushel.—At this rate they are also obtainable in store.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9, 1857.

FLOUR—Market heavy but prices unchanged; sales 3,000 brls at $6 40 a 6 50 for superfine state. $6 50 a 6 65 for superfine western, $6,80 a 7 00 for extra do. Canadian flour unchanged.

GRAIN—Wheat market dull; sales 3,000 bush Dutch red winter, Michigan at $1 18. Corn firm and active; sales 2,000 bushels mixed western at 70c in store. Oats unchanged.

PROVISIONS—Pork lower; sales 200 brls at $17 75 a 18 for prime, $20 63 a 20 85 for old mess, $21 25 a 21 50 for new mess.

DETROIT, Feb. 9, 1857.

FLOUR—Market perfectly stagnant. Quotations nominally the same.

WHEAT.—A lot of 1000 bu white Michigan sold from store on private terms. There was none received in the street.

CORN—About 2000 bu was sold to fill up old contracts, and a few small lots at 60c.

OATS—Held at 40c. and no sales.

DRESSED HOGS—A lot of 30 hogs sold to day at $7 50 on 90 days paper.

Health and Long Life.

The citizens of the United States and Canada suffer much from disorders of the Liver and Stomach, scarcely any are free from the influence of these digestive maladies, hence life wears fast. The Fair Sex certainly the most handsome in the world, up to a certain period, when, distressing to say many lose their teeth and good looks, while yet in the heyday of life; such sad events may be effectually remedied by continually keeping the blood pure, and the Liver and Stomach in a healthy action, when life will flow smoothly, and resemble plants in a congenial clime, where an eternal spring appears to reign. As it regards the preservation of the human frame, and the duration of life, much may be effected, and we say fearlessly, that health and life can be augmented for many years beyond their ordinary limits, if Sir Astley Cooper's Pills are taken to purify the Blood, according to the rules laid down for health, contained in the directions which accompany each box.

Thousands who have been afflicted in every possible way, are daily bearing their grateful testimony to the great benefits they have received from their use, and are now rejoicing in renewed state of health, after having long despired of ever possessing it again.

CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.—Observe that on the top of each box of the Genuine Pills there is an excellent likeness of the late Sir Astley Cooper, from the celebrated painting by Lawrence; also the fac simile signature of MacPhail & Co., the Sole Proprietors, London and New York, on each box, and on the directions. Without these marks of authenticity they are certainly spurious and an imposition.

Sold at 25 and 50 cents per box, and in Family boxes at $1 each. There is a great saving by purchasing the larger sizes.

For sale by Simpson and Dunspaugh, Druggists, Toronto; John M. Thornton, Dundas; Andrew Oliver Galt; A. H. Cook, Brantford, General Agents, by whom Country Druggists and Merchants will be supplied at London and New York prices.

HEALTH OR SICKNESS.
CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endorsements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review," and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma	sadsches,
Bowel Complaints	Indigestion
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflammation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dysepsia,	Lowness of Spirits
Dysentery	Piles.
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venereal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

 Sold at the Manufactories of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and 244 Strand, London, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62½ cents, and $1 each.
☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

The Horse and the Stable.

If one would have a good horse on the road, he must take care of him in the stable. To the man who is fond of that noble animal, the horse, the stable is no mean place which is the home of his faithful servant. A part of the secret of the differences among horses, may be found in the different ways they are treated in the stable.

This building need not have the embellishment of architecture, nor be made air-tight; but it should be comfortable—made to promote the comfort of its occupant. It should be well ventilated, by allowing a draught of fresh air constantly to pass through it, especially during the warmer months. Do not allow the air of the stable to be made offensive and unhealthy by the presence of ammonia escaping from the excrements. Keep the air in your stable as it is in your house; for such is necessary for the health of a horse.

Plaster of Paris used freely about the stable, is quite desirable—both on the score of comfort and profit. It is cruel to foster a noble horse in a stable where the air is suffocating on account of noxious gases, constantly generating and escaping for want of a few quarts of some absorbent.

The floor of the stall should not have much inclination—only enough to allow the water to pass off. The most level the surface on which a horse stands, the better.

It is said that "sprung knees" are occasioned partly by standing on steep floors in the stable. That such a floor is not pleasant for the horse, is clearly seen in the fact that when such a stall is wide, the horse will stand across his stall, in order to find the most level position.

Let the horse feel as naturally as possible in the stable. He has been furnished with a long neck in order that he may reach down to feed, as he does in the pasture, and not that he may reach up, and pull out a small lock of hay from the rack. Give a horse a manager to feed out of, so that he can enjoy eating, and do not oblige him to steal his fodder from a rack, with narrow spaces, as though he did not deserve his keeping. It is thought that a horse will waste his hay if he is fed from the manger; but he will not, if he has good hay, given in proper quantities.

The best horsemen say,—feed a horse as you do yourself. Give him his breakfast, dinner and supper, and nothing between meals. It is mistaken kindness that keeps hay continually before a horse. When he has more hay before him than he can eat up clean, he wastes it or eats more than his system requires.

A horse should have enough to eat, and then, if not in use, should stand three or four hours with nothing before him. Such a course of treatment keeps his appetite keen, and he relishes his dinner.

Let him have a generous supply of good bedding. A horse enjoys a good nice bed, as much as a man, and why should he not have it? A good horse deserves it. Because he cannot complain of sleeping in the wet and dirt of the stable, or on hard plank, let no man think that his horse does not appreciate such favors as a good bed. He will lie down during the day occasionally, if he is well cared for. For summer use saw-dust makes excellent bedding. It is cool, sweet and even, and also keeps the stall in a healthy condition.

A supply of fresh, clean water, is indispensable to the comfort of man and beast. I have noticed that my horse drinks the most heartily after eating his supper, about eight o'clock in the evening.

Grooming is one of the civilities of the stable, and ought to be attended to daily. It not only causes a horse to look well, but it promotes health. A faithful groom is equal to two quarts of oats.

Such attention paid to a good horse is by no means like "casting pearls before swine." He who does it, and treats his horse kindly, is sure of his reward.—Maine Farmer.

Manures for Fruit Trees.—The best manure for fruit trees, under circumstances, are composts made of stable manure, turf, muck, or loam, with a small quantity of ashes, and still less lime. The addition of guano, bone manure, &c.; increase its value. The proportions may be one-third yard manure, over one-third turf, loam, or peat, and a tenth ashes, a twentieth guano or bone manure. The special manures applied separately, sometimes produce evil results, but not usually.

Perpetual Light.—A most curious and interesting discovery has just been made at Laugres, in France, which we have no doubt will cause a searching scientific inquiry as to the material and properties of the perpetual burning lamps, said to have been in use by the ancients.—Workmen were recently excavating for a foundation for a new building in a debris, evidently the remains of Gallo-Roman erection, when they came to the roof of an under ground sort of cave, which time had rendered almost of metallic hardness. An opening was, however, effected, when one of the workmen instantly exclaimed that there was light at the bottom of the cavern. The parties present entered, when they found a bronzed sepulchral lamp of remarkable workmanship suspended from the roof by chains of the same metal. It was entirely filled with a combustible substance, which did not appear to have diminished, although the probability is the combustion has been going on for ages.

This discovery will, we trust, throw some light on a question which has caused so many disputes among learned antiquaries, although it is stated that one was discovered at Viterbo, in 1850, from which, however, no fresh information was afforded on the subject.

Rather Sharp.—A railroad conductor having insulted a lady passenger, she said, indignantly that the company which owned that road should not see another cent of her money. "How so?" said the conductor, "how can you manage it?" "Hereafter," replied the lady, "instead of buying a ticket at the office, I shall pay my fare to you!"

One Good Turn Deserves Another.—A favorite magpie, which had been accustomed to receive its dainty bits from the mouth of its mistress, one day perched, as usual, on her shoulder, and inserted its beak between her lips, not, as it proved, to receive, but to give or hide, for as one good turn deserves another, the grateful bird dropped an immense green, fat caterpillar into the lady's mouth.

A gentleman named Hall propeses to lay a steampipe, 6 inches in diameter, from Troy to New York, and throughout the line of the Erie Canal.—Thus he expects to keep navigation open through the winter, and is petitioning the Legislature for pemission to levy tolls.

Fulfilling the Scriptures.—Brother Aminidab, a stiff Quaker, on receiving from a "worldly man" a blow on the face, turned the other cheek, to which a similar salute was applied. "Friend, said Aminidab, "scriptural injunctions being now justified, I will now proceed to administer a little wholesome correction," and thereupon mauled his assailant most unmercifully.

A negro in Boston had a severe attack of rheumatism, which finally settled in his foot. He bathed it, and rubbed it, and swathed it, but all to no purpose. Finally, tearing away the bandages, he stuck it out, and shaking his hand at it, exclaimed, quite wrathy: "Ache away, old feller—ache away; me shan't do nuffin more for yer; dis chile can stan' it as long as you can—so ache away."

A bright and beautiful bird is hope. It comes to us amid the darkness, and sings the sweetest song when our spirits are saddest; and songs to pass away, it warbles its sunniest notes, and tightens again the slender fibres of our heart that grief has been tearing away.

Porter's Spirit says: "The fastest time ever made by a running horse, was by Henry Perit in 1 42 1 3; and the fastest mile made by a pacer was by Pocahontas, in 1:17 1 2; and the fastest mile ever made in trotting, was by Flora Temple in harness, 2:34 1-2

'Wonder what has become of the snuffers,' said Mrs. Johnston, 'I have been looking for them all the evening, and can't find 'hem high or low.' Nobody could give any information. After a while, her tired Dutchman of a husband, getting sleepy, commenced pulling off his boots preparatory to going to bed. 'All this day,' said he, 'I tink I got som leetle grabble stones in my poot. I kees I ket 'em out now.' He turned up his boot and poured out the snuffers.

THE CANADIAN AGRICULTURIST.

IMPORTANT TO YOUNG MEN!

"Agriculturist" Cash Prices for 1857!

ONE PRIZE OF $50
ONE PRIZE OF $40
ONE PRIZE OF $30
ONE PRIZE OF $20
ONE PRIZE OF $15
ONE PRIZE OF $10

ONE PRIZE, CASH $4 AND "FARMER'S GUIDE." PRICE $6!! ONE PRIZE OF "FARMER'S GUIDE," PRICE $6!

THE above Prizes are offered for competition to Young Men who will, during the winter, canvass for Subscribers to the Canadian Agriculturist. To the person who obtains the largest number of Subscribers previous to the 1st day of May next, the first Prize of Fifty Dollars, in cash, will be paid; to the person who obtains the next largest number before that day, the second Prize of Forty Dollars, to the third largest number, the third Prize; and so on to the lowest prize offered.

To encourage every young man who has a few weeks to spare, to engage in the laudable work of circulating a journal of such established merit as the Agriculturist (and which is now offered at the low price of half-a-dollar a copy) we undertake to give each person who tries for, but fails to secure any of the above Prizes, a copy of that admirable work, Stephen's Farmer's Guide—last American edition—for every thirty subscriptions forwarded to the Agriculturist. The selling price of the Guide—which is an agricultural library in itself—is $6: thus every person who canvasses for the Agriculturist, whether he obtain a Prize or not, will be well paid for his time. Several persons, last year, obtained from fifteen to twenty subscribers in a day.

Conditions are, that the money—half-a-dollar for each subscriber—be sent with the names; that subscriptions from Agricultural Societies are not to be included; and the subscriptions sent must, in each case, at least equal the amount of the prize claimed. It could hardly be expected that we should give to competitors more than they obtained from subscribers.

Specimen copies will be sent to any person who wishes to commence a canvass, upon his written (post-paid) application.

Those who commence at once will have the best chance. Who takes the field? You cannot fail to win, for you are insured against loss!

To such friends as are willing to spend a few hours in aid of the Agriculturist, we offer for every six subscriptions sent, an additional copy gratis.

The Agriculturist is now so well known throughout Canada, as to need no lengthened eulogy. Eight annual volumes have already been issued, The volume for 1857 will be superior, in some respects, to any of its predecessors.

The Agriculturist, by its cheapness, and by the practical aim and Canadian spirit of its articles, has distanced all competitors. It stands alone as the representative of the agricultural press in this country. Agriculturist records all the most useful and interesting improvements in agricultural practice in the Old World as well as the New; description are frequently illustrated with engravings, of improved implements, new machines, improved cattle, horses, sheep, swine, &c.; it contains information in the several branches of agriculture, horticulture, domestic economy, and general science; practical communications from practical farmers; the proceedings of the Board of Agriculture; the prize list, &c. of the Provincial Show: and such matters generally as will interest Canadian farmers who desire to improve " the soil, and the mind."

It is published monthly, at Half-a-dollar per volume, in advance.

All subscriptions must commence with January, and all communications must be post-paid.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rod of tillable earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded: together with its really superior execution, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

"The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of pearl surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with July, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial department: H. P. Knight, James Snowden and D. W. Ray.

Terms: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

To Emigrants & Others Seeking

LAND FOR SETTLEMENT.

THE Provincial Government have recently opened out three great lines of road, now in course of completion, and have surveyed and laid out for settlement the Lands through, and in the vicinity of, which those Roads pass.

The Roads, as advertised by the Agents of the Government, appointed to the respective localities to afford information to the Settler, are known as

The Ottawa and Opeongo Road,
The Addington Road, and
The Hastings Road,

The Ottawa and Opeongo Road

Commences at a point on the Ottawa River known as "Ferral's," a little above the mouth of the Bonchere River, and runs in a Westerly direction, passing through the northerly part of the County of Renfrew.

It is intended to conect this road with a projected line of road known as "Bell's Line," (leading to the Lake Muskako, and Lake Huron, by a branch which will diverge from the Opeongo Road in the Township of Brudnell, at a distance of about 58 miles from the River Ottawa) forming with "Bell's Line," a great leading road, or base line from the Ottawa to Lake Muskako, 171 miles in length, passing through the heart of the Ottawa and Huron Territory, and opening up for settlement a vast extent of rich and valuable land.)

This road, and the country through which it passes, now open for settlement, is easily accessible, and the Agent for the granting of Lands in this district is Mr. T. P. French, who resides at Mount St. Patrick, near Renfrew, on the Opeongo Road, a few miles from the Lands which are to be granted.—To reach the section of Country under Dr. French's charge, the Settler must go from MONTREAL up to the Ottawa River to a place called Bonchere Point, and thence by land some twenty-five or thirty miles westward to the Township of Grattan, in which Mount St Patrick is situated.

The Addington Road

Commencing in the Township of Anglesea, in the northern part of the County of Addington, near the Village of Flint's Mills. Kaladar, runs almost due north to the River Nadawaska, a distance of 35 miles, and is to be continued thence for the distance of 25 miles till it intersect to Ottawa and Opeongo Road.

The Agent for the granting of the Land in this district is Mr. E. Perry, who, for that purpose, is now resident at FLINT'S MILLS. The outline of five townships of very superior land are already surveyed and ready for settlement within the limits of the Agency, lying north of Lake Massanoka, and between it and the River Nadawaska. The Townships are called respectively Abinger, Denbigh, Ashley, Effingham, Anglesea, and Barrie.

The direct route to this section is by way of Kingston, Canada West, thence North to the Township of Kaladar, and the Village of FLINT'S MILLS, where Mr. Perry resides.

Hastings Road!

Almost parallel to the Addington Road, and at a distance west from it of about 36 miles is the HASTINGS ROAD. This road beginning at the northern part of the County of Hasting and running a distance of 74 miles, almost due north, also intersects the OTTAWA and OPEONGO ROAD and its extension

The Government Agent is Mr. M. P. Hayes, who resides at the Village of Hastings, largely called Madoc, about 23 miles north of the Town of Belleville. The Road between these places is in good order, The land too granted by the Crown under this Agency extends from 15 to 17 miles north of the Village of Hastings The Road through the large extent of land is passable for 40 mile and money is now being expended to exterit 30 miles further, so that Settlers can get in and out without difficulty, and find a good market for surplus produce, as well as convenient facilities for bringing in whatever supplies they may require—abundance of which can be had at the Village of Hastings, where the Government agent resides.

The direct way to reach this Station, which is easily accessible, is by Kingston Canada West, thence by Steamboat up the Bay of Quinte to Belleville 56 miles, and thence by a good Road to Hastings, 28 miles.

In order to facilitate the Settlement of the Country, and provide for keeping in repair the Roads thus opened, the Government authorised Free Grants of Land along these Roads, not to exceed in each case ONE HUNDRED ACRES, upon application to the Local Agents, and upon the following

CONDITIONS

That the Settler be eighteen years of age.

That he take possession of the Land allotted to him within one month, and put in a state of cultivation at least twelve acres of the land in the course of four years—build a house (at least 20 by 18 feet) and reside on the lot until the conditions of settlement are duly performed; after which accomplishment only shall the settler have the right of obtaining a title to the property. Families comprising several settlers entitled to lands, preferring to reside on a single lot, will be exempted from the obligation of building and of residence, (except upon the lot on which they live provided that the required clearing of the lands be made on each lot. The non-accomplishment of these conditions will cause the immediate loss of the assigned lot of land, which will be sold or given to another.

The road having been opened by the Government, the settlers are required to keep it in repair.

The Local Agents, whose names and places of abode have already been given, will furnish every information to the intending Settler.

The LOG HOUSE required by the Government to be built, is of such description as can be put up in four days by five men, The neighbours generally help to build the Log Cabin for newly arrived Settlers, without charge, and when this is done the cost of the erection is small: the roof can be covered with bark, and the space between the logs plastered with clay, and white-washed. It then becomes a neat dwelling and warm as a stone house.

The lands thus opened up and offered for settlement, are, in sections of Canada West, capable both as to Soil and Climate, of producing abundant crops of winter wheat, of excellent quality and full weight, also crops of every other description of farm produce, grown in the best and longest cultivated districts of that portion of the Province, and fully as good.

There are, of course, in such a large extent of country as that referred to, great varieties in the character and quality of land —some lots being much superior to others; but there is an abundance of the very best land for farming purposes. The Lands in the neighbourhood of these three roads will be found to be very similar in quality and character, and covered with every variety of Timber—some with hard wood, and some with heavy pine.

Water for domestic use is every where abundant; and there are, throughout, numerous streams and falls of water, capable of being used for Manufacturing purposes.

The heavy timbered land is almost always the best, and of it, the ashes of three acres, well taken care and covered from wet—will produce a barrel of Potash, worth from £6 to £7 currency. The capital required to manufacture Potash is very small, and the process is very simple and easily understood.

The expense of clearing and enclosing heavily Timbered Lands, valuing the labor of the settlers at the highest rate, is about FOUR POUNDS Currency per Acre, which the first wheat crop, if an average one, will nearly repay. The best timber for fencing is to be had in abundance.

A settler on these lands, possessing a capital from £25 to £50, according to the number of his family, will soon make himself comfortable, and obtain a rapid return for his investment. The single man, able and willing to work, needs little capital, besides his own arm and axe—he can devote a portion of the year to clearing his land, and in the numerous lumbering establishments he can, at other seasons, obtain a liberal remuneration for his labor.

The climate throughout these Districts is good. The snow does not fall so deep as to obstruct communication; and it affords material for good roads during the winter, enabling the farmer to haul in his Firewood for the ensuing year from the woods, to take his produce to market, and to lay in his supplies for the future—and this covering to the earth, not only facilitates communication with the more settled parts of the District, but is highly beneficial and fertilizing to the soil.

In all the localities above named, wherever Settlers have surplus produce, there is a good market for it near to them—farm produce of all kinds being in great demand by the Lumber or Timber Merchants, who are carrying on extensive operations throughout these parts of the country.

According to the ration of progress which Canada West has made during the last ten years, the value of property on an average doubles within that period—irrespective of any improvements which may have been made by the Settlers.

In many Counties the value of Land, once opened for settlement, has increased FIVE FOLD in the period named, but the average value of such land, according to the statistics of Canada West, Doubles every ten years in the mere lapse of time, exclusive of any expenditure thereon—and it is not too much to expect that this ratio will not diminish for generations to come.

The Sections of Country opened by these roads lie in and to the Southern part of the Great Ottawa Region, stretching from and beyond them to the shores of Lake Huron, to Lake Nipissing, and to the Ottawa River —an immense extent of country whose resources are now seeking and will rapidly obtain development.

The Ottawa Country

Lying south of Lake Nipissing and of the great River Ottawa, and embracing a large portion of the land offered for settlement, is capable of sustaining a population of eight millions of people, and it is now attracting general attention, as the more western portions of Canada are being rapidly filled up.

The Parliament of Canada in its last Session incorporated a Company for the construction of a Railway to pass through this Ottawa country from the Shores of Lake Huron to the City of the Ottawa, and thence Eastward.

A survey of the River Ottawa and the neighbouring Country has been undertaken and will be completed in the present year; its principal object being to ascertain by what means the River Ottawa can be rendered navigable and connected with Lake Huron so as to enable vessels to pass by that route from the most Western Waters into the River St. Lawrence and the Ocean, These projected works are alluded to in order to show that the attention of the Government, Parliament and People of Canada, has been fixed upon this important portion of the Province.

Lines to a Village Coquette.

Lady, I have ceased to love thee,
Love has turned to cold contempt!
Even as the stars above thee
Look on it and scarce exempt;
I can almost look in anger
On thy lovely face and brow,
For I have found thee heartless, soundless
But I'll soon forget thee now.

Well I know that thou hast beauty,
But it will not please me more;
For with it you've caught and broken,
Many wasting hearts before.
Strange it is that you could trifle,
But I've found thee out at last,
And though hard indeed the lesson,
I am safe, the storm is past.

Do you think that I regret thee?
No! regret were all in vain!
But in future I'll be careful
Not to be ensnared again.
Well thou lovest the sport of winning
Honest hearts to throw away;
But in vain, false cruel lady,
I am free, and so shall stay,

Lady, I have ceased to love thee,
In my heart thou hast no place;
I have learned to look in hatred
On thy charms and winning grace.
Once I loved thee deeply, fondly,
More than I have words to tell;
But the spell no longer binds me
Lady, Coquettr, Fare-thee-well!

Discords.

How beautiful is sunshine
That follows after rain!
How pleasant are the dreams of ease
When purchased by a pain!
How sweet when true love quarrels
To make it up again!

How merry is the streamlet
That has a rock to leap;
How blessed is the daily toil
That brings refreshing sleep!
Then pray thee, love a quarrel;
But neither long nor deep.

How dull would be the morning
Had night not gone before!
How tame would be the summer days
Were't not for winter hour!
And were our life all pleasure,
Delight would be no more!

After the dark, the dawning:—
After the cold, the heat:—
After the rain, the buds of spring:—
After the sour, the sweet;
And after all thy chiding,
Behold me at thy feet!

Mackay.

The Death-Grasp.

Concluded from our last.

IV.

Years rolled on. Hugh married, and became the father of four boys. Sir Marmaduke died, and Hugh inherited the title and estates. The times had grown more and more troublous. Popular discontent had increased to a high pitch, and the gulf between Charles I., and his people, widened every day. Every step taken by the King was, we know, only one more to the scaffold. The country was absolutely flooded with pamphlets exposing the disorders of the court. Shoals of these pamphlets were brought from Holland, by smugglers, who realised a large profit by their sale. The punishment for this offence was fine, imprisonment, and the pillory. But in times of national convulsions, Oppression frequently stalks beneath the mantle of Justice, which it drags through the blood of thousands, until it has dyed its pure ermine a dark crimson. The Court thought to put an end to popular resistance by redoubled severity, and accordingly was not scrupulous about overstepping the law. Orders were secretly despatched to the gentlemen and justices in Essex well affected towards the King, to punish with death all persons who might be captured bringing over or distributing any of the incendiary writings, as they were called, from Holland.

Among the most devoted, most bigoted, and most unscrupulous of the King's adherents was Hugh Arnell. One morning, a prisoner, apprehended with a large number of the forbidden pamphlets on his person, was brought up for examination.—He was sentenced to death, but Hugh's manner when sentencing him was strangely agitated. He seemed almost to appeal to the man's mercy while pronouncing his doom; and to the suprise of every one, accorded the prisoner's request for a private interview.

The prisoner and his judge had recognised each other! Josiah Barton—such was the prisoner's name—was the person present in the library on the night of Margaret's murder. Immediately they were alone, Josiah said—

"Am I indeed to die?"

"You heard the sentence," stammered Hugh, "why should it not be carried into effect?"

"Because, if I suffer, it shall not be alone."

"Why—why not—what do you mean?" asked Hugh."

"Sir Hugh Arnell," replied Josiah, calmly and impressively, "you know what I mean well enough. Look round this room! look at yonder hearth! look at yonder spot, where she fell! Look at yonder window, and look at these hands! Trust me, I will not die alone!"

So speaking, he stretched forth his hand. The fingers, over which there was a frightful scar, were rigid and immoveable.

"Silence! do not speak so loud!" exclaimed Hugh, in a low whisper. "What would you have me to do?"

"Save me!" replied his companion.

"How can I do so!" returned Hugh.—"How can I do so? Oh! why did you ever approach this place? Why did you ever return to it?"

"Why? for a reason which you doubtless will not understand. On that horrible night when you committed the murder," said Josiah, solemnly, "I came here with no bad intent. I know not, in truth, why I came, unless it was in obedience to a mysterious impulse which I could not resist, and which I cannot describe; an impulse which guided my steps hitherward despite myself; an impulse which caused me to traverse your park, to enter your house, and to conceal myself in yonder recess, instead of rejoining the vessel to which I belonged, and which was lying to off the coast."

"But why, why did you now return?" said Hugh, with a shudder, "when you knew.——"

"When I knew the false charge hanging over me," replied Josiah, interrupting him "and the fresh danger I incurred from the work in which I was engaged! I returned to this neighbourhood, because I could not do otherwise. Because this time, it was more than an impulse which urged me forward—because it was actual force."

"Force!" murmured Hugh, nervously pulling up the gauntlet gloves upon his hands.

"Ay, force," returned his companion.—"A mysterious force—a grasp which is not human!"

With these words, he drew back his loose sleeves of his seaman's doublet. On each of his wrists was the impression of a hand.

I have committed crimes in my life, but not one that merits death. I have never murdered," he continued, looking fixedly at Hugh. "If I die, I risk nothing by revealing all. I will reveal all!"

"No, no, no!" shrieked Hugh. "Have pity; think of my wife—my sons! I will save you!"

The plan for Josiah's flight was soon arranged. He was confined in a strong apartment on the basement of the Hall, but Hugh furnished him with the key to open the door leading out into the park. He gave him also a sum of money. At nightfall the prisoner was to escape, having first, in order to avoid attracting suspicion to his deliverer, left in the lock a crooked piece of iron, as if it was with that instrument that he had effected the bolt. But there was one part of the plan Hugh did not mention!

Meanwhile, a report had circulated in the village that an attempt would be made by the friends of the prisoner to rescue him.—On hearing it, the young men of the place, all of whom were tenants of Sir Hugh, hastily seized their weapons, and determined to march down to the Hall to protect it from any attack.

Just as they were approaching the confines of the park, they perceived a man advancing before them. He had crossed the bridge, when a bright flash and the report of a pistol issued from behind the parapet.—The man sprang up in the air and then fell At the same moment, a human figure darted out towards the body; but the moon burst forth suddenly, though only for an instant, in all her refulgence, from a dense cloud. That instant, however, was sufficient for the assassin to remark the band of young men, whose approach he had not heard, as their footsteps were deadened by the snow, for it was Christmas Eve. He instantly turned and ran off in an opposite direction, under the cloak of darkness which again covered the earth. During that single moment, too, of moonlight, the words "Sir Hugh" were uttered by a dozen tongues.

The wounded man, who was no other than Josiah, was raised, and carried into the village. Although he was not dead, his life was ebbing fast. He felt convinced of this, and requested that a clergyman might attend him. When the latter arrived the wretched man dictated a long statement in corroboration of its truthfulness, however much they were, at first, inclined to doubt the other portions of his confession. When the clergyman had drawn up the document, Barton had it read over to him. He nodded, for he was now too exhausted to speak when the reading was concluded, as if to intimate that his words had been correctly taken down. He then signed the paper in full, and fell back. He muttered a few inarticulate sounds, and all was over.

The witnesses of this impressive scene were, for some little time, undecided what to do. They eventually determined on going to the Hall, and apprehending Sir Hugh. After searching fruitlessly most of the apartments, they came to the liberrary. The door was closed; they broke it open. The room appeared to be first night, empty and deserted, like the rest; faint groans, however, issued from its farther extremity; and on the hearth, struggling among the glowing embers, lay the prostrate figure of Hugh Arnell. They hastened up to the spot, and, to their horror, observed that the unhappy being was retained on his fiery bed by some strong, though invisible, power holding down his wrists. It was in vain they attempted to move him—the same mysterious power defied all their attempts. Not until life was quite extinct, and the body half consumed, could they succeed. When they did so, on each of the wrists—neither of which, by the way, was even scorched by the flames—they plainly distinguished the impression of a hand.

No doubt was now entertained of Sir Hugh's guilt, and his horrible career was regarded as a proof how easily, and, indeed, how inevitably one crime leads on to another. Among other facts, hitherto inexplicable, was the discovery of a human thigh bone, half calcined, which had been found on Christmas Eve, seven years previously, in the kennel of Nero, Sir Hugh's favourite blood-hound.

Two centuries and more have elapsed since the date of the events we have recorded, but the recollection of them has survived up to the present day. It has been kept alive by strange circumstances, well known to all those residing in the neighbourhood of Coldbrook Hall. For three successive years, after the death of Sir Hugh, one of his sons died upon Christmas Eve, and the marks to which we have several times alluded, and which are known for miles around as the Death Grasp, were invariably found upon the wrists of the deceased. The remaining son was then taken to London at Christmas, and escaped. One hundred and fifty years later, the then representative of the family, disbelieving what he called such gross superstition, passed the ominous period at the Hall. On Christmas Eve, he was stricken down, with the fearful Death-Grasp upon his wrists. Ever afterwards the family have left the Hall a week or ten days before Christmas, and have never returned till some time subsequently, when they have been free from any special mortality during that period. But whenever and wherever an Arnell dies, he is always obliged to be held down in his bed, a few minutes before his decease. An invisible power appears to be drawing him forcibly from where he lies, and his wrists are, in every instance, marked by the Death-Grasp.

Barton's statement, attested by the clergyman, the Rev. Mr. Barnaby, has been treasured up by his descendants, although they have frequently been offered large sums for it by the Arnells, who have constantly exhibited the most earnest desire to obtain possession of it. Our informant, Mr. Massey, told us also that his own grandfather, when about two-and twenty, once in a spirit of bravado passed Christmas Eve, with a number of other young men, in Coldbrook Hall. He and his companions were discovered lying senseless in the entrance the following morning, and the account they gave of what they saw, although they obstinately refused to divulge all the particulars, effectually prevented any one else from imitating their example. Mr. Massey, though a mere child at the time of his grandfather's decease, can perfectly recollect the serious expression which used to overspread the old man's features if the subject happened to be mentioned. His grandfather invariably directed the conversation into another channel.

In the face of what appears to us such convincing proofs, we do not hesitate to avow, that we believe, although we cannot explain, the strange and unearthly facts we have recorded. We have no doubt, however, that in the present advanced stage of knowledge, which ridicules such things as absurd, some famous electrician or celebrated chemist will, one of these days, satisfactorily and scientifically account for that terrible scourge of the Arnells—the DEATH-GRASP.

Hints to Workmen on Health.

1. Abstain from all spirits and dram drinking. Spirits relax the muscles, diminish the strength of the body, and render men susceptible of disease.

2. Let your food be coarse and plain. Concentrated and highly-seasoned food is, if possible, as bad as liquors.

3. Where (well filtered) water does not disagree, value the privilege and continue it. Pure water is a far better beverage for the sedentary, and those who take but little exercise, and for persons whose labor or exhausted strength do not require stimulants.

4. The quantity (of most things) is always more hurtful than the quality.

5. Take your meals at regular hours always. The human frame is capable of being enforced from sickness to perfect health, by a well regulated system of diet.

6. Avail everything, however agreeable to the palate, that from experience you find to disagree with you.

7. Make daily ablution the first thing on rising; you will feel stronger and more refreshed from it during the day. I fancy that at I hear you say that you have not the time to do so. My answer to you is, rise ten minutes earlier, dip a coarse towel in cold water, wring it out, and rub the whole body over. — Cleanliness is next to godliness."

8. Never quack with your constitution by taking patent medicines; they are offered for every kind of disease, for many of which they are decidedly prejudical, producing very often fatal results. If indisposed (and if it is possible to do so), remain quiet, avoid excitement, and abstain from all meats and fermented liquors for the day. In headache and slight fever, this plan mostly effects a cure. Never use purgatives.

9. Take exercise if you value your health, but proportion it to your strength.

10. Never learn to smoke; shun tobacco in all its forms, it stunts the growth, when taken at too early an age; it is a great promoter of indolence and laziness; it causes nervous trembling of the hands, and nervous debility; it has nothing nourishing or stimulating in it, but is merely a narcotic, of which the moral and physical effects upon those who use it are of a very dubious character,

A New Remedy.

A German who resided in Mill Creek Township, while recently suffering from a pulmonary attack, sent for a physician who resided on College Hill, In a short time the doctor called on him, prescribed two bottles of cod liver oil, and received his fee of $8, was told by the German, who disliked the size of the bill, that he need not come again; the German, who, by the by, had not heard the doctor's prescription very well, supposed that he could get the oil and treat himself. The doctor saw no more of his patient for some time, but one day riding past the residence of the German, he was pleased to see him out in the garden digging lustily. The case seemed such a proof of the virtues of cod liver oil that he stopped to make more particular inquiries about it.

"You seem to be getting very well," he said, addressing the German.

"Yah, I ish well," responded the sick man.

"You took as much oil as I told you?" querried the doctor.

"Oh yah, I have used more as four gallons of de dog liver oil."

"The what," said the astonished doctor, "De dog liver oil dat you say I shall take. I have killed almost every fat little dog I could catch, and de dog liver oil have cured me. It is great medicine, dat dog liver oil."

The doctor Lad nothing to say, but rode quickly away, and noted in his memorandum book that consumption might be as readily cured with dog-liver as cod-liver oil.

Miscellany.

The N. Y. Courier states that the spirit thermometer at Franconia, N. H., on the morning of the 24th, indicated 49 ° below zero at half past 8. A mercury thermometer taken from a warm room at eight o'clock A. M., after the sun was up and shining brightly, sank to 40 ° below zero in twenty minutes! The mercury itself was solid! This is the coldest weather ever known in Franconia.

"I spose, Sammy, that we'll have a terrible rain in a day or two." "Why, mother, how do you know?" "Gracious, child! don't you know why? this is the 19th of September." "Well, what of that, mother? is that any sign that it will rain?" "Why, goodness, son, of course it is. Did'nt the master never tell you about these things? You see about the 21st of this month the sun gits up the top of the pole, and then he begins to slide down again to the tropics of unicorn, then comes rain like blazes, unless the horns of the moon git turned up and hold the water all in, and such cannot be the case now, for you see the moon has no horns, but is in her nuly state; so of course it must rain soon. If this stupid schoolmaster don't begin to larn you these important things, I must take your education into my hands. It's a great thing, to have good education, Sammy."

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Lacerations of the flesh, bruises and fractures, occasion comparatively little pain or inconvenience when regularly lubricated or dressed with Holloway's Ointment. In the nursery it is invaluable as a cooling application for the rashes, excoriations, and scabious sores to which children are liable, and mothers will find it the best preparation for alleviating the torture of a "broken breast."—As a remedy for cutaneous diseases generally, as well as for ulcers, sores, boils tumors, and all scrofulous eruptions, it is incomparably superior to every other external remedy. The Pills have a reputation for the cure of dyspepsia, liver complaints, and disorders of the bowels, so extensive with the range of civilization.

DEAN SWIFT was once solicited to preach a sermon for the benefit of the poor. When the preliminary exercises were gone through, he arose and selected the text.—"He that giveth to the poor, lendeth to the Lord."—"Now," said the witty pastor, "if you like the security, down with the dust." This was the whole of the sermon, and it occasioned a large collection, which, by the way, was the only thing wanted.

FOUND HIM.—The Sonoma Widow Emma, who said she had $2,000 per year, and advertised for sealed proposals, has found some handsome young "feller," "just suited to her mind." She married him, and she has got him. According to her account she had many offers, some of whom were too modest to give their real names, and others, she imagines, were more anxious for the loaves than the fish.

A VILLAGE OF WOMEN.—The village of Madana, which is about sixty English miles from Ratscule, in Wallachia, offers at the present moment a curious ethnographical singularity, having been inhabited by women only for the last thirty years. At one period this female population was two hundred. The Amazons of old; but avoiding all intercourse with men drove away from their territories all who appeared with matrimonial intentions. The anti-social settlement is now supposed to be on the decline; at least, no more recruits are made from the disappointed or love-crossed, and the members of the population are rapidly decreasing.

A writer has compared worldly friendship to our shadow, and a better comparison was never made, for while we walk in the sunshine it sticks to us, but the moment we enter the shade it deserts us,

To Prevent Smut.

Put one bushel of lime to ten of wheat, clean your barn floor well, put down the desired quantity you want of lime, then sift over slackened lime until you get the quantity that is wanted, then wet it and stir it three times a day for eight and forty hours: twenty-four hours will help it but the other will cure it. Balded wheat is more subject to smut than the bailded wheat; this I have observed for several years

JOHN McCORMICK.

BURFORD, Dec. 25, 1856.

FOR THE HICCUPS.—Travelling some time since by railroad from Columbus to Baltimore I took my seat immediately in front of a gentleman who was suffering under a paroxysm of hiccups, to a degree that I had never before witnessed. In a few minutes a person appeared from the end of the car and took a seat beside him, when he said: "Sir, can you tell me what is good for the hiccups? I have been afflicted in the way you see me since yesterday noon, and had no rest or relief from any physician to whom I applied for assistance; I am worn out with suffering." To whom the person replied. "Sir, I will cure you in less than ten minutes by the watch.—Have confidence, for I am sure I can do it. Hold up high above your head two fingers of the right hand; lean back in your seat, open your mouth and throat so as to give a free passage to your lungs; breathe very long and softly, and look very steadily at your fingers." In less than the time specified the cure was performed, one hiccup only occurring during the trial. The patient could not express his gratitude, while the practitioner only retracted from him as a fee the promise that he would extend the knowledge which he had imparted as freely as he had received in assuring him that he would never be disappointed in the result. We were all struck with the fact. Since then I have often had occasion to practice upon parties in the same discord, and never without the most signal success.—Water Cure Journal.

TRAPPING MICE.—The number of mice may be very materially reduced by trapping them. The little wooden traps, with a spring to make rising over a round hole in the side, can be bought very cheaply. They are set tailed for about three cents each, when having but one hole, and for six cents with two holes. Two or three dollars will purchase a hundred of single hole traps. These baited with a bit of cheese, or cheese rind, and distributed around an orchard, will thin out the mice very rapidly. We have a lot of them about the dwelling, garden, &c., and, find them more effectual, and less annoying (especially of nights,) than cats.—Am. Agriculturist.

PARAFINE.—This article is now attracting attention in the scientific world. In the course of a law suit some time since prosecuted in London, it was stated that from the chemical works near Bathgate, where is prepared the parafine oil procured from the Torbane hill mineral, there was sold of that oil nearly $500,000 worth yearly; it was also added, that the manager of those works was only one of many parties in Europe who ordered and obtained this mineral for making oil and producing gas. Parafine has until recently been obtained only from a small district in Scotland; but it is now ascertained beyond a doubt that it can be produced largely from the Breckinridge coal, and specimens of candles made from it are already before the public. The article has the appearance of white wax, is harder than the spermaceti candles, burns more luminously and more clearly, and it is said can be manufactured at a trifle above the price of the stearine candle. A gentleman in Louisville has been experimenting with parafine and believes that, next to spermaceti, it will make the best of candles.

A NEW USE FOR HOOPS.—The Albany Transcript is responsible for the following: Recently a gentleman and lady of a neighboring city were enjoying a sleigh ride, when one of the traces was broken beyond all hope of repair, and as nearly where no assistance could be had. In this emergency the lady produced from her expanded a good cotton rope sufficient to make another. Things were fixed and the parties moved on. So much has been said against hoop skirt, as a matter of justice, we give publicity to this evidence in their favor.

A down east editor lately informed his readers that the ladies always pull off their left stocking last. This, as may supposed, created some little stir amongst his fair readers and whilst in positive terms they denied the statement, they at the same time declared he had no business to know it, even if such were the fact, and pronounced him no gentleman. He proves it, however by short argument:

"When one stocking is pulled off first, there is another left on—and pulling off this is takin' the left stocking off last."

MARRIED IN A HURRY.—The Grand Rapids Eagle mentions an unusual case of marrying, which took place last week in Caledonia, Kent county. "The parties were on their return from meeting, or a neighbour's, when it was proposed that the knot should be tied instanter. Whereupon the sleigh, (drawn by oxen,) was stopped, the parties stood up therein, and a minister promptly did the job. The driver said, "haw back," and the couple were soon landed at home, man and wife."

Arrival of the Anglo-Saxon.

PORTLAND, Feb. 13th.

The Anglo-Saxon from Liverpool about 10 o'clock on the morning of Wednesday, 28th ult., arrived at Portland at 1½ o'clock this morning. Same hour the City of Baltimore sailed from Liverpool for New York.

BRITAIN.

There was a rumour that on the fall of Bushire, the Persians made submission to the British. But the London journals have no confirmation, and mostly doubt it.

Parliament will re-assemble February 3rd.

The Queen's speech will be read by commission. The Earl of Cork will move and the Earl of Cowper will second the address in the House of Lords. Sir John Ramsden will move and Sir Andrew Agnew second it in the House of Commons.

Rumours of modifications in the ministry prevail, but nothing definite has transpired.

Per Africa it was mentioned that the ship Confederation from Philadelphia went ashore in Victoria Channel entrance to Mersey. She afterwards floated off, but having lost her rudder again drove ashore near the former place. A life boat succeeded in taking off all hands except the catpain, mate and steward, and a boy who determined to remain. On Friday evening tugs were sent out, but they could not find her owing to the darkness of the night; it was then blowing a severe gale. In the morning it was found that she had broken up, and here is little doubt that those on board perished.

FRANCE.

The Moniteur publishes a statement of he customs revenue for the past year, showing sixteen million francs deficiency from previous year,

It is said that the French force will certainly evacuate Greece this spring.

Reinforcements are being sent to Africa against the Kabyles.

Ferouk Khan, Ambassador of Persia, has had an official presentation to the Emperor. The Emperor made a guarded reply, taking care to imply that the treaty between France and Persia is commercial only.

Cardinal Morlot, Archbishop of Tours, was appointed Archbishop of Paris.

A medical commission will examine into the alleged insanity of the assassin Verges.

Lord Cowley invested thirty-two French officers with the Order of the Bath at Paris, on the 17th. A grand banquet followed.

BELGIUM.

A deputation of English had waited on Prince Deligny, to disavow the recent speech of Sir Robert Peel. The Prince replied by calling Peel a sot and a puppy.

SWITZERLAND

The Paris Moniteur officially confirms the statement that in meddling in the Neufchatel affair, Napoleon acted in reliance on a confidential knowledge of the King of Prusia's intentions, and that Switzerland may now safely disarm, as she is doing, having dismissed the troops to their homes.

It is possible that difficulties may remain as to the claim of the King of Prussia to have his standard afloat on the castles of Neufchatel.

DENMARK.

The Berlin Borsonhaalle affirms that the Sound Dues negotiations were closed on the 15th by the Conference, ad hoc, and that matters are so advanced as to promise a final arrangement by the middle of next month.

ITALY.

A despatch from Milan, dated 25th, states that a universal amnesty has been officially decreed for the Lombardy-Venetian Kingdom. All political offenders have been set at liberty. Proceedings pending against them are quashed.

A doubtful letter from Naples speaks of a conspiracy to blow up the King's palace. It also says that a body of armed men overpowered the Guards, and conveyed the body of Milano, the assassin, on board a ship.

TURKEY.

The conferences at Constantinople concerning the Principalities have at length terminated, and 10,000 Turkish troops are to march into Wallachia and Moldavia, to keep order during the elections.

The order that the Austrian troops are to withdraw from the Principalities has left Vienna. They will begin to retire on the first days of March, and must have completed the evacuation, according to arrangement, by 30th March. The news when it was announced in Vienna produced a favourable impression on the Bourse.

PERSIA.

Further telegraphic accounts received.—Bushire surrendered on the 9th December, after an hour's fire from the fleet. Fort Bushire was captured on the previous day, after a smart action. Brigadier Slipford, Colonel Melet, and Lieutenants Alterson and Warren were killed, besides 20 rank and file. Karrak was occupied on the 4th December, Large reinforcements are being sent up the Gulf.

Sir J. Bowring had applied to the Indian Government for troops.

The French journals publish the following, dated Marseilles. The Carie has arrived with news from Constantinople of the 15th. Constantinople journals confirm the statement that the English have taken the Island of Karrack and Fort of Bushire. The Persian garrison had received orders to retire into the interior. The latter were preparing to extend their operations into the interior. Considerable reinforcements had arrived. Meerza Khan, respecting whom the dispute originated, has renounced English protection. Several princes of Candahar have gone to Teheran to offer their submission to the Shah. The Shah had concentrated his troops in the eastern provinces. Russia had taken possession of islands in the Capian without Persia's consent. The Imaum of Muscat was seeking to annex the province of Affghanistan to his territories

CHINA.

News already telegraphed from China, is repeated by private advices, which say that the Chinese set fire to the foreign factries at ten o'clock, on the night of December 19th. The fire was raging when the mail left, the buildings being almost destroyed. It is however right to say, that the news is received with some suspicion in London.—Telegraph further says that Commodore Armstrong attacked and dismantled the Barrier Forts, in consequence of the Chinese wantonly firing on a man of-war's boat under American colours.

Prices of tea had advanced. The supplies were short everywhere. The silk arrived at Shanghai were sixty-seven thousand bales. Prices were $20 to $25 higher. Exchange 7s, Exchange at Hong Kong 4s 8d to 4s 8¾d.

The papers announce the death of Judge Baron Alderson.

The Daily News says—"We learn from good authority that a telegraph message from Lord Stratford de Redcliffe was received at the Board of Control, to the effect that the Shah has accepted the terms of peace offered by England, not on account of the fall of Bushire, but on general grounds."

ONE DAY LATER FROM EUROPE

The Cunard screw steamship Alps, from Havre on the 25th ult., arrived at New York on Saturday. Her advices are one day later from Europe.

We are indebted to E. Cunard, Esq., for files of Paris papers up to the 25th inclusive.

We have, by this arrival, the important news, reported on authority, that Russia has at last succeeded in obtaining entry in to the five ports of China opened to other nations, and that the preliminaries of a treaty to this effect have been already arranged. The opening of these ports to Russia had always been refused on the ground that an equivalent was given in permitting her to trade inland, and allowing her Ambassador to reside at the Court of Pekin.

The mails from Constantinople of Jan 12, have also brought important news from Asia, confirming reports in the English papers relative to the capture of Bushire by the British expedition to the Gulf of Persia. They announce the occupation of the islands of the Caspian Sea by the Russians, the concentration of the Persians on the eastern frontiers of the empire, as ordered by the Cabinet of Teheran, which has caused a holy war to be preached in the provinces of the South.

A telegraphic dispatch from Marseilles, dated the 23rd of January, states that Russia has occupied the islands in the Caspian Sea without the consent of Persia. Some revolted and ferocious tribes had been carrying terror into several of the Persian provinces.

Advices from Constantinople of the 16th of January announce the close of the Conference relative to the Principalities. Ten thousand Turkish troops will occupy the Principalities, to preserve order pending the election of Divans.

The Journal of Constantinople alleges that the Circassians of certain regions massacred the Russians who fell into their hands

The Paris Pays contradicts the report that Portugal had ceded the establishment of Goa, in Africa, to England.

The Patrie states that in Berlin political circles it is believed that an arrangement between Prussia and Switzerland, relative to the future condition of Neufchatel, will be first discussed between the Cabinets of Paris and Potsdam, that the question will only be brought before a Conference when it is matured for a settlement.

The Patrie states that in view of the approaching evacution of the Principalities and the general pacification of Europe, Austria is about to make an important reduction in her army.

The Gazette de Madrid states, on authority, that there is not the slightest difference in the views of Ministers on the leading political topics of the day.

M. de Montigny, Consul of France at Shanghai, had concluded a commercial and religious treaty with the King of Siam.

The Thaw.

Port Stanley, Feb. 9.

The Londoners but little knew on yesterday morning of the awkward position in which their Port Stanley brethren were placed. The scene at three o'clock A. M. on Sunday, was such that it will be remembered for years, as Kettle Creek has not, since June 1836, given such convincing proof of its capacity to destroy property, and spread consternation around. The thaw of Friday and Saturday raised the tributaries of the Creek, and ice of twelve and 14 inches thick, broken into immense irregular masses, floated down towards the lake with great velocity and impetus. A portion of the bridge gave way, owing it is said, to negligence on the part of the Path-master, and one of the consequences is, that some repairs which were made in the autumn, will have to be done over again. The water rose four feet higher than on any previous occasion, excepting 1836. All the warehouses were flooded, and mine host of the American Hotel found himself and his dwelling insolated from his fellow villagers. The Isaac Buchanan was dashed from her mooring, receiving considerable damage and drifting into deep water. Another vessel, whose name we could not ascertain, also received injury, and the Welland Canal was cast nearly "high and dry" on the shore. This vessel is in a very precarious position, and will, in all probability, become a wreck as soon as the water subsides. The warehouse of Messrs Routh and Davidson was inundated to a depth of two feet, and it is thought that their loss will be considerable, as several hogsheads of sugar, belonging to Mr. Arkell, of St. Thomas, and some barrels of salt were partially submerged, and their contents saturated.

The newly laid cribs which were deposited by Mr. Cotton, Toronto, have been capsized, and it will require a large outlay to replace them. That gentleman has been a severe loser by the inundation; large quantities of his fire-wood, coal, &c., having been swept away. His steam dredge, also dragged her anchors several yards, and unless better fastened than at present, will inevitably be washed out to sea by the next freshet.

Mr. Paul's bridge, near St. Thomas, has been washed away; Mr. Turvill's mill-dam has followed suit, as also Mr. Lock's, Mr. Shove's, and Mr. Savage's bridges. Two bridges came floating along almost intact, and their debris are now deposited at our bridge.

I cannot form a correct estimate of the amount of damage sustained, but it must be very great. Besides the damage above mentioned, the wharf on the east side is a complete wreck, the piles being bent, and the flooring swept away. We are very solicitous of learning through the Free Press whether the Londoners have sustained any damage by the sudden thaw; if they have, they may rest assured of our sympathy.

From our Deleware Correspondent.

An unexpected rise of the river took place on the morning of the 8th. An immense mass of thick ice, intermixed with uprooted trees, saw logs, and drift wood, came down with terrific force, striking the piles of the Kilworth Bridge, and sweeping the entire structure off like an egg shell. Unfortunately, a man of the name of William Oxterby was on the bridge at the time and was precipitated into the boiling waters below among the timbers and planks of the bridge. The last that was seen of him, he was clinging to some loose planking about half a mile below the village, but the furious torrent swept him round the bend at the head of Schribner's Island, and when those who followed from the village down the bank in hopes to save him, had gained the high bank, and cast their eyes, down the river, nothing met their view but grinding masses of ice and drift wood. The unfortunate man and the remains of the bridge had disappeared beneath the moving mass! He was a farmer, living near Kilworth, and, we hear, unmarried. The Deleware and Komoka bridge stood the shock of this terrible jam with but very little injury.

House of Parliament--Preparing.

Workmen have for some time past been actively engaged at the Parliament Buildings, and the work of alteration and renovation is nearly completed.

A new wing in the rear of the buildings has been erected since the last session, and the extensive and valuable Library is about being arranged therein. This building extends transversely to the former two wings running at right angles from the suits of rooms occupied by the officers of each branch of the Legislature, and is carried over the entrance, or carriage drive, from Wellington Street, upon four rows of cast-iron pillars.

The new building is 140 feet x 24 feet, the entrance to which is through either of the wings of the chambers, through the rooms formerly the Libraries, and now especially set apart as "Law Libraries."

To each of the entrances to these rooms, are attached very strong fire-proof double iron doors; and a further precaution against fire has been adopted in the construction of large water-cisterns over the corridors, between the Library and the House. From these cisterns (supplied from the large reservoir on Yonge Street) the water can be carried by the force of gravitation through pipes, with cocks or hydrants ingeniously arranged, over the full height of the buildings.

Since last session the following portraits of the speakers, both in Upper and Lower Canada, have been painted by order of the Library Committee, and are now temporarily arranged in the New Library, on either hand of the beautiful painting representing Her Most Gracious Majesty in her coronation robes, in the following order:—To the left of Her Majesty, 1st, Hon. Speakers McDonald; 2nd, Laboniere; 3rd, Wilson; 4th, Judge Vallier; 5th, Sheriff Ruttan; 6th, Morin; 7th, J. S. McDonald. To the right—1st, Panet; 2nd, Sherwood; 3rd, Papineau; 4th, Bidwell; 5th, McLean; 6th, Cuvillier; 7th, Sicotte; 8th, MacNab.

The latter portrait was painted some years ago in England, and being taken on a much larger scale than the others, is not on that account arranged in the order in which Sir Allan sat as Speaker. The painting is a very fine one, and the likeness striking. The others are all painted by that celebrated native artist, M. Hamel, whose talents reflect honour on his country.

The Committee have not at present been able to complete the Gallery of Speakers' portraits, three of the former incumbents of the office, since dead, having left no likeness behind them.—Globe.

The Convict Sullivan.

In the Court of Queen's Bench, on Saturday, the convict Sullivan was brought before Chief Justice Robinson and Hon. Mr. Justice Burns. Sullivan, it will be remembered, was tried in Hamilton, lately, for the murder of his wife; but his sentence was not carried into effect, owing to informality in the proceedings. The case was argued in the Court of Queen's Bench on Friday last, and on the following day the decision of their Lordships was to have been announced.

On behalf of the Crown, there appeared the Hon. P. M. Vankoughnet, Q. C., and R. B. Harrison, Esq.,

Mr. Harrison having moved for leave to amend the writ of certiorari, leave was granted.

The Hon. Mr. Vankoughnet subsequently moved for the judgement of the Court.

The prisoner having stated, that he had nothing to say to the Court, and did not wish the assistance of Counsel.

The Chief Justice then announced it to be the decision of the Court, that all proceedings subsequent to the indictment of the prisoner, be set aside, and the prisoner be committed to the charge of the Sheriff for the county of Wentworth, until discharged by due course of law.

He will therefore be tried again.—Leader

The N. Y. Commercial Advertiser publishes a list of the vessels reported to have been lost on the American coast during the month of January which shows a total of one hundred and thirty-one vessels, of which twenty-four were ships, fourteen barks, thirty-two brigs, fifty-nine schooners, and two sloops. The total value of the property lost was three million seven hundred and thirty-four thousand, two hundred dollars. This is exclusive of partial losses of cargo, and damages to vessels not amounting to a total loss, which, at an estimate, would be likely to increase the figures to something near five million dollars. The vessels reported in this list are chiefly American, although some foreign are included, when bound to or from a United States port, or known to be insured in this country. The number of lives actually reported to be lost is eighty-one, but if we add the crews of the vessels reported to be "missing" in regard to which all hope is abandoned, it swells the total number to three hundred and eighty-three, a fearful sacrifice of human life to the pursuit of commerce.

The Maple Leaf,

SANDWICH, FEBRUARY 19, 1857.

The little army of writers for the Canadian are all put to their wit's end, about the letter by "a Looker On," which appeared in these Columns a short time since, and which appears to have gone to the quick of the Patron of that journal so sensitively. And even the very intellectual Editor could not restrain his usual indignation in the premises. He must needs pour out the vial of his wrath upon some person, and pitches upon an imaginary individual as the author, upon whom a full measure of abuse is bestowed; but in this he is as wide of the mark as he usually is of the truth. For the person whom the Canadian supposes, had nothing whatever to do with the letter in question, and the abusive language made use of in that paper we must pass over, as we would not soil our sheet with the mention of it.

As to the letter in question, nothing could have been more foreign to the intention of the author, than to attempt to throw discredit upon the Reeves; for even had he desired to do so, it would have been out of his power altogether, as they are gentlemen beyond the reach of any imputation that might be cast against them. The cunning of the Canadian, however, is far greater than his good sense or his veracity, as he attempts to shirk the real question by showering a whole tirade of abuse against the imaginary author. But this is only in keeping with most of the articles which appear in that paper, and this one, by the by, appears exceedingly laboured in its attempt to avoid the truth altogether, and as truth would damn all his attempts at argument, it is little wonder that he should deal so sparingly in the article.

As to the information that the proprietor and editor of the Maple Leaf is a gentleman, &c., we feel greatly obliged. But as we never doubted that fact for a moment, and as the public are no doubt already in possession of the knowledge which he so kindly wishes to put forth, we must be excused for believing that it was labour spent in vain.

Nothing appears to give the Canadian more delight than to be abusing some person, they do not appear particular in the choice of a subject: one day it is Mr. John McLeod, another day Mr. Albert Prince; then the Parks' receive a scratch from the gall-dipped pen of the great and mighty scribblers for that journal. Now what can be the object of their mighty efforts? Is it that the member for Essex fears that if any one of these individuals should come forward, to oppose him at the next Election; that he would be successful and oust him from his present misplaced position? It must be this, for so much ink and paper certainly would not be used without a purpose, and we fancy that so much labour would not be expended without a political motive. For when any of these gentlemen are attempted to be abused, the member for Essex is always held up as a bright specimen of a statesman and a man of the right stamp, whose motives are always pure, and is in fact every thing that an honest man should be. Well, we have no doubt that they of the Canadian may think so, but to convince his constituents of this, may be a more difficult task than they imagine. That any of those gentlemen would bear a favourable comparison with the M. P. P. for Essex, no one but themselves can doubt for a moment, and we fancy would, if placed in the scales, show to the public that he was found wanting.

Whether either Mr. Albert Prince or Mr. John McLeod should be ambitious of political fame it is not in our power to state, nor does it appear that they of the Canadian, are certain upon that point; but so considerate are they, that they have warned those gentlemen with the kindest feelings (towards them) in the world, no doubt, that to oppose the present member at the next Election, "would be to court inevitable ruin and lasting political infamy." Now this is kind beyond measure as coming from one so scrupulous as appears to be the great Rankin trumpeter. The attempt to hold them up to ridicule is certainly clever in the extreme, and gives Rankin in one instance a great advantage over them, for he combines in himself all the political creeds of which they are accused, namely, extreme Toryism and ultra Radicalism; for at one time Rankin was all that the reddest Tory could wish; at an other, he repents of his evil ways and becomes the extreme Radical, then radicalism not being suitable to his ideas of statesmanship, to run hand in hand with the clear grit Brown during the last session of Parliament, in opposition to a liberal Government, and during the coming session, if we may judge from what the Canadian says of him, will go tooth and nail for the high Tory Vankoughnet. Certainly he has the advantage over the other two, for in one his constituents will obtain what would require the election of the other two, to supply.

It is amusing to read the long string of abuse which has been heaped upon the heads of Messrs Prince and McLeod, simply because the idea should have entered the diseased brain of the editor of the Canadian that those gentlemen might by some chance oppose Mr. Rankin at the coming election and defeat him, which would, should either of them come forward, in all probability be the case. This they are wonderfully afraid of, and well might they.

The following circular from the Minister of Agriculture has been directed to each of the Township and Village Municipalities throughout the country, and if responded to in a proper spirit will result in advantage of the greatest magnitude, by giving a fair distribution of the different kinds of labourers most needed in particular localities. In some places the want of farm hands has been greatly felt, in others mechanics of different kinds are greatly needed. There is hardly a Township in Upper Canada where a great number of emigrants might not be profitably employed. Indeed in some parts of the country it is next to an impossibility during harvest time to procure labourers enough to secure the crops, and enormous wages have to be paid for very indifferent hands.

BUREAU OF AGRICULTURE AND STATISTICS,
Toronto, January, 1857.

SIR,—As there is some indication that in the course of next Spring, there will be a large Emigration from Europe to Canada, than has been for some years past; and it is desirable that the Emigrant, on arriving, should be provided with employment as quick as possible, I shall feel obliged by your adopting such means as you may find most convenient to ascertain what number of Farms and Domestic Servants—Men and Women, Boys and Girls,—and further, what number and class of Mechanics would be likely to find employment with your Municipality; and reporting to this Department, as soon as possible, the result of your enquiries.

Complaints have been made, from various parts of the country, of the scarcity of Laborers, &c., and the want can probably be supplied next season, by the combined action of this department and the authorities in the different localities.

I am Sir,
Your obedient servant,
P. M. VANKOUGHNET,
Minister of Agriculture, &c.

We trust that the Municipalities will not lose sight of the importance of a due consideration of this subject, and not lose by their indifference an opportunity which is given them, at a time when most needed of securing a most useful class of emigrants, and secure to the country generally one of the greatest boons that could be bestowed.

The agriculturist is perhaps more interested in this subject than any other class of the community, and deserves at their hands, such action as will compel the Municipal bodies to bestow their attention upon this subject.

NAVIGATION OPENED.

For the last week the weather has been exceedingly pleasant and warm, the days have the appearance of Spring and the River has become wholly free from ice; and on Tuesday last 17th inst. the Steamer Gem passed down the river on her way from Detroit to Amherstburg. This is the first boat that has ventured out; but if no change takes place in the tempeaature, we may expect in the course of a week to see all the river boats adrift.

We regret to learn that Mrs William Bampton met with a most severe accident on the 13th inst., by which she was very nearly losing her life. It appears that she had been on a visit upon the St. Clair, and on the evening of that day her clothes caught fire, and before the flames could be extinguished she was most severely burned. It was thought for a few days that it would be impossible for her to survive, but at last accounts, we are happy to learn, that she is slowly recovering.

From Detroit papers we learn that the Michigan Legislature has appointed a special committee, and instructed it to report a bill setting off the Upper Peninsula, or that portion of Michigan around Lake Superior, "into a State by itself." The area of the Upper Peninsula covers about one third as much territory as is included in the Lower Peninsula. The Legislature of Wisconsin has heretofore consented to cede the northern portion of that State to Superior, thus by taking a portion of Northern Wisconsin and Michigan, a large State—the mineral State of the Union—could be formed.

The Feb. number of that valuable Monthly, The Canadian Agriculturist, is again upon our table, with an unusual amount of interesting matter.

A GOOD REPLY.—A clergyman travelling in a stage coach, was asked by one of the passengers if he thought that pious heathens would go to heaven. "Sir," said the clergyman, "I am not appointed judge of the world, and consequently cannot tell: but if you get to heaven, you shall either find them there, or a good reason why they are not." A reply well fitted to answer an impertinent question dedicated by idle curiosity.

A BY-LAW

FOR THE REGULATION OF INNS AND HOUSES OF PUBLIC ENTERTAINMENT, IN THE TOWNSHIP OF SANDWICH-

[Passed the 31st January, 1857.]

BE IT ENACTED by the Municipal Council of the Township of Sandwich, as follows:

I. There shall be no more than seven Inns, or houses of Public entertainment, in the Town of Sandwich for which Licenses to retail spirituous liquors, to be drunk therein, shall be issued, for the reception and entertainment of the Public.

II. There shall be no more than ten Inns or Houses of Public entertainment, in the Township of Sandwich exclusive of the said Town for which such Licenses to retail spirituous liquors shall be issued.

III. The sums which shall be paid for Licenses to retail spirituous liquors in the said Town of Sandwich, shall be £8 10s and for such License to retail spirituous liquors in the said Township of Sandwich, £4 10s.

IV. Each person to be so licensed shall before such license give security to be approved of by the Council by bond with two sureties to keep an orderly house and to observe all the By-laws of the Municipality in this behalf.

V. The inspectors of Licenses shall, before entering upon the duties of their office, give security to the satisfaction of the Council by bond in £120 for the due performance of their duties. Their remuneration shall be £4 each. It shall be the duty of the Inspectors to make two visits at least to all taverns Licensed during this year, viz: once in the month of June and once in the month of October, (in addition to the necessary visits previous to the granting certificates,) for the purpose of satisfying themselves, whether the said houses are being conducted in accordance with the regulations aforesaid, and they shall report to the Council any breach of such regulations Any person applying for a License after the first day of March next, shall pay to the said inspectors five shillings each for inspecting his or her house in addition to their above mentioned compensation. The time and place for the meeting of such Inspectors to determine to whom Licenses shall be granted and to give certificates, shall be on the 28th day of February inst at the office of the Township Council in Sandwich.—They shall grant no certificates for such licenses as aforesaid to any person who shall not have complied with the following regulations; nor at any time and place except at the time and place above mentioned, except to applicants after the first March next.

VI. Every Inn, or House of Public entertainment, in the Town of Sandwich, shall have therein four good bed rooms, containing at least six beds, and one Sitting Room for the accomodation of the public, and shall have appurtenant thereto a good Stable, containing accomodation for eight Horses; and a Driving Shed, at a convenient distance from the house, containing space for shelter for at least three teams. Every Inn, or House of Public entertainment in the Township of Sandwich, shall have therein two good Bed Rooms, four bedsteads one Sitting Room for the accommodation of the public, and shall have appurtenant thereto a good Stable, containing accommodation for six horses; and a Driving Shed, at a convenient distance from the house, containing space for shelter for at least three Teams. No Gambling, Card or Dice playing, or playing at Games of Chance, by which money may be lost or won, shall be allowed in or about any Inn, Tavern, or House of Public entertainment; no tippling or selling of Liquors of any kind, at the Bar or in the Bar Room of any such Inn, Tavern or House of Public entertainment, shall be allowed on the Lord's Day.

VII. All sums payable for all the Licenses above mentioned, shall be paid to the Treasurer of the Township, who shall give or endorse a receipt for the same on the certificate of the Inspectors; upon the production of which certificate to the Township Clerk, with receipt so endorsed, he shall take a bond from the party applying, binding the applicant in £50, and two sureties in £25 each, upon the completion of which bond the said Clerk shall issue a License and file the receipt in his office.

VIII. Any person or persons acting in any way in contravention of this By Law, or of any section or clause thereof, or neglecting or refusing to perform any of the duties required thereby, shall, upon the information, or oath, of one or more creditable witness or witnesses, be summoned to appear before the Town Reeve, or any one or more of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace in the said Township; and upon conviction of any such contravention, shall forfeit and pay a Fine of not less than Five Shillings nor more than Five Pounds, including costs, to be levied by warrant under the hand and seal of the said Town Reeve or Justices; and in default of sufficient distress, the party so convicted may be imprisoned in the Common Gaol of Essex for a period not exceeding twenty days.—The one half of the said fine to be paid to the informer, and the other half to the Tresurer of the Municipality, to form part of the Road and Bridges fund of the Township.

IX. The By-Law of the Municipality of the said Township passed on the seventh day of Februrary, A. D. 1856, and all other By Laws amending the same or concerning Inns, Taverns, or Houses of Public entertainment are hereby repealed. Provided that such repeal shall not render void or in any way affect any thing done or any right acquired or liability incurred before the passing of this By-Law.

TOS. WOODBRIDGE, Reeve.
D. MOYNAHAN, Clerk.

A BY-LAW,

FOR THE REGULATION OF LICENCES FOR RETAIL OF SPIRITUOUS LIQUORS IN PLACES OTHER THAN HOUSES OF PUBLIC ENTERTAINMENT AND OTHER LICENSES THEREIN MENTIONED.

[Passed 14th Feb. 1857.

BE IT ENACTED by the Municipal Council of the Township of Sandwich as follows:

I. All persons selling wine, brandy or other spirituous liquors, ale or beer, by retail in places other than Houses of Public entertainment in the Township of Sandwich shall before so selling, take out a license so to sell, which shall be obtained from the Officer appointed to issue. Tavern Licenses in the said Township, and shall be in force for one year from the date thereof, and no longer, and for which the sum of Three Pounds and Ten Shilings, (£3 10s.) and no more, shall be paid to such Officer, with Five Shillings (5s) for such Officer's fees on such license.

II. That the quantity of wine, brandy or spirituous liquors, ale or beer, that can be retailed, by any shopkeepers, storekeepers, or any other persons within this Municipality holding a license to sell wine, brandy or other spirituous liquors, ale or beer, shall be one quart and no less, and that any wine, brandy or other spirituous liquors, ale or beer, to be sold as aforesaid shall not be drank or used within the House or premises of such person holding such license.

III. All persons selling or putting up for sale goods, wares, merchandize, or effects by Public Auction or outlay to the highest or best bidder within such Township shall, before such sale or exposing for sale, take out a license for the same, which shall be obtained from the same person and be in force for the same time as is hereinbefore provided in respect to other licenses, and for which Two Pounds Five Shillings (£2 5s) shall be paid to the said Officer with Five Shillings (5s) fee therefor.

IV. The penalty for contravention of the above provisions shall be the same as imsaid for contravention of the By-law of this Council regulating Tavern licenses.

A MEDICAL REVOLUTION!
THE WORLD ENAMOUSED!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.
THE GREAT COUNTER IRRITANT!!

The virus of disease often makes its way to the internal organs through the pores of the skin. This penetrating Ointment, mixing under the hand as it is rubbed in, is absorbed through the same channels, and, reaching the seat of inflammation, promptly and invariably subdues it, whether located in the kidneys, the liver, the lungs, or any other important organ. It penetrates the surface to the interior, through the coguiles, tubes that communicate with the skin as summer rain passes into the fevered earth, diffusing its cool and regenerating influences
Skin Diseases & Glandular Swellings!
Every species of exterior irritation is quickly reduced by the anti-inflammatory action of this Ointment. ANGRY ERUPTIONS, such as SALT RHEUM, ERYSIPELAS, TETTER, RINGWORM, SCALD HEAD, NETTLE RASH, SCABIES (or Itch) &c., to die out, to return no more, under its application. Hospital experience in all parts of the world prove its infallibility in diseases of the skin, the muscles, the joints and the glands.
Ulcers, Sores & Tumours!
The effect of this unrivalled external remedy upon Scrofula and other virulent ulcers and sores, is almost miraculous. It first discharges the poison which produces suppuration and proud flesh, and thus the cures which its healing properties afterward complete are safe as well as permanent.
Wounds, Bruises, Burns & scalds,
In cases of the fracture of the bones, injuries caused by steam explosions, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Rheumatism, Stiffness of the Joints, and contraction of the sinews, it is employed and warmly recommended by the faculty. This marvellous remedy has been introduced by its inventor in person into all the leading hospitals of Europe, and no private household should be without it.
Undeniable Testimony!
The Medical Staff of the French and English Armies in the Crimea have officially signed their approval of Holloway's Ointment, as the most reliable dressing for sabre cuts, stabs, and gun-shot wounds. It is also used by the surgeons of the Allied Navies.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases.

Bunions,	Skin Diseases,
Burns,	Swelled Glands,
Chapped Hands,	Sore Legs,
Chilblains,	Sore Breasts,
Fistula,	Sore Heads,
Gout,	Sore Throats,
Lumbago,	Sores of all kinds,
Mercurial Eruptions,	Stiff Joints,
Piles,	Tetter,
Rheumatism,	Ulcers,
Ringworm,	Venereal Sores,
Salt Rheum,	Wounds of all kinds,
Scalds,

How I Won Her!

BY JACK LANGTON'S STORY OF CHRISTMAS AT AN OLD COUNTRY HOUSE.

"Sure's a very pretty woman, Jack!" said I, mixing a fresh tumbler of Kinahan.

"She's an angel, sir!" responded Jack. "Her prettiness is her smallest qualification, though. Heaven knows, I couldn't have stood a Hottentot Venus continually about me. But I'm glad you like her; for as my very old friend, I looked forward to your being a favourite with her."

"My dear fellow," I replied, "she seems to me every thing you could wish. But where on earth did you fall in with her? When I left England, you had not the least notion of being married."

"I knew you'd want to know all about it," laughed Jack; "and so as she's gone up to see baby asleep, and as I am sure that novel and interesting style will creep in, for a half-an-hour, I'll tell you the story. Light a pipe, man; in this sanctum-sanctorum, my study, no end of smoking is allowed."

This conversation took place between the editor of this story and his very intimate friend, Jack Langton; the time being last winter, the place the back parlour of Jack's little house in Keppel Street, which he dignified by the name of a study; and the subject of conversation being Jack's wife, married twelve months before, but introduced that night for the first time to the narrator, who had been abroad. The pipes were lighted, the glasses sipped; I had settled myself in an easy-chair, in a comfortable listening attitude, while Jack poked the fire, cleared his throat, and began—

"For some time before you left England, though I never said anything to you about it, I had begun to be thoroughly sick of the life I was leading. You must recollect I am three years older than you, and three years extra knocking about town tell heavily on us all. I hated the whole life from beginning to end—its selfishness, its dreariness, its monotony. While I had you to rattle about with, I did not so much mind, and might after a night passed without sleep in taking much heed of the manner in which they were spent; but, left to myself, the melancholy future broke upon me in all its dreariness. I used to look round the coffee-rooms of the tavern where I dined, and fancy that I might become one of those solemn, staid old men who dined alone, and after dinner sat sipping their wine or punch, and staring vacantly before them, long after the other frequenters of the room had departed. I fancied them after they left the tavern, going either to their dull chambers, up a worm-eaten and back staircase, opening the door with their key, closing the heavy oak behind them, and shutting out life and light, and friends and hope; or else, to a dingy second-floor lodging, where they were at the mercy of a querulous landlady, and a slatternly servant, and which would possess all the dreariness of chambers without the laissez aller feeling which induces so many to live in them. I wonder what such people did when they were taken ill, say, in chambers, without the power of calling assistance, or letting any one know the strait they were in; and I recollected the story of an old gentleman whom I had known in early youth, who used to drink very freely, and who left his club late one Christmas Eve, and was found when they broke open his door in the middle of Christmas day, covered with blood, and dead, his body being still warm. I recollected how it was proved that he was heard tumbling about his room (he lived in chambers in the Temple) by the people underneath, but they were accustomed to the noise, and took no notice of it; and it was imagined that he had fallen with his temple against the key in the door, had cut his head open, and had literally bled to death, all for the want of some person near at hand to hear and succor him. So, thinking over all these things, I began more and more to detest the bachelor life I was leading, and—

"You are grinning, I see, and I know what you mean. That there must have been some particular idea of something or somebody to set me forth in this strain remarkably in so short a time? You are right! A few night after you left town, I was taken by Charley Ferrars to some private theatricals in Portland Place. He came to the old chambers full dressed, and insisted on my accompanying him. I refused; but he insisted more strongly than ever; said I was growing worldly and stupid, that it would be great fun chiffing the amateurs, and that I must go. I pleaded much work, an article to write before the end of the week, and a necessity for the money. He offered to lend me ten pounds. So when I saw he was really anxious that I should go with him, I declined his loan, but dressed and went.

"By Jove, sir, I've seen many dismal gatherings, wedding and family parties, Philharmonic meetings, and 'a few friends and music,' but nothing to compare with the ghastliness of that party I cannot conceive. And yet to that night I now look back with such delight and such gratitude, that I've marked the date in my pocket-book and intend to keep it every year by some mark of festivity. But I shall come to that part of it presently. The owners of the house where this performance was going were rising mercantile people struggling for position in the world, who thought it very grand to get a few stage struck young swells to come and turn their drawing-room inside out; play the deuce with the furniture, and allure a great number of recognized people to come and see their vagaries. The room were crowded with the usual style of London society people, the old women in turbans and wondrous head dresses, who always press forward and scuffle for the best seats and best suppers, the listless fade girls, fresh at the beginning of the season, but oh how worn and faded before the end of it, with their becoming toilette and delicious perfumes and empty dreary conversation of nothingnesses; and there were old men of all descriptions, the fussy, the fidgetty, the choleric, the bland, the simply inane, and the usual number of dancing barristers and Government office clerks, with curled whiskers and natty boots and white chokers, who talked the smallest of small talk in the most mellifluous of voices. This was dreary enough, we thought; so we tried to relieve our minds by attending to the acting, and we found that so bad that we were quite delighted, and were choking with subdued laughter, and making all the fun we could to each other of the actors, when I looked down and saw that a pretty girl close to us was evidently listening to what we were saying, and entering into the fun.

PROPOSITION TO MAKE WELLINGTON KING OF FRANCE.—I heard an extraordinary anecdote, and from a quarter that appears authentic, that it was proposed as the army was advancing, to offer the crown of France to the Duke of Wellington. This extraordinary proposition was not only made but discussed for some time. Though it was rejected, its being entertained for moment was a remarkable fact.—Life and Correspondence of Sir G. Malcolm, G. C. B.

The term "Swell" has generally been applied to over-dressed gentlemen; but if the ladies, dresses go on expanding at their present rate for 50 winters, we shall soon see boys running after a lady who may be as broad as an omnibus and hear them crying out lustily: "Thems goes a swell!"

A DAILY AND A WEEKLY FOR $3,50

Those of our readers of this paper who desire a daily review of the Cleveland, New York and other markets, may be accommodated on the following terms: For $3,50 we will send the "Commercial Gazette and Marine Record of the Lakes" for one year, and will subscribe for the "Daily Clevelander" for one year and send the Publisher's receipt to any address.

The "Clevelander" is the size of this paper, is printed on minion and agate type, and on heavy white paper. The reports of the home markets will be prepared by us, and we need not repeat that neither patience nor skill will be spared to make it full and correct in every particular. The New York, Buffalo, and Oswego reports are furnished by the N. Y. associated press, and will be correctly rendered. As a newspaper the "Clevelander" is perhaps equal to any daily in the State. Recollect, only $3,50 for "Daily Clevelander" and the "Commercial Gazette" for one year. Parts of a dollar may be sent in postage stamps. For two dollars the two papers will be sent six months

THE CANADIAN AGRICULTURIST.

IMPORTANT TO YOUNG MEN!

"Agriculturist" Cash Prizes for 1857!

ONE PRIZE OF $50
ONE PRIZE OF $40
ONE PRIZE OF $30
ONE PRIZE OF $20
ONE PRIZE OF $15
ONE PRIZE OF $10

ONE PRIZE, CASH $4 AND "FARMER'S GUIDE," PRICE $6!! ONE PRIZE OF "FARMER'S GUIDE," PRICE $6!

THE above Prizes are offered for competition to Young Men who will, during the winter, canvass for Subscribers to the Canadian Agriculturist. To the person who obtains the largest number of Subscribers previous to the 1st day of May next, the first Prize of Fifty Dollars, in cash, will be paid; to the person who obtains the next largest number before that day, the second Prize of Forty Dollars, to the third largest number, the third Prize; and so on to the lowest prize offered.

To encourage every young man who has a few weeks to spare, to engage in the laudable work of circulating a journal of such established merit as the Agriculturist (and which is now offered at the low price of half-a-dollar a copy) we undertake to give each person who forwards us before the close of the above Prizes, a copy of that admirable work, Stephen's Farmer's Guide—last American edition—for every thirty subscriptions forwarded to the Agriculturist. The selling price of the Guide—which is an agricultural library in itself—is $6: thus every person who canvasses for the Agriculturist, whether he obtains a Prize or not, will be well paid for his time. Several persons, last year, obtained from fifteen to twenty subscribers in a day.

Conditions are, that the money—half-a-dollar for each subscriber—be sent with the names; that subscriptions from Agricultural Societies are not to be included; and the subscriptions sent must, in each case, at least equal the Prize out of the prize claimed. It could hardly be otherwise, as we should give to competitors more than they obtained from subscribers.

Specimen copies will be sent to any person who may wish to commence a canvass, upon his written (post-paid) application.

Those who commence at once will have the best chance. Who takes the field? You cannot fail to win, for you are insured against loss!

To such friends as are willing to spend a few hours in aid of the Agriculturist, we offer for every six subscriptions sent, an additional copy gratis.

The Agriculturist is now so well known throughout Canada, as to need no lengthened eulogy. Eight annual volumes have already been issued, and the volume for 1857 will be superior, in some respects, to any of its predecessors.

The Agriculturist, by its cheapness, and by the practical aim and Canadian spirit of its articles, has distanced all competitors. It stands alone as the representative of the agricultural press in this country. Agricultural reports of the Provincial Societies—interesting improvements in agricultural practice in the Old World as well as the New; description are frequently illustrated with engravings, of improved implements, new machines, improved cattle, horses, sheep, swine, &c.: it contains information in the several branches of agriculture, horticulture, domestic economy, and general science; practical communications from practical farmers; the proceedings of the Board of Agriculture; the prize list, &c., of the Provincial Show; and such matters generally as will interest Canadian farmers who desire to improve "the soil, and the mind."

It is published monthly, at Half-a-dollar per annum, in advance.

☞ All subscriptions must commence with January, and all communications must be post-paid.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the Horticultural Department of the Agricultural as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects, Rural Embellishments, or the Natural art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, have also been given.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rod of tillable earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Rural Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded; together with its really superior execution, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

☞ The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of pearl surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with July, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged in the Editorial department: H. P. KNIGHT, JAMES SNOWDEN and D. W. RAY.

TERMS: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance. A liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

THE NEW ILLUSTRATED

Hydropathic Encyclopedia,

A COMPLETE SYSTEM OF

HYDROPATHY & HYGIENE,

IN ONE LARGE VOLUME.

EMBRACING Outlines of Anatomy, Illustrated; Physiology of the Human Body; Hygiene or the Preservation of Health; Dieties and Hydropathic Cookery; Theory and Practice of Water Treatment; Special Pathology and Hydrotherapeutics, including the Nature, Causes, Symptoms and Treatment of all known diseases; Application to Surgical Diseases; Application of Hydropathy to Midwifery and the Nursery. With three hundred engravings and nearly One Thousand Pages, Including a Glossary, Table of Contents, and a complete Index. By R. T. TRALL, M. D.

Published by FOWLER and WELLS, New York.

In the plan of the work, the wants and necessities of the People have been steadily in view. While almost every topic of interest in the departments of Anatomy, Physiology, Pathology, Hygiene, Therapeutics is briefly presented, those of practical utility are always put prominently forward. The prevailing errors, conceits, and whims of the day and age are exposed and refuted; the theories and hypothesis upon which the popular drug practice is predicated are controverted, and the why and wherefore of their fallacy clearly demonstrated. The following is a brief analysis of its contents:

History of Medicine; History of Bathing; History of Medicated Baths.

Anatomy illustrated by One Hundred and Twenty appropriate engravings.

Physiology, embracing the functions of Air, Light, Drink, Food, Temperature, Exercise, Sleep, Clothing, Bathing, and the Passions, to thegrowth and developement of Body and Mind, the Preservation of Health and the attainment of longevity.

Dietetics, comprising the Bible, Anatomical, Physiological, Chemical and Experimental Evidence concerning the natural Dietetic Habits of Man.

Hydropathic Cookery, with Special Directions for the Preparation of Food

Dietaries, containing the Therapeutic Distinctions of Aliment.

Philosophy of Water-Cure, with illustrated explanations of all the water-cure appliances, a Philosophic Exposition of the modus operandi of water-treatment, and the true rationale of drug-treatment.

The Nature Symptoms and Treatment of all known Diseases are examined, the ill success of drug practice exposed, and the appropriate Medicative remedies recommended and specified.

The Treatment of surgical Diseases illustrated and the directions for the minor operations given.

The Management of Lying-in-Women, and the treatment of Children.&c.

The work is intended to be plain, intelligible and sufficient guide for domestic practice in the treatment of all ordinary diseases, embracing the whole range of subjects connected with the philosophy of life, the preservation of health, and the treatment of diseases.

This great work may be had in one large volume, bound in library style. Price prepaid by mail to any Post Office in United States or Canada, only THREE DOLLARS.

All letters and orders should be directed as follows:—

FOWLER & WELLS
No 308 Broadway, New York.

☞ Agents in every neighborhood will be supplied in packages of a dozen or more copies, by Express or as Freight. Single copies by mail. Every family should have a copy.

☞ Editors copying the above a few times—including this note—and calling attention to the same, will be entitled to a copy of the work, delivered to their order, at our office, 308 Broadway, New York.

BUREAU OF AGRICULTURE & STATISTICS,
TORONTO, 25th July, 1856

To Emigrants & Others Seeking

LAND FOR SETTLEMENT.

THE Provincial Government have recently opened out many great lines of road now in course of completion, and have surveyed and laid out for settlement the Lands through, and in the vicinity of, which those Roads pass.

The Roads, as advertised by the Agents of the Government, appointed to the respective localities to afford information to the Settler, are known as

THE OTTAWA AND OPEONGO ROAD,
THE ADDINGTON ROAD, and
THE HASTINGS ROAD.

The Ottawa and Opeongo Road

Commences at a point on the Ottawa River known as "Ferral's," a little above the mouth of the Bonchere River, and runs in a Westerly direction, passing through the northerly part of the County of Renfrew.

It is intended to connect this road with a projected line of road known as "Bell's Line," (lying to the North of it) with Lake Lake Huron, by a branch which will diverge from the Opeongo Road in the Township of Brudnell, at a distance of about 58 miles from the Ottawa River; passing by the "Bell Line," a great leading road, or base line from the Ottawa to Lake Muskako, 171 miles in length, passing through the heart of the Ottawa District, and opening up for settlement a vast extent of rich and valuable land.)

This road, and the country through which it passes, now open for settlement, is easily accessible, and the Agent for the granting of Lands in this district is Mr. T. P. French, who resides at Mount St. Patrick, near Renfrew, on the Opeongo Road, a few miles from the Lands which are to be granted.—To reach the section of Country under Dr. French's charge, the Settler must go from MONTREAL up the Ottawa River to the place called Bonchere Point, and thence by land some twenty-five or thirty miles westward to the Township of Grattan, in which Mount St. Patrick is situated.

The Addington Road

Commencing in the Township of Anglesea, in the northern part of the County of Addington, near the Village of Flint's Mills, Kaladar, runs almost due north to the River Nadawaska, a distance of 35 miles, and is to be continued from that point a distance of 25 miles till it intersects to Ottawa and Opeongo Road.

The Agent for the granting of the Land in this district is Mr. C. Perry, who, for that purpose, is now resident at FLINT'S MILLS. The outlines of five townships of very superior land are already surveyed and ready for settlement within the limits of the Agency, lying north of Lake Massanoka, and between it and the River Nadawaska. The Townships are called respectively Abinger, Denbigh Ashley, Effingham, Anglesea, and Barrie.

The direct route to this section is by way of Kingston, Canada West, thence North to the Township of Kaladar, and to the Village of FLINT'S MILLS, where Mr. Perry resides.

Hastings Road!

Almost parallel to the Addington Road, and at a distance of about 30 miles, about 36 miles is the HASTINGS ROAD. This road beginning at the northern part of the County of Hastings, and running a distance of 74 miles, almost due north, also intersects the OTTAWA & OPEONGO ROAD and its extensions.

The Government Agent is Mr. M. P. Hayes, who resides at the Village of Hastings, largely settled by Madoc, about 23 miles north of the Town of Belleville. The Road between these places is in good order. The land to be granted by the Crown under this Agency extends from 45 to 17 miles north of the Village of Hastings. The Road through this large extent of land is passable for 40 miles, and money is now being expended to extend it 30 miles further, so that Settlers can get in and out without difficulty, and find a good market for surplus produce, as well as convenient facilities for bringing in whatever supplies they may require—abundance of which can be had at the Village of Hastings, where the Government agent resides.

The direct way to reach this Station, which is easily accessible, is by Kingston Canada West, thence by Steamboat up the Bay of Quinte to Belleville 56 miles, and thence by a good Road to Hastings, 28 miles.

In order to facilitate the Settlement of the Country, and provide for keeping in repair the Roads thus opened, the Government authorised the free Grant of Land along these Roads, not to exceed in quantity ONE HUNDRED ACRES, upon application to the Local Agents, and upon the following

CONDITIONS

That the Settler be eighteen years of age.

That he take possession of the Land allotted to him within one month, and put in a state of cultivation at least twelve acres of the land in the course of four years—and build a house (at least 20 by 18 feet) and reside on the lot until the conditions of settlement are duly performed; after which accomplishment only shall the settler have the right of obtaining a title to the property. Families comprising several settlers entitled to lands, preferring to reside on a single lot, will be exempted from the obligation of building and of residence, (except upon the lot on which they live provided that the required clearing of the lands be made on each lot. Places of worship, Parsonages, and Burying Grounds will cause the immediate loss of the assigned lot of land, which will be sold or given to another.

The Road having been opened by the Government, the settlers are required to keep it in repair.

The Local Agents, whose names and places of abode have already been given, will furnish every information to the intending Settler.

The LOG HOUSE required by the Government to be built, is of such description as can be erected in four days by five men. The neighbours generally help to build the Log Cabin for newly arrived Settlers, without charge, and when this is done the cost of the house is small; the roof can be covered with bark, and the space between the logs plastered with clay, and white-washed. It then becomes a neat dwelling and warm as a stone house.

The lands thus opened up and offered for settlement, are, in sections of Canada West, capable both as to Soil and Climate, of producing about the average of winter wheat, of excellent quality and full weight, also crops of every other description of farm produce, grown in the best and longest cultivated districts of that portion of the Province, and in good.

There are, of course, in such a large extent of country as that referred to, great varieties in the character and quality of land—some belts being much superior to others; but there is an abundance of the very best land for farming purposes. The Lands in the neighbourhood of these three roads will be found to be very similar in quality and character, and covered with every variety of Timber—some with hard wood, and some with heavy pine.

Water for domestic use is every where abundant; and there are, throughout, numerous streams and falls of water, capable of being used for Manufacturing purposes.

The heavy timber land is almost always the best, and of it, the ashes of three acres, well taken care and covered from wet—will produce a barrel of Potash, worth from £6 to £7 currency. The capital required to manufacture Potash is very small, and the process is very simple and easily understood.

The expense of clearing and enclosing heavily timbered Lands, valuing the labor of the settlers at the highest rate, is about FOUR POUNDS Currency per Acre, which the first wheat crop, if an average one, will nearly repay. The best timber for fencing is to be had in abundance.

A settler on these lands, possessing a capital from £25 to £50, according to the number of his family, will soon make himself comfortable, and obtain a rapid return for his investment. The single man, able and willing to work, needs little capital, besides his own arm and axe—he can devote a portion of the year to clearing his land, and in the numerous lumbering establishments he can, at other seasons, obtain a liberal remuneration for his labor.

The Roads throughout these Districts is good. The snow does not fall so deep as to obstruct communication; and it affords material for good roads during the winter, enabling the settler to draw his wood and grain for the ensuing year from the woods, to take his produce to market, and to lay in his supplies for the future—and this covering to the roads serves to facilitate communication with the more settled parts of the District, but is highly beneficial and fertilizing to the soil.

As all the localities above named, wherever Settlers have surplus produce, there is a good market for it near to them—farm produce of all kinds being in great demand by the Lumbermen, Mill Proprietors, who are now carrying on extensive operations throughout these parts of the country.

According to the ration of progress which Canada West has made during the last ten years, the value of property on an average doubles within that period—irrespective of any improvements which may have been made by the Settlers.

In many Counties the value of Land, once opened for settlement, has increased FIVE FOLD in the period named, but the average value of such land, according to the statistics of Canada West, doubles every ten years in the mere lapse of time, exclusive of any expenditure thereon—and it is not too much to expect that this ratio will not diminish for generations to come.

The Sections of Country opened by these roads lie in and to the Southern part of the Great Ottawa Region, stretching from and beyond them to the shores of Lake Huron, to Lake Nipissing, and to the Ottawa River —an immense extent of country whose resources are now seeking and will rapidly obtain development.

The Ottawa Country

Lying south of Lake Nipissing said of the great River Ottawa, and embracing a large portion of the land offered for settlement, is capable of sustaining a population of many millions of people, and it is now attracting general attention, as the more western portions of Canada are being rapidly filled up.

The Parliamentary Act of last Session incorporated a Company for the construction of a Railway to pass through this Ottawa country from the Shores of Lake Huron to the City of the Ottawa, and thence Eastward.

A survey of the River Ottawa and the neighbouring Country has been undertaken and will be completed in the present year; its principal object being to ascertain by what means the River Ottawa can be rendered navigable and connected with Lake Huron so as to enable vessels to pass by that route from the most Western Waters into the River St. Lawrence and the Ocean. These projected works are alluded to in order to show that the attention of the Government, Parliament and People of Canada, has been fixed upon this important portion of the Province.

Select Poetry.

Good Temper.

BY CHARLES SWAIN.

There's not a cheaper thing on earth;
Nor yet one half so dear;
'Tis worth more than distinguished birth,
Or thousands gained a year.

It lends the day a new delight;
'Tis virtue's richest shield;
And adds more beauty to the night
Than all the stars may yield.

It maketh poverty content,
To sorrow whispers peace;
It is a gift from heaven sent
For mortals to increase.

It meets you with a smile at morn;
It lulls you to repose;
A bower for peer and peasant born;
An everlasting rose.

A charm to banish grief away;
To free the brow from care;
Turns tears to smiles, makes dulness gay,
Spreads gladness everywhere.

And yet, 'tis cheap as summer dew,
That gems the lily's breast;
A talisman for love as true
As ever man possessed.

As smiles the rainbow through the clouds,
When threat'ning storm begins—
As music paid the tempest loud,
That still its sweet way wins—

As springs an arch across the tide;
When waves swell rolling foam,
So comes this scraph to our side,
This angel of our home

What may this wondrous spirit be;
With power unheard before—
This charm, this bright divinity?
Good nature—nothing more,

Good temper—'tis the choicest gift
That woman homeward brings,
And can the poorest peasant lift
To bliss unknown by kings.

A Flattering Criticism.

A well known actor, who has rather a higher opinion of himself than is entertained either by public or his profession, was playing a star engagement out West recently.—One evening, after the performance, as he was sitting at supper, a gentleman who had been listening with rickled to the flatteries of two or three friends, a ragged Irishman approached him.

"Are yees Mr. ——the acktur?"

"I am Mr. ——, the tragedian," was the actor's reply, as he inwardly wondered what business such a specimen of humanity could have with him.

"Thin it's myself sur, that would be spaking to yees on your acting. Be-dad, it's beautiful, sur."

"When did you see me act?"

"The other night, sur," when they played Richard the Third. Be the powers, sur, I could have stayed all night, I was so plazed."

"And pray, how did you manage to raise the money to get in?"

"I didn't get in, sur, at all. Devil the red cint I had, ony way. But there's a shed sur, right side of the theaytur, an' I climbed on to a post, sur, an' saw an' heard all that was going on."

"And you liked it my good fellow?"

"You may take yer oath of it that I did."

"There!" said the tragedian turning to his friends, "I assure you, gentlemen, that the expression of unbiassed admiration from the lips of that honest fellow is far more gratifying to my feelings than all the unqualified praises I have invariably received at the hands of the ablest critics of America. Pray, my good man, addressing himself again to the Irishman, "with what portion of my performance of Richard the Third were you most pleased?"

"Well the dying scene, sur. Ye was so very throublesome in that that I thought I'd kill meself laughing at ye."

The tragedian walked home.—Times.

Curious Facts of Natural History.

A single female house-fly produces in one season 20,080,320.

Some female spiders produce nearly 2,000 eggs.

Dr. Bright published a case of an egg producing an insect 80 years after it must have been laid.

About thirty fresh-water springs are discovered under the sea, on the south of the Persian Gulf.

A wasp's nest usually contains 15,000 or 16,000 cells.

The Atlantic Ocean is estimated as three miles, and the Pacific as four miles deep.

There are six or seven generations of gnats in a summer, and each lays 250 eggs.

There are about 9,000 cells in a square foot of honey-comb. 5,000 bees weigh a pound.

A swarm of bees contains from 10,000 to 20,000 in a natural state, and from 30,000 to 40,000 in a hive.

The bones of birds are hollow, and filled with air instead of marrow.

A cow eats 100 pounds of green food every 24 hours, and yields five quarts, or ten pounds of milk.

Fish are common in the seas of Surinam with four eyes—two of them on horns which grow on the top of their heads.

Two thousand nine hundred silk-worms produce one pound of silk; but it would require 27,000 spiders, all females, to produce one pound of web.

Captain Beaufort saw, near Smyrna, in 1841 a cloud of locusts 46 miles long, and 300 yards deep, containing, as he calculated 160 billions.

Leeuwenhoek reckoned 17,000 divisions in the cornea (outer cost of the eye) of a butterfly, each of which he thought possessed a crystalline lens. Spiders, etc., are similarly provided for.

The spring of a watch weighs 0.15 of a grain; a pound of iron makes 50,000.—The pound of steel costs 2d; a single spring, 2d; so that 50,000, produces £416.

With a view to collect their webs for silk, 4,000 spiders were once obtained, but they soon killed each other. Manufactures and war never thrive together.

Spiders have four pags for spinning their threads, each pap having 1,600 holes, and the fine web itself the union of 4,000 threads No spinner spins more than four webs, when the fourth is destroyed they seize on the webs of others.

Every pound of cochineal contains 70,000 insects boiled to death, and from 600,000 to 700,000 are annually brought to Europe for scarlet and crimson dyes.

A queen-bee will lay 200 eggs daily for 50 or 60 days, and the eggs are hatched in three days. A single queen-bee has been stated to produce 100,000 bees in a season.

The quantity of water discharged into the sea by all the rivers in the world is estimated at 36 cubic miles in a day; hence it would take above 35,000 years to create a circuit of the whole sea, through clouds and rivers.

River water contains about 28 grains of solid matter to every cubic foot. Hence, such a river as the Rhine carries to the sea every day 145,980 cubic feet of sand or stone.

Mole-hills are curiously formed by an outer arch impervious to rain, and an internal platform with drains, and covered ways on which the pair and young reside. The moles live on worms and roots, and bury themselves in any soil in a few minutes.

The Days before Coal.

There can be no doubt, for it is an unquestionable fact, that the coal beds of England are the real natural source of its physical wealth. Without coal, it never would have been a manufacturing country; without coal, another Manchester would have been floating on its waters. It is simply because it has the largest coal fields in Europe, that it is the greatest manufacturing nation in that quarter of the world. But it was difficult to introduce the use of coal among the old English people.

It was first used in that country about six centuries ago, and at that time Englishmen would not use the "sooty fuel" in their houses. It did not suit the fire-place or the domestic habits of the people; but it was found well adapted for the blacksmith and the lime-burner. Only the layers near the surface in coal fields subjacent to rivers or seas, were first opened; but when the demand increased the miners dived more deeply into the bowels of the earth, and boldly worked the coal wherever it was to be found. When the mines became deep, the miners were sadly perplexed how to get rid of the water; and it was not till the steam engine came to their aid that they fully mastered this difficulty. But the prejudices of the users were as difficult to surmount as the perils of the miners. A citizen of London was once tried and executed for burning sea coal, in opposition to a stringent law passed in respect to that subject; but even long after such intolerance as this had passed away, coal was tabooed in good society.—Ladies had a theory that the black abomination spoiled their complexion; and it was for a long time a point of etiquette not to sit in a room warmed by a coal fire, or to eat meat roasted by such means. Prejudice unquestionably, had much to do with these objections; but it was not all prejudice, for the almost total absence of proper arrangements for supplying fresh air and removing smoke and foul air, rendered the burning of coal a very dirty and disagreeable companion in a room.

Wood was then the principal fuel used in England, and the forests but scantily supplied the wants of the people. Turf or peat was also employed in some districts, as it is still in Ireland, and in the Highlands of Scotland; but in all England wood is at present unknown as a domestic fuel—coal has entirely superseded it.—Scientific American.

The Rat-Elephant.

MUS PROBOSCIDEOR PERHENSILIS.

The Gazette des Triounaux gives the following strange case:—"A man named Girome a discharged Zouave, was yesterday tried by the Tribunal of Correctional Police for swindling. A person, named, Triquet, stated that the prisoner one day came to him, and offered for sale a rat with a trunk. As he never seen or even heard of such an animal, he asked me to see it, and the man showed him a large rat which had on its snout a long excrescence. He could hardly believe his eyes, and to satisfy himself that he was not a victim of fraud, he pricked the trunk with a pin; the animal uttered a cry, and a drop of blood fell. Convinced by this that the trunk was real, he paid 50f. for the rat, and he subsequently gave another 50f. for a female, in order to increase the breed. He expected to render himself famous by bringing to the knowledge of the public a species of rat of which neither Buffon nor any other naturalist had made mention; but to his mortification his two rats with trunks produced young without any. He one day described his rats to an officer who had served in Africa, and the latter burst into a roar of laughter. Having asked the cause of his mirth, the officer told him that no such things as rats with trunks existed, and that they were the invention of the Zouaves. 'An invention of the Zouaves!' cried the perplexed naturalist; 'why, how can that be?' The officer then related to him that the Zouaves are accustomed to take two rats, and fasten them to a flat board, the snout of one towards, the tail of the other; they then cut a hole in the snout of the second rat and insert the tail of the first into it, they then bind the snout up, and leaves the two rats together for 48 hours. By that time the tail has become firm in the incision, and they then seperate the two rats by cutting off tail of the first at a small distance from she snout of the other. The second thus remains ornamented with a trunk, and in about a month the incision in the snout is perfectly healed, so that the trunk appears part and parcel of the animal. Indignant at this imposture, the complainant had the Zouave arrested as a swindler.—The tribunal, however, did not consider it swindling, and dismissed the case."

Stoves Economizing Heat.

It is well known that cylindrical stoves give out the most heat, and have the best draft, but there are few who seem to know the reason why. They do not seem to be aware, at least, that there is anything in the principle of their construction which imparts to them such qualities. Stove manufacturers cannot be accused of possessing too much scientific knowledge regarding the best form of stoves, or we would not see so many blunders committed by them in casting so many with square and rectangular furnaces. This is especially the case with cooking ranges and stoves, their fire boxes are constructed on wrong principles.

The reason why a cylinder stove gives out so much heat, and tends to produce such a good draft, is owing to the sides of its fire box or furnace being concave in form. Heat, like light, may be more concentrated in stoves which have concave than those which have square fire boxes; the rectangular form of a fire box may be more convenient for cooking ranges, but there is no excuse for constructing stoves on square form.

The fire-brick for lining stoves should be fluted. Bricks with plain surfaces are not so durable as the fluted kind, because the latter tends to prevent the adherence of clinker. Some bricks for stoves are actually cast with convex surfaces, as if designed for scattering the rays of heat, thus exhibiting ignorance of the laws of heat.

Bright metal surfaces do not radiate so well as dark, dull surfaces, therefore Russia iron in stoves and pipe does not radiate so much heat into a room as common iron.—These surfaces which radiate heat most efficiently also possess the power of absorbing it and vice versa.

As the intensity of heat varies as the square of the distance from the radiating point, it is evident that the nearer the stove is placed to the centre of the room, or space which it is designed to heat, the more uniform will be the temperature of the whole space, and not only so, but a greater amount of heat will be economized.

Stove manufacturers have devoted an immense amount of attention to elaborate the surfaces of cast-iron-stoves, and to produce stoves based upon the philosophy of the laws of heat. We hope that more attention scientifically, will hereafter be devoted to this great and important branch of American manufactures.—Scientific American.

Miscellany.

SCIENTIFIC LECTURES IN PRUSSIA.—At Konigsberg, lately, there was to be a lecture delivered upon the steam engine before an audience of admiring mechanics. As usual, there was a policeman present to ascertain that no political sentiments were expressed. The lecturer commenced an eloquent recordium to the effect that no conquerer of ancient or modern times, neither Alexander the Great nor Julius Cæsar nor Napoleon, was so great a conqueror as James Watt. So far he had got with his lecture, when the policeman came down with his club on the fell swoop and put a stop to the evening's entertainment, declaring that his duty did not admit of his any further permitting this political discourse:—Berlin Correspondent of the Times.

DOMESTIC PEACE.—The loss of physical force or menacing language we use,—the less, to take an expressive word, we scold our children—the more order and quiet we shall commonly secure. We have seen a family where a single word, or a look, even, would allay a rising storm. The gentle but firm method is the best security for domestic peace.

A ROYAL SHAKEDOWN.—As the Prince of Wales and his tutor were travelling lately incog., in the west of England, the landlord of a certain hotel having reason to expect a visit, prepared his best room in his best style, and then waited in feverish anxiety. One after noon a gentleman and a youth arrived, and asked if rooms could be had for the night. All the servants were in a bustle, for the landlord was sure he discovered the young prince and his tutor. So the best rooms were speedily given to the guests and every possible comfort added while the landlord behaved to his royal visitors with the utmost deference, and yet without any open acknowledgment, of their rank, as he knew it was desired to keep this concealed. Later in the evening, and when almost every room in the house had been filled, there arrived three more travellers, one two gentlemen and a boy. When they asked for bedrooms the landlord said, "Very sorry, gentlemen, we have only room for two of your party; but perhaps, we can manage to make up a bed for the young gentleman on the sofa." This was done, and in the morning it was found that the youth who slept on the "shakedown" was the heir of the crown of England while the boy who occupied the bed meant for the prince was only Master——travelling with his father.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS have wrought wonders in the unhealthy regions of the West and South-west. In Shawneetown, but Bunker Seabury aged 28 residing at Terre Haute, Ia., was cured in two weeks of a violent intermittent fever (to which he had been subject every fall for nine years,) by the searching operation of this noble remedy. The disease had prostrated him a month after season, at the busiest time of the year, causing him great pecuniary loss, as well as bodily suffering. The attack generally confined him to the house from the commencement of the fall until the middle of December. Every remedy that the faculty could suggest was tried without avail; but that which had their prescriptions for nine successive years, was radically cured in a fortnight by Holloway's Pills. Mr Seabury writing under date January 3rd says, "I am now in enjoyment of perfect health."

CHINAMEN'S COURT—A CHINESE OATH.—The case of a Afer, a Tartar, charged with attempt to rob a Chinaman named Apple, was brought up yesterday for examination, but on account of an insufficiency of evidence against the prisoner, the charge was dismissed. The particulars of the robbery were published on Monday last. Yesterday the Chinese witnesses testified in the manner prescribed by their religion, which was as follows: Each witness took a piece of letter paper, and after inscribing on it several Chinese charcters, he set fire to it and kneeling while it was burning, repeated the words of the oath.—N. Y. Tribune.

THE SYDENHAM FOUNTAINS.—Probably the most extensive, and at the same time the present time, are those in the gardens of the Crystal Palace, at Sydenham, England. These are now the finest set in operation a few months since, in the presence of Queen Victoria and twenty one thousand visitors. The day was beautiful, and the scene is said to have been magnificent. Nearly twelve thousand jets of water were thrown into the air together—including two jets shooting to a height of two hundred and eighty feet, or nearly sixty feet higher than the apex of Bunker Hill Monument. The fountains are chiefly supplied from two tanks, placed at the top of the palace towers—each tank containing two thousand tons of water. The water upon its way from the towers is distributed through a system of iron pipes, ten miles in their aggregate length, and so large that a man may crawl through the smallest of them.—New Orleans Delta.

A man travelling entered a tavern, and seeing no one present but the landlord and a negro, seated himself and entered into conversation with the negro. Shortly, he asked Sambo if he was dry? Sambo said he was. Stranger told him to go to the bar and take something at his expense. Negro did go and shortly left. Landlord says to the stranger, "Are you acquainted with that nigger?" "No, never saw him before; but why did you ask?" "I supposed so from your conversing with him and asking him to drink." "Oh," said the stranger, "I was only experimenting. The fact is, I was dry myself, and I thought that if your liquor did'nt kill the negro in fifteen minutes, I would venture to take a drink myself."

INFLUENCE OF CIRCUMSTANCES.—Different employments, and different conditions of life, beget in us a tendency to our different passions. Those who are exalted above others in their daily stations, and especially if they have to do with many persons under them, and in many affairs, are too often tempted to the haughty, the morose, the surly, and the more unfriendly ruffles and disturbances of nature, unless they watch against them with daily care. The commanders in armies and navies, the governors of workhouses, the masters of schools, or those who have a great number of servants under them, and multitude of cares and concerns in human life, should continually set a guard upon themselves, lest they get a habit of affected superiority, pride, and vanity of mind, of fretfulness, impatience and criminal anger.

Spanish robbers are very polite. An Englishman was once accosted on a lonely road by a ruffian. "Sir," said he, "you have my coat on; may I trouble you for it?" The Englishman drew out a pistol and told the fellow he was mistaken. "Sir," said the robber, "I perceive that I am. Will you do me the honor to communicate your name, that I may remember it in my prayers."

The Great Western Railway Company's steamers, Canada and America, were sold on Saturday last to the Detroit and Milwaukie Railroad Company for $180,000. It is intended to remove the machinery and every other portion of these magnificent vessels, except the hulls, to Buffalo, where new hulls will be constructed.

The Maple Leaf.

SANDWICH, FEBRUARY 26, 1857.

Our readers will have observed, that since the election which resulted in the return of Col. Prince to the Legislative Council for the Western District, we have abstained from making any remarks in reference to our present member, Mr. Rankin, or to the part he then took in opposition to the Colonel. We considered that with the close of that conflict, the excitement then caused and the bitter feelings then engendered, ought rather to be allayed than fostered. It is true that the persistence with which Mr. Rankin's organ, the Canadian, has continued to assail not only Col. Prince and all who dared to oppose Mr. Rankin at the last election, but also those he feared as opponents at the next, has often sorely tempted us to reply—a task in no way difficult, in consequence of the utter want of policy or principle these attacks exhibited. Indeed, we would have done so, but for the consideration that nothing could more effectually injure the prospects of Mr. Rankin, should he be foolish enough again to contest the county, than the continuance of those scurrilous attacks on parties so well known and so much est. the County—attacks made under Mr. Rankin's authority—and, as we are credibly informed, the productions of his own pen.

On some occasions these attacks were political, on others they had reference to the Southern Railway. The parties particularly singled out have been Col. Prince, Mr. Albert Prince, and Messrs. McLeod and Park. The estimation Col. Prince is held in by the people of Essex was sufficiently proved at the last election, when they, by an overwhelming majority, conferred on him the highest dignity in their gift. Firmly placed on the pinnacle, it became evident that no attacks could reach the Colonel, so the British Canadian gave that up, and swallowing all the falsehoods it had written against him, came out, in its issue of Feb. 18, with the hope that "the two gentlemen" who represent our interests in the different branches of the Legislature, will feel not only the good sense, but the necessity of forgetting past differences, and endeavoring to cultivate a more kindly feeling towards each other than appears to have existed between them for some time past." Mr. Rankin, after having denounced Col. Prince in every possible manner, both before and anxious to cultivate kindly feelings. We feel assured that the public will have as little difficulty in estimating the amount of truth contained in the attacks made against the Colonel, as it will have in seeing through the motives which have so suddenly led our time-serving member to change his tone.

The enthusiastic manner in which Mr. Albert Prince was everywhere received during the late election, and the frequent mention of his name throughout the County, as being a probable candidate at the next, brought him next under the lash of the Canadian. But the manner in which he was spoken of in the issue of Febuary 4th, was so unmistakeably condemned throughout the county, that in the next number the Canadian had to publish in its own columns a condemnation of the attack—but the most amusing instance of the versatility with which Mr. Rankin can change his policy, occurs in reference to Messrs. McLeod and Park. McLeod he both feared as an opponent at the coming election, and hated for the masterly manner in which he prevented the great Zimmerman chisel on the Southern Railway. He has therefore been the object of the most continued abuse, week after week. No charge could be made against him sufficiently severe—no colour could paint him sufficiently black. It will be enough for our purpose to quote from the Canadian of February 11th, to show the terms in which he has been spoken of. Speaking of him as a probable candidate, it says: "The election of John McLeod to a position of public trust and confidence could hardly be more suicidal to the morals and welfare of the county then would have been the appointment of the notorious Jonathan Wild to that of keeper of the Tower of London." And again, in reference to the Southern Railway comes the statement: "The chancery suit will do to talk about. It will ease the fall if nothing more, and give our patriotic acquaintance what may to the uninitiated seem a plausible excuse for his retirement from a position which has enabled him for a time to impose upon the credulity of his too confiding dupes, amongst whom we include all his brother directors—save Theodore Park. And which he has used only to render himself an object of anmitigated contempt in the estimation of all I orest men." In another place it charges him with selling himself and Railway interests for eight thousand pounds, and so on.—Scarcely, however, had the ink dried, when it was rumoured that McLeod and Park had succeeded in effecting an arrangement of the Railway difficulty, which secured for Amhersburg all that those gentlemen had ever contended for, giving the lie to all his charges, leaving him entirely out of the question, after all his statements that he alone could do anything in the matter.—What could he do more? Nothing, but do as he had done in so many instances before—retract; so in the Canadian of Feb. 18th, appears the following: "The people of Amhersthurg, we trust, will have no occasion hereafter to regret having intrusted the guardianship of their interests to Messrs. McLeod and Park. And as to Mr. Rankin, he has always professed and still does so his determination to stand by their rights to the last." And winding up as in the case of Col. Prince with the hope that, "It is high time that the heartburnings," which have grown out of the subject should be laid aside, and that all parties should unite in so laudable an object as the final adjustment of past differences. "What a fall was there, my countrymen." In what a pitiful point of view, does Mr. Rankin appear now! Unscrupulous charges, unblushingly withdrawn; men superior to him in talents and integrity, defamed, then contrad—re-vited, then fawned upon—he has been compelled at last by the force of circumstances to reveal himself in his true colors, and it will now be the fault of the electors if he ever again represents them.

Spring time is again upon us, with its pleasant sunny days and mild showers, causing men as well as birds to come forth and enjoy the agreeable season. Man goes to his labours to prepare for another harvest, and lay up a store against the next winter. With this excellent and industrious intention, might have been seen Mr. Forest, of this place, on Monday last, with his plough making the first move, (we believe, in these parts,) towards farming. And we believe that this is the first time that ploughing was ever commenced on the 23rd February in this county. We hope that a rich harvest will be his reward, and that his labour will not be nipped in the bud by old Jack Frost.

While it will no doubt, surprise, it cannot fail to enlighten the minds of many of our remote readers, as to the quality of our climate here when they learn, and we have much pleasure in telling them, that ploughing commenced on the Lake Shore Line on Monday the 17th instant. Mr. William Brown can claim the remarkable distinction as having for two consecutive days, Jee'd and Haw'd his plough team in the middle of February, within the bounds of this very excellent, but too little known, District of Owen Sound.—Owen Sound Times.

In the beginning of this week, several teams were at work in Missouri, and in the neighbourhood of St. Mary's ploughing! Pretty good this, in the middle of February, for a country which our friend of the Rochester Union calls the "Siberia of America." By the way, has the Union ever observed the fact, that the mean of the winter temperature at Rochester also is higher than in Canada is the "Siberia of America," Northern New York must be its "Spitzbergen."—Globe.

ACCIDENT.—A fatal accident occurred on Tuesday last, by which a young man named Lawson, came to his death. The deceased, who was engaged at the works of Messrs. Cummer, Gill & Co. Waterdown, was killed by the water wheel connected with the Company's mill. The Berlin Chonicle says:—"From the evidence adduced at the inquest held by Coronor Bull, it appeared that deceased was in the act of walking through the water wheel on a beam, with the object of getting at the buckets, so that he might clear the tail-race of the water wheel. He supposed the wheel was frozen fast and stepped on one of the arms. The wheel immediately began to revolve and carried him along with it. There being but little space between the wheel and stone work his body was forced through and horribly mangled, his back bone fractured, and his chest broken in. When he had reached the bottom, he cried out, "I'm killed, I'm killed," which were the last words he uttered; life becoming extinct in a few moments. He was married, but had no family."

We would direct the attention of our readers to the contents of the following circular, recently sent to Provincial Land Surveyors, as it is important that the public should be put on its guard against employing persons who are not legally entitled to survey, as the survey is illegal, consequently valueless. We believe there are only two licensed Surveyors in the County of Essex, Messrs. J. A. Wilkinson and O. Bartley.

UPPER CANADA BOARD OF EXAMINERS OF PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS.

TORONTO, 24th December, 1856.

SIR,

In compliance with Resolutions of the Board, I have to address you on the following subjects:

1st. To direct your attention to the Provincial Statute, 19th and 20th Vic., cap. 13, sec. 3, and to request you to inform your apprentices, "that all persons who, after the 1st January, 1858, may apply to be admitted as Provincial Land Surveyors, shall be examined in the rudiments of Geology."

2nd. Complaints having been received by the Board, that many persons not duly authorized, are practising as Land Surveyors, I have to inform you, that notwithstanding the repeal of the 2nd sec. of the 12th Vic., cap. 35, which imposed a penalty of £10, for such infringement of the Act, the offence is by the 15th clause of the 5th section of the 12th Vic., cap. 10, and 2nd sec. of the 18th Vic. cap. 86, a "Misdemeanour," and punishable accordingly; and to beg you to aid the Board in its endeavours to put a stop to a practice so injurious both to the public and the profession.

3rd. I am also to express the regret with which the Board has learned from the most reliable sources, that apprenticeships are in several instances only nominal;—the Surveyor in some cases has ceased to practise, and in others, the student does not reside with the Surveyor, nor even in the same locality; consequently is not bona-fide serving with him. This breach of the Law is in some cases aggravated by the Surveyor allowing his apprentice to practise as a Land Surveyor for him, without his supervision, to the injury of the duly admitted practitioner.

As the periods of service and actual practice in the field with a duly admitted and practising Land Surveyor, prescribed by Law, are not longer than are necessary to acquire a thorough practical knowledge of Canadian Land Surveying and of the Laws which regulate it, (without which the best theoretical Surveyors will be liable to make most erroneous and illegal surveys,) the Board will use its utmost endeavours to ascertain the nature and extent of the field practice of every candidate, in accordance with the provisions of the 4th section of the 12th Vic., cap. 35, and will exercise the powers conferred on it by the 10th section of that Act, by suspending or dismissing Provincial Land Surveyors guilty of granting false certificates.

4th. I am directed to request you not to take as an apprentice, any person claiming to have been duly admitted to practise in any of Her Majesty's Dominions other than this Province, until you have submitted the documents he produces in proof of his having been so admitted for the opinion of the Board, and have received its decision thereon.

To aid the Board in the performance of its duties you will have the goodness to enter replies to the enclosed list of questions and return it to me as soon as possible.

I have the honor to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient Servant,
F. F. PASSMORE.
Secretary.

THE BURDELL MURDER.

Hardly a week passes without our hearing of murders of the most appalling kind. In England, as well as on the continent generally, murders have been very frequently committed within the past few years.—Then passing to this continent, you can hardly take up a paper without your eye being attracted by the intelligence that some awful murder has been committed, and one's heart sickens at the details, which generally exhibits the utmost want of human feeling, and a total disregard for the penalties of the law. So frequent indeed have become the commission of crimes of late, that such subjects are now becoming quite an item in the news usually furnished to the readers of newspapers. Some of these are of the most brutal kind, and not the least is that of Dr. Burdell, who was murdered in the city of New York, a short time since, and details of which appear above suited to the acts of a barbarous, than those of a christain community, and from the evidence brought before the Coroner, it appears, though not very clearly, that a Mrs. Cunningham and one Eckel, were the chief persons upon whom suspicion falls, and against whom the Coroner has rendered a verdict. The Grand Jury have also found a bill against those parties. But whether the evidence will go to prove their guilt it is somewhat difficult to say.

Verdict of the Bond Street Jury.

On Saturday last the examination of witnesses in the Bond street murder case terminated, and Mr Coroner Connelly read on the verdict which was accompanied by a long rambling address not inserted in Monday's New York papers. The verdict is as follows:—

That the said Harvey Burdell on the 30th of January 1857, at 31 Bond Street did, said, was feloniously murdered, and came to his death by being stabbed in various parts of the body with a dagger or other sharp instrument; and the jurors believe from the evidence, and therefore find, that Emma Augusta Cunningham and John J. Eckel were principals in the commission of the said murder, and the jurors aforesaid further find that Vail Snodgrass either joined the said Emma Augusta Cunningham and John J. Eckel in the commission of the said murder, or was an accessory thereto before the fact, counselling, aiding, or abetting the said Emma Augusta Cunningham and John J. Eckel to commit the said murder, and the jurors aforesaid further find that Augusta Cunningham and Helen Cunningham daughters of the said Emma Augusta Cunningham, being in the house 31 Bond street, aforesaid, on the said murder was committed, have some knowledge of the facts connected with the said murder, which they have concealed from the jury, and that it is the duty of the Coroner to hold them for the future action of the Grand Jury. In witness whereof, we the said Jurors, as well as the Coroner, have to this inquisition set our hands and seals on the day and place aforesaid.

By Telegraph.

IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS TOUCHING THE BURDELL MURDER.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.

The proceedings before the Grand Jury in the Burdell case has, it is said, developed an entirely new and startling theory of the murder.

Dr. John W. Francis was examined before the Grand Jury on Wednesday, and his testimony went to show that the first stabs inflicted on the body of Dr. Burdell must have been given by a person thoroughly conversant with the anatomy of the human frame, and who knew where to strike to inflict the most injury. He thought it must have been the work of a man educated as a physician, or at least one whose knowledge of the vital parts is quite accurate.

Among the witnesses before the Grand Jury yesterday, was a private watchman, who testified that he shook hands with Dr. Burdell at 10½ o'clock on the night of the murder, at the corner of Broadway and Bond street.

The police are on the track of another party who are suspected of being the perpetrators of the deed.

True Bills against Mrs. Cunningham and Eckel.

The grand jury have found true bills against Mrs. Cunningham and Mr. Eckel for the murder of Dr. Burdell. Snodgrass is held to bail as a witness.

The Canadian Arctic Expedition

We learn from the Kingston Whig that preparations are being made in Canada for an expedition to go in search of Sir John Franklin. The Whig says no one would believe the fact, did we not gravely announce it as a positive fact, that Dr. Rae, the Arctic Traveller, aided by the contributions of kind friends, is building in Kingston Dock Yard, an Arctic Schooner, to be ready in May to go to Quebec, thence to the Arctic Regions, to make one more search for the remains of Captain Franklin, dead or alive. Dr. Rae is to command the Schooner, and the party of hardy adventurers to accompany him and man his vessel, are selected and engaged. We say, to search for Captain Franklin and his men; because as for the ships "Terror and Erebus," they were most unquestionably seen in 1851, attached to icebergs, drifting to the south, in the same way as was the "Resolute."

(To the Editor of the Globe)

SIR—The British Whig has jumped at a speedy conclusion, relative to Dr. Rae going out again in search of Sir John Franklin and his party.

It is, however, quite true that my brother is getting a small vessel of about 100 tons, built at Kingston, on behalf by the 1st of May proximo, for Arctic purposes, not however with the idea that any further traces of Franklin or any of his party will ever be found, but with a view to complete the survey of that part of the coast of America yet unexplored, which he has on more than one occasion manfully struggled, but failed to perform.

My brother's evidence and information with regard to the fate of Franklin's expedition, and for which he claimed and got the £10,000 reward, appears conclusive with the Admiralty, for it is now pretty certain, notwithstanding the late attempt at agitation on this question at home, that no further Arctic expedition will be sent out by Government to prosecute a further search.

It is not yet exactly known by whom the expense of the intended expedition will be defrayed, though it is now pretty certain the vessel so far has been paid by Dr. Rae.

No men have been engaged for the expedition, but he has written out asking if the right sort of fellows can be got here.

I am, sir,
Your obedient servant,
THOMAS RAE.

Hamilton, Feb. 20, 1857.

BUFFALO AND LAKE HURON RAILWAY.—The Brantford Courier is pleased to learn that the best feeling exists between the above Company and the Great Western, whose trains occasionally pass the Buffalo and Lake Huron Road to Stratford. This will be of great advantage to both lines of railway as, by working together harmoniously, they will be able to compete successfully for the traffic of a very large district which would otherwise be tributary to the Grand Trunk. Hamilton merchants cannot over estimate the advantages to them of the amicable understanding between those important lines. The Courier says:

"We have heard of a person, in Stratford, ordering one barrel of beer from Toronto and three barrels from Hamilton. The charge for the freight of the one barrel by the Grand Trunk amounted to as much, less three cents, as the charge for the three barrels of beer by the Great Western and Buffalo and Lake Huron."

This is but a trifling, matter, yet as a sample it is amply sufficient. By the construction of such a policy, and on the completion of the Port Dover and the Galt and Guelph Railways, we may not unreasonably hope, even should the Huron and Ontario Canal be found impracticable, to see Hamilton become the QUEEN CITY OF C. W.—Spectator.

The Floods have exceeded all known once for many years past. Waterloo Township has lost the old Toll Bridge, the Carlisle Bridge and the covered bridge; the Bridgeport one is standing, but several feet under water. The Glenmorris bridge is gone, and the first Paris bridge. One of the Galt bridges was swept away, and an immense amount of property destroyed or lost, including houses, outbuildings, cattle, hogs, grain, &c., &c., &c. It is supposed that scarcely a bridge on the Grand River between Grand Lake and Brantford is standing.

In this neighborhood the effects of the thaw have been slight, and the only bridge we have heard of being carried away, is, the one at Armstrong's new mill, on the line of Guelph and Eramosa Townships.—Guelph Advertiser.

Friday night, a private of the 9th, named Dickson being exceedingly disorderly in the barrack room, about bed time, some of the men sent for a sergeant who pacified Dickson, and the latter went to bed. He soon after got up, and seeing a musket, loaded it, and put on the bayonet, and swore that he would shoot any man that interfered with him in any way. The guard was sent for, and before it came Dickson locked the door and threw the key on the floor, and went to bed, but shortly after got up again, and, with the corporal of the guard entering descerned Edwins with the gun in his hand, who acknowledged having shot the man, and surrendered himself accordingly. The unfortunate man only survived twenty minutes. An inquest was held on the body by Coroner Shaw, and the verdict of the jury was "justifiable homicide."

Intemperance in every sense of the term characterized the conduct of Dickson, who was always very troublesome to his comrades."—Kingston News.

A DANGEROUS FELLOW.—At the Police Court on Monday, Patrick Fagan was brought before the Mayor, Aldermen Holmes and Glass, to be bound over to keep the peace. In evidence it was proved that the defendant had threatened the life of Jane Ledwith, by raising a broad axe to strike her, and also that defendant was drunk at the time. After some consultation the defendant was fined £5, and costs, for being drunk, and bound over to keep the peace for six months, but in default of payment and sureties of same sent to jail. The defendant had formerly been in jail for six months for stabbing a man.—Herald.

The Chatham Advertiser states that on Monday Morning last, as some men were cutting a hole in the ice on the river, for fishing purposes, about eight miles below that town, they found the body of a man underneath the ice, who has since been recognised as one W. H. McKenzie, who was employed last fall, by Mr. Jno. Smith, of Chatham, as a trunk maker. About four months ago, he was suddenly missing, since which time no clue to his whereabouts could be ascertained. He came from Buffalo (where it is said he has a wife living.)

The Quebec Colonist says the Montreal Telegraph Company have, it appears, lots of pluck as well as a good deal of judgment, as they talk of undertaking the construction of a Canadian ocean telegraph line to the coast of Ireland. And adds:—We think we ought to have a Canadian telegraph line following the banks of the river to the Gulf of the St. Lawrence at all events, and if a private company do not construct it, the Government ought to do so, as without a telegraph line the system of improvements in the navigation of the gulf and river St. Lawrence, such as Tug steamers, light houses, &c., is not complete. The Tugs could be of infinitely greater service in receiving vessels from becoming total wrecks with the aid of a telegraph line than without it.

OUR ARMY.—It is extremely gratifying to note the progress of our Canadian military organization. As we learn from the Canada Military Gazette, published at Ottawa, we find that there have already been formed under the provisions of the law, 7 field batteries Artillery—5 in Upper and 3 in Lower Canada; 5 companies of foot Artillery—4 in Upper and 1 in Lower Canada; 23 troops of Cavalry, 16 in Upper and 7 in Lower Canada; and 60 companies of Rifles, of which Upper Canada contributes 41 and Lower Canada 19. This is of itself a respectable force, rapidly progressing in discipline, but new companies are forming every week throughout the country, and in a short time "our army" will be strong in numbers as it is in spirit and ability.—Kingston News.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A young man named George Welch, living in the 6th Concession of Caradoc, near Ferguson's tavern, went into his backyard on the evening of the 11th for the purpose of drawing water for the family. He was absent for some time his wife became alarmed, knowing that the well was without a curb and surrounded by ice. She went to the well, and, horrible to relate discovered him feet upwards at the bottom. She immediately alarmed the neighborhood, and he was drawn out, but all attempts to restore animation were vain. Happily he left no children to mourn his untimely end. He was a young man of sober and industrious habits, and leaves a large circle of friends and relations to regret his loss.—Free Press, 14th.

The Cobourg Sun of the 10th says: on Tuesday last the attention of parties near the C. & P. R. station was drawn to the strange aspect of the lake. Smoke as if from a steamboat was seen rising above the horizon, and the whole outline of the American shore was clearly to be made out by the aid of a telescope the woods, farms and houses with smoke ascending from them, and the entire outline of the shore were distinctly visible. The refraction lasted for upwards of an hour. At one o'clock when our informant called to it in the office, P. L. Surveyor, the view from the top story of Mr. Sutherland's new building, was very fine. The light house on the American shores could then be distinctly seen, with the waves lashing its base.

HOW MUCH FILIBUSTER STOCK IS OWNED BY PRESIDENT PIERCE?—During the recent Filibuster trial in New York, defendant's counsel endeavoured to introduce a letter from Sydney Webster,—Pierce's private Secretary,—which implicates the President in the movement against Nicaragua, as a stockholder. We says:

The U. S. Commissioner would not allow the letter, but Gen. Cuzueau testified that Mr. Pierce owns one twelfth of the thirty million acres covered by filibuster McKinney's purchase of the Mosquito grant, and had aided in the movements for the colonization of Nicaragua. This, if a fact, goes far to explain the masterly inactivity of the administration in its pretended attempts to prevent the fitting out of these piratical expeditions against Central America. Unfortunately there is nothing in the character and habits of the prevailing policy of his administration that renders this imputation incredible.

A letter received by the secretary of the Liverpool Underwriters' Association relates a remarkable story. The new sailing clipper ship of 1846 tons of the passengers had been lately offered for sale at Canton. Inquiries were instituted which led to the discovery of the crew and passengers not having been drowned, but of their being in a state of slavery on the Island of Formosa.—Globe.

We understand, says the Niagara Mail, that it was by bribing certain Bank note Directors that some railway sharpers got up the report of the unsoundness of the Zimmerman Bank, and endeavored to break it, for the purpose of injuring the credit or crippling the resources of Mr. Zimmerman, a project in which they utterly failed.

The New County.

At a meeting of the inhabitants of the Townships of Moss, Zone, Ekfrid, Euphemia, Metcalfe, Brooke, Dunwich, Alborough and Oxford, held in the Town Hall, Wardsville, on the 12th inst., James Gardiner, Esq. being called to the chair, and J. H. Munro, Esq. being appointed secretary, it was Resolved 1stly.—That we the inhabitants of Moss, Zone, Ekfrid, Euphemia, Metcalfe, Brooke, Dunwich, Aldborough, and Oxford, labour under very great and oppressive inconvenience in being respectively situated as to great a distance from the County Towns, and we are of opinion that a new County comprising the above Townships, is imperatively called for.

2ndly.—That we, the inhabitants of the above townships, are determined to use our utmost exertions until the above measures, so necessary from our well being and convenience, be accomplished.

3rdly.—That the above resolutions be published in the Toronto Leader, Prototype Globe, Free Press, Kent Advertiser, and Sarnia Observer.

4thly.—That H. R. Street, J. H. Munro, D. McKellar, M. D., Geo. Munro, John McBride, A. Millar, W. Dobie, W. Stewart, F. Cox, G. J. Smith, and J. McEwan, Esqrs. be a committee of management to undertake all further necessary steps towards the completion of the measure.

5thly.—That Mr. Thomas Kent be appointed secretary to the above named committee.

Dr. McKillar being then called to the chair, the thanks of the meeting were tendered to the chairman for the presidential services, while the prevailing unanimity afforded the most positive evidence of the general interest in having the object of the meeting attained.

From Nicaragua.

The Isthmus papers by the George Law furnish the following latest intelligence from Nicaragua:

We are indebted to Muncey for the following telegraphic report, received by the British steamer from San Juan del Norte:

The Thames, from Greyton, Jan. 18th, arrived here at 10 o'clock this morning.—The Costa Ricans have taken possession of Virgin Bay, and have landed a sufficient force to hold their possession. It is further reported that they have also taken San Juan del Sur, and that Walker is at San Jorge.

The fleet at Greytown consists of H. M. ships Orion, Tartar, Cossack, Intrepid, Victor.

The Thames brought 30 deserters from Walker's army.

PROCLAMATION OF GENERAL MORA.

Inhabitants of Greytown—Compelled by the piratical invaders of Central America to stop the passage of new hordes of brigands, Costa Rica has decided the blockade of the River San Juan. This violent state of war e not last long, as I am in possession of all the military positions on the river, and also of all the steamers used by the pirate for his work of destruction. The allies, informed by me, and being thereofcerth enabled to abandon the military line of the Granada and Masaya (without any apprehension of its being occupied by the enemy the rapid movements which have served him so much of late) must have attacked him by this time on the transit with all their forces, and chased him until his total extermination, owing to the impossibility of his escape. On the arrival of the division left by me on the wharf at San Carlos for want of transport, I shall join them.—The pirate, once exterminated, Costa Rica, whose cause is that of true justice and civilization, instead of opposing the transit of travellers and the freedom of commerce, shall favour with all her forces, and thus, free from all depredations and violence, every one shall enjoy the fruit of an honest work in the midst of security and peace.

(Signed) JOSE JOAQUIN MORA.

ARRIVAL OF THE ASIA.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.

The Royal Mail Steamer Asia, from Liverpool, arrived at this port early this morning, bringing Liverpool dates to the 7th, and nearly $400,000 in specie.

The Queen in her speech at the opening of Parliament, said, Her Majesty is negotiating with the United States and Honduras respecting Central America.

A resolution has passed Parliament for a Special Committee to enquire and report on the Hudson Bay Company's affairs. An important discussion was had on the motion being made to appoint the committee, and it was suggested by several speakers that the monopoly should be broken up, and the land thrown open to colonization.

Mr. Lane alluded to the tide of emigration which was rolling towards Minnesota, and said the only mode of averting a conflict between England and the United States, which might arise from American emigrants overstepping the borders and squatting on English territory, would be the annexation of the Hudson Bay territory to Canada.

A telegraphic despatch from Constantinople, says that Russia demands the occupation of the Persian province of Mazandoran.

The English have repaired the forts of Bushire and left troops there, and marched upon Mohamore, which commands both the provinces of Fars, and the Road to Shiraz.

The English and French troops are ordered to evacuate Greece, the demands of the allied governments having been fully complied with.

A second edition of the London Times, of Friday, the day before the Europa sailed, contains the following telegraphic despatch from its Paris correspondent:—

"PARIS, Friday, Jan. 30, 8 p.m.—Verger was executed this morning at 8 o'clock, on the Place de la Roqueite. He crossed the threshold of the prison, supported on the one side by the Abbe Hugon, and on the other by the executioner. On reaching the platform, Verger fell on his knees; he then threw himself into the arms of the Abbe Hugon, and then submitted himself to the executioner."

It is recommended to have the sails of ships made of silk, for it always has been noticed that silk umbrellas go much faster than any other.

MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Feb 23, 1857.

FLOUR rather easier, and more doing; sales 7,000 brls at $6 25 a 6 40 for Superfine State—$6 50 a $6 70 for extra do—$6 25 a $6 45 for superfine Western—$6 60 a $7 for extra do. Canadian flour more active; sales 1500 brls at $6 40 a $7 60. 150 brls Rye flour sold at $3 76 a $5 25.

GRAIN—Nothing doing in wheat, and prices are unchanged. Rye steady, at 90c a 95c. Barley held at $1 15 a 1 40; sales 5000 bushels barley malt at $1 05 a $1 52. Corn better; sales 70,000 bushels mixed Western at 73¢ in store. Oats unchanged.

PROVISIONS.—Pork better; sales 5000 bbls at $21 75 for new mess—$21 10 a $21 25 for old mess—$17 50 a $18 for prime.—Dressed Hogs heavy at $9¾. Lard firm; sales 300 brls at 14¾. No change in Butter and Cheese.

FLOUR is dull, with a few light sales at 23s 6d a 27s for superfine, 26 6d a 28s for fancy, and 27s a 31s 3d for extra and double extra. Fancy is said at 35s per brl, in bags, delivered.

WHEAT.—The market this morning was somewhat depressed, and prices lower than yesterday, ranging from 6s 9d to 6s 10½ per bushel being paid only for the choicest samples There was less competition and buyers seem more disposed to work together rather than against each other. It must be understood that the above prices were paid on the street, and that they could not be realized on any quantity offered elsewhere. The highest realized for railroad wheat today was 6s 9d per bushel.

SPRING WHEAT is worth from 5s to 5s 3d per bushel.

BARLEY is less sought after at 5s 9d a 6s, and Rye, although in good demand is coming in slowly, and we quote it at 4s 6d a 4s 7½ per bus el.

POTATOES of good quality are held at 5s a 6s per bushel. A lot of poor variety and not very sound sold to day at 4s. The open weather will cause the supply to increase.

DETROIT, Feb. 25, 1857.

FLOUR—City Mills extra $7 per bbl, $ 37½ for half bbl in sacks. Commercial Mills, extra, $ 75 per bbl; $ 3 25 per half bbl in sacks. Country brands $ 50 a $ 75 per barrel. Rye Flour, $ 00 per 100 lbs. Graham flour $ 25 per cwt. brown do $ 00 per cwt. Buckwheat Flour, $ 00 per 100 lbs.

CORN MEAL—$1 37½ per cwt.

Special Notices.

SIR ASTLEY COOPER'S PILLS.

The astonishing efficacy of this sterling medicine in all aeffections of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and bowels, and for purifying the blood, have gained them the highest recommendation from the most distinguished Physicans and Surgeons in European and America. Two or three of these Pills a short time after taking them, will remove any uneasiness in the Stomach or bowels, Indigestion produced by a torpid state of the liver and inactivity of the bowels; causing a disorganization of the whole frame, will, by a little perseverance with this excellent medicine be effectually removed. For habitual costiveness they are most excellent, not like most aperient medicines leaving the bowels confined, nor stimulating so as to produce or agravate the Piles. The evil effects arising from excess of the table will be prevented if recourse be had to them. They quickly restore the system to its natural state of repose. They are particularly efficacious for stomach complaints, coughs, colds, agues, shortness of breath, and all obstructions of the urinary passages, strengthen the stomach, regulate the secretions of the bowels, promote digestion, and a healthy action of the Liver.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.—It frequently occurs that Dealers in Medicines, for their customers, a spurious compound called Sir Astley Cooper's Pills, generally put up in a red or pink wrapper, and labelled prepared or as prepared by Sir Astley Cooper, M. D. London, but the fact is they are prepared by themselves. Beware of such trash, as you would of poison—The Genuine Pills have a likeness of Sir Astley Cooper on the top of each box; also the fac-simile of the Proprietors, McPhail & Co London and New York.

Sold at 25 and 50 cents per box, and in family boxes at $1 each. There is a great saving by purchasing the larger sizes.

For sale by Simpson and Dunspaugh, Druggists, Toronto; John M. Thornton, Dundas; Anderson Oliver & Co; A. H. Cook, Brantford, General Agents, by whom Country Druggists and Merchants will be supplied at London and New York prices.

PROSPECTUS

OF THE

AMHERSTBURG, ANDERDON AND MALDEN.

BUILDING SOCIETY,

Established February 17th, 1857, in conformity with the act of the Provincial Legislature.

PURSUANT to Notice a meeting was convened to day at 19 o'clock, a. m., for the purpose of organizing the AMHERSTBURG, ANDERDON & MALDEN, Building Society, when the following Gentlemen were duly elected Directors and office Bearers for the current year, viz.

MAJOR DONALDSON, President.
HENRY WRIGHT Esq., Vice President.

DIRECTORS

J. DUNBAR, H. CUNNINGHAM,
J. GOTT, J. TAYLOR, W. MCGEE, J. DALL,
J. HAMILTON, J. S. TAFFLEMIRE, and
T. KING, Esquires.

A. BORROWMAN, Secretary Treasurer,

After which the constitution and Rules of the Society were read and adopted, and ordered to be printed for the use of the Members.

The Secretary was also requested to forward a copy of the proceedings of the meeting to the Editors of the Maple Leaf and Windsor Herald, for publication.

The object of the above Society is to assist persons of limited means to acquire Freehold or Leasehold property, and to aid persons of small periodical incomes to accumulate Wealth The Society appears to be eminently and efficiously adapted to effect its purposes: It combines to a certain extent the advantages both of the permanent and terminating Societies, and as an economical and prolific source of wealth may be considered as superior to either.

The Society consists of shares of £50, each, payable by monthly subscriptions of five shillings per share.

To persons desiring to buy out their shares, the money is advanced on mortgage security and the sale of monthly payments to such persons, according to the following scale, which increases the rate as the period diminishes, &c.

	Monthly Payment	Yearly Payment	In 9 Years
1st year,	$2 50	$30 00	$270 00
2nd "	2 62	31 44	282 52
3rd "	2 75	33 00	255 69
4th "	2 95	35 40	248 40
5th "	3 25	39 00	243 00
6th "	3 75	45 00	240 00
7th "	4 55	54 60	234 00
8th "	6 00	72 00	228 00
9th "	10 00	120 00	216 00

It is calculated that the Society will terminate in nine years, and from the above statement it will be seen that the highest aggregate amount paid by any member will only be $270, or $70 above the money which he receives out of the Society, and consequently two dollars less than 4 per cent per annum, while those who do not buy out their shares will have paid at the end of that period $108, for which they will receive $200, about $19 05 per cent per annum simple interest.

According to the prospectus of the "Toronto Freehold Building Society" if a member pays £64 in advance, at the end of six years he gets £100, which at that rate requires about 10½ years to double his money, while if members pay in advance, for which they are allowed 6 per cent, into this one, the share gains centum per centum in less than 4½ years. I should, however, add, that from the Toronto one members get a dividend of the surplus fund, but it must be very large to make it equally incretive with this one.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether seated in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, invigorate the system and tone the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimuants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endorsements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review," and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma	Headache,
Bowel Complaints	Indigestion
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflammation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits
Diarrhœa	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venereal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds,

How I Won Her!

OR, JACK LANDON'S STORY OF CHRISTMAS AT AN OLD COUNTRY HOUSE.

She was one of the most beautiful women I had ever seen: tall, elegantly formed and graceful, with a small classical head, well shown off by the simple arrangement of her hair, a delicate complexion, and a thoroughly high bred look. Directly she caught my eye she blushed away, but this mischief was done, it was too late, and from that time your unfortunate friend was a gone coon. I found out from Charley that she was the daughter of a General Marsham, and after the performance was over and dancing commenced, I obtained an introduction and dancing with her several times during the evening. Her conversation was as engaging as her appearance was attractive; she talked with great ease and fluency, and had an abundant perception of the ludicrous without in the least degree degenerating into facetious or slangish. I need hardly say that I endeavoured to make a good impression, and I was delighted to think I had succeeded.

"Very shortly afterwards I again accompanied Forrans to a ball, and the first person I saw on entering the room was Miss Marsham, looking more lovely than ever.—I was not long in making my way to her side, and engaging her for a valse, and shortly afterwards I was presented to "Papa," one of the stiffest and most buckram-like of men.

It is impossible to detail how that spirit of confidence grows up between a man and a girl; how he tells, or how both can tell, that each is in love with the other; they know it somehow, and that is enough. So it was with Ellen Marsham and myself.—After every little time we perfectly understood one another, and something more than a mere flirtation commenced between us. We met constantly at balls, picnics, races, all those fooleries which London's elite get up for the annihilation of time; and matters had progressed so far that I actually had gone through a wonderful exclamation of my income from various sources, and talked to Ellen about "speaking to Papa."

"Then came what Mr. Swiveller emphatically calls a 'staggerer;' for Ellen told me that the great dream of her father's life was, that she should marry a rich man, and a swell; and when I thought of my few hundreds a year, obtained by severe labour with my pen, I did not feel that I could conscientiously represent myself as fulfilling either condition. Moreover, I heard that General Marsham had expressed himself most strongly in favour of a Mr. Gristhorne, who had already paid Ellen great attention, but who had recently been on the Continent, whence he was daily expected. This was sad news enough, and all the castles I had so long employed myself in building were at once razed to the ground. I was wretched, too, not merely at my own position, but as what I had heard from Ellen as to her father's ideas of her future. A marriage, in which rank, position, and wealth were the sole things to be looked to, could not be a happy one, and I happened to know something of the character of Gristhorne of whom I spoken. He was a stockjobber and a dabbler in the funds, at least such was his ostensible profession, had plenty of money, and was a good-looking, fresh coloured young man, with rather captivating manners; he great many parties, and, indeed, was rather courted in what may be called the Portland Palace style of society, where, before asking who you are, people inquire what you are worth. About Gristhorne, however, there were one or two very queer stories current among a certain set of men, stories of "fishy" monetary transactions, and of connection with several semi-swindling institutions.—Years ago, too, I had heard that he was a dog up, and that the visit to the Continent had been undertaken in the endeavour to revive his fallen fortunes by some new scheme.

"You may imagine, therefore old fellow, that my position was anything but a pleasant one. I could not in honour, tell General Marsham of all I had heard about Gristhorne, nor dare I propose myself for Ellen's hand—as such a step would at once have debarred me from any chance of meeting her again. And so for three months I led a most wretched life, Gristhorne returned and was received, and shortly after engaged. For three years. His attentions to Ellen were renewed; the General received him with the greatest warmth, and his cab was constantly seen at the door in Harley Street. I saw it there often; for though you will scarcely believe it, I had fallen into such a thoroughly 'spoony' state that I used to walk for hours before her home, and fume and fret, and, I am afraid, swear a great deal while my rival was displaying his elegant dress and handsome person in the drawing room. So closely was Ellen watched, too, and so assiduously attended by Gristhorne, that even at the rare intervals of our meeting in society, I could scarcely ever get an opportunity of exchanging more than a few commonplaces. I had, indeed, one short note, in which she told me that the address of Gristhorne, though more than ever to her than ever were most warmly encouraged by her father; and that, unless she absolutely threw off the paternal authority, there seemed but little chance of her being able to escape definitely accepting him as her suitor.

"After the receipt of this letter, I grew wretched indeed, and moped and worried myself so much, that I threw myself into a fever, which kept me for a fortnight to my room. I was attended the whole time by Charley Forrans; and he nursed me with so much brotherly kindness, that I opened my heart to him, and told him the whole story. He looked very grave when he heard it, and shook his head, giving me very little hope; but he said he would see what could be done.

"One evening about the second week in December, I was sitting over the fire in the old chambers in a very melancholy mood. My health was entirely recovered, but I was unable to get back my old elasticity of spirits and I used to sit and ponder over my love affair and its unsuccessful result for hours together. I was thinking of Ellen and wondering whether Gristhorne went there as much as ever, and whether he had been formally accepted, and they were engaged, and at this last thought I ground my teeth, and began walking savagely up and down the room, when the door was opened, and Charley Forrans burst in with such a jolly, good-tempered expression on his face as would have softened a cannibal.

"'Come, old boy,' said he, 'I'm going to rouse you at last.'

"'How?' I asked.

"'Don't ask how in that miserable tone; in fact, don't ask anything, for you'll get no answer. Simply confide in me, and see what good I shall do for you in all manner of ways. Now, look here! You and I are going to spend the Christmas week together.'

A DAILY AND A WEEKLY FOR $3.50

Those of our readers of this paper who desire a daily review of the Cleveland, New York and other markets, may be accommodated on the following terms. For $3.50 we will send the "Commercial Gazette and Marine Record of the Lakes" for one year, and will subscribe for the Daily Clevelander for one year and send the Publisher's receipt to any address.

The "Clevelander" is the size of this paper, is printed on minion and agate type, and on heavy white paper. The reports of the home markets will be prepared by us, and we need not repeat that neither patience nor skill, will be spared to make it full and correct in every particular. The New York, Buffalo, and Oswego reports are furnished by the N. Y. associated press, and will be correctly rendered. As a newspaper the "Clevelander" is perhaps equal to any daily in the State. Recollect, only $3.50 "Daily Clevelander" and the "Commercial Gazette" for one year. Parts of a dollar may be sent in postage stamps. For two dollars the two papers will be sent six months.

THE CANADIAN AGRICULTURIST.

IMPORTANT TO YOUNG MEN!

"Agriculturist" Cash Prizes for 1857!

ONE PRIZE OF $50
ONE PRIZE OF $40
ONE PRIZE OF $30
ONE PRIZE OF $20
ONE PRIZE OF $15
ONE PRIZE OF $10

ONE PRIZE, CASH $4 AND "FARMER'S GUIDE."
PRICE $6!! ONE PRIZE OF "FARMER'S GUIDE," PRICE $6!

THE above Prizes are offered for competition among Young Men who will, during the winter, canvass for Subscribers to the Canadian Agriculturist. To the person who obtains the largest number of Subscribers previous to the 1st day of May next, the first Prize of Fifty Dollars, in cash, will be paid; to the person who obtains the next largest number before that day, the second Prize of Forty Dollars, to the third largest a copy of the third Prize; and so on to the lowest prize offered.

To encourage every young man who has a few weeks to spare, the opportunity is laudable work of circulating a journal of such established merit as the Agriculturist (and which is now offered at the low price of half-a-dollar a copy, or $4 per 100), to give each person who tries for, but fails to secure any of the above Prizes, a copy of that admirable work, Stephen's Farmer's Guide—last American Edition, for the Agriculturist subscriptions forwarded to the Agriculturist. The selling price of the Guide—which is an agricultural library in itself—is $6; thus every person who canvasses for the Agriculturist, even if he obtain a Prize or not, will be well paid for his time. Several persons, last year, obtained from fifteen to twenty subscribers in a day.

Conditions:—That the money—(half a dollar for each subscriber—be sent with the names; that subscriptions from Agricultural Societies are not to be included; and the subscriptions in each case, at least, be equal to the amount of the prize claimed. It could hardly be expected that we should give to competitors more than they obtained from subscribers.

Specimen copies will be sent to any person who wishes to commence a canvass, upon his written (post-paid) application.

The Agriculturist is now so well known throughout Canada, as to need no lengthened eulogy. Eight annual volumes have already been issued. The volume for 1857 will be superior, in some respects, to any of its predecessors.

The Agriculturist, by its cheapness, and by the practical aim and Canadian spirit of its articles, is destined to fill a position that stands alone as the representative of the agricultural press in this country. Agriculturist records all the most useful and interesting improvements in Agriculture made in the Old World as well as the New; description are frequently illustrated with engravings, of improved implements, new machines, improved stock, &c., &c. Every volume, in it contains information in the several branches of agriculture, horticulture, domestic economy, and general science; practical hints to beginners; reports of discussions and proceedings of the Board of Agriculture; the prize list, &c., of the Provincial Show; and such matters generally as will interest Canadian farmers, and desire to improve "the soil, and the mind."

It is published monthly, at Half-a-dollar per volume, in advance.

The first of the publications must commence with January, and all communications must be post-paid.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the ornamentation and embellishment of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest in the rising generation, in the various sciences of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural Affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from the simplest and cheapest to the more ornamental. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of location; orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rod of cultivable ground, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded, together with its really original conception, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

The Illustrated Horticulturist is printed on the finest quality of pearl-surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with July, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial department: H. P. KNIGHT, JAMES SAWARD and D. W. RAY.

TERMS: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to Clubs, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

THE NEW ILLUSTRATED

Hydropathic Encyclopedia,

A COMPLETE SYSTEM OF HYDROPATHY AND HYGIENE,
IN ONE LARGE VOLUME.

EMBRACING Outlines of Anatomy, Illustrated; Physiology of the Human Body; Hygienic Agencies and the Preservation of Health; Theory and Hydropathic Cookery; Theory and Practice; Water Treatment; Special Pathology and Hydrotherapeutics, including the Nature, Causes, Symptoms and Treatment of all known diseases; Application to Surgical Diseases; Application of Hydropathy to Midwifery and the Nursery; with three hundred engravings and a Glossary, Table of Contents, and a complete Index. By R. T. TRALL, M. D.

Published by FOWLER and WELLS, New York.

In the plan of the work, the wants and necessities of the People have been steadily in view. While almost every topic of interest in the departments of Anatomy, Physiology, Pathology, Hygiene, Therapeutics is briefly presented, those of practical utility are always put prominently forward. The prevailing errors, conceits, and whims of the day and age are exposed and refuted; the theories and hypothesis upon which the popular drug practice is predicated are controverted, and the why and wherefore of their fallacy clearly demonstrated. The following is a brief analysis of its contents:

History of Medicine; History of Bathing; History of Medicated Baths.

Anatomy illustrated by One Hundred and Twenty appropriate engravings.

Physiology, illustrated, comprising the Rationale of Muscular Action; the Nervous Influence; Philosophy of Mind? Mesmeric Phenomena (the Special Senses; Functions of Digestion, Circulation, Respiration, Absorption, Nutrition, Secretion, Excretion; Calorification, Temperaments, the Races of Men, and Theory of Population.

Hygiene—embracing all the Elements of Air, Light, Drink, Food, Temperature, Exercise, Sleep, Clothing, Bathing, and the Passions, to the growth and development of Body and Mind, the Preservation of Health and the attainment of Longevity

Dietetics, comprising the Bible, Anatomical, Physiological, Chemical and Experimental Evidence concerning the natural Dietetic Character of Man.

Hydropathic Cookery, with Special Directions for the Preparation of Food

Pathology, illustrated, comprising the Causes, Symptoms and Treatment of all known diseases of drug practice exposed, and the proper Medication recommended and specified.

The Treatment of surgical Diseases Illustrated and the directions for the minor operations given.

The Management of Lying-in-Women, and the treatment of Children, &c.

In each case, it gives the plain, intelligible and sufficient guide for domestic practice, or home treatment, in all ordinary diseases, embracing the whole range of subjects connected with the preservation of life, the prevention of health, and the treatment of diseases.

This great work may be had in one large volume, bound in library style. Price $2, post paid by mail to any Post Office in United States or Canada, only THREE DOLLARS.

BUREAU OF AGRICULTURE & STATISTICS,
TORONTO, 25th July, 1856.

To Emigrants & Others Seeking LAND FOR SETTLEMENT.

THE Provincial Government have recently opened out three great lines of road, now in course of construction, which have surveyed and laid out for settlement the Lands through, and in the vicinity of, which those Roads pass.

The Lots, as advertised by the Agents of the Government, appointed to the respective localities to afford information to the Settler, are known as

THE OTTAWA AND OPEONGO ROAD,
THE ADDINGTON ROAD, and
THE HASTINGS ROAD.

The Ottawa and Opeongo Road

Commences at a point on the Ottawa River known as "Ferrol's," a little above the Township of Buckingham Centre Town, and runs in a Westerly direction passing through the northerly part of the County of Renfrew.

It is intended to connect this road at Bell's Line, leading to the Lake Muskako, and Lake Huron, by a branch which will diverge from the Opeongo Road in the Township of Bredalbane, at a distance of about 38 miles from the River Ottawa, forming with Bell's Line, a great leading road, or base line from the Ottawa to Lake Muskako, 171 miles in length, passing through the heart of the Ottawa and Huron Territory, and opening up for settlement a vast extent of rich and valuable land.)

The Lots in the country through which it passes, now open for settlement, is easily accessible, and the Agent for the granting of Lands in this district is Mr. T. P. French, who resides at Mount St. Patrick, near Renfrew, on the Opeongo Road, a few miles from the Lands which are to be granted.—To reach the section of Country under Dr. French's charge, the traveller must go from MONTREAL up to the Ottawa River to a place called Bonsheire Point, and thence by land some twenty-five or thirty miles westward to the Township of Grattan, in which Mount St. Patrick is situated.

The Addington Road

Commencing in the Township of Anglesea, in the northern part of the County of Addington, near the Village of Flint's Mills, Kaladar, runs due north to the River Nadawaska, a distance of 35 miles, and is to be continued thence for the distance of 25 miles till it intersects to Ottawa and Opeongo Road.

The Agent for the granting of the Land in this district is Mr. E. Perry, who, for that purpose, is now resident at FLINT'S MILLS, on the outlines of five townships or survey nearer land are already surveyed and ready for settlement within the limits of the agency, lying north of Lake Massanoka, and between it and the River Nadawaska. The Townships are called respectively Abinger, Dunbigh Ashley, Effingham, Anglesea, and Barrie.

The direct route to this section is by way of Kingston, Canada West, thence North to the Township of Kaladar, and the Village of FLINT'S MILLS, where Mr. Perry resides.

Hastings Road!

Almost parallel to the Addington Road, and at a distance West from it of about 36 miles is the HASTINGS ROAD. This road beginning at the northern part of the County of Hastings, and running a distance of 74 miles, almost due north, also intersects the OTTAWA and OPEONGO ROAD and its extensions.

The Government Agent is Mr. M. P. Hayes, who resides at the Village of Hastings, largely called Madoc, about 23 miles north of the Town of Belleville. The Road between these places is in good order. The land to be granted by the Crown under this Agency extends from 15 to 17 miles north of the Village of Hastings. The Road through this large extent of land is passable for 40 miles, and money is now being expended to extend it 30 miles further, so that Settlers can get in and out without difficulty, and find a good market for surplus produce, as well as convenient facilities for bringing in whatever supplies they may require—abundance of which can be had at the Village of Hastings, where the Government agent resides.

The direct way to reach this Station, which is easily accessible, is by Kingston Canada West, thence by Steamboat up the Bay of Quinte to Belleville 50 miles, and thence by a good Road to Hastings, 28 miles.

In order to facilitate the Settlement of the Country, and provide for labor to repair the Roads thus opened, the Government authorised Free Grants of Land along these Roads, not to exceed in each case ONE HUNDRED ACRES, upon application to the Local Agents, and upon the following

CONDITIONS

That the Settler be eighteen years of age.

That he take possession of the Land allotted to him within one month, and put in a state of cultivation at least twelve acres of the land in the course of four years—build a house (at least 20 by 18 feet) and reside on the lot with his family before the location ticket are duly performed; after which accomplishment only shall the settler have the right of obtaining a title to the property. Families comprising several settlers entitled to lands, by agreeing to reside on a single lot, will be exempted from the obligation of building and of residence, (except upon the lot on which the Log House is built) but the actual clearing of the lands be made on each lot. The non-accomplishment of these conditions will cause the immediate loss of the assigned lot of land, which will be sold or given to another.

The road having been opened by the Government, the settlers are required to keep it in repair.

The Local Agents, whose names and places of abode have already been given, will furnish every information to the intending Settler.

The LOG HOUSE required by the Government to be built, is of such description as can be put up in four days by five men. The neighbours generally help to raise the Log House for a new arrived Settlers, without charge, and when this is done the cost of the erection is small; the roof can be covered with bark, and the space between the logs be chinked and plastered, also white-washed. It then becomes a neat dwelling and warm as a stone house.

The lands thus opened up and offered for settlement are, in sections of Canada West, capable both as to Soil and Climate, of producing abundant crops of winter wheat, of excellent quality and full weight, also crops of the best description of spring wheat, produce, grown in the best and longest cultivated districts of that portion of the Province, and equal to the best.

There are, of course, in such a large extent of country as that referred to, great varieties in the character and quality of land —some lots being much superior to others; but there is an abundance of the very best land for farming purposes. The Lands in the neighbourhood of these three roads will be found to be very similar in quality and character, and covered with every variety of Timber—some with hard wood, and some with heavy pine.

Water for domestic use is every where abundant; and the rivers, throughout, numerous streams and falls of water, capable of being used for Manufacturing purposes.

The heavy timbered land is almost always the best, and when cleared by the settler, is very well taken care and covered from wet—will produce a barrel of Potash, worth from £6 to £7 currency. The capital required to manufacture Potash is very small, and the process is very simple and easily understood.

The expense of clearing and enclosing heavily Timbered Lands, valuing the labor of the settler and his family at the low rate of FOUR POUNDS Currency per Acre, which the first wheat crop, if an average one, will nearly repay. The best timber for fencing is to be had in abundance.

A settler on these lands, possessing a capital from £25 to £50, according to the number of his family, will soon make himself comfortable and independent for life upon his own farm and by his own exertions. He can devote a portion of the year to clearing his land, and in the numerous lumbering establishments he can, at other seasons, obtain a liberal remuneration for his labor.

The climate throughout these Districts is good. The snow does not fall so deep as to obstruct communication; and it affords material for good roads during the winter, enabling the farmer to draw to the best markets of the ensuing year from the woods, to take his produce to market, and to lay in his supplies for the future—and this covering to the earth, by the snow, is a great preservation with the more settled parts of the District, but is highly beneficial and fertilizing to the soil.

In all the localities above named, wherever Settlers have surplus produce, there is a good market for it near to them—farmi produce of all kinds being in great demand by the Lumbering Timber Merchants, who are carrying on extensive operations throughout these parts of the country.

According to the ration of progress which Canada West has exhibited for the last ten years, the value of property on an average doubles within that period—irrespective of any improvements which may have been made by the settler.

In many Counties the value of Land, once opened for settlement, has increased FIVE FOLD in the period named, but the average has not fallen below DOUBLE. The statistics of Canada West, Doubles every ten years in the mere lapse of time, exclusive of any expenditure thereon—and it is not too much to expect that the ratio will not diminish for generations to come.

The Sections of Country opened by these roads lie in and to the Southern part of the Great Ottawa Region, extending from and beyond them to the shores of Lake Huron, to Lake Nipissing, and to the Ottawa River —an immense extent of country whose resources are now seeking and will rapidly obtain development.

The Ottawa Country

Lying south of Lake Nipissing and of the great River Ottawa, and embracing a large portion of the land adjacent thereto, which is capable of sustaining a population of eight millions of people, and it is now attracting general attention, as the more western portions of Canada are becoming settled up.

The Parliament of Canada in its last Session incorporated a Company for the construction of a Railway to pass through this Ottawa country from the City of Ottawa, to Huron to the City of the Ottawa, and thence Eastward.

A survey of the River Ottawa and the neighbouring Country has been undertaken and will be completed in the present year; its principal object being to ascertain by what means the River Ottawa can be rendered navigable and connected with Lake Huron so as to enable vessels to pass by that route from the most Western Waters into the River St. Lawrence and the Ocean. These projected works are alluded to in order to show that the attention of the Government, Parliament and People of Canada, has been fixed upon this important portion of the Province.

SPEAK NO ILL.

Nay, speak no ill—a kindly word
Can never leave a sting behind;
And oft to breathe each talo we've heard,
Is far below a noble mind.
Full oft a better seed is sown,
By choosing thus the kinder plan;
For if but little good be known,
Still let us speak the best we can.

Give me the heart that fain would hide—
Would fain another's faults efface;
How can it pleasure human pride,
To prove humanity but base?
No; let us reach a higher mood,
A nobler estimate of man;
Be earnest in the search for good,
And speak of all the best we can.

Then speak no ill—but lenient be
To others' failings—as your own,
If you're the first a fault to see,
Be not the first to make it known,
For life is but a passing day,
No lip may tell how brief its span;
Then, oh! while living, I pray we stay,
Let's speak of all the best we can!

As One by One Our Friends Depart

As one by one our friends depart,
So long united to the heart,
In joy and sorrow too.—
Thou, who didst weep, forgive the tear;
Who didst console, how sweet to cheer,
Who said "Fear not," bid us not fear,
And peace of mind renew.

At most but a few years can glide
Ere each shall join the loved one's side;
Soul-cheering promise given!
They are "Not lost, but gone before;"
I've crossed the river, reached the shore,
And from the eternal heights look o'er,
And beckon us to heaven.

Bachelor's Hall.

Bachelor's hall! What a queer looking place it is!
Kept me from such all the days of my life!
Sure but I think what a burnin' disgrace it is,
Never at all to be getting a wife.

See the old Bachelor gloomy and sad enough,
Putting his tay kettle over the fire;
Soon tips it over, St. Patrick he's mad enough,
(If he were present) to fight with the squire.

Now like a hog in a mortar-bed wallowing,
Awkward enough, see him kneading his dough;
Troth if the bread he could ate without swallowing,
How he would favour his palate you know.

Pots, dishes, pans, and such greasy commodities,
Ashes and prata skins kiver the floor;
His cupboard's a storehouse of comical oddities,
Things that have never been neighbors before.

His meal being over, his table's left setting so,
Dishes take care of yourselves if you can!
But hunger returns, then he's fuming and fretting so,
Och let him alone for a baste of a man.

Late in the night he goes to bed shiverin',
Never a bit is the bed made at all;
He creeps like a terpin under the Riverin,
Bad luck to the picture of bachelor's hall.

A BACHELOR.

Neatness in Nebraska.

The Nebraska News says:

The editor has gone up the river for a few days and good articles, facetious remarks, puns and typographical errors, may be attributed to his absence or the devil.

In order to give variety and vigor to the News he will frequently leave for a week or so. It is to be hoped that the readers of this journal will appreciate his endeavors.

Although, as the devil, whoever has control of the columns, has had some experience in domestic neatness in the Territory, and thus gives the world the benefit of his observation:

We always did like neat people. We always did cherish a kind of tender feeling for all neat women. But we were mercifully "struck" by one until last week, and the way of it was this: We were "out West" a few miles and got belated, looked for a place to stay all night, found a cabin, asked if we could be accommodated, and a tall woman with freckled face, red hair, baffin skin incessantly, buckskin dress and a free soul baby, said she "reckon we must."

We got off our horse, hitched him to a cotton wood corn crib, and went in. We asked for supper. We got some bacon, molasses, boiled pumpkin and corn dodger. We ate heartily.

After meal was past the woman said to the oldest girl: "Now, Dooly Jane, you have jist got to keep that old slut and them ere pups from sleepin' in this ere meal box any longer. In making this ere stranger's corn bread, I was pestered nearly to death pickin' the small hairs and dead fleas out of it, that come out of them pesky dogs. And if they sleep in it a week longer it wont be fit to eat."

We were in love with that woman on account of her neatness. And that evening we laid down upon the rough hewn floor and had pleasant dreams. Ghostly fleas were hopping about through our corporeal diversities, and spectral suits, with goblin pups, dancing before us in boxes of unearthly meal, during the live-long night, and our great grandfather sat straddle of us six hours, and with a ramrod to a six-pounder cannon, stuffed cords of that neatly prepared corn dodger down our unwilling throats, and whistled all the time for the dogs, while the free-soil baby and its lady mother sat by and wept for the departing hoe cake. We like neatness, we do.

That Dam Roaring.

A young buck went to see the daughter of a Presbyterian elder lately, whose house was near a mill dam. It being the spring of the year, the waters made considerable of a roar as they tumbled into the dam.—The modest young gentleman tapped lightly at the door at first and received no answer. He tapped again still no answer. Again and again he repeated his knock, but still he was unheard. Mustering up courage, he proceeded to inflict some severe thumps on the door, which brought the staid old gentleman out.

"I suppose," said the youngster, who had by this time become slightly savage from being compelled to wait so long, "I suppose you could not hear me knocking for the dam roaring."

"The dam roaring! What do you mean sir? How dare you speak in that way?" said the divine, somewhat angered at hearing the young man swear in his presence.

"I mean to say, sir, that I suppose you could not hear me knocking on account of the dam roaring."

"Dain roaring! You young scoundrel. Have you the impudence to insult me with a repetition of these words? Begone sir!"

"My dear sir," quoth the now bewildered youth, "I intended to say that I presume I could not be heard on account of that dam roaring," laying peculiar emphasis on the last two words.

"Insult upon insult," shouted the infuriated man; and he rushed at the poor fellow with the evident intention of ejecting him, but was restrained by the voice of his daughter, exclaiming:

"Papa, I suppose the young man intended to say that he couldn't be heard on account of the roaring of the dam."

"Oh, I beg your pardon, sir—I beg your pardon—walk in, really—sit, well! The dam roaring! Capital, come in! that is really too rich."

It is needless to add that the youngster went in and in, the excellent society of the young lady soon forgot the dam roaring.

A Singular Case of Robbery in France.

A singular case of Robbery in France was thus reported in the Bordeaux Indicator.

"A woman employed as a housekeeper at the chateau of Loudon, near this city, recently inherited a sum of 800 francs. A peasant employed to take care of the grounds of the chateau, hearing of her good fortune determined to possess himself of the money. Accordingly, a few nights ago—the owner of the chateau and all his servants being absent—he got the woman on some pretext to visit him at at a room which he occupied in one of the dependencies of the chateau. After a while he locked the door and with the most dreadful threats declared that he would murder her unless she at once gave him the 800 francs. The woman being seriously alarmed, took him to her chamber, and gave him the money. The man then declared that he must murder her to prevent her from accusing him; and he commanded her to say what kind of death she would prefer. The poor woman cried for mercy, but he promptly told her she must die by the rope or by the knife, and she at last selected hanging. The man then tied her hands behind her back, and fastened her to the bedstead. He afterwards mounted on the chair for a rope to a beam, and while running noose at the end. Having duly fastened the rope, he put his arm in the noose to see that the latter would slip well; at that moment the woman with great presence of mind gave a violent kick to the chair which fell, and the man remained suspended by the arm. He roared for help, and the woman cried out "murder"; but there was no one except themselves in the chateau or its dependencies, and they were not heard. They accordingly remained in their respective positions, the man suffering the most dreadful agony, until the morning when their cries attracted the attention of some labourers. These men, on hearing the woman's story released her, but left the man suspended until they could summon a magistrate. This functionary had the man cut down, and after receiving the woman's deposition, caused him to be sent to prison to await his trial for robbery."

To the Point, at Least.

A young lady writes the following to an unfortunate editor, who has been "pitching in" to the woman about mental culture, etc. She says:—"You men seem to fancy, you have so much intellect and common sense, that it is unnecessary to seek such qualities in a wife. Every girl knows that men, before marriage, value in women an arching eyebrow more than the archest wit, a beautiful complexion more than a lovely disposition, pearl and regular teeth more than orderly habits, glossy locks more than a genteel temper, sparkling eyes more than sparkling humour, a handsome bust more than a subtle understandings and, knowing all this, how can you blame us for principally cultivating our busts, eyes, eyebrows, teeth, hair and complexion? Are you not wise men, who are so to us poor feminine creatures in mental acumen and philosophical grasp of mind, aware that the character of women has always been, is now, and ever will be, an exact reflection and guage of what man actually and practicaly loves best? It is even so; and when (before marriage mind you,) man shall love goodness of heart purity of morals, delicacy and refinement of sentiment, intellectual power and culture, sweetness of temper, and elevation of principle more than the appearance of personal beauty, women will think it worth while principally to cultivate these accomplishments, and probably not before."

A Novel Writer's Sympathy.

The following anecdote of Eugene Sue, author of the "Mysteries of Paris," and other popular French novels, is from a Paris correspondent of one of the Boston papers:—

Not many months since, Sue used to visit almost daily, one of the most fashionable ladies in Paris, Madame de D——, and hold forth in her richly furnished boudoir on the condition of the poor.

"Do you ever relieve their distress?" asked Madame de D——, at the close of one of these harangues.

"To a trifling extent," answered Sue; but though my gifts are small, they are always cheerfully bestowed. I give one fourth my income in alms."

The gentleman as he left the Cafe du Paris, where he had been eating a costly dinner, an apparently old woman, clad in rags, prayed for charity.

"Go away," was the stern reply.

"But I am starving; give me a single copper to purchase bread with!"

"I will give you in charge of a police officer, if you thus annoy me."

"You will!" said the beggar, "and yet Monsieur Eugene Sue, you are the man who writes about the misery of the poor; you are the working man's champion; you are."

"Who are you," exclaimed Sue.

"Madame de D——," was the reply; and the distinguished lady stepped into her carriage, which was in waiting, leaving the novelist to his reflections.

Miscellany.

A BAD NIGHT—A gentleman was once dining with a friend, when a most dreadful storm arose. In hopes of its abatement the entertainment was prolonged to the latest possible hour; but at length it was over, and the storm showed no signs of ceasing, but on the contrary, grew worse and worse.—The host insisted upon his guest's acceptance of lodging for the night, in view of the impossibility of reaching his home. The guest complied, but in a few minutes wrs missed from the parlour. In half an hour he reappeared, drenched with rain. "Where, in Heaven's name, have you been?" asked the host, seeing the singular object, which looked like a dog about the paws, and a weeping willow about the head. "I" said he, quietly shaking off the water—"I have been at home to tell my wife that, as it was such a bad night, I should not return."

A CHEAT OR A PROVER.—We beg to state that the proverb "Lightly come lightly go," does not apply to the gout nor to one's mother-in law, nor to the rheumatism, nor to freeholes, nor to a light sovereign, for all these plagues come light enough, and yet there is the greatest difficulty in getting them to go.

SANG FROID.—The new number of the Quarterly contains an anecdote of Lord Raglan, when wounded at Waterloo. The authority is the Prince of Orange. The Prince, we are told used to recount that not a word announced the entry of a new patient, nor was he conscious of the presence of Lord Raglan (then Lord F. Somerset) till he heard him call out in the usual way, — "Hallo! don't carry away that arm till I have taken off my ring!" Neither the wound nor the operation had extorted a groan from the wounded soldier.

HARD TO PLEASE.—A country woman in one of the western counties, with a lot of geese, drove up to a lady's door, when the following conversation took place:—"Do you want any meal, ma'am?" "What do you ask for a bushel?" "Tenpence, ma'am—prime." "Oh, I can get it for five." (In a despairing voice.)—"Dear lady, will you take a bushel for nothing?" "Is it sifted?"

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—The applicability of these extraordinary medicaments to the disorders of all climates, renders them indispensable to all who journey by sea or land. Scurvey, the most terrible scourge of seafaring men, is eradicated by the ointment; while the Pills, by the alterative and conservative operation upon the stomach, the secretions and the bowels, soon relieve the worst cases of bilious fever, diarrœha and stomach complaint. Taken as a preventative, they fortify the system against the disorders consequent upon changes of temperature, and deprive the process of acclimation of its principal danger. Emigrants to the Far West had better go there unprovided with implements of labor, than without these unequalled curatives.

AMERICAN LIFE.—American life is but the agony of a fever. There is no repose for us. We push on in frenzied excitement through the crowds, the noise, the hot glare and dust of the highways, without turning a moment to refresh ourselves in the quiet and shade of the by-paths of life. We have but one object in our rapid journey, and that is to get the start of our fellow-travellers. For the prizes of life, and thus encouraging every one to try his speed in the race, is no doubt a spur to the characteristic hurry of Americans. Our great institutions, however are not responsible for the prize we choose, to strive for. There is no reason that we know of why a publican should have no other aim in life but to get richer than his neighbor, but there are a thousand good reasons, if we value health and happiness, why we should pursue other and higher objects. When the pursuit of wealth is the great purpose of life in so rapidly a progressive state of prosperity as exists in our commercial communities, it requires exclusive devotion and the highest strain of the faculties to succeed. A fair competence however, is easily reached; and if we had learned to care for better things, we would not strive for more.—Home Journal.

AN IRISH CERTIFICATE.—A poor son of Emerald Isle applied for employment to an avaricious hunks, who told him he employed no Irishmen: "For," said he, "the last Irishlad died on my hands, and I was forced to bury him at my own charge." "Shall your honor," said Pat, brightening up, "and is that all! Then you'll give me the place, for sure I can get a certificate that I never died in the employ of any master I ever served."

WON'T PLOW DEEP.—It is really mortifying to look over a farm which has been cultivated for fifty years, and observe the paucity of soil—scarcely six inches deep on an average, and underlaid at that, with a clay subsoil. Is it to be wondered at that "poor muck" man, and be much thought, hath effected the crops, that clover "will freeze out," and corn often "fail to ear right," and grain "lodge?"

When depth of soil is so valuable under all circumstances, how is it that a half century should pass without attaining it!

THE MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE.—Without for a moment withdrawing our objection to the manner in which this gentleman was admitted to the Cabinet, we cannot close our eyes to the fact that he is quietly yet successfully promoting the best interests of the country. The Bureau of Agriculture, of which he is the head, has hitherto failed to answer the purposes for which it was established. Previous occupants appeared to regard it very much in the light of a very profitable farce. Under Mr. Vankoughnet, however, it is likely to prove one of the most useful departments in the Government. The effect of his administration has been to induce remark on the part of the European press with regard to Canada as a field for emigration.—Peterboro' Review.

Chicago, with its eighty thousand inhabitants pays its mayor a salary of twelve hundred dollars a year. Philadelphia, with four hundred thousand people, pays its mayor six thousand dollars. New York, with six hundred and twenty-nine thousand people, pays its mayor three thousand dollars. Boston with one hundred sixty-five thousand people, pays its mayor four thousand dollars, and Cincinnati, with two hundred ten thousand people, pays its mayor two thousand do lars a year. The police of Chicago costs eighty-seven thousand two hundred and forty-eight dollars a year, that of Philadelphia five hundred forty-five thousand eight hundred forty-five dollars, that of New York eight hundred twenty-five thousand, that of Boston one hundred eighty-eight thousand, two hundred eighty-six dollars, and that of Cincinnatti seventy-three thousand five hundred eighty six dollars a year.

WHEAT.—The Turkish flint wheat, of which samples may be had at the patent office, ought to attract the attention of our farmers. It comes from near the famous Mount Olympus, in Asia, and is a hardy fall variety. It has a heavy beard, a long, thin, light coloured berry and a dark chaff. It is very hearty, and would prove highly profitable, as—eit on account of its weight as the superiority of the flour which it produces. The report from the department states that it is suited to our climates; that it withstood the severity of the past winter without much injury from the cold; and, from its very long and thick beard, it doubtless will be protected in a measure, from the depredations of insects in the field. The hardness of the grain, too, when dry, is a sufficient guarantee against ordinary moisture in transportation, and the perforation of the weevil in the bin.

RECIPROCITY WITH CUBA.—The Havana correspondence of the New York papers mention that a memorial, signed by an immense number of merchants and bankers, has been presented to the Intendents of Cuba, praying for a reduction of the duties on American flour; and that the Captain General had given a favourable reception to the request, and that they would probably be reduced without delay. This is good news, indeed, for American commerce; and occurring, as it does, simultaneously with the movement at Washington for commercial reciprocity, it conveys the assurance that the embargo which has so long rested upon exports from the United States to the West Indies is about to be removed. The duties in Cuba on American flour have been so nearly prohibitory in their character, as almost to abolish the use of wheat bread among the majority of the people.—Citron & News.

A FEW ITEMS FROM A NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.

From the Globe.

NEW YORK, February 17.

OUR MANNERS.

The American gentleman walks about the streets of his capital cities armed with a revolver, the English gentleman walks abroad armed with a simple stick, if armed at all. To carry a sword stick is illegal in London; in New York the armory stores are emptied of their fancy daggers. A fashionable young lady told me yesterday that in the Fifth Avenue Ball where she attended, among two hundred gentlemen, there were but two whose coat-pockets did not contain either a revolver, a dagger, or slung shot. A statistician took the trouble to verify the fact.

Yet these large cities, where the respectable man trembles and the honest man quakes, are the seats of the most ferocious anti-British sentiments, and some of those journals who are now loudest to deplore the licentiousness going around them, were not long ago the most persistent detractors of the blessings secured by the humanity of British manner and the efficiency of British justice.

Judge Russell, in sentencing a Celtic ruffian, made use of the following truthful language:—

I do not believe that in any other city in this country, nor in any other city in the civilized world, in as public a place, and under such circumstances, such a crime could be perpetrated, and the perpetrators escape immediate arrest. But with our eleven or twelve hundred policemen, it seems there was no one near to protect the citizen and preserve the public peace. And though four able bodied men were present, they dared not interfere to prevent the robbery. This speaks in a language that cannot be misunderstood, of the duty of our courts to rid the community of such desperadoes. The sentence you fifteen years and three months to the State Prison.

WHAT THE GERMANS SAY.

Cincinnati Hochwaechter says, with a rare independence:—

Selfishness has driven humanity from the throne, and freedom has been conquered by slavery. As the mere entertaining of the idea of the abolition of slavery is considered high treason so is the proposition of a social reform for bettering the condition of the working classes treated as crazy fanaticism. This immensely retrograding stride has been made by the people of the United States in the short time of eighty years!

The consequence of this heartlessness and inhumanity are perceptible everywhere—in the cruel treatment of the aboriginal Indians —in the filibustering expeditions against peaceable neighbours—in the barbarous treatment of the slave—and in the cruel neglect of the poor whites. If whoever has visited an American poor-house can judge how the sympathy for human misfortune has been deadened in the hearts of the people and its officers.

* * * *

It is an every day occurrence to be informed that a man has been found to death in the midst of a populous city, or that another has died in consequence of hunger and want. If such cases occured in England, the respective poor-house officers would be punished as murderers; here their conduct is scarcely thought worthy of a passing comment.

A BRITISH TRIUMPH!

Videlicet—The Cunard steamer "Alps," taking the place of the Collins' steamer "Baltic," laid up for repairs. The rumour is, no insurance office would insure the "Baltic," in her then condition.

By the bye, Philadelphia has its great case of "mysterious murder." The victim is an English merchant, who had $1200 about his person. Here are the chief points:—

MURDER IN PHILADELPHIA.—A few days ago we announced that a Mr. Montgomery of Philadelphia, had been robbed and murdered under the influence of stimulants and that he died soon after. The Coroner's inquest shows that it was one of the most cruel crimes yet committed during this month of horrors. It has elicited the fact that he was designedly poisoned by a conspiracy of desperadoes. first for the purpose of robbery, and next to remove all chance for detection. He was decoyed by men who knew he had a large amount of money in his possession, was tempted to drink with them, was led on step by step till he became unconscious, was robbed, drugged, and abandoned to die. He had parted from his companions, in one of the drinking houses in Franklin-street; he revived just long enough to recognise her, relapsed into stupefaction and died in a few hours. Several suspected persons have been arrested. One depraved wretch, the ringleader of this band of assassins, has escaped and no clue has yet been obtained of him. The inquest, which is still in progress, is unveiling the shocking depravity which riots in many of our large cities, in spite of a universal profession of good morals, and in defiance of the law itself.

Arrival of the Niagara.

NEW YORK, March 2.—GREAT BRITAIN.—In Parliament some interest was excited by Lord Palmerston's backing out of his previous contradiction, that a secret treaty existed between France and Austria, guaranteeing to Austria her possessions in Italy.

Mr. Cobden gave notice that he would move that the House has heard with concern of the conflicts that have occurred between the British and Chinese authorities in the Canton River, and without expressing any opinion as to how far the Chinese Government afforded a cause of complaint by the non-fulfilment of the treaty of 1842, considered that the papers laid on the table failed to establish satisfactory grounds for the violent proceedings resorted to in the case of the "Arrow"—that a select commit tee be appointed to inquire into the state of the British commercial relations with China.

Sir Robert Peel made an amusing apology for his celebrated speech respecting Duke Constantine, Count De Morney, and the Prince De Ligne.

He said it was all true but he meant no harm. The Chancellor of the Exchequer had made his financial statements in the House of Commons,—A reduction of the income to the amount it stood before the war was anticipated, from the reduced army and navy estimates as well as from the authoritative points on the ministerial organs. The official announcement of the fact, although it did not excite supriso was received with very much interest.

FRANCE.

A madman attacked the Empress in Paris. He was immediately arrested and declared that his intention was merely to embrace her.

The Emperor will open in person the Legislative Session of 1857 on the 16th of February.

PARIS is now definitely named as the place of conference on the Neufchatel ques tion. The conference will meet probably next month.

GREECE.

The names of the Greek ministry have been submitted to France and England for approval, and it is reported that they are satisfactory,

Troubles are reported between the State and priesthood. Parties are accused of wishing to depose the Shah.

The powerful tribe of Baboos are reported to be on the eve of a fresh insurrection.

The French Moniteur, however, contradicts the above statement.

The British camp at Bushire is fortified, and is safe against attack.

Dates from Bushire are to December 30th. It is said that the Persians were contemplating an attack on the British troops encamped near the city. General Outram and Staff, sailed from Bombars on the 10th of January. The governor was preparing for the immediate dispatch of reinforcements to form a second division for a rrive in Persia.

Dates from Hong Kong are to October 30th. The foreign building had been burnt, and pillaged. Admiral Seymour had been throwing hot shot into Canton, but at the latest dates had ceased hostilities and was strengthening his position. The Chinese threatened to burn down Hong Kong.—Troops were about to be sent from India.

It is not intended, says the Daily News, to send out any troops from England to Persia. This announcement we make with the most entire confidence that it will be found to be correct. We believe that we may add that the forces already at Bushire will not advance into the interior, and that every effort is being made to bring about a peace. The Murray affair, we are assured, forms no serious part of the negotiations which are being carried on at Paris by Fornth Khan and Lord Cowley. There is at present every reason to hope that these negotiations will result in the re-establishment of amicable relations between the English and Persian Governments.

The Daily News gives prominence to the following paragraph:—In other columns we have stated that no troops were to be sent from England to Persia: we have equally good grounds for believing that no troops are to be sent from England to China."

THE NEW EUROPEAN DIFFICULTY.

The Times, after remarking that the satisfactory settlement of questions relating to the Danubian Principalities cannot be endangered by such an impudent manifesto as appeared a few days since in the Moniteur, expresses the opinion that it will be the duty of England to declare positively against suppressing with the weight of the Turkish Empire, and to act with firmness in support of the resolution she has taken against the proposed union of the provinces of the Danube.

The War in Persia and the Points of Operation.

A letter from St. Petersburg of the 31st Jan. states that the affairs of Persia appear to assume a serious aspect. Several Generals who commanded the troops on the frontiers of Russia and Persia, on the coast of the Caspian Sea and Caucasus, have been summoned to St. Petersburg to attend a Council of War. Instructions have been given for every eventuality. The writer asserts that the Russian government is gradually reducing its military establishment in the Crimea.

The London Star, of February 10th, says:

It is announced from Teheran that the brother of the Khan of Khiva has offered his assistance to the Persians. Symptoms have been visible for some time that the Asiatic world of States feel the necessity of united resistance against European dictation. Governor Afghan tribes, too, have lately transferred their sympathies from Dost Mahammed, who does the bidding of the foreign invaders at Calcutta, to the Shah, who resists them. Time will show whether the personal ambition of Oriental princes, like the Ameer of Cabool, will be serviceable in the Central and Western Asia for the extension of European influence, as it has been in India. Hitherto the Asiatics outside the Indus and the Himalaya range, have exhibited as much independent spirit as the nations under the tropical sun of our Indian empire have lacked it.

Our Ocean Steamers and the Grand Trunk Railway.

The telegraph yesterday brought us the intelligence that the Indian "was in" at Portland—having made the passage in a little over twelve days. She brings a full cargo of merchandize of upwards of 1,200 tons, and, if forwarded with the same despatch as were the goods of the Anglo-Saxon of last month, and there is no reason to doubt it—the whole of this merchandise will be delivered, no matter whether the destination be Quebec, Montreal, Toronto or Hamilton, within five days from their being landed at Portland, or in about eighteen days from Liverpool. Goods from the English metropolis laid down in Hamilton and Toronto within three weeks from the date of their being started on their journey! This is expeditious, indeed, and the reliability of this communication for ocean freight of the railways of the neighboring republic. We have before us a complaint that goods which arrived in Boston on the 21st January last consigned to Toronto, via the American railways, did not reach that city until the 14th instant, having been upwards of three weeks on the way or the same length of time which our Ocean Steamers and railways require to perform the whole journey in, from Liverpool to any of our chief cities. It is to be hoped that western importers will bear the above figures in mind when "ordering" from the old country, so that our Provincial Steamships and Railways which do their work so well, may meet with the support they are entitled to.—Montreal Gazette.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL CHAMBERS.

Toronto, 26th Feb., 1857.

This day, at half past three o'clock p. m. His EXCELLENCY the Governor General proceeded in state to the Legislative Council in the Parliament Buildings. The Members of the Legislative Council being assembled, His EXCELLENCY was pleased to command the attendance of the Legislative Assembly, and that House being present, His EXCELLENCY was pleased to open the Third Session of the Fifth Parliament of the Province of Canada with the following Speech from the THRONE.

SPEECH.

Hon. Gentlemen of the Legislative Council

Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly

The time of the year has arrived when the country again requires your services; and I have called you together in the full belief that every effort will be made by you to promote the good government and increase the prosperity of Canada.

By the blessing of Providence that prosperity has met with no check; the restoration of peace to Europe, and the hope that good will and friendly feeling will continue to prevail on this continent, inspire me with confidence in the future. The increased cultivation of the soil, and the growth of our trade as shewn by the official returns, afford the best proof of rapid progress.

Among the outward signs of such progress, the opening of the Grand Trunk Railway from St. Thomas in the east, to Stratford, must hold a prominent place, from cities like Quebec, Montreal and Toronto which have hitherto been separated in winter by a waste of snow, now enjoy daily intercourse one with the other.

With regard to the internal communication of the country, I have taken measures for examining the Valley of the Ottawa, that great river by which Upper and Lower Canada are equally interested, with a view to ascertain what facilities its course may hereafter afford for inland traffic. The final report of the survey of this district is not yet received, but when made will deserve your most attentive consideration.

The yearly rate the tract which is on three sides bounded by Lake Ontario, the Ottawa and Lake Huron, has appeared to me one of vast importance to Canada. Its settlement will add breadth to the Province and its lands are, I am informed, such as may fairly attract the industry and reward the toil of a large population. Steps have accordingly been taken to intersect parts of this district by roads, and to offer, along the line of such roads, lands on easy terms to actual settlers. I entertain little doubt that the banks of the St. Maurice, in Lower Canada, may be advantageously dealt with in the same manner.

Exertions have been made to diffuse in Europe a knowledge of Canada and its resources. On these and other grounds I venture to anticipate in the coming year a considerable increase in the Emigration from Europe. Such an increase must be of inestimable advantage to the Province. Those who are already in occupation of land will receive a supply of laborers on easier terms, and the wealth of the whole community will be augmented by the addition of fresh industry to the profitable development of our real capital, the soil now covered by our forests.

I congratulate you on the success of the Line of Steamers which, in the course of last summer, have performed the voyages between Liverpool on the one hand, and Quebec and Montreal on the other. I shall rejoice to see a weekly line established by this route. As it is, the character of Canada, and the advantages of the St. Lawrence as a channel of communication with the old world, have become much better known. To attract to our shores a larger portion of the passenger traffic from Europe is an object of high importance to our commerce.

A sum exceeding £300,000, derived from the proceeds of the Clergy Reserves, has already been distributed among the municipalities of Upper Canada, in pursuance of the Acts of 1855 and 1856; and a further amount will be in like manner available in the course of the present year.

The measures for carrying out the commutation of the Seigneurial Tenure have been steadily pursued, and I see no reason to think that any material difficulties remain to be overcome.

A communication from the Secretary of State will inform you that Her Majesty's Government have determined to submit certain questions connected with the affairs and territory of the Hudson's Bay Company to the consideration of a Committee of the House of Commons.

Knowing how deeply Canada may be affected by this inquiry, I have lost no time in taking measures to secure the services of Mr. Labatt, England of a gentleman unconnected with any party politics, in all respects competent to afford information, and watch over the interests of the Province.

As Commander in Chief of the Militia, I cannot on this occasion forbear to acknowledge the public spirit and loyalty of the people of this Province; the readiness with which Volunteer Corps have been formed under the Acts of 1855 and 1856 affords the surest pledge of your determination as Canadians to protect and transmit to your children the blessings of a free and constitutional Government which God has bestowed upon you.

I turn now to certain measures which appear to me to require especial attention in the course of the Session about to commence.

I recommend you most earnestly to take steps for ensuring the proper construction and regulation of Prisons throughout the Province. The evils of defective classification and over crowding have been pointed out by several Grand Juries in such a manner as to prove that too many of our cities and counties suffer from the want of systematic attention to the moral and physical welfare of prisoners.

I cannot speak too strong on this matter. In our Common Gaols the young are corrupted, and from them the adult criminal is cast loose upon society unrestrained and unimproved.

I shall rejoice if with the supervision of the Gaols you can combine the exercise of a proper control over other public institutions which require constant watchfulness and attention.

A measure will be submitted to you to provide for the repeal of the Lunatic Asylum tax levied in Upper Canada, inasmuch as it differs in character and in its mode of collection from the rest of our Provincial taxation.

I shall cause to be laid before you a measure calculated to make justice in Lower Canada more easily accessible to the people at large, and to secure the codification of the law and procedure in civil matters in that section of the Province. I trust too that you will find it expedient to sanction measures for carrying out more completely the improvement of the law already commenced in Upper Canada.

The time has come when I have thought it right to submit to you a Bill for improving the organization and increasing the efficiency of the Civil Service in Canada.—With a view to attain these objects, I am anxious that so far as possible admission to the public offices shall depend on competence tested by impartial examination rather than on favour or the claims of individuals.

You have ascertained by experience the usefulness of the prizes offered by the Agricultural Societies in Upper and Lower Canada, I shall be glad if you can extend the same principle of encouragement to arts and manufactures, and can stimulate the ingenuity of our mechanics and artizans by distinctions of the same character.

A Bill will be laid before you which may prove to be the first step towards admitting to the full rights and duties of British subjects the more educated and civilized of the Aboriginal Indians yet dwelling on their own lands. I feel a deep anxiety for the welfare of this people, I shall endeavour to adopt measures such as will at once secure their interests, and diminish the obstacles to the complete settlement of the country now offered by the tracts reserved for their use.

Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly,

The accounts of the last year will be submitted to you. I trust that you will find that due economy has been observed in the expenditure of the public funds, and that the mode of accounting for those funds has been improved by the amended system of audit adopted in the Inspector General's department. The increase in the revenue has, I conceive, fulfilled the expectations held out by the Inspector General in the course of last session.

The estimation for the current year will be laid before you at the earliest moment consistent with their due consideration.

Honorable Gentlemen and Gentlemen,

The Act altering the constitution of the Legislative Council having been sanctioned by Her Most Gracious Majesty, the steps required for the first election of Members of the Council were duly taken by me. The result has been that twelve Legislative Councillors elected by the people, are already entitled to sit and vote as such. Although the constitutional position and functions of the Legislative Council remain exactly what they were, yet I believe that the concentration of deriving a portion of its power from the confidence of the people will add to the consideration of the whole body, and will uphold it in the sober and dignified discharge of its most important duties.

I have now only to leave in your hands the various grave and weighty matters which require calm discussion and anxious deliberation.

In the debate that followed the introduction of the usual address to His Excellency upon the speech at the opening of the Session, the Opposition used their utmost exertions to defeat the ministry; and the first amendment that was moved to the address, gave to the Ministry a majority of 22 in a house of 82 members. This will no doubt be increased when all the members have taken their places. The address was moved by Mr. Benjamin and seconded by Mr. Simard, and was well supported by the former gentleman in a strong and telling speech. The debate that followed was spirited, and all the eloquence of the opposition was brought into requisition when the subject of the Hudson's Bay Territory was brought up. The following amendment was moved, and the result of the division will perhaps give a pretty fair idea of the strength of the parties, as it would appear that it had been determined upon to use the appointment of Judge Draper as a Commissioner to advocate the interests of the Province before the House of Commons in England, as the only subject upon which the Opposition could take a stand. Their success, however, is shewn in the following division that took place.

Mr. ANTOINE A. DORION moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. BROWN, that the words after "Commons" be left out, and the following inserted in lieu thereof: "But this House regrets that His Excellency should have been advised to dispatch to England, on a mission relating to the Hudson's Bay Territory, a gentleman whose official position and duties, as one of the Judges of the Province, renders his appointment unjust to the dignity and independence of the Bench, and calculated to impair the confidence of the public in the impartial administration of justice."

The question being put on said amendment, the House divided thereon:

Yeas,—Messieurs Ball, Bugar, Brown, Bureau, Cameron, Chaffers, Christie, Charles Daoust, Darche, Dionne, Jean B. E. Dorion, Antoine A. Dorion, Ferguson, Foley, Fraser, Freeman, Gamble, Gould, Hartman, Holton, Lumsden, Mackenzie, Marchildon, Munro, Patrick, Prevost, Rolph, Scatcherd, Wilson, and Wright.—30.

Nays, — Messieurs Alleyn, Benjamin, Bowes, Attorney General Cartier, Cauchon, Cayley, Chapais, Chisholm, Church, Conger, Cook, Crysler, Daly, Jean B. Daoust, Desaulniers, Dionne, Drouillet, Evanturel, Thos. Fortier, Octave, C. Fortier, Fournier, Gill, Labelle, Laporte, Larwill, Lemieux, Loranger, Macbeth, Attorney Macdonald, McCann, Masson, Matheson, Joseph C. Morrison, Angus Morrison, Polette, Pouliot, Powell, Robinson, Robin, Stevenson, Terrill, Thibeaudeau, Turcotte, and Yeilding.—52.

There can be no doubt that there existed a necessity for the appointment of a Commissioner to represent our interests, when the important subject of the Hudson's Bay Territory was brought up for disposal in the Imperial Parliament. This matter involves many points in which our future prosperity may materially be influenced by the action about to be taken. Hence the necessity for this appointment of a person thoroughly competent, irrespective of all party considerations, to do justice to our interests; and in choosing Chief Justice Draper for that service, we firmly believe that a more fit person than whom could not be found. His known ability and talents are a sufficient guarantee that our interests will not be neglected, by being intrusted to his advocacy.

There may be an objection to taking gentlemen from the bench for such purposes, but if the interests of the country are at stake, and it is found by so doing, (as is the present case,) that the country will be benefited, we cannot see why a person not as well qualified should be taken for such a mission. It is not a political appointment, and therefore it cannot be said that the purity of the bench is in any danger of being destroyed, at all events in this instance.

DEBATE ON THE ADDRESS IN THE COUNCIL.

The Speech from the Throne was taken up on Monday last in the Legislative Council, and very nearly the same proceeding was adopted as in the Assembly. The same amendment was moved in relation to the appointment of Chief Justice Draper as a Commissioner to the Imperial Parliament.

The mover of the address was the Hon. Mr. Moore and the seconder the Hon. John Prince. Mr. Moore in a speech of some length touched upon the various subjects embraced in the speech and went into a lengthy discussion upon the Hudson Bay Territory and spoke of the importance to Canada of possessing the tract of country known by that name.

The Honorable JOHN PRINCE rose and said that he had been rather unexpectedly requested to second the address, but had much pleasure in doing so. He thanked the old members for the graceful and courteous manner in which they had been received and welcomed in the Council. He hoped and believed that the introduction of the new members would never be a cause of dissatisfaction or regret; as to the address he approved of it generally. With respect to the improvements in the Ottawa and St. Maurice regions, that was all right; but he would have liked to have seen some allusion to the western country. There were improvements, necessary there; and perhaps more imperatively required there than in older and more settled parts of the country which were mentioned. He did not fully agree with the appointment of the Chief Justice Draper as Ambassador to England. He thought the word Agent more appropriate and he did not like to see a Chief Justice acting as an agent. He felt more disposed to blame him for accepting than the Government for appointing him. That he possessed talent, tact, learning and law, no one could deny. He thought there were others in the country who knew more of the territory than our agent did. He regretted that Judge Draper should accept the appointment, for the country would lose his valuable services which might cause dissatisfaction. Regarding the success which had attended the embodyment of the militia, he was much pleased. He had observed the brave fellows, and they all seemed to be stimulated with an esprit de corps which augured well for their usefulness. These fine fellows were ready to defend the soil, and thus offered a guarantee for the continuance of British connection which was most cheering to those who valued it. We might depend upon it, that hereafter no foreign foe would be permitted to occupy one inch of our soil with impunity. He looked hopefully to the Attorney General for having the Court of Chancery revised. He wished a bill passed to require that Judges would go on circuit at least once a year. He was happy to find that it was the intention to subject candidates for offices to examination. This was a good idea, and it was beginning at the door of the matter. There were many ignoramuses in office who knew nothing of the duties of their office. He congratulated the Ministry upon the elevation of Mr. Vankoughnet, whose ability, integrity and talents, would be believed, be of the greatest benefit to the country.

The Address was moved, paragraph by paragraph, which was nearly an echo of the speech.

On the eleventh paragraph, relating to the Hudson Bay Territory and the appointment of Chief Justice Draper being moved,

The Hon. Mr. BOULTON rose to move an amendment. He approved of the address generally, and did not object to any part but that now under discussion, and moved the following amendment: "That all the words after "House of Commons" be expunged and the following inserted in lieu thereof, "But this House though fully appreciating the talents and ability of the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, regret that he should have been despatched to England on a mission relating to the said Territory, inasmuch as the suitors in that Court may sustain injury and loss from his absence, and this house confidently trusts the present appointment may not be drawn into a precedent on any future occasion?"

The Hon. Mr. MORRIS seconded the amendment.

A spirited debate then followed upon the amendment, and upon a division, there were for the amendment, 6; against it, 16.

From a Toronto Correspondent.

TORONTO, 27th Feb., 1857.

The opening of the present session of Parliament was most numerously attended, but it was, upon the whole, a tame affair, compared with such ceremonies in former days, when the "pomp and circumstance of war," and Bands and Regiments of the Line escorted the Sovereign's representative upon such august occasions. The crowd within the Legislative Council was nevertheless immense, and hundreds of ladies, as well as gentlemen, who had obtained cards of admission, could get no entrance. His Excellency read the speech in English first, and then in French. There was a full attendance of Members; and before His Excellency took his seat on the throne, all the new Councillors present were introduced, took the oath prescribed by law, and signed the roll. We observed that COLONEL PRINCE was introduced by the Honorable JAMES GORDON, of Toronto, and the Honorable E. PERRY, of Cobourg, and was then directed by the Speaker to take the seat allotted to him. After a few preliminary matters had been gone through, the Speaker, (the Hon. E. P. Taché,) read a despatch from Downing Street, informing the Governor General, that it was her Majesty's will and pleasure that all the Elective Councillors should have the style and title of Honorable as the others have. The Honorable Mr. DE BLAQUIERE, in a short but most gentlemanly speech, assured the Councillors so elected, that they were welcomed to the chamber with every possible cordiality, and he was sure the best understanding would always subsist between them and their elder brothers. The hon. gentleman expressed himself in a very feeling and appropriate manner, and his remarks were well received and acknowledged. The Honorable Mr. VANKOUGHNET moved the appointment of certain "Standing" Committees; and Col. PRINCE gave notice that he intended to move for leave to bring in a Bill "for better securing the Independence of Election to the Legislative Council, by prohibiting the interference of certain persons therein;" and also a Bill to "alter and amend the Practice of the Court of Chancery, by requiring the Judges to go circuits once a year at least, to receive evidence as at Nisi Prius," &c., &c. The Chamber then adjourned until Monday the 2nd, when the Speech from the Throne will be debated.

SHIP CANAL FROM THE RIVER ST. CLAIR TO THE RONDEAU.

A large and influential meeting of the inhabitants of Chatham, (we learn by the Planet) was held in that town, on Thursday the 26th ult., for the purpose of taking into consideration a project for opening a water communication between Lake Erie and the River St. Clair, by means of a ship canal. And from the energy displayed by many of the speakers, it would appear that it was no idle scheme, but a reality that they were going to strive for. The object of this canal would be to avoid the delays occasioned in the navigation of the River Detroit and the St. Clair Flats to sailing craft, and avoid the circuitous route which at present they have to pursue. The feasibility of the undertaking we will not at present discuss. There is no doubt, however, that if it can be shown, that as a paying investment it will afford inducements to capitalists, the necessary funds will be forthcoming; and from the nature of the country through which the canal will pass, we have little doubt but that the undertaking is quite practicable.

It was decided at the meeting, that immediate steps should be taken to secure a charter, and that the necessary preliminary surveys be made as soon as sufficient means could be procured to enable them to proceed. Subscription lists were directed to be opened for that purpose. After the business had been got through with, the meeting broke up, as the Planet says, astonished, delighted and edified with the proceedings of the afternoon

THE CANADA DIRECTORY.

We have been favored with a second edition of that invaluable work, "The Canada Directory for 1857 and '58," by John Lovell, of Montreal, containing an enlarged list of names of professional and business men throughout the Province; also a list of publications, with the names of all post offices, and such general information as will be of the greatest interest to the business community. Subscribers names are entered in the lists in capitals, to distinguish them from non-subscribers; and as an advertising medium cannot be surpassed. We would therefore advise all in this county who wish their names to appear in capital letters, to become subscribers at once. The agent, Mr. John Morris, is at present canvassing the county for the work, and so favorable an opportunity should not be lost. The subscription is only Five Dollars, for which more than the value of ten times that amount will be furnished in the shape of useful information. We cheerfully recommend the work; and from a knowledge of the enterprize of the publisher, we feel confident that nothing will be left undone to render the work all that it could be desired.

Agents are canvassing the United Kingdom and the United States, and the probability is that a large circulation will be obtained abroad.

The work will only remain open for a short time, and parties who are desirous of having their names entered should do so at once, as the desire of the publisher to put the work to press as soon as possible will compel him to close the lists very soon.

THE SUBMARINE TELEGRAPH.—A letter from Washington of the 11th says:—"The Ocean Telegraph received its quietus to day by being referred to the Committee on Post Offices, which cannot report during the session. A week ago there was every reasonable prospect it would pass, but the more the proposition was scrutinized, the less it attracted favor. If the compensation required from our Government had been graduated according to the principle of the British contract, that is to day, proportioned to its probable use, no serious objection would have been interposed; because the enterprise independent of this consideration, and another, by which it appeared that the great bulk of the stock was owned in England, was regarded with favor. But when an attempt was made to enact the same terms from us that were allowed by Great Britain for constant service with all her colonies, feeling became unbound at this inconsiderate, and defeat followed. The managers overreached themselves, and may learn wisdom hereafter from this chapter of experience."

Death of Dr. Kane.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 24th.

The Steamer Cahawba from "Havana 20th has arrived, and brings the remains of Dr. Kane, the celebrated Arctic explorer. His body will lie in state at the City Hall, until to-morrow, when it will be taken, attended by a large number of our citizens, to the Steamboat for Louisville, en route for Philadelphia. The greatest honors were paid to the virtues and worth of the deceased by the highest officials of Cuba.

SIR ASTLEY COOPER'S PILLS.

The astonishing efficacy of this sterling medicine in all affections of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels, and for purifying the blood, have gained them the highest recommendation from the most distinguished Physicians and Surgeons in Europe and America. Twelve three of these Pills a short time after taking them, will remove the uneasiness in the head, stomach or bowels, indigestion produced by a torpid state of the liver and inactivity of the bowels; causing a disorganization of the whole frame, will by a little perseverance with this excellent medicine be effectually removed. For habitual costiveness they are most excellent, not like other aperient medicines leaving the bowels confined, nor stimulating, so as to produce or agravate the Piles. The evil effects arising from excess of the table will be prevented if recourse be had to them. They quickly restore the system to its natural state of repose. They are particularly efficacious for stomach complaints, coughs, colds, agues, shortness of breath, and all obstructions of the urinary passages, strengthen the stomach, invigorate the nerves, create appetite, promote digestion, and a healthy action of the Liver.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.—It frequently occurs that Druggists impose on their customers, a spurious compound called Sir Astley Cooper's Pills, generally put up in a red or pink wrapper, and bidding equal or as prepared at Apothecaries Hall London, when the fact is they are prepared by themselves. Beware of such trash, as you would of poison.—The genuine Pills have the likeness of Sir Astley Cooper on the top of each box; also the fac-simile of the Proprietors, McPhail & Co London and New York.

Sold at 25 and 50 cents per box, and in family boxes at $1 each. There is a great saving by purchasing the larger sizes.

For sale by Simpson and Dunspaugh, Druggists, Toronto; John M. Thornton, Dundas; Andrews Oliver Gait, Cork, Brantford, General Agents, by whom Country Druggists and Merchants will be supplied at London and New York prices.

PROSPECTUS

OF THE

AMHERSTBURG, ANDERDON AND MALDEN.

BUILDING SOCIETY,

Established February 17th, 1857, in conformity with the act of the Provincial Legislature.

PURSUANT to Notice a meeting was convened to day at 10 o'clock, A. M., for the purpose of organising the AMHERSTBURG, ANDERDON & MALDEN, Building Society, when the following Gentlemen were duly elected Directors and office Bearers for the current year, viz.

MAJOR DONALDSON, President.
HENRY WRIGHT Esq., Vice President,

DIRECTORS

J. DUNBAR, H. CUNNINGHAM,
J. GOTT, J. TAYLOR, W. MCGEE, J. DALL,
J. HAMILTON, J. S. TAFFELMIRE, and
T. KING, Esquires.

A. BORROWMAN, Secretary Treasurer,

After which the constitution and Rules of the Society were read and adopted, and ordered to be printed for the use of the Members.

The Secretary was also requested to forward a copy of the proceedings of the meeting to the Editors of the Maple Leaf and Windsor Herald, for publication.

The object of the above Society is to assist persons of limited means to acquire Freehold or Leasehold properties, and to aid persons of small periodical incomes to accumulate Wealth. The Society appears to be eminently and efficaciously adapted to effect its purposes: It combines to a certain extent the advantages both of the permanent and terminating Societies, and as an economical and prolific source of wealth may be considered as superior to either.

The Society consists of shares of £50, each, payable by monthly subscriptions of five shillings per share.

To persons desiring to buy out their shares, the money is advanced on mortgage security and the sale of monthly payments to such persons, according to the following scale, which increases the rate as the period diminishes.

	Monthly Payment	Yearly Payment	In 9 Years
1st year,	$2 50	$30 00	$270 00
2nd "	2 62	31 44	262 52
3rd "	2 75	33 00	255 09
4th "	2 95	35 40	248 40
5th "	3 25	39 00	243 00
6th "	3 75	45 00	240 00
7th "	4 50	54 60	234 00
8th "	6 00	72 00	226 00
9th "	10 00	120 00	216 00

It is calculated that the Society will terminate in nine years, and from the above statement it will be seen that the highest aggregate amount paid by any member will only be $2,700, or $702 more than the money which he receives out of the Society, and consequently two dollars less than 4 per cent per annum, while those who do not buy out their shares will have paid at the end of that period $108, for which they will receive $300, about $19 06 per cent per annum simple interest.

According to the prospectus of the Toronto Permanent Building Society, if a member pays £64 in advance, at the end of six years he gets £100, which at that rate requires about 10½ years to double his money; while if members pay in advance, (for which they are allowed 6 per cent,) into this one, the share gains centum per centum in less than 4½ years. I should, however, add, that from the Toronto one members get a dividend of the surplus fund, but it must be very large to make it equally lucrative with this one.

L. P. ST. AMOUR

A MEDICAL REVOLUTION!

THE WORLD UNANIMOUS!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

THE GREAT COUNTER IRRITANT!!

The virus of disease often makes its way to the internal organs through the pores of the skin. This penetrating Ointment, melting under the hand as it is rubbed in, is absorbed through the same channels, and, reaching the seat of inflammation, promptly and invariably subdues it, whether located in the kidneys, the liver, the lungs, or any other important organ. It penetrates the surface of the internal, through the countless tunes that communicate with the skin as summer rain passes into the fevered earth, diffusing its cool and regenerating influence.

Skin Diseases & Glandular Swellings!

Every species of exterior irritation is quickly reduced by this anti-inflammatory action of this Ointment. ANGRY ERUPTIONS, such as SALT RHEUM, ERYSIPELAS, TETTER, RINGWORM, SCALD HEAD, NETTLE RASH, SCORBUTIC ERUPTIONS, &c., to die out, in many no more, under its application. Hospital experience in all parts of the world prove its infallibility in diseases of the skin, the muscles, the joints and the glands.

Ulcers, Sores & Tumours!

The effect of this unrivalled external remedy upon Scrofula and other virulent ulcers and sores, is almost miraculous. It first discharges the poison which produces suppuration and proud flesh, and thus the cures which its healing properties afterward complete are safe as well as permanent.

Wounds, Bruises, Burns & scalds.

In cases of the fracture of the bones, injuries caused by steam explosions, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Rheumatism, Stiffness of the Joints, and contraction of the sinews, it is embayed and warmly recommended by the faculty. This marvellous remedy has been introduced by its inventor in person into all the leading hospitals of Europe, and no private household should be without it.

Undeniable Testimony!

The Medical Staff of the French and English Armies in the Crimea have officially signed their approval of Holloway's Ointment, as the most reliable dressing for sabre cuts, stabs, and gun-shot wounds. It is also used by the surgeons of the Allied Navies.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases.

Bunions,	Skin Diseases,
Burns,	Swelled Glands,
Chapped Hands,	Sore Legs,
Chilblains,	Sore Breasts,
Fistula,	Sore Heads,
Gout,	Sore Throats,
Lumbago,	Sores of all kinds,
Mercurial Eruptions,	Sprains,
Piles,	Stiff Joints,
Rheumatism,	Tetter,
Ringworm,	Ulcers,
Salt Rheum,	Venereal Sores,
Scalds,	Wounds of all kinds,

 Sold at the Manufactories of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80, Maiden Lane, New York, & 244 Strand, London, by all respectable Druggists and dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in pots, at 25 cents, 62½ cents, and $1 each.

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

How I Won Her!

OR, JACK LANGTON'S STORY OF CHRISMAS AT AN OLD COUNTRY HOUSE.

Concluded.

"Certainly if you wish it! Shall Pump Court, Temple, come to Lincoln's Inn Fields, or vice versa?"

"Pump Court! Lincoln's Inn! Nonsense! Our Christmas, sir, will be spent with Sir Max Trumpington, who has one of the finest old houses in Yorkshire, and who is one of the most hospitable men in the world. He has written to me, begging me to come and to bring with me some good fellow; so I've pitched upon you, and come you must,'

"But, Charley, my dear fellow, I remonstrated, 'I'm not in spirits for—'

"Bah! you'll come,' replied Charley, and go I accordingly did.

"We started three days before Christmas Day, in one of the hardest frosts that I can recollect. We travelled by rail as far as Doncaster, and here found a dog-cart waiting to take us over. After a three-mile ride we turned into a splendid avenue of chestnut, at the end of which stood Trumpington Hall. As we drove up to the door, a party of equestrians were cantering down the slope on the other side of the house, and among them were several female figures.

One look was riding ahead of the party, and engaged in conversation with an old gentleman. I stood up in the dog-cart, I strained my eyes at the advancing figures, and said, 'Well, old fellow, you're not sorry you came, now, are you?'

"I am right, Bram, and it is Ellen Marsham!" I exclaimed.

"Certainly, old boy, no doubt of it—and that's Sir Max Trumpington, our host, that she's been talking to. Look here, she's a niece of Sir Max, and is here staying with him. Her father's dead up in town with the gout; and though that stout jobbing scoundrel is asked down here (old Sir Max couldn't help it though,she hates him like the deuce), I don't think we shall see very much of him. So, old boy, a clear stage and no favour,—Go in and win, and if it does come to a run away, well, we didn't do it till we were forced to, we can say."

"He had scarcely finished before the equestrians halted at the door, and the next minute I had the satisfaction of feeling Ellen Mar ham's trembling hand within my grasp.

"Life at Trumpington Hall was delightful—everybody did what they liked best, and nobody minded the others. So that I think Ellen and I took long pedestrian rambles during the day, and at night danced together in the great Hall, or 'went parties' at night in the cozy study. Sir Max was hospitality itself, and seemed fully to enter into the position of both Ellen and myself, as he would give us every opportunity of being together. Charley, too, was wonderful in this respect; he made appointments to see old abbeys and picturesque views, impromptu skating excursions, and in fact took some twenty people in various conveyances over to Doncaster, to see what he called the finest sight in the world—'the well-fed English yeoman purchasing and contemplating the stock which, though it cost him much trouble when alive, redounds to the honour and profit when dead.' I think all people who, under the promise of the finest sight in the world, had been lured from the snugness and jolity of Trumpington Hall, were savage enough when they were only shown a very ordinary-looking set of beasts in a milking room at the town's market; but Charley had done what he wished, and in removing what he called 'a lot of slows and drearies,' had given Ellen and myself three hours uninterrupted flirtation in the library.

"On the morning of Christmas Eve, Charley was telegraphed for to town, and went up by the first express train. He would not tell me what business it was which compelled his inopportune absence, but spoke in enigmas, and rendered misery uncomfortable—a state of feeling which was considerably increased by the arrival, late in the afternoon, of General Gristhorne and Mr. Gristhorne. After they once came, all to me was gall and wormwood. I was separated from Ellen, and compelled to look on and witness the undisguised admiration with which Mr. Gristhorne regarded her. This gentleman, I thought, looked a great deal more worn and anxious than when I last had seen him, and his spirits seemed considerably more forced than spontaneous. Ellen too seemed wretchedly low and miserable; and having no Charley to rouse me, I pleaded headache and retired to my room long before the rest of the guests, who were busily engaged in Christmas games.

"The next morning I was awoke by a heavy hand on my shoulder, and looking up, I saw Charley Ferrars by my bedside.

"Listen, Jack, he said; 'I was compelled to go away yesterday morning on business, the nature of which I could not tell you. I've been travelling all night, and here I am.—I can't say anything more definite about the reason of my absence, but I can tell you this —on my word and honour as a gentleman, and your friend, you need not care one rush for Gristhorne, your rival. He never will marry Ellen Marsham, and what's more —after to-day he'll never again appear as a sowperand. I e must explain this, but I swear its the truth; so cast away all dulness, face the fellow like a man, (for I hear he's arrived, and we'll have a jolly day!"

"Charley Ferrars was incapable of even a subterfuge; and I implicitly believed him; though I confess I was very anxious to find out what this mystery could portend. On going down to breakfast I found the party assembled, and Ellen flanked on either side by the General and Mr. Gristhorne, from both of whom I received the coldest of bows. This, however, did not disconcert me, and I was hard at work on a splendid Yorkshire pie, when our host entered, followed by a tall gentleman y looking man in a large beard, whom he introduced as Count Lavallette, and who, it appeared, had been on his way to enjoy the Christmas festivities at the neighbouring sent of Lord Wyvilstone, when he was stopped by an impassable snow drift, and had he not availed himself of the kind invitation of Sir Max, would have been left to the dreariness of an inn:

"The Count turned out a tremendous acquisition. At church his gravity was unsurpassed by that of Sir Max himself, then he skated admirably, helped to deck out the great hall, which were preparing for the fun in the evening, and at dinner laughed loudest, talked quicker and appeared to enjoy himself more than any one present. I noticed, however, that he drank very little, and that he kept perpetually casting a sharp glance towards whatever quarter the cards room, Gristhorne might happen to be occupying. Indeed he remained near him the whole day, and seemed to take a great interest in all his movements. When dinner was over we all adjourned to the great hall, and the real fun of the evening commenced. It was a glorious old room, long round with portraits of the good old fellows in doublet and trunk hose, with noses unnaturalistly warmed with the good old wine about which the song is so descriptive, and with pictures of their wives and daughters in the softest of satins and the stiffest of brocades, and old Sir Max had gathered together a capital set of people. There were some officers from the neighbouring barracks whose mustaches drove the resident female population wild with delight, and some of the best families close by, and the curate of the parish, a good-natured, sentimental young fellow in a large white cloth coat and gilt spectacles, who was so smitten with my Ellen that he could scarcely take his eyes off her the whole evening, and made many salutary mistakes in consequence, and above all, there was the doctor, a little fat fellow, dressed in pantaloons, that had round his ancles, and long three-quartered pumps, and a coat that must have been made five and twenty years ago. But he danced; yes gods! how he danced! his pastorale was worth any money; no trenise, no bauking it, the regular cavalier seul, and no mistake; backwards, too, as well as forwards; and though he bumped up against Sir Max (who was dancing about anywhere and everywhere with his little grandchild), he was not a bit disconcerted, but at it again da capo, and really seemed quite sorry when the dance was over. After the dancing we had Hindman's buff and snapdragon, and then two or three huge wassail bowls of punch; but during the whole of the evening I noticed that our latest guest Count Lavallette, a though foremost at every pastime, contrived to keep constantly close to Gristhorne.

"At last, the ladies having gone to bed, Sir Max proposed a final glass of punch and a cigar in the library, and proceeded thither, followed by several of the gentlemen. I was going too, but Charley Ferrars stopped me.

"One minute!' said he. 'Now for the explanation of the mystery! Come with me.'

"I followed him to where Gristhorne was just rising from his chair. I looked round—the Count was not to be seen, nor was any one standing near us.

"Mr. Gristhorne,' commenced Ferrars, 'for the sake of the kind old man whose house we are in, and for the sake of others for whom I have feelings of friendship, I have been induced to take this step. I was in London yesterday, sir, after you left, and heard secretly something that may surprise you. I have ordered a postchaise to be at the end of the avenue at twelve to night! I advise you to avail yourself of it!'

"Sir,' exclaimed Gristhorne, flushing scarlet, 'What is the meaning of this language? your insolence shall not go unpunished, sir!'

"No acting,' said Charley, quietly; 'did you ever hear the name of Oppenheim and Co? Oh, I thought so?' he added, as Gristhorne turned deadly pale, and leant against the wall for support. Now, take advantage of my offer, and be off at once.'

"Stop, sir!' said a voice behind him. It proceeded from Count Lavallette, who, placing one hand on Gristhorne's shoulders, with the other removed the large beard which he had hitherto worn. 'Mr. Gristhorne, you are my prisoner—you're wanted sir! For the present Bolton, of the police force and I think you'll say I've avoided anything like roughness or unnecessary unpleasantness in your capture.'

"Gristhorne a prisoner!' I exclaimed.—'Good Heavens! what is his crime?'

"Forgery, sir!' replied the Sergeant; 'he's been working the name of Oppenheim and Co., for, they to say, something like fifty thousand pounds!'

"My story is finished. The discovery of Gristhorne's guilt disgusted old General Marsham with his pet scheme for a rich union with him, and when he found that I really loved his daughter, that my love was returned, that Ellen was willing to wait for me in respectability, he made no further objections to our union, and behaved very handsomely into the bargain.

"This Christmas will be spent here in this house, we'll have no forgers among us, and no slow people; but you shall come, old boy, and see what we can do to amuse you. And all events, you'll see more of my wife, now you've heard the story of 'How I won her!'

TUITION FEE IN ADVANCE.

For entire Mercantile Course, time unlimited $40
Same Course for Ladies 25
Twenty Lessons in Practical Penmanship, simply 5
Full Course in Flourishing, etc., as per agreement.

THE COLLEGIATE COURSE,

which is designed to embrace all branches PURELY MERCANTILE, has been recently enlarged, and can now be regarded as one of the most lengthy, thorough and complete ever introduced to the public in any similar Institution in the UNITED STATES.

THE BOOK-KEEPING DEPARTMENT

embraces three distinct grades, viz: Initiatory, Regular and Extended Courses, and taught on Folsom's New Method, recommended by over twenty of the most reliable PRACTICAL ACCOUNTANTS of Cleveland.

THE METHOD OF TEACHING,

strikes at the very germinating point of the Science, revealing the great natural twofold division of the Ledger, whereby is seen the proper line of demarcation between Real and Representative Property, and the governing law of transfer, as regards it affecting the two classes of accounts, and those of the same class in every variety of transactions, thereby rendering intelligible the beautiful science of much of its time honored mysteries, made such by arbitrary and infallible rules, meaningless forms and false notions, which enables the student to acquire correct notions of accounts as embodied in actual practice.

THE INITIATORY COURSE,

embraces a regularly progressive series of manuscript cards, classified somewhat as to the variety of transactions, designed to develop the first principles and philosophy of Accounts, rather than mere routine and actual formula, by addressing the reason and judgment of the pupil, and thereby securing the view of apprehending and arriving at results and so pushes on his investigations with much greater confidence, pleasure and independence.

THE REGULAR COURSE

is intended to represent every species of business, from the smallest Retail to the heaviest and most intricate of Wholesale and Commission, as well as Banking, Railroading, etc., demanded, at present, by our vast and constantly increasing Commerce.

THE EXTENDED COURSE

embraces lengthy practical sets from various business firms, and is designed for such students as may wish to spend longer than the time required by the Regular Course, (and that gratuitously) preparatory to entering some special House.

By taking in addition the Extended Course the student will be fully and profitably employed six months.

PENMANSHIP, PRACTICAL AND ORNAMENTAL, in all its varieties, will be taught in the most thorough and efficient manner by one of the best Penmen in the West.

Besides the usual method of teaching Business Writing, the Chirhythmographic System will also be taught. This system, so copious and recommended by the best educational men, is now taught in the Public Schools of Cleveland, Columbus and Toledo. Many other places are open for good teachers of Chirhythmography as soon as they can be qualified.

DAILY LECTURES on Practical and Theoretical Book-keeping, Mercantile Laws, Commercial Ethics, Political Economy, Art of Computation, Comercial Calculations, Mercantile Customs, Banking, Exchange, Commerce, Railroading, Commercial History, Business Correspondence, Penmanship, etc.

The now suit of rooms of this College, occupies the finest location in the city, situated as they are on the corner of Public Square and Superior Street, affording a fair view of most parts of the city and the lake. These rooms are neatly and tastefully furnished, surpassing in beauty and convenience perhaps those of any similar Institution in the Union.

THE LADIES' COURSE is the same as that of the Gentlemen, affording equal facilities to all ladies who may wish to avail themselves of the Ornamental Courses.

The Principal having an extensive business acquaintance is enabled to secure good situations for many of his graduates.

N. B.—Parties in want of Accountants should Ex Catalogues and Circulars by mail.

THE CANADIAN AGRICULTURIST.

IMPORTANT TO YOUNG MEN!

"Agriculturist" Cash Prizes for 1857!

ONE PRIZE OF $30
ONE PRIZE OF $40
ONE PRIZE OF $30
ONE PRIZE OF $20
ONE PRIZE OF $15
ONE PRIZE OF $10

ONE PRIZE, CASH $4 AND "FARMER'S GUIDE." PRICE $0.75 ONE PRIZE OF "FARMER'S GUIDE." PRICE $0.75

THE above Prizes are offered for competition to Young Men who will, during the winter, canvass for Subscribers to the Canadian Agriculturist. To the person who obtains the largest number of Subscribers previous to the 1st day of May next, the first Prize of Fifty Dollars, in cash, will be paid; to the person who obtains the next largest number before that day, the second Prize of Forty Dollars, to the third largest number, the third Prize; and so on to the lowest prize offered.

To encourage every young man who has a few weeks to spare, to engage in the laudable work of circulating a journal so well established merit as the Agriculturist (and at the unprecedentedly low price of half a-dollar a copy) we undertake to give each person who tries for, but fails to secure any of the above Prizes, a copy of that admirable work, Stephens' Book of the Farm—last Angel's edition—for every thirty subscriptions forwarded to the Agriculturist. The selling price of the Guide—which is an agricultural library in itself—is $3 00. Every person who canvasses for the Agriculturist, whether he obtain a Prize or not, will be well paid for his time. Several persons, last year, obtained from fifteen to twenty subscribers in a day.

Conditions are, that the money—half-a-dollar for each subscriber—be sent with the names; that subscriptions from Agricultural Societies are not to be counted and the subscriptions sent most, in each case, at least equal the number of the prize claimed. It could hardly be expected that we should give to competitors more than they obtained from subscribers.

Specimen copies will be sent to any person who wishes to commence a canvass, upon his written (post paid) application to us.

Those who commence at once will have the best chance. Who takes the field? You cannot fail to win, for you are insured against loss.

Address

JAMES DOUGALL & SON,
Publishers,
Montreal, Jan. 1857.

To such friends as are willing to spend a few hours in aid of the Agriculturist, we offer for every six subscriptions sent, an additional copy gratis.

The Agriculturist is now so well known throughout Canada as to need no lengthened eulogy. Eight annual volumes have already been issued. The present volume (1857) will be superior, in some respects, to any of its predecessors.

The Agriculturist, by its cheapness, and by the practical and truly Canadian spirit of its articles, has distanced all competitors, and stands alone as the representative of the agricultural press in this country. Agriculturists record all the most useful and interesting improvements in agriculture practice in the Old World as well as the New; descriptions are frequently illustrated with engravings of improved implements, new machines, improved cattle, horses, sheep, swine, &c. It contains information in the several branches of agriculture, horticulture, domestic economy, and general science; practical communications from practical farmers; the proceedings of the Board of Agriculture; the prize list, &c., of the Provincial Shows; and such matters generally as will interest Canadian farmers who desire to improve "the soil, and the mind."

It is published monthly, at Half-a-dollar per volume, in advance.

☞ All subscriptions must commence with January, and all communications must be post-paid.

JAMES DOUGALL, Proprietor.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" importantly necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rod of tillable land, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded, together with its really superior execution, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of pearl surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with July, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial department: H. P. KNIGHT, JAMES SCOWDEN and D. W. RAY.

Terms: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

THE NEW ILLUSTRATED

Hydropathic Encyclopedia,

A COMPLETE SYSTEM OF

HYDROPATHY & HYGIENE,

IN ONE LARGE VOLUME.

EMBRACING Outlines of Anatomy, Illustrated; Physiology of the Human Body; Hygienic Agencies and the Preservation of Health; Dietics and Hydropathic Cookery; Theory and Philosophy of Water Treatment; Special Pathology and Hydro-Therapeutics, including the Nature, Causes, Symptoms and Treatment of all known diseases; Application to Surgical Diseases; Application to Midwifery and the Nursery; with three hundred engravings and nearly One Thousand Pages, including a Glossary, Table of Contents and a complete Index. By R. T. TRALL, M. D.

Published by FOWLER and WELLS, New York.

In the plan of the work, the wants and suggestions of the People have been steadily in view. While almost every topic of interest in the departments of Anatomy, Physiology, Pathology, Hygiene, Therapeutics, Hydropathy, Diet and Regimen, and Medical Jurisprudence, has been discussed, those points which the popular drug practice is predicated are controverted, and the why and wherefore of their fallacy clearly demonstrated. The following is a brief analysis of its contents:

History of Medicine; History of Bathing; History of Medicated Baths.

Anatomy illustrated by One Hundred and Twenty appropriate engravings.

Physiology, illustrated, comprising the Rationale of Muscular Action; the Nervous System; the Philosophy of Mental Movement Phenomena; the Special Senses; Functions of Digestion, Circulation, Respiration, Absorption, Nutrition, Secretion, Excretion; Calorification; Temperaments; the Races of Men, and Theory of Population.

Hygiene embracing all the relations of Air, Light, Drink, Food, Temperature, Exercise, Sleep, Clothing, Bathing, and the Passions, to the growth and preservation of Body and Mind, the Preservation of Health and the attainment of Longevity.

Dietetics, comprising the Bible, Anatomical, Physiological and Philosophical Argument. Evidence concerning the natural Dietetic Character of Man.

Hydropathy, or Water Cure, with Special Directions for the Preparation of Food.

Dietaries, containing the Therapeutic Distinctions of Diet for Invalids.

Philosophy of Water Cure; with illustrated explanations of all the various Hydropathic processes, a Philosophical Exposition of the modus operandi of water-treatment, and the true rationale of Hydropathic treatment.

The Nature Symptoms and Treatment of all known Diseases are examined, the still successful drug practice exposed, and the processes of Water Cure recommended and specified.

The Treatment of Surgical Diseases is illustrated and the directions for the minor operations given.

The Management of Lying-in-Women, and the treatment of Children, &c., &c.

The work is intended to be plain, intelligible and sufficient guide for domestic practice, or home treatment, in all ordinary diseases, embracing the whole range of subjects connected with the philosophy of life, the preservation of health, and the treatment of diseases.

This great work may be had in one large volume, bound in library style. Price, postpaid by mail to any Post Office in United States or Canada, only THREE DOLLARS.

Terms, cash and orders should be directed as follows:—

FOWLER & WELLS
No 308 Broadway, New York.

☞ Agents in every neighborhood will be supplied with the work by the dozen or more copies, by Express or as Freight. Single copies by mail. Every family should have a copy.

A DAILY AND A WEEKLY FOR $3.50

Those of our readers of this paper who desire a daily paper, published in Cleveland, New York and other markets, may be accommodated on the following terms. For $3.50 we will send the "Commercial Gazette and Daily Cleveland Herald" for one year, and will subscribe for the Evening Express for one year and send the Publisher's receipt to any address.

The "Clevelander" is the size of this paper, is printed on minion and agate type, and on heavy white paper. The reports of the home markets will be prepared by us, and we do not repeat that neither patience nor skill, will be spared to make it full and correct in every particular. The New York, Buffalo, and Oswego reports are furnished by the N. Y. associated press, and will be correctly rendered. As a newspaper the "Clevelander" is perhaps equal to any daily in the State. Recollect, only $3.50 for both Cleveland and the "Commercial Gazette" for one year. Parties desiring a daily may be sent in postage stamps. For two dollars the two papers will be sent six months.

The Brook Without a Name.

I met her by a little burn,
That tinkled musically,
With many a fall and many a turn,
Adown a bosky valley.

So fair—so fairy-like was she—
So lovely altogether;
I could not choose but bend my knee
Before her on the heather.

She said she came to fetch the kine,
But—I say—I will not doubt her!
And so I'll own the fault was mine)—
The kine went home without her!

I said I tramped o'er gorse and furze
For grouse, that love the heather,
But—(here I own the fault was hers)—
I did not bag a feather!

So through our chat [if you prefer
I'll even say—our courting.]
The lowing kine went without her—
I went without my sporting.

The sun was drinking from the plain,
The dew when first we mated;—
But it had all come back again
Before we separated!

How oft we kissed, I cannot count!
Of rapture so ecstatic,—
The man who has the true amour,
Is basely mathematic.

In truth she was the sweetest lass
I ever met in Scotland!
And if there's one can her surpass,
I want to know "in what land!"

All day we passed in converse sweet,
Forgetting grouse and cattle;
All day the burnie at our feet
Kept up its silver prattle.

Best of all merry brooks that flow!
A very smile of nature!
I'd make thee famous did I know
Thy proper nomenclature.

Knew I the name thy waters took
Amid those mountain ranges,
My song should make those little brook,
As mighty as the Ganges!

Yet though the brook no title claims,
No hackneyed phase in story,
Nor classes with the lesser names
Of Tiber—Thames—Missouri.

I will not let the world forget,
This noble title giving:—
"The Bonnie Burnie where I met
The Sweetest Lessie living!"

A Duelling Lesson.

Two young surgeons of Paris once had a dispute, on some trivial affair, which resulted in a challenge and the subsequent arrangements for a duel. They reached the ground early in the morning, with their seconds and pistols, and found an old woman there, who held a youth by the hands. "Why are you here?" asked one of the combatants, turning toward the old woman. "I heard last night from old Pierre, the boatman that he had engaged to bring over two young gentlemen this morning, and I felt sure there was to be a duel," answered the female. "And are you fond of such sights, my good woman?" "No," she quickly returned;" but on the contrary, I dislike them. Yet I meant to come and see this one. This is my grandson. His father, my son and only child, fell in a duel. Young Liseling is hot and impetuous, and I have feared he might at some time fall into the same error if he was not warned. So I have brought him out here that he might see one friend shoot another, hoping that the scene will effectually cure him of all desire ever to maintain his honor at such fearful expense. You may go on. I will not trouble you." The two surgeons gazed first upon the old woman and her fair-haired grandchild and then upon each other. They blushed, and then smiled. "Shall we give her the lesson?" said one. "No. We'll give her a better," answered the other. And they shook hands and went back to the city."

A Ghost Story.

BY HAZEL GREEN.

"Never but once was I frightened at anything like a ghost," said Timothy Tiles, and then I was frightened for certain. I was living on the Upper Mississippi at the time, but that makes no difference. I'll tell you how was.

One night about 12 o'clock, I heard some one knocking at my door. "Who's there?" I asked.

"Mosier," replied a voice from without; "I thought I'd stop and see if you would'nt go and watch the coal pit for me till morning, I am not very well, and having been up all last night, I think I had better try to get a little sleep."

Now I knew Mosier very well—knew he was burning charcoal about half a mile up the river; and not only that, but I knew he had a real pretty girl, and that I had taken a great notion to her. So up I jumps, hauls on my clothes, and was ready to be off in a few minutes.

"You will not be afraid to stay by your self, will, you Tim?" asked Mosier, as we were separating, for he lived still further down the river.

"Afraid!" exclaimed I. "No what should I be afraid of? I have never yet seen anything worse than myself."

"Oh, I did'nt mean to say you were cowardly, Tim, but I thought you might be lonesome; and if you thought so that I had better wake up the Dutchman, who is staying at your house and try to get him to go with you."

I assured him that I needed no company, and so started for the coal-pit. The night was very dark and I must confess that I did feel a little squeamish, but I could not tell why. There was the grave of an Indian by the road side by which I must travel to reach the coal-pit, and it had been reported wonderful sights had been seen there. Perhaps this was the cause of my unpleasant feelings.

I tried to whistle my spirits up, but it was all no go. The nearer I approached the spot, the worse I felt. When I had reached the cliff of rocks around which I should turn in a few paces, and be right at the Indian grave, I felt my hat raise on my head, and then it seemed that myriads of little demons were dancing through my hair, and playing at leap-frog up and down my back and over my shoulders, and humming queer noises in my ears. I stopped and began to think seriously of beating a retreat.—Just then the fair image of Jane Elizabeth Elvira Mosier flitted across my fancy, and I said to myself, "This won don't do back through or bust a biler." If there's anything at the old Indian grave, I'll not look that way."

Thus saying, I started at a rapid pace. The rocks were rounded, and keeping my eyes bent on the ground, I had nearly passed the grave, when a bright light blazed across the path before me. Before I had time to think, I looked up, and oh! great Jupiter! what a sight! A monster with a head about the size of a half bushel, was standing upon the Indian grave. It's eyes as large as cocoa-nuts, were rolling in its great head, and glaring frightfully at me. From between its huge teeth bright jets of fire flashed and blazed across my path, like streaks of miniature lightning. In fact its entire head seemed to be one great red ball of fire, with small pieces of the sun set in it for eyes.

While I stood gazing completely stupified with horror, it made a low bow to me, and then rasing itself erect, it shook its head and rattled its teeth together most frightfully. Then I fancied that I saw it take a few steps toward where I was standing. That number roused me to a sense of action, and in the next instant I was hobbling along down the river bank a little swifter than it was usual for footmen to pass that way. At every leap I imagined it was grabbing at my coat tail, for when I started, I thought I heard it right at my heels.—Reaching home, I did not wait to open the door, but throwing my weight against it, bursted it in. The Dutchman, who was sleeping up stairs, hearing the rippit, and supposing the house was besieged, came down with a chair drawn, and crying at the top of his voice:

"Robbers! tiefs! murter! Robbers! tiefs! Inchins! Oh, mine Got!"

Seeing nobody but me, he settled down All the family were aroused. I told my story in as few words as possible. Some believed it—others laughed at me, the Dutchman in particular. "You are a pretty cowardly boy," and "got fright" at my own shadow. That there was no such thing as a ghost, and that he would willingly go right up to anything of the kind that could be shown him.

"You would not have went up to this," I said, still trembling.

"Pesare I would! Shust go back mit me, and let me see der blace, an I'll show you dare's nottin dare."

I refused at first, but being urged by the family, and thinking of Jane Elizabeth Elvira Mosier, the coal-pit, and of being kicked out of the house by the old man, I reluctantly consented.

We started back; the Dutchman gassing along about his bravery, and about how he had unraveled many a ghostal mystery, and I trembling from the effects of my fright, but saying nothing. In due time we reached the cliff.

"Now, just around this rock is where I saw it," said I, stopping and turning back, for the path was not broad enough for two to walk side by side, and he was following close at my heels.

"Oh, go on," said he, "it makes notting I'sh not afraid of ter tifle."

We went on. We turned around the rock. I looked, and there it was blazing and flashing just as I had seen it before. I turned to the Dutchman, to see what effect it produced upon him, when, lo! he was not there! A glance down the path revealed him streaking it like a comet around the rock. This frightened me worse than ever, and so I set out after him as swift as my locomotive powers would carry me. Being rather the swiftest runner of the two, I passed him just as we reached the mouth of the long lane which led to our house. He was fairly boeing it down, and grunting, every jump, loud enough to have been heard a hundred yards.

I had not been long in the lead before I heard a kind of thumping and tusseling behind just as we turned in the next instant the Dutchman cried out;

"Help! murter! Oh, mine Got! it ash got me! Ter tiefe hash got me! murter! murter!"

Up to this time I had been running faster than I ever ran before, but when these sounds reached my ear I doubled my speed. It seemed to me that Death was right at my heels, and nothing but the greatest exertion on my part could save me. In the twinkling of an eye I was in the house, where, to my utter astonishment, I found Mosier, laughing fit to split his sides. The truth at once, flashed across my mind. It was a trick, and a rich one at that. In a short time the Dutchman came limping up, and then the laughing commenced in real earnest; but you may be certain the Dutchman and myself took but little part in it.

The phenomenon of the ghost is easily explained. Mosier and some of the fellows at the coal-pit had scooped out a pumpkin, cut hideous looking eyes and mouth in the rind, and then setting two candles in it, had fixed it up at the Indian grave. A long string was attached to it, so that one could stand off and pull, to make it move. It was, indeed, a frightful looking thing. The awful sauce which the dutchman got while coming down the lane, was occasioned by his having run over a cow that was quietly sleeping in the road. As she jumped up, her horn accidently caught in his clothes, and the poor fellow had no other thought than that the devil had him for certain.

We got over our scares, but I did not hear the last of it as long as I remained in that region.

Maple Sugar.

(From the New York Tribune.)

Reader, do you own a sugar maple? Remember, if you do, that sugar has not been as high priced as it is now, for many years and that you can add a trifle to the general stock, while you give a luxury to your family in that most delicious of all sweets—maple sugar, or maple syrup. And if you own a sugar bush, sugar camp, or Maple orchard, you are inexcusable if you do not prepare at once, in the most complete manner, for a thorough campaign in the sugar making season, which is now at hand.—Every pound that is made will not only have self-interest to prompt you, but the thought that you are adding your mite to the stock of the great store house of the world, from whence mankind are to draw their supplies of one of the greatest necessities of civilized life. We have now every indication, in the state of the weather, that we shall have an unusually favorable spring for making maple sugar; and we therefore feel that we are discharging a simple duty in trying to awaken an interest upon this subject, sufficient to turn more attention to the subject than has been paid to it in many years. Maple sugar making has fallen into disuse, owing to the low price of cane sugar. There is not a shade of probability that we shall see the price as low again for many years, if ever; and, therefore, it is perfectly safe for those who own sugar maples to go to some extra expense this year in anticipation of years to come.

For forty years there has not been so good a prospect for maple sugar making as at this very time. One good reason is it will pay a profit upon all expense of preparation in a new camp, and leave valuable implements on hand for another year. We imagine the whole community not to leave a single maple tree untapped this coming season; and we conjure you not to destroy the trees by the manner of tapping them; and do not waste the product by making it into a black dirty mass, when it is just as easy to make clean, dry, valuable sugar, or pure, honey-like molasses.

Miscellany.

IN A FIX.—Jemmy Downer had been out all day training—the first time since he was chosen captain over the Tuckertown Guards—and being pretty well filled with libations of punch and so forth, got some time bewildered as he plodded along towards his home. Meeting a boy on the road, he accosted him with, 'Well my boy, can you tell me where Capt. Downer lives?'

'Why, sir, you are Capt. Downer, ain't you?'

'Yes, I know that, boy. But where the devil do I live? Can you tell me that?'

The lad piloted the inebriated officer to his domicil, and then left him to take care of himself. The cellar of the country's pride and glory tried the door; it was locked. He then drew out his night-key, but could not find the key hole. 'By Gosh!' he exclaimed, after trying in vain to find an incision in the door, 'if this isn't a good'un. Here the old lady has locked the door and by gracious she has buttoned up the keyhole besides!'

A Yankee went to the market to buy sausages. He held out a link to his dog, but it refused to eat. 'What's the matter with them sausages,' angerily enquired the dealer. Oh said the Yankee, I've been giving 'em, only dog won't eat dog, that's all.'

THE DUKE AND THE FARMER.—The late Mr. Hamilton, farmer, Dykebar, visiting the palace of Hamilton on one occasion, and brought into conversation with the late Duke his Grace, pleased with the humor of the old farmer, said in a jocular away, "Pray, Mr. Hamilton, where in our family tree am I to look for your family?"—Drawing a long breath, as if astonished, the old man replied—"Who wad ever think o' looking for the rook among the branches?" The Duke it is said, laughed heartily, and added 'Quite true, quite true, it would be folly to do so."

NEW MANUFACTURE OF PAPER.—A man in England has patented a process for the manufacture of paper from the refuse or waste of Brazilian grass. Having removed the most ligneous parts, as the stem of the leaf and extraneous matters, the remainder is boiled in a suitable vessel with lime and water for about twelve hours,—in the manner usually pursued in making paper from coarse materials. It is then placed in a rag engine, and subjected to the ordinary washing and breaking in process, and, if intended for brown or unbleached paper, it is reduced to pulp and converted to paper by the usual methods. If for white paper, the grass waste, after undergoing the washing and breaking in treatment, is subjected to a second boiling for about twelve hours, but with a solution of soda instead of lime, and after the usual washing and pressing, it is passed through a screening machine, so as to further open the fibres and cleanse the stuff; the bleaching is next performed—by exposing the stuff to the action of chlorine gas, in what is termed a chest, or by steeping it in a solution of chlorid of lime; after bleaching, it is again washed in a rag engine and then converted into a pulp and made into paper.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS have been placed by the common consent of mankind at the head of internal remedies. To say that in warm climates they save thousands upon thousands of persons annually from falling a sacrifice to dysentery diarrhea constipation, liver complaints, general debility, remittent fever, &c., is simply to relate a fact attested by crouds of witnesses. Nosuffere from scorbutic affections has ever failed to experience relief from them, and they are guaranteed to cure chronic diseases of the internal organs, which have previously baffled the skill of the most successful practitioners.

Leonori's Bank note Reporter states that there are counterfeit bills of the following Canadian banks in circulation:—One Two, and Five dollar bills of Montreal bank; Twos of Quebec Branch of Banque du Peuple; Tens of the Bank of Upper Canada; Tens of City Bank; Fives and Tens of Commercial Bank; Twenties and Fifties of Gore Bank; Fives and Tens of Niagara District Bank; Tens of the Quebec Bank; Fives, Tens and Twenties of the Zimmerman Bank. Some of these counterfeits are said to be well executed. We have not seen any of the above, and suppose they must be very rare.

HOW TO INCREASE YOUR MANURE.—If you have not hitherto done so, permit us now to prevail on you to take this our advice: Have as many loads of rough materials hauled and spread over your cow yard as will make twelve inches in depth. In spreading, so fashion the materials as to be basin shape—the centre being the lowest point, to prevent the escape of the urine.—While the rough materials are being placed in and spread on the yard, dust each layer as spread with plaster, or with pulverized charcoal, and when completed dust the surface with either of the substances named; then roll the yard to consolidate its contents—heavier the roller the better. Occasionally throughout the yarding season, spread plaster over the yard, and from time to time add more rough materials.—American Farmer.

IMPORTANT TO BREEDERS AND IMPORTERS OF AGRICULTURAL HORSES.—We are requested to state, that at a recent meeting of the Board of Agriculture, the subject of improving the breeds of Farm Horses having been considered, it was resolved to offer a premium of Fifty Pounds at the Provincial Exhibition to be held at Brantford in September next, for the best Agricultural Stallion imported from Europe since the last Exhibition. It is but right to state that of this sum fifteen pounds will be contributed by the President of the Association for the current year, Geo. Alexander, Esq., of Woodstock. It is confidently hoped that so munificent a prize, with the distinguished honor attached to the winning of it, will induce several of our enterprising breeders to import Stallions of the description. The Suffolk Punch, Cleveland Bay, and other breeds of analogous character, might be advantageously introduced as horses of all work. —Leader

A person meeting an old man with silver hair, and a very black, bushy beard, asked him "how it happened that his beard was not so gray as the hair on his head?" "Because," said the old gentleman "it's twenty years younger."

A man upon the verge of bankruptcy having purchased an elegant coat on credit, and being told by his acquaintances that the cloth was very beautiful, though the coat was too short, replied with a sigh "It will be long enough before I get another."

"Fellow, said a harsh clerical magistrate to a trespasser, "I'll teach you the law." "Please your reverence," was the reply, "it would be much better for you to teach me the Gospel."

MEMORY is the clothes line of the heart, whereon the events of our life hang like dickies and handkerchiefs—those which are well pegged on remain but the other are carried off in the first high wind.

SAVING.—The origin of wealth is in a moral feeling—self-denial. "Here is something I will not consume or throw away —I will take care of it, store it up for the future use of myself or others." The man who first said and acted thus, laid the foundation of a virtue upon earth. The savings of each man are diffusive blessing to all, and therefore, so far, frugality is a thing which all may and ought to applaud.

Arrival of the Persia.

NEW YORK, March 6.

The Persia arrived at one P. M., with Liverpool dates to 21st Feb.

The Arago arrived at Southampton and the New York at Greenock, both on the morning of the 20th.

The News by the Persia has several features of interest.

D'Israeli in Parliament was to attempt on the night of Friday the 20th to overthrow the ministry by moving an amendment to the financial budget, Disraeli proposing that the Estimate should be adjusted over a period of the next 13 years so as to allow a total repeal of the Income Tax.

The Persian difficulty which a few days since appeared in a fair way of settlement has taken an unexpected unfavourable turn.

Feruk Khan, Persian Envoy, has suddenly ceased negotiations with the British Minister at Paris, and will not come to London.

The French Government has instructed its representatives at London, Vienna, St. Petersburg, and Berlin, to invite the Powers to accredit their Resident Minister at Paris, as plenipotentiaries to settle the Neufchatel affair.

The Conference will meet early in March, but it is feared it will be protracted and difficult of adjustment. There is nothing nearer towards a settlement of the Danubian principalities.

Nothing from Italy or Turkey.

The Russians have resumed the war in Circassia, and are reported to have received a large section of territory from Persia.

The London Advertiser asserts that the Government is in possession of a dispatch, announcing the total destruction of Canton by the British. John Arrowsmith publishes another letter re-affirming his statements of the Georgia Railroad and Revolver Story.

The Persia brings a large number of passengers, amongst them Lord Napier, the new British Minister to Washington, lady and family.

Lord Ellesmere died on the 16th in London.

A dreadful colliery explosion took place in Yorkshire, 150 persons were killed.

President Buchanan's Cabinet.

WASHINGTON, March 6th.

The following is Mr. Buchanan's Cabinet as confirmed by the Senate to-day:—Secretary of State, Louis Cass; Secretary of Treasury, Hon. Howell Cobb; Secretary of Navy, Hon. Isaac Toucey; Interior, Hon. Jacob Thompson; Attorney General, Judge Black of Pa.,; Postmaster General, Hon. A. B. Brown.

Captain Pettigrew, of the United States army, is dead.

WASHINGTON, March 6.

Mr. Buchanan's first public reception to-night was largely attended by all the classes of citizens and strangers. All the foreign legations were represented, and a great number of officers of the army and navy were present. The room presented a fine array of beauty. The Inauguration Ball resulted in the loss to the managers of $1000. The citizens of Kansas, temporarily in Washington, will call on Mr. Buchanan Wednesday next to congratulate him on his election, and give him the solemn assurance of their intention to abide by and see executed the laws of the U. S. and territory.

Mr. Sumner arrived in the city yesterday and became a guest of Jno. Jay. He sailed this morning in the "Fulton" for Havre.

A Washington correspondent of the Courier and Enquirer says seven of the Judges of the U. S. Supreme Court concur in the decision of the Dred Scott case just rendered. Judges McLean and Curtis will read dissenting opinions to-morrow.—Each Judge has a separate opinion.

Mr. Buchanan has expressed the wish that the Senate would act this session upon the British treaty. This will probably extend several weeks.

The New American Tariff.

Some very important changes, tending more or less in the direction of free trade, have just been made in the American Tariff. The bill was the last which President Pierce was called upon to sign; and it is more than probable he will never again be troubled with a similar duty. The duties, before the passing of this Act, ranged in the States from 100 per cent, down to 5,—the graduations being, 100, 40, 30, 25, 20, 15, 10, and 5. Several distinct duties under the former system, are made entirely free under the present bill. They are—wool worth less than twenty cents per pound, fruits, spices, drugs, chimicals, and dyestuffs.

We have heretofore pushed a considerable trade with the States in the description of wool here exempted from duty; and this bill will therefore of course benefit our wool growers. In fruits, the Niagara District has pushed a limited trade; and will perhaps benefit in a slight degree by the change.

A very singular admission is indirectly made by this tariff; namely, that very high duties on wines, brandies, and spirits, are productive of injury. No less than 70 per cent. has been taken off of brandy and spirits, making the present duty 30 per cent., it being formerly 100. It was simply argued that people would drink them; that by common practice, which amounted to common consent, they looked upon them as necessaries; and that the extremely high duty had only the effect of enabling the rich to get the good article, and forcing the poor to consume poison. In the face of the struggles of late years, in the States, for their entire prohibition, this is certainly a strange result. An almost universal agitation for a Prohibitory Liquor Law has literally ended in immensely increased facilities for getting cheap and good spirits. The circumstance is one of the age; and we are surprised to see it excite so little attention among our neighbours.

Speaking of the probable reduction of the revenue on account of this measure, a well informed New York cotemporary says; —"It is estimated that the tariff will reduce the revenue about twenty millions of dollars. This would answer the purpose, especially as all goods warehoused between this date and the end of the fiscal year are to benefit by the tariff. But estimates of this kind are very liable to be wide of the mark. It would not be at all surprising—considering the prosperity of the country, the systematic progress of agriculture in the West, the growth of our shipping and manufacturing interests, and our means of internal communication, and the strong prospect that the convulsion which the railroad schemes before us have rendered certain will not take place within a year or two—if our merchants so largely increased their orders for the fall that next year's receipts from duties were as heavy as those of 1856. Already we note at this port an increase of say sixty to seventy-five per cent; let this be maintained throughout the year, and by the time Congress meets we shall need another reduction of the tariff."—Colonist.

The Maple Leaf,

SANDWICH, MARCH 12, 1857.

We beg to refer our readers, and particularly those who are in positions in the Municipalities requiring their attention, to the roads of the country, to an article upon the subject, which will be found on the fourth page. And hope that many of the hints thereon will be taken and acted upon.

To the Editor of the Maple Leaf.

DEAR SIR,

As the season is approaching when labor necessay for making passable the roads in this section of the country will necessarily be expended, permit me to call your attention to the accompanying chapter from Professor Gillespie's Work on Roads, &c., hoping that his remarks, though not on the whole applicable to this country, may afford some ideas to those who have the superintendence of the roads, which may tend to remove the opprobrium, now almost proverbial, which attaches to the roads of this Western Peninsula.

Gillespie speaks with disapproval of the method of extending labor, &c., in the State of New York, neither do I approve of it—but still less do I approve of no method at all. Depend upon it, Mr Editor, that the atrocious state of the roads in Kent and Essex, at certain seasons of the year, lies in the absence of some certain and uniform method of applying the means at the command of those in charge of them. As long as such Pathmaster has an independent beat, working according to his own discretion, but without reference to any or ganlze l system, and exempt from any efficient control, so long will your roads be—what they are.

There is not in the Province a tract of country in which a general system of Road making is so perfectly applicable as in those counties. No engineering difficulties arise —no scientific operations require to be performed—the yeomen of ordinary intelligence is fully equal to the perfect superintendence of the works to be executed. All that is required is system, and that system carried out under judicious and efficient control.

These few remarks, Mr Editor, are offered with a view to bring this very important subject before the public, and to elicit the opinions of those who are competent to offer useful suggestions relating to it. If you should see fit to publish this communication with the extract alluded to, I shall hereafter, try to submit some suggestions of a character less vague than the present.

I fear that I have been guilty of tautology in the use of the words "Method"—"System." No matter; let me sin once more.—Method, Method,—System System, must be the watch-words of those who desire to see the internal communications of these Counties subserve the purposes for which they were designed.

I am, Mr Editor,
Yours truly,
B.

Sandwich, 9th March, 1857.

The March number of the Canadian Agriculturist is again before us. This monthly, which is always so acceptable, contains, as usual, a large amount of interesting matter to the farmer.

We have to tender our thanks to the Hon. John Prince, for a supply of Parliamentary papers up to the latest date.

From the large quantity of space occupied by Parliamentary Debates that we have been obliged to insert in this week's paper, all original matter has of necessity been crowded out.

Provincial Parliament.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

WEDNESDAY, March 4th, 1857.

The House met at three o'clock p. m.

Eighteen petitions were presented, and among them—

Hon. Col. PRINCE brought up one from the inhabitants of the counties of Essex and Kent, praying for the construction of a canal from the waters of lake Huron to the harbour of Rondeau; and upon this very important subject he (Col. Prince) was desirous of offering a few observations. It was a well known fact that the Rondeau harbour, in the county of Kent, is one of the finest harbours on the continent, if properly taken care of, and its natural advantages had been improved some years ago, and a light-house had been constructed. Subsequently, however, the natural advantages of this harbour had been lost sight of by the government preceding the present one. The light-house was unfortunately burnt down, since which no other had been erected; and the very circumstance of such light-house being laid down in the charts had proved a snare to mariners, as they naturally looked out for such light after it had been once published; and it could not be too strongly urged upon the government how very important it was to the shipping and other interests that such light-house should be at once restored.

Also, petition from the same, praying for the abolition of all Sectarian Schools.

Also, petition from the same, praying that the townships of Zoan and Oxford be not taken for the purpose of erection into a new county.

Also, a petition from the same, setting forth a deep grievance suffered by the interference of the officers of the Crown Lands Department in timber cut from private lands, it being required that before shipping at Quebec, a government clearance should be obtained. Col. Prince pointed out the absurdity of this course at the same time, no such clearance was required for timber so cut from private property and exported to the United States.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

FRIDAY, 6th March, 1857.

The Speaker took the chair at three o'clock.

Hon. Mr. CAMERON presented a petition from a large number of gentlemen who had been educated at Upper Canada College, praying for an alteration in the constitution of the College, by placing it under the control of a Council of its own.

Hon. Mr. CAMERON also presented petitions from the Toronto Board of Trade, for a modification of the Usury Laws, and in reference to the navigation of the Lakes.

SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

Attorney General MACDONALD gave notice that on Tuesday, he would move the following resolution:—

1. Resolved—That the interests of Canada require that the Seat of the Provincial Government should be fixed at some certain place.

2. That a sum not exceeding the sum of £2250,000 be appropriated for the purpose of providing for the necessary buildings and accommodations for the Government and the Legislature at that certain place.

3. That an humble Address be presented to her Majesty, praying that she may be graciously pleased to exercise the Royal Prerogative by the selection of some and fixing as the permanent Seat of Government in Canada.

LUNATIC ASYLUM.

Hon. Mr. TERRILL presented a report of the recent investigation into charges brought against the management of the Provincial Lunatic Asylum.

On motion of Mr. BOWES, the same was ordered to be printed.

DECIMAL CURRENCY.

Hon. Mr. CAYLEY asked leave to introduce a Bill requiring accounts rendered to the Provincial Government to be so rendered in dollars and cents.

The Bill was read a first time, and ordered to be read a second time on Tuesday next.

THE BANKING SYSTEM.

Hon. Mr. CAYLEY asked leave to introduce a Bill to discontinue the incorporation of Joint Stock Banks and the issue of registered Bank notes under the Free Banking Acts. He stated that the great mass of monied men was in favour of the chartered system, and against the free Banks.—Hence the present Bill.

Hon. Mr. MERRITT said he had introduced into Canada the free banking system, while a member of the Government, and a better system never existed. In New York State it had wrought admirably, and the securities of the State were of much greater value than ours. In Canada it had been a failure, but the cause of this was that it had not been wrought honestly, and he much questioned the policy of abolishing it.

Mr. MACKENZIE made some remarks on the credit of Canada in the money market as compared with that of New York. Our stocks were only at par, while those of New York State were at 20 per cent. premium. The difference, he considered, was little to the credit of the men who were now administering the Government of Canada.

Hon. Mr. CAYLEY denied that our provincial securities or bank stock were so much inferior to those of New York State, as had been stated by the hon. member for Lincoln.

The Bill was then read a first time and ordered to a second reading on Tuesday.

LUNATIC ASYLUM FUND, &c.

On motion of Hon. Mr. CAYLEY, it was resolved that on Tuesday next the house go into committee of the whole on the following resolutions:—

1st. That it is expedient that the yearly rate of tax imposed in and by the second section of the Act passed in the session held in the thirteenth and fourteenth years of her Majesty's reign, and intituled, "An Act to provide funds for defraying the cost of the erection of the Lunatic Asylum, and other public buildings in Upper Canada," shall not be levied for any year after the present.

2nd. That it is expedient that all moneys which, by any Act or law, are directed to be applied or reserved for the Upper Canadian purposes, but not otherwise specially appropriated by law, shall be paid into and form part of the Upper Canada building fund, established under the authority of the third section of the said Act.

3rd. That it is expedient that all moneys forming part of said Upper Canada building fund, may be invested by Receiver Generals under instructions from the Governor in council, in public provincial securities, until required for the public service, and the interest on such securities shall form part of the said fund; and that such portion or so many of them as may be necessary, may be disposed of by the Receiver General from time to time, under instructions from the Governor in Council, and the proceeds thereof applied to meet any payments lawfully to be made out of said fund.

WEEKLY LINE OF STEAMERS.

Hon. Mr. CAYLEY moved, that on Tuesday next the House resolve itself into committee of the whole, to consider the following resolutions:—

1st. That it is expedient, in order to render more complete the Postal arrangements between the United Kingdom and Canada, to aid in the establishment of regular weekly steam communication between the River St. Lawrence and Liverpool in the summer, and Portland and Liverpool during the winter months.

2nd. That it is expedient to authorise the Governor General to advance an annual sum not exceeding pounds, and for a period not exceeding years, to secure such Postal service.

Mr. BROWN enquired with what sum it was proposed to fill up the blank, and for how many years it was proposed to make the contract.

Hon. Mr. CAYLEY said the blank was to be filled up with £50,000, inclusive of the subsidy now paid, or £16,000 sterling additional. The other blank, it was proposed to fill up with five or six years.

Mr. BROWN—Are these resolutions intended to carry out some particular arrangement? I think we should have all the documents before us, when we go into committee of the whole.

Hon. Mr. CAYLEY said that since last session, the Government had been in communication with several parties, and on those communications they had formed their estimates.

Mr. BROWN—Will the Government have any objections to lay those documents before us?

Hon. Mr. CAYLEY—It may not be convenient to publish those papers, in the event of the Government desiring to invite tenders.

In reply to Mr. WILSON.

Mr. CAYLEY said it was certainly not the intention of the Government to place on the route an inferior class of steamers to those now employed. These, however, during the past season, had done exceedingly well.

Hon. Mr. MERRITT said he regretted that the subject was not to go before a special committee, and urged that the attention of the government should be devoted to reducing the ocean freight, so that the St. Lawrence might compete favourably with the New York route.

Mr. GAMBLE also urged the importance of the ocean freights being reduced to a lower rate.

In reply to Mr. HOLTON,

Mr. CAYLEY said that his object in bringing the resolutions forward at this early period of the session was, to allow arrangements to be made that could come into play during the present season.

The motion was then agreed to.

PERSONAL EXPLANATIONS.

Mr. RANKIN asked the indulgence of the house while he referred to a matter personal to himself and another member of this house. On more than one occasion last session he had thought proper to apply to the Attorney General West language of a highly offensive character. He had arrived at the conclusion that in using that language he had done the Attorney General gross injustice, and he availed himself of this public opportunity of withdrawing it. In taking this course he was not influenced by any political motive. In a political point of view he occupied the same position as he had always done, that of an independent member.

Attorney Gen. MACDONALD thanked the hon. member for the true courage and gentlemanly feeling he had displayed in making the same statement now, as he had made after the close of last session, in the presence of his (the Attorney General's) colleagues, and other friends.

Monday, 9th March,

The Speaker took the chair at three o'clock.

MINISTERIAL RESIGNATIONS.

Mr. MARCHILDON moved "That no Minister or Ministry shall be bound to resign their places unless upon a direct vote of want of confidence."

Mr. PAPIN said the motion was quite unnecessary. It was very evident that the present Ministry, at least, would not resign unless on such a vote. (Laughter.)

Mr. RANKIN said the motion should have been that the Ministry should be obliged to resign on a vote of want of confidence.

After a few remarks by Mr. BOWES and Mr. MACKENZIE, Mr. BROWN's motion was negatived by 60 to 25.

The Bill then passed.

THE WISCONSIN DEMOCRAT ON EMIGRATION TO COSTA RICA.—The Wisconsin Democrat, a German Journal in Manitowoc, has commenced a crusade against emigration from the United States to Costa Rica.

Wisconsin is one of the best Western States of this Union for emigrants; and Germans consider their chances of success in that state better than in that of almost any other. It is confirmed by the fact that news to find an organ of the Germans, even in this part of the Union, recommending its countrymen to emigrate to Costa Rica.

Our English and American cotemporaries may see from this that they have probably greater advantages over the foreign emigrants to this supposed Paradise of laborers.

EARTHQUAKE IN CANADA WEST.—The Paris C. W. STAR of Wednesday says: "On Friday evening, about half past nine o'clock, a slight shock of an earthquake was distinctly felt by several persons in this neighborhood. Persons in bed and persons walking on the street noticed it, and probably this may remind others of the phenomenon who did not understand the cause of the sensation they experienced."

ST. ANDREWS AND QUEBEC RAILWAY.—The Provincialist of Tuesday the 3rd instant, gives a gratifying account of the progress being made by this Comp ny. On the upper part of the line, a large number of men and horses are employed, and it is estimated that more than 300 men are now at work on the line, with ample work before them until the Spring, when the works will be continued with a vigor hitherto unknown in that section of the Province.—Of the men now employed, it is said that 130 are from the Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia. At the opening of the season it is expected that 2,000 men will be at work on the line. Mr. Marsh, who constructed the Lewey's Island Railroad, has taken a contract for grading a portion of the St. Andrew's Line, and from the skill and ability he has heretofore manifested, we anticipate that next summer this railroad will advance far towards a successful completion to Woodstock. Another contract, the Provincialist understands, has been taken for extending the Railroad from Indian Lorette in front of the Town of St. Andrews, to provide wharf accommodation.

A fatal collision took place in Washington on 27th ult. During the pressure at the President's Levee that evening, Col. Lee, a clerk in the Pension Office, seized a gentleman by the collar, and charged him with picking his pocket. The gentleman charged was Mr. David Hume of Alexandria, a highly respectable merchant. The following morning Mr. Hume, accompanied by Col. James C. Walker, reading clerk in the House of Representatives, proceeded to the Pension Office to explain and satisfy Colonel Lee, that he was mistaken in supposing him her any Bill would be introduced during the present session on the subject of the Rectories, and, if so, what would be its provisions.

Attorney General MACDONALD replied that the government had now under consideration the decision of the courts, and would be prepared with an answer shortly.

Mr. BROWN inquired with what sum it was proposed to fill up the blank, and for how many years it was proposed to make the contract.

Hon. Mr. CAYLEY said the blank was to be filled up with £50,000, inclusive of the subsidy now paid, or £16,000 sterling additional. The other blank, it was proposed to fill up with five or six years.

Capt. Sherard Osborne has forwarded to the editor of the Times the following extract of a letter date Red River Settlement, Hudson Bay Territory, Dec. 6:

I received a letter from Roderick by the last mail, and he expresses a wish that I should write to you by the first opportunity, and state more particularly about the reports we heard last summer about some traces of whites being seen in the North. I have just returned from——, who was at Norway House last July, and saw the man who brought down an express to Sir George Simpson from Mr. Anderson, in Mackenzie's River (district), stating that Indians had brought over reports to one of the trading posts in that quarter that Indians had seen two or more encampments of whites on an island on some point where Anderson and Stewart turned back, (in 1855,) and that one of the encampments particularly was quite fresh, supposed to have been abandoned a day or two before the Indians saw it, and from the traces thought there might have been about ten or twelve men. I could not hear of the exact locality farther than that Anderson and Stewart were within a very short distance of the place where the traces were seen. I hope you have heard more particularly about the report.

INDIAN KILLED.—On last Wednesday night, at Stoney Point, an Indian was killed by being run over by the cars on the Great Western Railway. The body was much torn and mangled, and one of the legs was severed from the body. Mr. P Desjardin, a magistrate residing near the spot where the sad catastrophe occurred refused to send for the Coroner, and held the Inquest on the body of the deceased himself and without swearing the jury.—We should judge that this is rather a strange course of procedure.—Planet.

Advices from Liberia, to the 12th of January, state that the natives had attacked the colonists at Cape Palmas, and destroyed a large amount of property, including two extensive villages situated at the verge of the Cape. The cause of the difficulty is not stated. One of the colonists and several of the natives were killed. It is also reported that the Protestant Episcopal Mission school houses, with the station at Mount Vaugh, had been torn down. They were in charge of Bishop Payne. This is the first tumult the Cape Palmas colony has had with the natives from its foundation, in the year 1834. The treaty of commerce and navigation, recently concluded between the Liberian republic and France, had been published in full.—Colonist.

SIR ASTLEY COOPER'S PILLS.

The astonishing efficacy of this sterling medicine in all affections of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and bowels, and for purifying the blood, has gained them the highest recommendation from the most distinguished Physicians and Surgeons in European and American. Two or three of these Pills a short time after taking them, will remove the uneasiness in the head, stomach or bowels, indigestion produced by a torpid state of the liver and inactivity of the bowels; causing a disorganization of the whole frame, will by a little perseverance with this excellent medicine be effectually removed. Forgetful inconvenience they are most excellent, not like those purgative medicines, leaving the bowels confined, nor stimulating, so as to produce or agravate the Piles. The evil effects arising from excess of the table will be prevented if recourse be had to them. They quickly restore the system to its natural state of repose. They are particularly efficacious for stomach complaints, coughs, colds, agues, shortness of breath, and all obstructions of the urinary passages, strengthen the stomach, invigorate the nerves, create appetite, promote digestion, and a healthy action of the Liver.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.—It frequently occurs that Druggists impose on their customers, a spurious compound called Sir Astley Cooper's Pills, generally put up in pink wrappers and labelled prepared or as prepared at Apothecaries Hall London, when the fact is they are prepared by themselves. Beware of such trash, as you would of poison—the Genuine Pills have a Fac Simile of Sir Astley Cooper on the top of each box; also the fac-simile of the Proprietors, McPhail & Co London and New York.

Sold at 25 and 50 cents per box, and in family boxes at $1 each. There is a great saving by purchasing the larger sizes.

For sale by Simpson and Dingwall, Druggists, Toronto, John M. Thornton, Dundas; Andrew Oliver Galt; A. H. Cook, Brantford, General Agents, by whom Country Druggists and Merchants will be supplied at London and New York prices.

PROSPECTUS

OF THE

AMHERSTBURG, ANDERDON AND MALDEN

BUILDING SOCIETY,

Established February 17th, 1857, in conformity with the act of the Provincial Legislature.

PURSUANT to Notice a meeting was convened to day at 10 o'clock, A. M., for the purpose of organising the AMHERSTBURG, ANDERDON & MALDEN, Building Society, when the following Gentlemen were duly elected, Directors and other Officers for the current year, viz.

MAJOR DONALDSON, President.
HENRY WRIGHT Esq. Vice President.

DIRECTORS.

J. DUNBAR, H. CUNNINGHAM,
J. GOTT, C. TAYLOR, W. MITCHELL, J. DALL,
J. HAMILTON, J. S. TATTERSON, and
T. KING, Esquires.

A. BORDOWMAN, Secretary Treasurer,

After which the constitution and Rules of the Society were read and adopted, and ordered to be printed for the use of the Members.

The Secretary was also requested to forward a copy of the proceedings of the meeting to the Editors of the Essex Leaf and Windsor Herald, for publication.

The object of the above Society is to assist persons of limited means to acquire Freehold property, and to enable all persons of small periodical incomes to accumulate Wealth. The Society appears to be eminently and efficiently adapted to effect its purposes. It combines to a certain extent the advantages both of the permanent and terminating Societies, and as all are nominal and profitable course of wealth may be considered as superior to either.

The Society consists of shares of £50, each, payable by monthly subscriptions of five shillings per share.

To persons desiring to buy out their shares, the money is advanced on mortgage security and the sale of monthly payments to such persons, according to the following scale, which increases the rate as the period diminishes.

Monthly Payment	Yearly Payment	In 9 Years
1st year, $2 50	$30 00	$270 00
2nd " 2 62	31 44	282 96
3rd " 2 75	33 00	297 00
4th " 2 85	35 40	318 60
5th " 3 25	39 00	351 00
6th " 3 75	45 00	405 00
7th " 4 55	54 60	491 40
8th " 6 00	72 00	648 00
9th " 10 00	120 00	1080 00

It is calculated that this Society will terminate in nine years, and from the above statement it will be seen that the highest aggregate amount paid by any member will, not be $270, or $30 above the money which he receives out of the Society, and consequently two dollars less than $32 every month; while those who do not buy out their shares will have paid at the end of that period $108, for which they will receive $300, about $15 93 per cent per annum simple interest.

According to the prospectus of the TORONTO PERMANENT BUILDING SOCIETY, if a member pays £64 in advance, at the end of six years he gets £100, which at that rate requires about 10½ years to double any money; while if members pay in advance, (for which they are allowed 6 per cent,) into this one, the share gains centum per centum in less than 4½ years. It should, however, add, that from the Toronto one members get a dividend of the surplus fund, but it must be very large to make it equally lucrative with this one.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, theliver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Aarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endorsements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review" and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

The Management of Town Roads.

"The money levied is more than double of what is necessary for executing in the completest matter the work, which is often executed in a very slovenly manner, and sometimes not executed at all."

ADAM SMITH.

A wise and well-regulated system of managing the repairs of roads, and of obtaining the greatest degree of improvement with the least amount of labor, is as important as their judicious construction. The "Road tax" system, of personal service and commutation, though nearly universal among us, is unsound in its principle, unjust in its operation, wasteful in its practice, and unsatisfactory in its results. Borrowed from the "statute labor" of England, and the "Corvee" or "Prestation en nature" of France, like them it is a remnant of the times of feudal vassalage, when one of the tenures by which land was held was the obligation to make the roads passable for the troops of the lord of the manor. The evil consequences of the system will be examined, when we have briefly explained its organization in the state of New York, where it has been rendered as perfect as its nature permits.

The directing power is vested in "Commissioners of Highways," who are chosen in each town at the annual town meeting, and have "the care and superintendence of the highways and bridges therein." Subordinate to them are "Overseers," of whom are chosen, at the annual town-meeting, as many as there are road districts in the town. The commissioners have the authority to direct the overseers as to the grade of the road, how it should be shaped and drained, and the like. They may also lay out new roads. The principal duties of the overseers are to summon the persons subject to perform labor on the roads, to see that they actually work, and to collect fines and commutation money. The commissioners are to estimate the cost of improvements necessary on the roads and bridges of the town, and the board of supervisors are to cause the amount to be levied, but within the limit, for any one year, of two hundred and fifty dollars. But, if a legal town meeting so vote, the supervisors may levy "a sum of money, in addition to the sum now allowed by law, not exceeding five hundred dollars in any one year."

"Every person owning or occupying land in the town in which he or she resides, and every male inhabitant above the age of twenty one years, residing in the town where the assessment is made, shall be assessed to work on the public highways in such town." The lands of non residents are also to be assessed. The whole number of days' work to be assessed shall be at least three times the number of taxable inhabitants in such town; and may be as many as the commissioners shall think proper.

Persons assessed to work on the highways, upon receiving twenty four hours' notice from the overseers, must appear either in person, or by able bodied substitutes; or pay a sum of one dollar for each day's neglect, unless they shall have previously commuted at the rate of sixty-two and a half cents per day. A team, cart, waggon, or plough, with a pair of horses or oxen, and a man to manage them, satisfies an assessment of three days.

Such are the principal features of the present system. They are all defective in a greater or less degree.

In the first place, the condition of the roads, which is so important an element of the wealth and comfort of the whole community, should not be allowed to remain at the mercy of the indolence, or false economy, of the various small townships through which the roads pass. In one town, its public spirit, wealth, and pride, may induce it to make a good road; in the adjoining town, a short-sighted policy, looking only to private interest in its narrowest sense, may have led the inhabitants to work upon the roads barely enough to put them into such a condition as will allow a waggon to be slowly drawn over them.

In the next place, the "commissioners" who have the primitive direction of the improvements and repairs, should be liberally compensated for the time and attention which they give to the work. Gratuitous services are seldom efficient; at best they are temporary and local, and dependent on the whims, continued residence, and life of the party; and if the compensation be insufficient, the same evils exist though in a less degree. Skill, labor, and time cannot be obtained and secured without being adequately paid for.

The third defect in the system is the annual election of the commissioners and overseers. When men of suitable ability, knowledge, and experience have been once obtained, they should be permanently continued in office. On the present system of annual rotation, as soon as the overseer has learned something in his year's apprenticeship, his experience is lost, and another takes his place, and begins in his turn to take lessons in repairing roads at the expense of their condition. In other occupations, an apprenticeship of some years is thought necessary before a person is considered as qualified to practice with his own capital; while a road overseer, the moment that he is chosen, is thought fit to direct a work requiring much science, at the expense of the town's capital of time, labor, and money.

In the fourth place, the fundamental principle of the Road tax is a false one. Its contemporary custom of requiring rents to be paid in kind, has long since been found to be less easy and equitable than money rents. Just so is work paid for by the piece preferable in every respect to compulsory labor by the day. Men are now taken from their peculiar occupations in which they are skilful, and transferred to one of which they know nothing. A good ploughman does not think himself necessarily competent to forge the coulter of his plough, or to put together its woodwork. He knows that it is truer economy for him to pay a mechanic for his services. But the laws assume him to be a skilful road-maker—a more difficult art than plough making—and compel him to act as one; though his clumsiness in repairing his plough would injure only himself, while his road blunders are injurious to the whole community. Skill in any art is only to be acquired by practical and successful experience, aided by the instructions of those who already possess it. An artisan cannot be extemporized.

Fifthly, labor by the day is always less profitable than that done by the piece, in which each man's skill and industry receive proportionate rewards. Working on the roads is generally made a half holiday by those who assemble at the summons of the overseer. Few of the men or horses do half a day's work, the remainder of their time being lost in idleness, and perhaps half of even the actual working time being wasted by its misdirection.

Lastly, it follows from the preceding, that the commutation system operates very unfairly and severely upon those who commute; for they pay the price of a full day's work, and their tax is therefore doubled.

Such are the principal defects of the present system of managing the labor expended on town roads. But it is much easier to discover and to expose, than to remove them. In the following plan the writer has endeavored to combine the most valuable features of the various European systems, and to adapt them to our peculiar institutions.

In each State, a general legislative act should establish all the details of construction, and determine definitely "What a road ought to be," in accordance with the theory and practice of the best engineers. Surveys should be made of all the leading roads, and plans and profiles of them prepared, so that it might be at once seen in what way their lines could be most efficiently and cheaply improved.

The personal labor and commutation system should be entirely abolished. If the town-meeting would vote a tax in money of half the amount now levied in days' work, its expenditure under the supervision to be presently described, would produce a result superior to the present one. When the road is a great thoroughfare, extending far beyond the town, it would be unjust to levy upon it all the expense; and a county tax, or, in extreme case, a state appropriation, should supply what might be necessary.

In regulating the expenditure of the money raised, the fundamental principle, dictated by the truest and most far-sighted economy, should be to sacrifice a portion of the resources of the road to ensure the good employment of the remainder. The justice of this principle needs no argument; its best mode of application is the only difficulty. The first step should be to place the repairs of the roads under the charge of a professional Road maker of science and experience. On his skill will depend the condition of the roads, more than on local circumstances or expenditure. His qualifications should be treated by a competent board of examiners, if he should not have received special instructions in the requisite knowledge, such as might well form a peculiar department of education in our Colleges and Normal schools. As each town by itself could not afford to employ a competent person, a number of them (more or less according to their wealth and the importance of the roads within their bounds) should unite in an association for that purpose

The engineer thus appointed should choose, in each township, an active, industrious man, of ordinary education, to act as his deputy in making the expenditures in that town, and as foreman of the laborers employed during the season of active labor on the roads. This deputy might be busily and profitably employed during the entire remainder of the year, in constantly passing over in due rotation the whole line of road under his care, and making, himself, the slight repairs which the continual wear and tear of the traffic would render necessary. If taken in time, he himself could perform them; but if left unattended to, as is usual, till the season of general repairs, the deterioration would increase in a geometrical ratio, and perhaps cause an accident to a traveller, which would subject the town to damages tenfold the cost of repairs.

The laborers hired by the deputy in each town should be employed by piece-work as far as is possible. This can be carried out to a great extent, when the superintendent is competent to measure accurately the various descriptions of work, and to estimate their comparative difficulty. When the work cannot be properly executed by portions allotted to one man, it may be taken by gangs of four or five, who should form their own associations, make a common bargain, and divide the pay. In work not susceptible of definite calculation as to quantity or quality, and in such only, day-labor may be resorted to under a continual and vigilant superintendence.

In such a system as has been here sketched, the moneytax would be found to be not only more equitable than the personal-labor system, but even less burdensome. None of it would be wasted; and those who had skill and strength for road-work would receive back, in wages, more than their share of it; those who were skilful in other work might remain at that which was most profitable to them, and pay only their simple share of the road-tax, not double, as when they now commute; and the only losers by the change would be the indolent, who were useless under the old system, but under this, would be obliged to contribute their share; while great gain in every way would ensue to the community at large. The subject urgently demands legislative attention.

Prosperity shines on different persons much in the same way that the sun shines on different objects. Some it hardens like mud, whilst others it softens like wax.

If a seaman should put about every time he encounters a head wind, he would never make a voyage. So he who permits himself to be baffled by adverse circumstance will never make headway in the voyage of life.

Life is a romance which most young ladies would like to begin by reading the third volume first—as it is the one which generally contains the marriage.

There is a spiritual pulsation as well as a natural one, and a wise man therefore will often feel the pulse of his spirit to discover the state of his health.

Receive your thoughts as guests, and treat your desires like children.

Slander is a gift exclusively human. So little of mere animality is there in it, that it is practised only in fullest perfection by men.

Never play for money—cheating is a lesson soon learned.

Lost wealth may be restored by industry —the wreck of health regained by temperance—forgotten knowledge—restored by study —alienated friendship soothed into forgetfulness—even forfeited reputation won by patience and virtue.

TUITION FEE IN ADVANCE.

For entire Mercantile Course, time unlimited	$40
Same Course for Ladies	25
Twenty Lessons in Practical Penmanship, simply	5

For full Course in Flourishing, etc., as per agreement.

THE COLLEGIATE COURSE,

which is designed to embrace all branches PURELY MERCANTILE, has been recently enlarged, and can now be regarded as one of the most lengthy, thorough and complete ever introduced to the public in any similar Institution in the UNITED STATES.

THE BOOK-KEEPING DEPARTMENT

embraces three distinct grades, viz: Initiatory, Regular and Extended Courses, and taught on Folsom's NEW METHOD, recommended by over twenty of the most reliable PRACTICAL ACCOUNTANTS of Cleveland.

THE METHOD OF TEACHING.

strikes at the very germinating points of the Science, revealing the great natural twofold division of the Ledger, whereby is seen the proper line of demarcation between Real and Representative Property and the governing law of transfer, as regards it affecting the two classes of accounts, and those of the same class in every variety of transactions, thus stripping this most useful and beautiful science of much of its time honored mysteries, made such such by arbitrary and infallible rules, meaningless forms and false notions; and hence enables the student to acquire correct notions of accounts as embodied in actual practice.

THE INITIATORY COURSE.

embraces a regularly progressive series of manuscript cards, classified somewhat as to the variety of transactions. It aims to develop the first principles and philosophy of Accounts, rather than more routine and actual formula, by addressing the reason and judgment of the student, who studies with the view of apprehending and arriving at results and so pushes on his investigations with much greater confidence, pleasure and independence.

THE REGULAR COURSE

is intended to represent every species of business, from the smallest Retail to the heaviest and most intricate of Wholesale and Commission, as well as Banking, Railroading, etc., demanded, at present, by our vast and constantly increasing Commerce.

THE EXTENDED COURSE

embraces lengthy practical sets from various business firms, and is designed for such students as may wish to spend longer than the time required by the Regular Course, (and that gratuitously) preparatory to entering some special House.

By taking in addition the Extended Course the student will be faithfully and profitably employed six months.

PENMANSHIP, PRACTICAL AND ORNAMENTAL, in all its varieties, will be taught in the most thorough and efficient manner by one of the best teachers in the West.—Besides the usual method of teaching Business Writing, the Chirhythmographic System will also be taught. This system, so popular, and recommended by our best educational men, is now taught in the Public Schools of Cleveland, Columbus and Toledo. Many other places are open for good teachers of Chirhythmography as soon as they can be qualified.

DAILY LECTURES on Practical and Theoretical Book-keeping, Mercantile Laws, Commercial Ethics, Political Economy, Art of Computation, Comercial Calculations, Mercantile Customs, Banking, Exchange, Commerce, Railroading, Commercial History, Business Correspondence, Penmanship, etc.

The new suit of rooms of this College, occupies the finest location in the city, situated as they are on the corner of Public Square and Superior street, affording a fair view of most parts of the city and the lake. The rooms are neatly and tastefully furnished, surpassing in beauty and convenience perhaps those of any similar Institution in the Union.

THE LADIES' COURSE is the same as that of the Gentlemen, affording equal facilities to all ladies who may wish to avail themselves of the Commercial Course.

The Principal having an extensive business acquaintance is enabled to secure good situations for may of his graduates.

THE CANADIAN AGRICULTURIST.

IMPORTANT TO YOUNG MEN!

"Agriculturist" Cash Prices for 1857!

ONE PRIZE OF $50
ONE PRIZE OF $40
ONE PRIZE OF $30
ONE PRIZE OF $20
ONE PRIZE OF $15
ONE PRIZE OF $10

ONE PRIZE, CASH $4 AND "FARMER'S GUIDE." PRICE $6!! ONE PRIZE OF "FARMER'S GUIDE," PRICE $6!

THE above Prizes are offered for competition to Young Men who will, during the winter, canvass for Subscribers to the Canadian Agriculturist. To the person who obtains the largest number of Subscribers previous to the 1st day of May next, the first Prize of Fifty Dollars, in cash, will be paid; to the person who obtains the next largest number before that day, the second Prize of Forty Dollars, to the third largest number, the third Prize; and so on to the lowest prize offered.

To encourage every young man who has a few weeks to spare, to engage in the laudable work of circulating a journal of such established merit as the Agriculturist (and which is now offered at the low price of half-a-dollar a copy) we undertake to give each person who tries for, but fails to secure any of the above Prizes, a copy of that admirable work, Stephen's Farmer's Guide—last American edition—for every thirty subscriptions forwarded to the Agriculturist. The selling price of the Guide—which is an agricultural library in itself—is $6; thus every person who canvasses for the Agriculturist, whether he obtain a Prize or not, will be well paid for his time. Several persons, last year, obtained from fifteen to twenty subscribers in a day.

Conditions are, that the money—half-a-dollar for each subscriber—be sent with the names; that subscriptions from Agricultural Societies are not to be included; and the subscriptions sent must, in each case, at least equal the amount of the prize claimed. It could hardly be expected that we should give to competitors more than they obtained from subscribers.

Specimen copies will be sent to any person who wishes to commence a canvass, upon his written (post-paid) application.

Those who commence at once will have the best chance. Who takes the field? You cannot fail to win, for you are insured against loss!

To such friends as are willing to spend a few hours in aid of the Agriculturist, we offer for every six subscriptions sent, an additional copy gratis.

The Agriculturist is now so well known throughout Canada, as to need no lengthened eulogy. Eight annual volumes have already been issued, The volume for 1857 will be superior, in some respects, to any of its predecessors.

The Agriculturist, by its cheapness, and by the practical aim and Canadian spirit of its articles, has distanced all competitors. It stands alone as the representative of the agricultural press in this country. Agriculturist records all the most useful and interesting improvements in agricultural practice in the Old World as well as the New; description are frequently illustrated with engravings, of improved implements, new machines, improved cattle, horses, sheep, swine, &c.; it contains information in the several branches of agriculture, horticulture, domestic economy, and general science; practical communications from practical farmers; the proceedings of the Board of Agriculture; the prize list, &c. of the Provincial Show; and such matters generally as will interest Canadian farmers who desire to improve "the soil, and the mind."

It is published monthly, at Half-a-dollar per volume, in advance.

☞ All subscriptions must commence with January, and all communications must be post-paid.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rod of tillable earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded: together with its really superior execution, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

"The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of pearl surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with July, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial department: H. P. KNIGHT, JAMES SNOWDEN and D. W. RAY.

TERMS: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

THE NEW ILLUSTRATED

Hydropathic Encyclopedia,

A COMPLETE SYSTEM OF

HYDROPATHY & HYGIENE,

IN ONE LARGE VOLUME.

EMBRACING Outlines of Anatomy, Illustrated; Physiology of the Human Body; Hygienic Agencies and the Preservation of Health; Dieties and Hydropathic Cookery; Theory and Practice of Water Treatment; Special Pathology and Hydro-Therapeutics, including the Nature, Causes, Symptoms and Treatment of all known diseases; Application to Surgical Diseases; Application of Hydropathy to Midwifery and the Nursery; with three hundred engravings and nearly One Thousand Pages, including a Glossary, Table of Contents, and a complete Index. By R. T. TRALL, M. D.

Published by FOWLER and WELLS, New York.

In the plan of the work, the wants and necessities of the People have been steadily in view. While almost every topic of interest in the departments of Anatomy, Physiology, Pathology, Hygiene, Therapeutics is breifly presented, those of practical utility are always put prominently forward. The prevailing errors, conceits, and whims of the day and age are exposed and refuted; the theories and hypothesis upon which the popular drug practice is predicated are controverted, and the why and wherefore of their fallacy clearly demonstrated. The following is a brief analysis of its contents:

History of Medicine; History of Bathing; History of Medicated Baths.

Anatomy illustrated by One Hundred and Twenty appropriate engravings.

Physiology, illustrated, comprising the Rationale of Muscular Action; the Nervous Influence; Philosophy of Mind? Mesmeric Phenomena; the Special Senses; Functions of Digestion, Circulation, Respiration, Absorption, Nutrition, Secretion, Excretion, Calorification, Temperaments, the Races of Men, and Theory of Population.

Hygiene embracing all the relations of Air, Light, Drink, Food, Temperature, Exercise, Sleep, Clothing, Bathing, and the Passions, to the growth and developement of Body and Mind, the Preservation of Health and the attainment of Longevity

Dietetics, comprising the Bible, Anatomical, Physiological, Chemical and Experimental Evidence concerning the natural Dietetic Character of Man.

Hydropathic Cookery, with Special Directions for the Preparation of Food

Dietaries, containing the Therapeutic Distinctions of Diet for Invalids.

Philosophy of Water-Cure, with illustrated explanations of all the water-cure appliances, a Philosophical Exposition of the modus operandi of water-treatment, and the true rationale of drug-treatment.

The Nature Symptoms and Treatment of all known Diseases are examined, the ill success of drug practice exposed, and the proper Medication recommended and specified.

The Treatment of surgical Diseases Illustrated and the directions for the minor operations given.

The Management of Lying-in-Women, and the treatment of Children, &c.

The work is intended to be plain, intelligible and sufficient guide for domestic practice, or home treatment, in all ordinary diseases, embracing the whole range of subjects connected with the philosophy of life, the preservation of health, and the treatment of diseases.

This great work may be had in one large volume, bound in library style. Price prepaid by mail to any Post Office in United States or Canada, only THREE DOLLARS

All letters and orders should be directed as follows:—

Select Poetry.

Let Me In.

When the summer evening's shadows
Veiled the earth's sunlit bosom o'er,
Came a young child, faint and weary-
Tapping at the cottage door;
"Wandering through the winding foot paths,
My worn feet too long have been,
Let me in, oh! gentle mother,
Let me in."

Years have passed on—his eager spirit
Gladly watched the dying hours,
"I will be a child no longer,
Pleading bliss in birds and flowers;
I will seek the bands of pleasure;
I will join their merry din;
Let me in to joy and gladness,
Let me in."

Years sped on—yet vainly yearning,
Murmuring still the restless heart;
"I am tired of heartless folly,
Let the glittering cheat depart;
I have found in wordly pleasure
Naught to happiness akin,
Let me in to love's warm presence,
Let me in."

Years flew on—a youth no longer,
Still he owned the restless heart,
"I am tired of love's soft dreaming,
Sweet voiced syren, we must part;
I will gain a laurel chaplet,
And a world's applause will win;
Let me in to fame and glory,
Let me in"

Years fled on—the restless spirit
Never found the bliss it sought;
Answered hopes and granted blessings
Only new aspirings brought:
"I am tired of earth's vain glory,
I am tired of pride and sin;
Let me in to rest eternal,
Let me in."

Thus the unquiet, yearning spirit,
Taunted by a vague unrest,
Knocks and calls at every gateway,
In a vain and fruitless quest;
Ever striving some new blessing,
Some new happiness to win—
At some portal ever saying,
"Let me in."

Love After Marriage.

BY MARY W. S. GIBSON.

No wooing had preceded the marriage. It was merely a marriage de convenance—both parties understood and regarded it so.

It was not they that were married, but the broad lands and fertile estates of their parents. Strange that any man, and much more any woman, could stoop to so false an act! But Hugh Grandison might and would have loved his beautiful bride, had it not been for the stately coldness of her demeanor; he had been unsoiled by contact with the world, and longed for happiness and home. Alice Charlton cared little for either, and still less for him. In her first girlhood she had plighted her faith to one who left her for a time, and died in a far off land of gold—died before one word of message could be sent to her beloved—died alone and among strangers, and was buried where her tears could never moisten the turf on his breast.

They told the tidings to Alice, little dreaming that the lonely adventurer had been aught to her. She was in her own elegant home, surrounded by a brilliant circle of guests, while Hugo Grandison leaned over her chair, and found his admiring eyes upon her queenly face and form. She heard the speaker through; the rich color died slowly out of her cheeks, leaving her white and stern; her lips shut firmly as if they would repress a shriek of agony; her large dark eyes wandered round the group with a gaze of passionate despair. The wondering looks of all around recalled her to herself, and making a graceful apology for her sudden abstraction, she played her part so successfully, that no one guessed the secret she guarded with Spartan like firmness.

Not until she was alone in her chamber did the storm burst forth. She mourned as she loved, most deeply and passionately, but to the world she seemed unmoved.

A year passed away. The father of Alice seeing that she was in no way inclined to choose one from her many lovers, chose for her, and selected Hugh Grandison as his future son-in-law. The young man was only too eager and willing to accept the fair hand offered him, but when her father brought him to her as an acknowledged lover she checked all his raptures, and said coldly

"Mr. Grandison, let us have a perfect understanding. I do not love you; I never shall love—" a look of pain shot over her calm face as she repressed the word again. She paused for a moment, and then went on, with her cold dark eyes bent full upon his face.

"But my father wishes us to marry—your parents wish it, and I am not opposed to the measure.

"But I beg you to understand distinctly that, while I give a wife's duty, you must never look for her love and blind submission. From the moment we leave the altar, our lives must be separate, though our home is one. On these conditions, and these only, I will give you my hand. Are they accepted?"

The young man stood for a moment bewildered. There was no mistaking her words or manner. Those clear dark eyes, that scornful lip and haughty brow, neared him that she had spoken the truth and no love was there; but he had long cherished a passion for her, and hoping that his fervent love might win some affection in return, when they were one in the eyes of the world, he clasped the small, fair hand in his, raised it to his lips, and answered.

"I accept. And it shall be the study of my life to make you happy."

"Be it so," was her unmoved reply, and then she left him.

The engagement was soon made public, and all eyes were curiously scanning the happy pair. They could find no fault with the ill concealed devotion of the lover, and the calm, unmoved way in which Alice received his attentions, or listened to his whispered words, was acknowledged to be the very perfection of high breeding.

It came ere long, on a bright sunny spring day. The splendid parlors were filled with the fashionable friends of both parties, and a murmur of congratulations greeted the lovely bride as she turned from the altar with cheeks and lips as white as the snowy satin robes she wore. Her husband pressed his lips to her cheeks. She received that first caress as calmly as though he were but one of the glittering throng around her, and when all had wished her joy, she retired to her apartments, preserved an unbroken silence, while her dressing maid robed her in her plain traveling dress, and joined the party once again, attired for her journey.—Calmly and coldly were all her farewells spoken, and then she stood by her father, while her forced composure gave way, and throwing her arms around his neck, she clung to him a moment silent, tearless agony. It was her last display of weakness. She heard his parting blessing, and sitting by the side of her husband, was whirled rapidly away from the home of her childhood forever.

A month elapsed before the pair returned to occupy their elegant mansion, far up town.—But in that month a strange change had taken place in Grandison. He seemed restless, uneasy and agitated; he followed the stately movements of his wife with anxious eyes; he was unhappy in her society, and wretched from her side.

It was not long ere Madame Rumor reported the startling fact that that the princely household was carried on upon the European plan, that the gentleman and lady occupied separate apartments, and only met at stated hours in the great dining room below. Grant was the wonder of the "upper ten;" many the surmises hazarded upon but no one dared question the parties most deeply interested, and they held their peace. In public and in private Alice was uniformly kind and polite to her husband; but this was all, and the wondering city had an opportunity of witnessing that anomaly—a man violently in love with his own wife, and seeking in vain to win her.

Two years had passed away. It was the anniversary of her wedding night, and Alice Grandison stood in her boudoir, robed for a party and only awaiting the arrival of her husband, who was to escort her. Three years had changed her little. She was fair and proud as ever. Her robe of azure velvet—her coronet of pearls and diamonds—her necklace, with its heavy diamond cross, her bracelets and the sparkling aigrette worn, were fit adornments for an empress, and right well did she become them. She was alone, and touching a secret spring in her private escritoire, she took from a small drawer, two miniatures cased in gold, and laid them side by side. One was that of her dead lover—the other, of her husband. Leaning her head upon her hand, she gazed long and earnestly at the two, and as her dark eyes dimmed with tears, she could not but acknowledge the shadowy likeness that existed between the loved and unloved. It was a faint and shadowy one, but still it was no fancy. A something on the lip, cheek and brow, the same careless arrangement of the waving hair—and more than all, the same earnest, living intensity of look and expression in the deep blue eyes. This never seen before, was what now claimed her attention to both.

The small pendule over the mantle piece struck the hour of nine, and with a deep sigh she replaced the portraits in the drawer, and left the room. She rang on reaching the drawing-room, to ask for her husband. There was a bustle, and the sound of many feet in the hall before her summons was answered, and then the servant who entered looked pale and frightened—

A strange, sickening sensation crept over her as she asked—

"Where is your master?"

"The servant stammered, hesitated, and cast imploring looks towards the door. Dreading she knew not what, she opened out into the hall, and looked down the wide stairs.—Four men were ascending, bearing a motionless form between them. The long hair hanging down towards the floor, and from a wound in the forehead the dark red blood was flowing freely. She stopped short when they saw her awaiting them; they evidently dreaded the scene, but she was firm and calm.

Obeying her calmly spoken orders, they laid him down upon a sofa, in the splendid drawing room. He had been struck down before his own door, by a runaway pair, and the family physician, who was instantly summoned, gave little hopes of his recovery. The wretched wife sat close beside him while the unsightly wound was closed—his blood flowed unheeded over her rich attire, and one small white hand was crimsoned, as it held his, and for the first time the pale lips pressed his own for the first time she laid her cheek to his, and called him a by thousand endearing names, for the first time the knowledge that she loved him came to bring her tenfold misery. The estrangement of years was forgotten; the stone was rolled away from the door of her heart, and its living waters gushed out once more. He, who would have perilled life and limb for one unsolicited caress from her, now lay pale and still while she pressed him to her heart; and the love that he had sought in vain during life seemed given only too late freely to warm itself upon a pallid corpse—a gilded coffin and a lonely grave!

She watched beside him, day and night in the chamber where he had spent so many lonely hours. Into this room she had scarcely entered since he had installed her mistress of his household; and every where she met such traces of his love for her, as pierced her very heart. In a small alcove beyond his bed hung her portrait the first and last thing he saw as he opened and closed his eyes. A small inlaid cabinet held the gifts she had bestowed upon him from time to time; a favorite book—a picture—a trees of dark brown hair—withered bouquets—a small golden star, and many things which she had given ceremoniously or lightly which he had treasured as his choicest possessions.

The glitter of a golden chain upon his desk attracted her attention, as she bent above him one morning. Softly she drew it forth, and gazed upon a splendid picture of herself, set in a small gold frame. She gazed in silence for a moment, but when upon the other side she noticed a ring—the wedding ring that she had never worn—her composure gave way. Pride had left her heart, and love usurped its place. Sinking upon her knees by the bedside, while her tears fell fast upon the dear hand that lay feebly on the counterpane, she prayed as she had never prayed before, that God would spare his life, that she might atone for her sin by years of patient and enduring love.

Her prayer was heard, for God is merciful even when we sin most deeply. All night she watched beside him. With the early down the physician (now domesticated in the house) entered the room. He held the drunken hand in his for one moment, gave one searching glance into the marble like face, and turning to her, said briefly—

"Your care has saved him, he will live!"

Late in the afternoon of that day. Alice sat beside the bed, waiting for the long deep slumber to be broken, that she might see those blue eyes look up at her once again. She was dressed as for a bridal, in a robe of pearly satin, with no ornaments save a single white rose in her dark hair, and another in her breast. The color deepened in her cheeks as the eventful hour drew near; her eyes glowed and sparkled with the love so long imprisoned, and so suddenly set free.

The golden hands of her watch pointed to the hour of seven, when the sleeper moved slightly, drew a long sigh and opened his eyes. She bent above him with a beating heart; his gaze wandered uneasily around the room, fixed upon her—kindled and he tried to smile. Very gently she passed her arm beneath the aching head and drew it towards her, till it rested upon her breast; very gently her warm lips fell upon his wasted cheek.

He looked up into a strange, joyful surprise and asked faintly—

"Alice, what does this mean?"

"It means that you must live to forgive me," she sobbed. "That I love you with my whole heart and none but you! Do not send me away, my husband!"

"Ah, his tears were falling now! Too weak to feel astonishment he could only thank God silently. He drew her feebly to his breast, and whispered—

"My wife! God bless you. Life is worth the living now!"

Their lips met in a long, long kiss of reconciliation and forgiveness. All was silent in the chamber; for happiness like their's there is no language.

Miscellany.

CATCHING A COURTIER.—Louis XIV. said one day to Marshal Grammont; "Mr. Marshal, just read this madrigal and see if you have ever seen anything more impertinent. Because I love posters, they bring me all sorts of stuff!" The Marshal, after hearing read it, said to the king: "Your majesty judges every thing divinely—it is certainly the stupidest and most ridiculous effusion I ever read." The king laughed and said: "Can you tell me who is the fellow who did this must be a blockhead!" "Sire," replied the courtier, "you can't call him anything else." "Well," said the king, "I am delighted you have spoken so frankly. I did it myself." "Ah, your majesty!" exclaimed Grammont; "you are joking!" But give me the paper back. I read it very hastily, and the first impressions are often deceptive." "No Mr. Marshal," replied the king, "on the contrary first impressions are generally the most natural and correct. The king was much amused at this incident, and the world thought it was a nice trick to pay off on a man who lived by flattery. Grammont however, did not get over his mortification for a long time.

CHRISTIAN CHARACTER.—To a man moulding his tastes, affections, will, by the influence upon them of an earnestly cultivated sympathy with God, all scenes furnish instruction, all times are times of communion, all acts are acts of religion. The manners of a courtier cannot be laid aside as soon as he leaves the presence of his sovereign; the life of a Christian cannot be suspended or superseded when no longer engaged in exercise of devotion.—Edward Mc. all.

TERRIBLE FAMINE IN NORWAY.—Hear ominous Dundee Dailys—The English papers say that owing to the failure of their crop, the inhabitants of Lapland and Finmarks bordering on the North Cape of Norway, are in a state of dreadful misery. Hundreds are dying daily of starvation, and the living are compelled to subsist as they best can on the bark of trees ground and cooked with oats. In order to alleviate these sufferings, charitable committees have been organized on the opposite coast of the Gulf of Bothnia, to collect contributions in kind, such as corn, flour, vegetables, and spirit, which will be conveyed to them across the ice in sledges. As an addition to the sufferings of these poor creatures, the cold is of a severity rarely experienced even in these ice bound countries.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Balsams of Health, hospitals and dispensaries, have never accomplished half the good that has been achieved through the agencies for the sale of these remedies. Fortunately for the sick, these agencies pervade all countries. Every dwelling, however, should be furnished with the preparations, for they may be suddenly and imperatively required at any hour. Universally and appropriately used in all cases demanding medical treatment, the average duration of human life would be increased, and the amount of human suffering greatly lessened. The effect of the Ointment on eruptions, ulcers, tumors, and all kinds of external diseases and injuries, is little short of supernatural.

A tavern-keeper, who resides in a neighboring town, and who is a frequent customer at his own bar, was much annoyed by swarms of red ants, which, by dints of their perseverance, undermined and havoc with his sugar. As he was one day waiting on a traveller, the landlord, in no measured terms, expressed his indignation against these little patterns of industry, adding, that he would give a generous sum to be effectually rid of the "Upon this the traveller said, "Sir, I can tell you how they may be destroyed in a very short time, without any expense." "Well," said Boniface, "let me know how, and I will try it instantly."

"You must kill one of the ants," replied the traveller, at every time you go into the bar for something to drink—and my word for it, you'll make an end of them in less than a week!"

NEW COUNTERFEIT.—An altered bill on the Toronto issue of the Quebec Bank was stopped at the counter of the Bank of Upper Canada yesterday. It was discovered to be a one changed to a two. The figure 1 in the upper corners being extracted, and the letter X substituted, and the five shillings in the body of the bill being altered to ten dollars. The alteration was very skilfully done, but the forgery is to be detected by the fact that the genuine tens are marked with the figures 10 in the corners.

The Chicago Press states that about one hundred families are now on their way from Three Rivers, Lower Canada, to occupy a tract of 20,000 acres in that neighborhood of Tacona, in Central Illinois, on the line of the Illinois Central Railroad. It is anticipated that upwards of two hundred families will be embraced in this settlement within the present year, and that some prominent citizens in Maryland, together with many of the planters of Missouri, will shortly join their influence and exertions to add to the prosperity of the colony. E. E. Malhiot, Esq., of Louisiana, is originator and prime mover in this enterprise.

"I say, old boy," cried Paul Pry to an excavator in North Shields, whom he espied in the bottom of a yawning gulph, "what are you a digging there?" "A big hole," the old boy replied. Paul was not to be put off in this fashion. "What are you going to do with the hole?" he asked. "Going to put in two small holes," replied the old boy, and retail them to farmers for gateposts." Poor Pry was sold.

A gentleman who had a strong desire to be funny, sat upon a hooped shirt the other day. With a desperation equaled by no emergency, he whistled, "I'm sitting on the style, Mary."

A Western Editor, having heard that a person was in drowning all the events of their past life suddenly flew vividly before them, modestly expressed a wish that some of his delinquent subscribers would take a bath in deep water.

A London publisher has just issued a volume containing "Biographies of the Celebrated Characters who have died during the year 1855." Among the memoirs is an obituary notice of General Tottleben, who is now in full health, commandant of Cronstadt.

Bill Swilling was sent to jail for habitual drunkenness. One of his old cronies was asked, "Why don't you bail him out?" "Bail him out!" he replied; "why man you could't pump him out."

An exchange recommends the following: To prevent dogs becoming mad, take as much African cayenne pepper as will make a pill about the size of a large pea. Give this in raw meat once or twice a week during the warm months, and you will have no mad dogs.

PRESERVE A SHAKING.—The editor of the Green Bay Advocate is reputed to be fond of "fast horses," and in his last paper he gives the particulars of the performances of one he now owns. He says the critter recently threw him into a snow bank, scattered a blanket here, and a whip there—and here again another robe—our wife, and several other articles of little value.

Arrival of the America.

HALIFAX, March 12.

The America arrived here, at four P. M. with Liverpool dates to the 26th ult.

The Alps and City of Manchester arrived out on the 24th.

The America passed the Africa on the 1st of March, twenty miles west of Kinsale. March 8th—Saw a large ship burning; nobody on board; she was painted blue.

The arrangement of the Persian difficulty was proceeding satisfactorily. The proposed Convention specifies that England shall enjoy equal commercial privileges with the most favoured nations; but Persia forbids English Consuls on the Caspian Sea, inasmuch as treaties with Russia forbid it.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The trade and navigation returns for Jan. show a progressive increase.

Mr. Dallas attended the Queen's levee on 26th.

An interesting debate took place in the Lords, on Lord Derby's motion of censure of the Chinese war, which resulted in a vote of 119 for the motion and 46 against.

[This is evidently a mistake. Probably or "motion" should read "ministry."]

Mr. Cobden brought forward a motion in the Commons similar to that of Lord Derby's.—"That this House has heard with deep concern of conflicts which have occurred between the British and Chinese in Canton, and without expressing any opinion as to the extent the Chinese may have offended England in the case of complaint, this House considers that the papers laid upon the table fail to furnish satisfactory grounds for the violent measures resorted to, and that a select committee be appointed to enquire into our commercial relations with China."

Lord Palmerston, in reply to Mr. Layard, said he was not pressed by the Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs to state that there was no such treaty in existence between Persia and Russia as that referred to recently by Mr. Layard, and that negotiations at Paris on the Persian difficulty were not yet ended.

Paris letters say that the Council of State have rejected the credit of 5,000,000 francs demanded by the War Department.

SPAIN.

It is stated that in a ministerial organ that the number of vessels about to be sent by the government against Morocco, including transports for 10,000 men, says this journal, may feel assured that the national honour shall receive complete satisfaction.

The recent announcement from the Spanish government for a mail steam line between Cadiz and Havana, at a subsidy of $25,000 per month, failed to draw forth a single reply. The offer has been increased to $30,000 per month.

The Ministerial organs state that 30 ships are to be sent against Mexico.

Vienna papers say a Ministerial Council is deliberating about withdrawing Austrian troops from the papal dominions.

WHOLESALE FRAUDS.

A FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE.

An extensive and most audacious scheme for counterfeiting two popular medicinal preparations has recently been brought to light in this city. A few of the leading facts have appeared in reports of the legal proceedings growing out of the affair, but the details, comprehensive character, has been but imperfectly developed in these brief statements. It would seem that the principal person implicated in this transaction is a drug broker named WILLIAM LEITH, lately doing business at 8 Gold street and 5 William street, in this city, and residing at 4 Union street, Brooklyn. He had conceived and established a counterfeiting factory for the purpose of counterfeiting, on a wholesale scale, the most popular and widely advertised medicines in the civilized world, viz: HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT. This audacious project he intended to carry out in the city of New York, almost within hail, as it were, of the great central office for the sale of Holloway's medicines in this country! He had, it appears, ordered no less than 500,000 copies of the pamphlet or books of directions, around each box, and the Printer to whom the order was given, supposing it to emanate from Professor Holloway, had no hesitation in executing the work. An accident led to the detection of Leith's fraud, which failed to meet an obligation he had given for a portion of the job, and the printer went to Professor Holloway's Establishment, 80 Maiden Lane, to enquire the cause. Then, of course, the fraud was disclosed, and it was found that not comprising the counterfeit wrappers with the original, that the former were perfect fac-similes of the latter, with the exception of the water-mark. This water-mark consists of the words "HOLLOWAY, NEW YORK AND LONDON," and is visible upon every leaf of the authentic pamphlet when held against the light. In all other respects, there was a perfect identity between the false document and the true.

William Leith, the author of this atrocious forgery was subsequently arrested, and fully charged, on examination before the committing magistrate, with procuring the printing and uttering of the above counterfeits, but through an indiscretion on the part of the magistrate, he managed to escape from the custody of the officers, and is now a fugitive from justice. Professor Holloway's agents are on the qui vive to discover his whereabouts, but so far he has eluded their vigilance. He is a Scotchman by birth, and still preserves a little of the accent; his voice is deep, his articulation emphatic, and in speaking he gesticulates a good deal, and interlards his sentences with frequent oaths. His height is about 5 8½ inches, his person rather stout, complexion rather florid, light hair and thin whiskers, and his age about 35 years. His address is good and business like. As it is not known to what extent he may have counterfeited the medicines, it would be well for druggists in the interior to beware of purchasing articles purporting to be HOLLOWAY'S remedies from irresponsible parties. There is one test of genuineness, which may however, be relied upon, viz: the water-mark on the leaves of the book of directions accompanying and enveloping each box of the Pills and pot of the Ointment. If, when the leaf is held between the eye and the light, the words "HOLLOWAY, NEW YORK AND LONDON," are discernable in semi-transparent letters, in the substance of the paper, then the pamphlets and the medicines they envelope are genuine; if not they are pernicious counterfeits. Let this test be universally adopted.—National Police Gazette, New York.

The Maple Leaf,

SANDWICH, MARCH 19, 1857.

TOWN INCORPORATION.

A petition was drawn up a short time since to the Legislature, and very numerously signed; in fact, every person, with two or three exceptions, that was applied to, signed, without a moment's hesitation, for the purpose of obtaining an act of incorporation for Sandwich. There are many reasons why Sandwich should be set apart from the Township for Municipal purposes—one is that the present Municipality is altogether too large; and having a population of nearly one fourth of the whole county, whose interests are in many respects opposed to those of the Township, and for the well being of the place it were far better that the taxes collected within its limits should be expended therein for making improvements; for at present hardly a pound is spent besides the statute labour upon the streets, which in many places require to be improved; but from the want of proper representation in the Council, or the opposition that is brought against any outlay within the Town, we are left without deriving any benefit whatever from our taxes.

Our streets are naturally dry, and a very small sum expended annually would render them equal to any macadamized road; but from the want of the power to expend our taxes, we have to submit to muddy streets.

As to the great increase that will be added to our assessments, we are at a loss to imagine what should cause it—even should they be increased, and the money properly expended, no reasonable man could object. We can never be in a worse position than at present, when all the funds are carried away from us and laid out in the Township, for which we derive no benefit whatever.

That the Town will be benefitted by an incorporation, no one can deny, except perhaps the very progressive Editor of the Canadian, who appears to wonder why any person should think of such a thing; but as his interests are not identified with the place, we do not wonder at his ignorance as well as presumption, in setting himself up against the whole community.—If the people want an incorporation, we should like to know what business it is for a person who does not own an inch of property in the town to attempt to dictate what is right and what is wrong; and if the town is so very retrograding, it is a wonder that so distinguished a personage as the Editor or the Canadian should waste so much of his valuable life in it. It is a pity that all his talents should be lost in so miserable a hole as Sandwich.

As to the division of the Township into wards, that has been tried for the last five or six years, but without success. But if there should be a desire hereafter to do so there will be room when the town will have been set off as an independent municipality. There is even room for another division of the township, by making the Settlement Road to the Cross as the town line, as east and west Sandwich. This we should like to see exceedingly, as the present limits of the Township are altogether too large—it is impossible at present that justice can be done to all parts.

We firmly believe that when incorporated the taxes will be less than at present, for it has invariably been the practice of rating town property far above that in the township in proportion to their respective value. The assessors are always appointed from without the town and the consequence is that we have been made to pay a much larger proportion of taxes than our share, and we would always be liable to the same imposition as long as we remain attached to the township—with the amount of taxes collected within the limits required to be incorporated, all the expenses of Municipal Government would be paid and a handsome sum would remain for improvements which we derive no benefit from whatever at present. Even the most trifling improvement that is called for is rejected, and the funds squandred in a manner that would defy the ingenuity of more accomplished hands. There were $773 expended for roads and bridges during the last year, and persons may travel the township through and hardly perceive that a penny has been expended. Yet we are made to contribute towards this waist of money. Again £33 have been expended upon indigent people, yet there is but one within the town that has received a penny from this fund, and so we might go on through the whole list of the lavish expenditures that are made of municipal funds without Sandwich being in any way benefited by the taxes collected within its bounds. It is hardly to be wondered at then that the people should demand an act of incorporation to rid themselves of so heavy a burthen.

We are again called upon to record the particulars of one of the most dreadful accidents, that perhaps has ever happened upon this continent—an accident that will carry grief and mourning into many a household In a moment between 60 and 80 human beings who were in health and strength and many of them among the first in the land, were hurried into eternity. The time has now arrived, it would appear, that the sacrifice of human lives is no more thought of, than if they were so many sheep. Day after day we are called upon to record some new accident, each one only exceeding the other in the destruction of life—the more frequent the recurrence of accidents, the more careless they appear to be, and the more reckless they become.

The Great Western Line has had more accidents upon it than any other upon the Continent for the time it has been in operation, and the last one exceeds all the others in the number of lives lost—and we are forced to believe that to the mismanagement alone of the road are all those accidents attributable.

In another column will be found full particulars up to the latest date, and among those that have been killed were some of our most prominent men. The death of Samuel Zimmerman whose connections with the various railway lines in the Province and particularly the great southern line which is to be built through this peninsula, will be a severe loss, and his business operations were upon so large a scale that many will have to deplore his death. That the interests of the southern line will now suffer for the want of his enterprising spirit few will deny. A man possessed of the greatest energy, clear-sighted and prompt in all his transactions. And although he may have had many enemies few will deny that he was possessed of great merits in both head and heart.

It would be difficult at present to say what was the real cause of the accident, it was supposed at first that the axel of the locomotive had become broken and by that means had gone off the track and had broken down the bridge; from what appeared to be marks of wheels upon the sleepers before reaching the bridge, this supposition might be correct—that these marks were found is certain, but it was not certain whether they were caused by that train or by an accident which had happened in exactly the same position a short time previous. From the evidence taken at the inquest, two persons who were on the train testified that they had not experienced any jolting in the cars before the accident, which they would have, had the engine been off the track.

Then the question arises—what was the cause of this sad accident—could it be otherwise, than that the Desjardins Bridge was not such a structure as was required for the work it was to perform. That it required the necessary solidity appears certain. As tending to solve this mystery the question of the former accident comes up whether the extent of the damages done upon that occasion tended to impair the structure or whether the repairs were of such a nature as would ensure sufficent strength or not. These subjects no doubt will have the full consideration of the inquest now sitting—and when closed, no doubt, will furnish a satisfactory solution to the mystery, as to whether the officers of the company were in any way culpable. That every effort will be exerted to arrive at a just conclusion we cannot doubt, and we are pleased to find that the Government have taken the matter in hand, by sending Mr. Stephen Richards, brother of Judge Richards on behalf of the Crown, who will see that nothing is left wanting that may tend to throw light upon the subject.

We shall wait patiently until the jury have completed their investigation, hoping that from extreme necessity, stringent measures will be adopted to prevent the recurrence of so frightful a sacrifice of human life.

Our readers will no doubt be gratified in learning with what success the Canadian line of steamers has met, during the last season, and from a report of the Post Master General upon the subject, we are enabled to glean many particulars, which go to show that our line will compare favourably with the others running between the two Continents. In MAY, 1856, Messrs. Allen & Co., commenced running their St. Lawrence Steamers, and from the following tabular statement, furnished by the Post Master General, comparing the average length of the voyages of this and other Ocean Steam Lines, it will be seen that the average length of passage both ways, there is only an advantage of eleven and a half hours in favour of the Cunard Line to New York. With the same line to Boston, there is an advantage in favour of the Canadian of twelve hours; and over the Collin's line, an advantage of one day, two hours and a quarter in favor of Canada. With the new and superior class of vessels that will be put upon this route, the coming season, we may, reasonably expect that the passage will be made in much less time, than by the ships of either of the above named companies.

The report contains a strong recommendation in favour of a weekly line, instead of a semi-monthly. This would be a great advantage to the country as then the whole Canadian correspondence could be carried without having to resort to the United States Steamers.

CANADIAN STEAMER CIRCASSIAN.

This magnificent new screw Steam Ship belonging to the "North Atlantic Steamnavigation Co.," has just come out of Mr. Laird's dock Birkenhead, where she has had her machinery fitted. From the description given below of this splendid Steamer we may look forward with pleasure to the determination which appears to exist to make our transatlantic communication equal to any other line.

She now lies in her berth in in the Wellington Dock to receive cargo, and will sail March 7, for St. John's Newfoundland, Halifax, N. S., and Portland, United States; and from her beautiful lines, powerful engines, and being supplied with the latest nautical improvements, will doubtless prove one of the fastest ships connected with the Canadian trade. She is 260 feet long, 40 feet beam, 23 feet deep. Her length is divided into six compartments by five watertight bulkheads, all double plated on the outer edge, three of which are carried to the upper deck. These bulkheads give not only security but great strength to the ship, and are constructed in accordance both with the Board of Trade and Lloyd's regulations.—She is double-rivetted; and her beams on both decks are fastened with diagonal lacings; her keel, keelsons, stringers, diagonal lacings, and outside platings, are much heavier than Lloyd's rules require; she has water tanks that contain 18,000 gallons besides condensing apparatus; she is supplied with steam winches to enable the cargo to be discharged with great dispatch. Her cubic capacity is 1800 tons in after compartment; 456 tons fore peak; after hold above 568 tons; between decks compartment; 876 tons; ditto forward, 90 tons; in all 2402 tons of cubic feet. This ship was built by Messrs. Hickson and Co., under special survey, the utmost care having been taken to render her complete in every particular.

She is fitted with a beautiful pair of beam engines, constructed by Messrs. Ran lolph, Elder, and Co., Glasgow; and they have been pronounced by all who have seen them to be well worthy the high name these gentleman have attained on the Clyde The following are the principal dimensions of the machinery:—Diameter of cylinder, 60 inches; length of stroke, 48 inches; pressure of steam, 17 lbs. to the square inch, the screw making 83 and the engine 33 revolutions per minute, giving a mean speed of 11 knots per hour, and the consumption of coal being one ton per hour.

This steam ship has a house on deck forming a splendid promenade of 230 feet. This house gives the necessary state rooms and mess rooms for the officers, ice-house, smoking room, galley bakery, &c. The main saloon for first class passengers has been designed and executed by Mr. J. C. Monow in true artistic style. The panelling on each side represents a ground of green marble with enamelled white pilastre in the centre crowned with a Grecian cap. The shining tables are Spanish mahogany, and the swinging trays are of the same material, mounted with brass work, forming altogether an exceedingly comfortable and recherche saloon. The sleeping berths in this ship have been placed in the 'midships, thus avoiding the motion and noise of the propeller usually so much complained of by passengers.

The ship is commanded by Captain Powel; and we feel convinced, from that gentleman's popularity while a commander in the Royal West India Mail service, and from the complimentary and substantial address presented to him by the passengers on his late voyage to Newfoundland, that he will retain his former high reputation in his truly splendid ship.

American Navigation Laws.

To the Editor of the Globe.

HAMILTON, Feb. 28, 1857.

SIR,—Last fall, several Canadian vessels loaded with grain at Chicago for Ogdensburg, with the privilege of transhipping at Kingston. Many of your produce readers will, no doubt, be surprised to find that those cargoes, after having been entered at the Custom House at Kingston, discharged into a British warehouse, (and made British property to all intents and purposes,) and reshipped a few days afterwards on board of river barges, were seized, on arrival at Ogdensburgh, for a violation of the coasting trade.

It is high time that some steps were taken to urge upon our Government the necessity of adopting a course that would place her shipping interests on a better footing with our neighbours. A very great difference of opinion exists between our Government and the Americans, in the interpretation put on the rules and regulations for our guidance in the coasting trade, which will be more clearly shown by the enclosed correspondence.

The payment of 5s cents a ton, tonnage dues, on a Canadian vessel owned entirely by Americans, on a voyage from one American port to another in our inland waters, relieves both vessel and cargo from seizure; but if owned by Canadians, the payment of tonnage dues only relieves the vessel, but leaves the cargo liable to seizure and forfeiture.

If a cargo of grain is shipped at Chicago for Oswego or Ogdensburgh in a British vessel, no discharge or reshipment, or change in bottom, bulk, or bills of lading, takes the voyage out of the operation of the American Navigation Laws, so long as the continuity of the voyage is in fact maintained.—The question is one of interest to a great extent.

If a cargo of grain was shipped bona fide from Chicago to Hamilton or other Canadian port, and there purchased afloat, and consigned by the purchaser to an American port, without any concert or collusion with the first shipper, it might then go through in the same bottom without breaking bulk, or being liable to seizure; but even in this case, the owner, to avoid trouble and loss, must be prepared to show that the voyage from the Canadian port to the American port was an entirely separate and distinct voyage, from the American port to the Canadian one.

We are, Sir
Your obed't serv'ts,
—RAE BROTHERS & Co.

HAMILTON, Canada West,
Feb. 20, 1857.

Hon W L Marcy, Sec, Washington, U. S.

SIR—We trust you will not consider us troublesome, in asking a reply to the following questions:—

1st. If we loaded one or more of our vessels, (British bottoms) at Chicago or any other American port in our inland waters for Ogdensburg, and enter said cargoes at a British port in transitu, such as St Catherines or Kingston, discharge cargo at such British port, and transship afterwards per same vessel, or in a new bottom, for port of destination, will such an act be considered by your government as a violation of the coasting trade?

2nd. Can British or Canadian vessels carry grain from one American port to another, on payment of 50 cents a ton tonnage dues at the port of destination, without being liable to seizure or confiscation?

3d. Is the tonnage due payable on Custom House or carpenter's measurement?

Waiting your reply.

We have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servants,
(Signed) RAE, BROTHERS, & Co.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
February 25, 1857.

GENTLEMEN—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 20th instant, and in reply to inform you that the 4th section of the Navigation Act of the United States, approved March 1st 1837, prohibits vessels belonging in whole or in part to a subject of any foreign power, from engaging in the coasting trade of the United States, under penalty of the forfeiture of the merchandise on board, and the Department regards the shipment of merchandise in a foreign vessel, from a port in the United States, destined to another port in the British Provinces, though said merchandise may be transhipped at said port, as a violation of said Navigation Act, if it is brought to its port, of destination either in the same or in another foreign vessel.

Very respectfully,
(Signed) JAMES GUTHRIE,
Sec. of the Treasury.

Messrs Rae, Brothers, & Co.,
Hamilton C. W.

Slavery in the Territories.

IMPORTANT DECISION OF THE SUPREME COURT.

The most important decision ever made by the Supreme Court of the United States was pronounced yesterday,—and a summary of its leading points will be found among our Republican telegraphs. That the authority of the land decides that the Ordinance of 1857 so far as it prohibited slavery from the Northwest Territory, was unconstitutional:—that the Missouri Compromise, so far as it excluded Slavery from the Louisiana Territory north of 36° 30, was unconstitutional;—that Congress had no power to prohibit Slavery from any portion of the Feudal territory, nor to authorize the inhabitants thereof to do so;—that the negroes are not citizens of the United States;—and that the residence of a slave in a free State does not effect his legal condition upon his return to a State where Slavery is allowed by Law.

The Rectories.

A paragraph was transferred to this journal from the Leader, a few days ago, conveying the information that the Court of Chancery, to which had been referred the question as to the validity of the Rectory patents, had decided that they were valid. And it subsequently announced, in answer to a question by an hon. member, by the Hon. J. A. McDonald, that no appeal would be made to the Court of Chancery, in England. Thus, the matter was considered as finally settled, as no further opposition was made from any quarter to disturb its quiescence. But, yesterday, to our great surprise, we perused an article in the Leader, advocating Legislative action with the view of an "equitable measure" being passed which would satisfy that public feeling which is unconquerably averse to the existence of Rectories," and for this stupid reason "that so long as they exist, they will furnish a constant target for attack!" They have already undergone the ordeal of attacks from every section of Upper Canada where the "envy, hatred and malice" of the petty sectarian demagogues of the Brown and Lesli lease would be exhibited in stump orations and bar room discussions. The forced expressions of a made public opinion, drove the question out of the den of "Pharisaical Brawlers" into a Court of Equity, where the noisome, virulent, bigoted declarations of Clear Grit hypocrites, would be of no influence the decision of an incorruptible tribunal.—The tribunal has set the matter at rest; and the attempt of the Leader now made to get up another agitation to have it submitted to another ordeal before the cormorants who are ever ready to grab the last acre belonging to the Protestant Episcopal Church shows itself unfriendly to peace, and a pauperder to the very party he professes to despise. If the Rectories must necessarily be a "target for attack," why, those interested in their permanence must only resist, with the quiet possession and enjoyment, by the Rectors of their long established and confirmed rightful property. It is to be hoped, then, that officious meddlers, in and out of the House, will see the propriety of "letting well enough alone."—Kingston News.

Funeral of Dr. Kane.

Baltimore March 10.

The remains of Dr. Kane arrived in this city this morning. The funeral procession was a most imposing affair. There was an immense turn out of citizens, and the escorts was composed of several military companies, including the U. S. Artillery from fort McHenry; the officers and members of the Maryland institute; the freimasons; the fire department; the German societies; the committees from Philadelphia and Wheeling; a detachment of marines from the steamer Alleghany; many officers of the army and navy; the Mayor and Common Council; the officers of Maryland volunteers; the Mayor and Common Council; the medical profession, and our civic bodies followed the funeral car. The coffin was enveloped in the American flag. The stores in the streets through which the procession passed, were closed, and many of them draped in mourning. The bells of the city were tolled, and minute guns were fired from Federal Hill. The body was taken to the immense hall of Mechanics Institute, which was handsomely draped with black catafalque, guarded by soldiers. Thousands of citizens are visiting it to-night. The remains will leave here to-morrow at 11 a. m., for Philadelphia.

COLONIAL APPOINTMENT.—The Queen has been pleased to appoint Charles Henry Darling, Esq., now Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Island of Newfoundland and its dependencies, to be Captain General and Governor-in-Chief in and over the Island of Jamaica and the territories depending thereon; Sir Alexander Bannerman, Knight, now Governor and Commander-in-Cheif in and over the Bahama Islands, to be Governor and Commander in Chief in and over the Island of Newfoundland and its dependencies; Sir Carlo Arthur Henry Fitzroy Kembold, Bart, to be President and Senior Member of the Council of the Island of Nevis; and Thomas Prince, Esq., now Treasurer for the Island of Antigua, to be President and Senior Member of the Executive Council of the Virgin Islands. Her Majesty has also been pleased to appoint Edward W. Alexander, Esq., Colonial Surgeon for the Island of St. Helena: Thomas Havers, Esq., to be a member of the Executive Council of the Falkland Island, during the absence of J. R. Logden, Esq.; John J. Robinson, Esq., to be a Member of the Legislative Council of New Brunswick; William Morgan and John Allous, Esqs., to be Members of Legislative Council of the Island of Prince Edward; and Sholto Thomas Pemberton, Esq., to be a Member of the Council of Nevis.

We are informed, says the Quebec Military Gazette, the whole of the Volunteers of Canada will be inspected by the Commander of the Forces, Lieutenant General Sir William Eyre, K. C. B., for the purpose of reporting to the Imperial Goverment on their discipline and efficiency. It would seem that the armed and drilled Canada Volunteer Forces already exceed five thousand men. There have been formed under the provisions of the new law, 7 field batteries of Artillery—5 in Upper and 2 in Lower Canada; 5 companies of Foot Artillery—3 in Upper and 2 in Lower Canada; 23 troops of Cavalry, 16 in Upper and 7 in Lower Canada; and 50 companies of Rifles, of which Upper Canada contributes 41, and Lower Canada 19. This is of itself a respectable force, rapidly progressing in discipline; and new companies are springing up every week through the country.

FROM CHATHAM TO LIVERPOOL DIRECT.—We have been informed by A. McKellar, Esq, that Mr. Pearson, a heavy lumber and timber merchant in this town, is about concluding the chartering of a vessel to load with lumber at the mill of McKellar and Dolson, and to sail direct for Liverpool without breaking bulk! This is a thing for the public to note.—Planet.

Special Notices.

SIR ASTLEY COOPER'S PILLS.

The astonishing efficacy of this sterling medicine in all affections of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and bowels, and for purifying the blood, have gained them the highest recommendation from the most distinguished Physicans and Surgeons in Europe and America. Two or three of these Pills a short time after taking supper, will remove any uneasiness in the head, stomach or bowels, indigestion produced by a torpid state of the liver and inactivity of the bowels; causing a disorganization of the whole frame, will, by a little perseverance with this excellent medicine, be effectually removed. Forqubitau - costiveness they are most excellent, not like many other aid medicines leaving the bowels confined, nor stimulating, so as to produce or agravate the Piles. The evil effects arising from excess of the table will be prevented if recourse be had to them. They quickly restore the system to its natural state of repose. They are particularly efficacious for stomach complaints, coughs, colds, agues, shortness of breath, and all obstructions of the urinary passages, strengthen the stomach, invigorate the nerves, create appetite, promote digestion, and a healthy action of the Liver.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.—It frequently occurs that Druggists impose on their customers, a spurious compound called Sir Astley Cooper's Pills, generally put up in a red or pink wrapper, and labelled prepared or as prepared at Apothecaries Hall London, when the fact is they are prepared by themselves. Beware of such trash, as you would of poison—The Genuine Pills have a likeness of Sir Astley Cooper on the top of each box; also the fac-simile of the Proprietors, McPhail & Co London and New York.

Sold at 25 and 50 cents per box, and in family boxes at $1 each. There is a great saving by purchasing the larger sizes.

For sale by Simpson and Dunspaugh, Druggists, Toronto; John M. Thornton, Dundas; Andrew Oliver Galt; A. H. Cook, Brantford, General Agents, by whom Country Druggists and Merchants will be supplied at London and New York prices.

GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighboring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that he can compete with his Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to carry their money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.

A MEDICAL REVOLUTION!

THE WORLD UNANIMOUS!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

THE GREAT COUNTER IRRITANT!

The virus of disease often makes its way to the internal organs through the pores of the skin. This penetrating Ointment, melting under the hand as it is rubbed in, is absorbed through the same channels, and reaching the seat of inflammation, prompt and invariably subdues it, whether located in the kidneys, the brain, the liver, the lungs, or any other important organ. It penetrates the surface to the interior, through the countless tubes that communicate with the skin as summer rain passes into the fevered earth, diffusing its cool and regenerating influences.

Skin Diseases & Glandular Swellings!

Every species of exterior irritation is quickly reduced by the anti-inflammatory action of this Ointment. Angry Eruptions such as Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Tetter, Ringworm, Scald Head, Nettle Rash, Scabies (or Itch) &c., to die out, to return no more, under its application. Hospital experience in all parts of the world, proves its infallibility in diseases of the skin, the muscles, the joints and the glands.

Ulcers, Sores & Tumours!

The effect of this unrivalled external remedy upon Scrofula and other virulent ulcers and sores, is almost miraculous. It first discharges the poison which produces suppuration and proud flesh, and thus the cures which its healing properties afterward complete are safe as well as permanent.

Wounds, Bruises, Burns & scalds.

In cases of the fracture of the bone, injuries caused by steam explosions, Bruises Burns, Scalds, Rheumatism, Stiffness of the Joints, and contraction of the sinews, it is employed and warmly recommended by the faculty. This marvellous remedy has been introduced by its inventor in person into all the leading hospitals of Europe, and no private household should be without it.

Undeniable Testimony!

The Medical Staff of the French and English Armies in the Crimea have officially signed their approval of Holloway's Ointment, as the most reliable dressing for sabre cuts, stabs, and gun-shot wounds. It is also used by the surgeons of the Allied Navies.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases:

Bunions,	Skin Diseases,
Burns,	Swelled Glands,
Chapped Hands,	Sore Legs,
Chilblains,	Sore Breasts,
Fistula,	Sore Heads,
Gout,	Sore Throats,
Lumbago,	Sores of all kinds,
Mercurial Eruptions,	Sprains
Piles,	Stiff Joints,
Rheumatism,	Tetter,
Ringworm,	Ulcers,
Salt Rheum,	Venereal Sores,
Scalds,	Wounds of all kinds,

 Sold at the Manufactories of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80, Maiden Lane, New York, & 244 Strand, London, by all respectable Druggists and dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in pots, at 25 cents, 62½ cents, and $1 each.

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each pot.

☞ CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernable as a water-mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each pot or box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

Frightful Accident

ON THE

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY!

A Whole Train Precipitated into the Canal!

OVER SEVENTY PERSONS KILLED

From the Globe of Saturday.

A national calamity may fairly be said to have befallen us. Men who have stood in the foremost rank have been taken from amongst us. The busy wanders, and the pen almost refuses to do its accustomed duty, when attempting to describe the heart-rending scene we have witnessed.

The train from Toronto, due at Hamilton at a quarter to 6 p. m., had come from Toronto, and was proceeding at a moderate rate of speed to pass the swing bridge across the Desjardin Canal, when the accident occurred. Those at a distance may not know that a cutting has been made as an outlet to this canal, through the Burlington Heights, and that the railroad crosses it by a swing bridge 40 feet above the level of the canal. At present, of course, the water below is covered with ice about two feet thick. Just before the train reached the bridge the engine ran off the track, owing, it is supposed, to some defect in the axle. This is founded on the observation of some marks on the road for some distance on the west side of the spot where the accident occurred. The immense weight of the engine cutting through the timber of the bridge produced the effect naturally to be expected. The whole structure gave way and with one big thud crash the engine, tender and two first-class passenger cars broke through the severed frame work and leaped headlong into the yawning abyss below! The engine and tender crushed at once through the ice; and the baggage car striking the corner of the tender in the act of falling, was thrown a few inch of some ten yards from the engine; the first passenger car rushed after, and turning as it descended, fell on its roof, breaking partly through the ice. The last car fell endways, and strange to say remained in that position.

The loss of life was of course frightful; there were more than one hundred passengers on the train, and the list of those who escaped number about twenty as far as we can yet learn.

Immediate assistance was had from the different shops the persons engaged on the works. All that were in the last car, were taken out—mostly wounded, and we are sorry to say, too many dead. A hole was cut in the bottom of the car, which lay across the canal, and the bodies taken from it as rapidly as possible; but this could not be effected in a slow operation, when it is considered how intensely cold the water is at this season of the year, and that the depth was sufficient to hide an engine, tender, and baggage car from view.

THE DEAD.

The following is a list of the dead as ascertained late last evening:—

1. Donald Stuart, merchant, Hamilton.
2. A. Grant, about 45 years old; residence unknown.
3. John Russell, railway contractor Brantford, of the firm of Mellish. Morrell & Russell.

28. Robert Crawford, Saltfleet, farmer.
29. Wm. Sturdy, London, in employ of Robt. Walker, Merchant Tailor.
30. Hugh McSloy, merchant, St. Catherines.
31. Rev. Dr. Heiss, German Minister, Hamilton.
32. Timothy Doyle, from Dumbarton, husband of number 5, shoemaker.
33. Patrick Doyle, brother of the above.
34. Joseph Harkness, Toronto, late Band Master of the Rifles; more recently Quarter-master in same corps.
35. Charles Brown, merchant, Galt.
36. Mr. Kendall, Rochester.
37. Ann McFiggin, servant of Mr. Irving, Solicitor G. W. R. R.
38. Mrs. P.S. Stevenson, severely injured, and died on her way home. Daughter of Mr. Sheriff Thomas.
39. An old man, name unknown, drab over coat, blue vest, red comforter, striped woolen mittens. In his pocket a bag of silver, also some papers, among which was a note drawn by J. Maxwell in favor of T. Brown, and dated Bowmanville.
40. John Morley, Thorold, one of the best plough makers in Canada. His body was also found.
41. A young girl, named Ellen Devine, from below Port Nelson; was going on a visit to her brother near Hamilton.
42. Mary Devine, sister of the above.
43. Old man, unknown, dark coat, blue vest, and brown trousers. No papers or other articles that could lead to his identification were discovered.
44. Unknown man, middle aged, with grey trousers and drab over coat. Manuscript poetry in his pocket. "The battle of Inkerman." On the back of which was written "to Miss Hall, Hannahsville."
45. Mr. Curtis, Jun., of Ingersoll, (whose father was seriously injured,) had a ticket from Toronto to Beachville, was identified by having a weigh-house ticket of hay at Ingersoll.
46. A young man respectably dressed, supposed to be Darius Whittier, of Markham. On his person were found several letters, one addressed, relating to agricultural implements, a list of accounts due, circulars, memorandum book, and several large rolls of bills.
47. Mr. Bradfield Clifton, farmer and flour merchant, returning with his wife from a visit to Dr. Caldwell, the Toronto oculist, who identified them.
48. Mrs. Bradfield, wife of the above.—The bodies were taken away by relatives.
49. Able-bodied man, with heavy red whiskers, clothes torn from his body; no papers on his person. Dark grey trowsers. Supposed to be Duncan Campbell, of Campbellville.
50. An unknown man, about 50 years old, with a letter in his pocket, directed, Chas. Coldfield, lot 4, con. 6, Albion; also a letter from a person in Towanda, signing herself "his affectionate daughter Rosa."
51. G. G. McInnes, (supposed) a young man of 22, bible with name in, but no residence. Papers and letters dated Shannonville. A miniature of male and female, and portmannaie, with some money, were also found.
52. Unknown man, young, poorly dressed, sandy hair, pocket-book, with silver to a small amount. Ticket, but the reading effaced by the water.
53. Ralph Wade, Esq., of Cobourg. His person was identified by several circulars, cards, and letters—one from Mr. Felton, M.P.P. Mr. Wade was extensively engaged in the breeding and importing of improved stock, and was well known to leading agriculturists of the Province.
54. Female, rather tall, silk dress, striped with brown, coarse black hair, married ring on her finger, lace chemizette, gold locket, and a brooch, on which was the figure of a flying cupid.
55. George Knight, the fireman of the locomotive. Body recovered at eight o'clock, last evening.

THE DISPOSAL OF THE DEAD.

Most of the bodies of the dead were laid out in the great stone freight-house, but a few rooms were deposited in a frame building adjoining the station. They presented a ghastly appearance. The general expression on the countenance was that of fear and alarm; the eyeball stretched to the utmost, the mouth open, and the hands generally fixed in an attitude of defence. There was a great delay in identifying the bodies, owing to the exclusion of the friends by the Coroner. A few persons belonging to Hamilton were allowed to remove their friends immediately, but strangers were compelled to wait till Friday before they were permitted even to see their dead relatives.

The body of Mr. Zimmerman was removed to the house of Mr. Roach, the next day conveyed to Clifton, where it is to be interred on Monday next. Mr. Zimmerman had a severe cut across the face, and his body bore the marks of great pressure, his arms being so bound as to make it impossible to straighten them. It is said that he had almost reached the door in the effort to make his escape from the car, when it was precipitated over the bridge. Mr. Hill of Toronto, who jumped from the car, was only a few feet before him.

It is intended to have a public funeral of the unfortunate sufferers, on Monday, in Hamilton. Sub Committees have been formed to wait on the friends of the deceased.

The body of Mr. Benson was brought down from Hamilton in the afternoon by the mail, and will be removed to Port Hope for burial.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Russell were removed to Davidson's City Hotel during the day, and then sent on to Brantford. Mrs. Russell was just returned from Europe, and Mr. Russell had been to meet her.

The body of Capt. Sutherland was taken in charge by about a dozen sailors, who bore him to the flour warehouse, where they covered him with the Union Jack. They all seemed deeply affected.

The two sisters Devine, mentioned above, were found together, and were not separated. Their brother, ignorant of the catastrophe, came to meet them, and his anguish at the unexpected sight of the corpses was very great.

All the money, jewelry, papers, &c., were taken in charge by the Company's officials, and will be delivered up to the friends of the deceased on proof of identification.

THE INJURED.

Mr. Thomas C. Street of Niagara Falls, the eminent capitalist, and formerly M. P. for the county of Welland, has his collar-bone fractured, and also some injury in his right arm. At last accounts he was doing well. Mr. Street could give no account of the accident; he knew nothing till he was taken from the ruins.

Mr. Macklom of Chippawa escaped with some cuts and a bruise in the abdomen, which, it is hoped, will not prove dangerous. Dr. Bethune of Toronto, and Dr. Fraser, M. P., were both in attendance on this gentleman.

Mr. Curtis, of Ingersoll, is said to have his back broken, and is not expected to live.

Mr. Farr was still alive at the last accounts, but no hopes were entertained of his recovery.

Mr. Woods, of Woodstock, had his arm broken.

Capt. A. McBride, of Port Burwell, escaped with some injuries to his head.

Mr. Barton, junr., of Stratford, is much injured about the head.

H. M. Yerington, of Port Stanley, received a contusion on the head; not seriously injured.

THOSE WHO ESCAPED.

Mr. Muir, Traffic Superintendent Great Western Railroad, had a most miraculous escape. He was half asleep on the last seat of the last car, when he was awakened by the unusual motion of the train. Starting up and rushing to the door, he perceived what was the matter, and jumped off at the very moment the car was being precipitated in the yawning gulph beneath. Indeed the platform of the car was on a level with the several timber of the bridge. With a powerful effort Mr. Muir leaped to a place of safety.

Mr. Jessopp, one of the auditors, the Express Messenger, Post office Clerk, and Conductor Barrett, escaped from the baggage car, when submerged in the water, by climbing upon the top.

Mr. Richardson, one of the conductors of Railroad, but not then on duty, was asleep in the baggage car when the accident took place, and was conscious of nothing until he found himself lying on the ice almost unhurt.

Mr. McCulloch, Printer in the Guardian office of this city, escaped with cuts on the head. Owen Doyle, a resident of Dunbarton, Pickering, escaped from the first car through the window. Two children of his brother Timothy Doyle, one a girl of eight years, also got out of the car in what appears a miraculous manner.

An Irish woman who had two fingers broken, name unknown, was able to walk off immediately after the accident.

A woman, belonging to Hamilton, went off in a cab over the ice.

Two railway men, Mr. Reed, of Suspension Bridge, formerly of the Northern Railroad, and Mr. Hill, of Toronto, were standing on the platform of the front car, and jumped off without injury.

Mr. John K. Clare, merchant, Jamesstreet, was upon the car upset into the canal. He had his little girl by his side, and when the car was descending, she got loose from him in some way. He was sitting two seats back of the stove, and with it was thrown forward. He scarcely knows how he escaped; indeed, it is miraculous. He crawled through the window; he looked for his little girl, but could not see her. Her body has since been recovered.

THE CLEARING OF THE WRECK.

During the night of Thursday, relays of men were engaged in clearing away the wreck.

When our reporters reached the scene of the accident, they found the workmen engaged in hauling out of the water with a crane and pulleys, a section of the bridge, which lay upon the surface of the ice, with the view of reaching the first passenger car, which was entirely submerged. The second passenger car had landed lengthwise on the bank of the base of the bridge, and it was from this that all the saved and the dead bodies had been taken.

Early in the morning the workmen succeeded in removing the debris of the bridge, and reached the submerged passenger car, which they speedily broke to pieces, and twelve or fifteen bodies were taken from it. As these however did not make up the tale of the passengers, it is believed that many were sank to the bottom of the canal, and the workmen proceeded to break up the remainder of the car, in order to remove it from the spot, to enable them to drag the water.

At the latest accounts last evening, the workmen were still engaged. It was supposed more than twenty bodies were still unrecovered. The fireman was got out at the last accounts a mangled mass.

THE CAUSE OF THE ACCIDENT.

The keenest scrutiny was bestowed during the day upon the track and the rails on the west side of the bridge. There is a switch close to the bridge, and it was discovered that part of the rail was greatly bent, and that the connecting rods of the switch were bent and broken, as if from the passing over them of the wheel. Further on, abrasions were discovered in the sleepers, also marks on the rails and bolts confining the chairs. From these facts it is contended that one of the wheels of the locomotive was broken, and that part of the engine struck with violence upon the timbers of the bridge and caused its destruction. This theory, supported by many circumstances, will be tested when the locomotive is recovered from the water under which it lies.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE CORONER.

When everything possible had been done to identify the bodies, the Coroner gave permission for them to be removed, while a body of constables were placed to guard from intrusion the rooms in which the dead lay.

The Coroner, Reporters, and several others interested, then proceeded to the Board room of the Great Western Railway, where the following were sworn in on the jury:—

James Osborne, Jos. Listen, John Moore John Galbraith, Levi Baemer, Robert Rae, Jesse Nickerson, Thos. B. Harris, Robert Osborne, Wm. G. Kerr, Alexander Hamilton, Lewis R. Carley, Chas. Magill, James McIntyre, Horatio Case, James Cummings, Adam Brown—17.

James McIntyre was then elected foreman, and the jury were directed to inquire how Donald Stuart and many others came to their death. They then proceeded to view the various bodies at Mr. Roach's house, where those of Mr S. Zimmerman and J. C. Henderson are laid, and immediately afterwards adjourned till ten o'clock this morning.

The inquest will not be proceeded with, however, till some day next week, to afford time to raise the locomotive, and make a thorough search in the bed of the canal.

How to Set out Trees.

"Line upon line and precept upon precept," may be as profitable now as in bible times. At any rate, we shall be justified for reproducing the following, which we condense from the American "Agriculturist":

We advise to set out most kinds of fruit trees in the fall, as soon as may be after the leaves have dropped from them. Peach, apricot, nectarine trees are transplanted more safely in the spring as early as the ground will admit being worked.

In taking up trees, great care should be taken to save unbroken as many as possible of the very small roots and fibers, even those so minute as to be scarcely seen. Upon the number of these, which are really the feeders of the tree, will depend its future growth and vigor. Never pull up a tree rudely, or cut off its roots with a spade, except, perhaps, some of its longer larger roots. Leave the tap-root moderately long. Before lifting a tree, loosen the soil around it well, and then take it up carefully. Proper care in this particular will double the chance of its surviving, and render it tenfold more valuable afterward.

While out of the ground, the roots should on no account be exposed to the sun or dry winds. If not set out immediately, let them be kept damp—not wet. Too much wet, warm packing is almost as dangerous as dryness.

Dig wide, deep holes, to be filled with good surface soil. Here lies one of the great secrets of successful fruit growing. No matter how poor the original soil, it is always comparatively easy to dig out a large hole, say two to two and one-half feet deep, and five to eight feet in diameter, and fill it in with good soil for the future bed of the tree. The air, from which they derive much nourishment, is just as good over a barren, sandy field as over a fertile one, and we can always get good soil enough for the tree to grow in even if it has to be carted a mile.

The Soil.—If the ground designed for fruit or shaded trees has a good surface, leaving it near by. All below should be spread at a distance. Then fill in the bottom with the soil near by, and upon this set the trees Complete the filling with the best top soil gathered from some distance around each hole. Unless the ground is already quite rich, it is well to mix with the filling a good supply of rotten manure, muck, or decayed leaves. We know of nothing better to put in the soil, around the roots of all fruit trees than ground bones. They need not be finely ground. The finest portions will furnish immediate pabulum for food to the roots, while the coarser portions will decay gradually, and yield an annual supply of nutriment through a long series of years. Remember, that after a tree has been set out, and its roots have commenced to grow, you can readily replace a poor soil, with a better one, not one you may with a supply of fertilizers. The after improving will necessarily be by means of liquid manures.—Therefore prepare a permanently rich soil at first.

Setting out Trees.—Here, also, a little—yes, a good deal—of care will pay. Having taken up the trees as directed above, fill up the several holes, so that when they have settled, each tree will stand about as deep as when it grew originally in the nursery. Then set in the trees, leaving the roots free, and extended in their natural position. Do not shovel in the soil upon them in masses, but sprinkle it in among and around the roots (jarring the tree with the hand occasionally), and press it down tightly. This done, fill up the rest of the ho e with good soil, as directed above.

The ground should be left a little elevated around the trees, to allow for settling. It is well to add even more than this to support the tree during the winter, and dig around the surplus in the spring.

If the ground is dry at the time of setting, or if dry weather succeeds, an occasional watering should be given, just enough to keep the ground damp, but not enough to puddle it, or make it wet and cold. The object should be to get the fibers started before all growth is cut off by frost. If much water remains about the roots during winter, there will be more expansion and contraction by frost, and the tender roots will be more torn and broken thereby. We would recommend thorough under-draining for all ground on which fruit trees are to grow. The ground may, however, be dra ned subsequently by running drains between the rows of trees.

Contrasts.

How beautiful is sunshine
That follows after rain!
How pleasant are the dreams of ease
When purchased by a pain!
How sweet true love quarrels
To make it up again!

How merry is the streamlet
That has a rock to leap;
How blessed is the daily toil
That brings refreshing sleep;
Then perjury, Love, a quarrel,
But neither long nor deep.

How dull would would be the morning,
Had night not got before!
How tame would be the summer days
Were't not for winter hour!
And were our life all pleasure,
Delight would be no more!

After the dark, the dawning—
After the cool, the heat—
After the rain, the buds of spring—
After sour, the sweet—
And after all the shiding,
Behold me at thy feet!

Musings.

Coming events when stealing nigh
Their shadows cast before them,
And half reveal to human hearts
The fate impending o'er them.

How oft we've seen those shadows fall
Along the path we trod,
And found how false were all the hopes
That centered not in God.

More pictures on the shifting sands,
We trace them day by day,
Altho' we know each ebbing tide
Will wash them all away.

Those meteor lights that cross the skies,
And for an instant glow,
Are not more fleeting than the joys
We count on here below.

The plans of life on which we spend
The soul's exalted power,
And toil and labor for through years,
May vanish in an hour.

The trusted friend so often false!
And cold the idolized!
The ones we hope we cherish most
So seldom realized!

Those are the clouds that sometimes cross
The noon of our career,
To teach if we would be taught,
How vain are all things here!

To wean our heart from worldly ways
In mercy they are given,
For while they dim our course on earth,
They light the way to heaven.

The New Carpet.

"I can hardly spare it, Jane; but as you have set your heart upon it, why I suppose I must."

The young wife looked with rapture upon the shining gold pieces.

"Twenty pounds," said she to herself, "how rich it makes me feel. It seems a great deal to pay for a carpet; but, 'gold is worth gold,' as the old saying is, and one good purchase is worth a dozen poor ones. I'll buy one of the very finest and most beautiful Brussels."

Afternoon came; the rosy babe was laid asleep in his little cradle, and the maid received a score of charges to linger by its side every moment till the darling woke up. Jane, flushed with eager anticipation, looked her prettiest; and throwing her mantilla over her handsome shoulders, she was just hurrying away, when a loud ring at the door brought out a very peevish "O dear!" at the unexpected intrusion.

"O, Jane—dear Jane!" and a pale creature sat panting on the sofa. "We are in such trouble—such a dreadful trouble!—Can you help us? Do you think we could borrow twenty pounds? You know you said I might always rely upon you when trial came; and poor Charles expects every moment to be arrested, and he is so ill!"

"Dear, dear!" said Jane, her good heart suddenly contracting; "Edward told me, only this morning, not to ask him for any more for three months;" and she gathered her purse up tightly in her handkerchief, "I'm sure if I—only could oblige you, I would; but I expect Edward is really pushed. Can't you get it elsewhere? Have you tried?"

"Yes," answered her friend, despondingly, "I've tried everywhere. People know that Charles is ill and cannot repay immediately. Mr. J——, knows our circumstances, yet he insists upon that money. Oh, it is so hard!"

Her pitiful voice, and the big tears running like rain down her pallid cheeks, almost unnerved Jane's selfishness. But that carpet—that beautiful carpet she had promised herself so long, and so often been disappointed of its possession, that she could not give up. She knew her husband's heart—and that he would urge her to self denial. No! she would not see him—if she did it was all over with the carpet.

"Well," said her poor friend, in a desponding voice, rising to go, "I'm sorry you can't help me; I know you would if you could, and its something to know that—but I go back with a heavy heart. Good morning, dear Jane; I hope you will never know what it is to want and suffer."

How handsome the new carpet looked as the sun streamed on its wreathed flowers, its colors of fawn and blue, and crimson, its soft velvety richness—and how proud felt Jane at the lavish praises of her neighbors. It was a bargain, too; she had saved six pounds in its purchase, and bought a pair of vases for the window-recess.

"I declare," said her husband, "this looks like comfort; but it spoils all my pleasure to think of poor Charley Somers. The poor fellow is dead."

Jane gave a sharp scream, and the flush faded from her face.

"Yes! that rascally J——! For the paltry sum of twenty pounds, he arrested Charles who ruptured a blood vessel, and lived scarcely an hour afterwards. You know he has been weak and ill this long while."

"And Mary?" issued from Jane's bloodless lips.

"She has a dead child; and they tell me her life is despaired of. Why on earth didn't they send to me? I could easily have spared the money for that purpose. If it had stripped me of the last guinea they should have had it.—Poor fellow—poor Mary."

"And I might have saved it—all! shrieked Jane, sinking upon her knees on the rich carpet. "Oh, Edward, will God ever forgive me for my heartlessness! Mary did call here, and with tears begged me to aid her—and I, I had the whole sum in my very hand and coldly turned her away. Oh, my God, forgive me, forgive me."

In the very agony of grief, poor Jane would receive no comfort. In vain her husband strove to soothe her, she would not hear a word inextenuation of her selfish conduct.

"I shall never forget her sad voice; Oh, take it away—that hateful carpet! I have purchased it with the death of my dearest friend! How could I be so cruel! I shall never be happy again, never—never!"

Years have passed since then, and Mary with her husband lie together under the green sod of the churchyard. Jane has grey hairs mixed with the light brown of her tresses; but she lives in a home of splendor, and Mary a gentle Mary in her household, dear to her as her own sweet children—she is the orphan child of those who have laid side by side for ten long years.

Edward is rich; but prosperity has not hardened his heart. His hand never tires of giving out bounty to the poor; and Jane is the guardian angel of the needy. The "new carpet," long since old, is sacredly preserved as a momento of sorrowful but penitent hours; and many a weary heart owes to its silent influence the prosperity that has turned want's wilderness into an Eden of plenty.

An Impertinent Juryman.

An Arkansas correspondent of the New Orleans Picayune gives the following as authentic:—

You Lousianians are all fond of cracking jokes at the expense of Arkansas. Now, here is one on your State, absolutely true, I got it from an eye witness:

The District Court in one of your northern parishes was in session, 'twas the first day of the court; time, after dinner. Lawyers and others had dined, and were sitting out before the hotel, and a long, lank, unsophisticated countryman came up and made himself one of 'em, and remarked: 'Gentlemen, I wish you would go on with this court, for I want to go home; I left Betsy a looking out.'

'Ah!' said one of the lawyers, 'and pray, sir, what detains you at court?'

'Why, sir,' said the countryman, 'I am forced here as a jury, and they say if I go home they will have to fine me, and they would'nt do that, as I live a good piece.'

'What jury are you on?' asked a lawyer.

'What jury?'

'Yes, what jury? Grand or traverse jury?'

'Grand or travis jury? Dad-fetched if I know?'

'Well,' said the lawyer, 'did the judge charge you?'

'Well, squire,' said he, 'the little fellow that sits up in the pulpit and kinder bosses it over the crowd, gin us a talk, but I don't know whether he charged anything or not.'

The crowd broke up in a roar of laughter, and the Sheriff called court.

Ghosts at the Opera.

The following "true story" is related by a Parisian journalist:—

A few evenings since, a box in the first tier at the opera was observed to be empty, though the entire house, with this exception, was crowded to excess. Two spectators, who had not seats to their liking, went to the door of this box, but could not obtain admission. The ouvreuse, who has charge of opening and shutting the box doors, insisted the box held but five, and that the five were within.

The gentlemen regained their seats fully determined to lay their complaint before the chef de controle. With this view, they begged those around them to observe that the box was empty.

"Perfectly empty," cried all, unanimously.

But just then, as all were gazing, what was their terror at beholding a white hand, apparently detached from any body, moving along the edge of the box, and holding an ivory opera glass. This hand, isolated and flitting about in the darkness, produced a terrible effect. The two gentlemen, pale with surprise and affright, remained immovable and speechless. Presently, other white hands made their appearance, one of them holding a white handkerchief, and going through the motions, as if wiping a forehead.

The house was, of course, very dimly lighted, which aided the excitement and delusion. But no sooner was the gas turned on, then those nearest to the mysterious box burst into a shout of laughter. The occupants of the box were five negroes, completely dressed in black, with their coats buttoned up, elegantly gloved in white.—Hidden by the darkness, they had remained invisible in the shades of their "loge," or "open box!"

A Thrilling Incident.

Some years since, writes a correspondent, we were a student of medicine in a neighboring State, and with a number of associates and highly respected class-mates, were attending a course of private lectures under the direction and instruction of a gentleman of extensive experience and unsurpassed scientific attainments and skill. During the course medical and surgical cases were investigated, prescribed for, and lectured on before the class, clinical demonstrations and lectures at private houses, and dissections whenever subjects could be, by any means whatever, obtained. We were assembled one dark stormy evening in the lecture room. A lecture by the professor of the theory and practice of Medicine was progressing when a feeble rap on the outer door was heard.—The porter whose duty it was to attend and answer, and report all business calls, immediately announced a man in waiting, and that he had a body in his waggon under the shed, and if the professor or the students wished one fresh from the grave, and but recently deceased, he would dispose of it at a fair compensation. A bargain was at once made, the price demanded, $30, was paid, and the body deposited on the table.

The lecture was of course interrupted, but as soon as this matter was disposed of the lecture proceeded. At the close of the lecture it was proposed and disrobed of grave clothes, and lo, behold the body of a young lady, even in death, of surpassing beauty and seemed, on the first view, more in a state of calm and placid sleep than of death, and involuntarily all were still and hush as the grave from which the body was taken, lest she should be awakened from pleasant dreams. No sculptor could mould, or imagination conceive of a form more beautiful more perfect than that angelic form before us. No member of the class could raise the knife as a token for commencing the task of dissection. No one could mark or mar a form so lovely! But horror of horrors! One of our most intelligent and promising associates, whose attention had been diverted during the act of uncovering the body, took his place at the table. And shall we ever forget the heart-rending scene that followed? No, Never!

This young man was about closing his course of study, and had promised his heart and hand to an interesting young lady in a neighboring village, fondly expecting, as soon as he could establish himself in business to be united to her in marriage. But about one week prior to this evening, after a short sickness, she died, and it was her body that was on the table before us! The first glance on the remains of this lovely female, by this student, he recognised it, and with a most unearthly groan and a shriek, fell to the floor, and at that moment his reason took its flight, never to return; that moment he was left a wreck of departed intelligence and promising greatness. Until death closed the scene, he was a raving maniac.—State of Maine.

Miscellany.

At a meeting of the local committee of the Provincial Show, which was held on Friday last, in Brantford, at the Kerby House, it was decided, after examining various sites, that 20 acres of the Kerby Tract, situated on the hill above the railway depot, and west of the residence of Mr. Sproules, is the most suitable place for the show.—Leader.

The Halifax Morning Chronicle, Feb. 28th says:—

"The failure of the mackerel fishery last fall has entailed a heavy loss on Nova Scotia, and cannot fail to have the effect of enhancing the prices of herring during the present season; the latter are by no means superabundant in the Provincial markets.

WORTH KNOWING—Nearly all brave men have been of a finely organized and therefore, nervous temperament. Julius Cæsar was nervous, so was Bonaparte, so was Nelson. The Duke of Wellington saw a man turn pale as he marched up to the battery. 'That,' he said, 'is a brave man; he knows his danger and faces it.'

LOOK UP.—Here is a good moral under the guise of a fable: "A young man once picked up a sovereign in the road. Ever afterwards as he walked along, he kept his eyes fixed steadily on the ground, in hopes of finding another. And in the course of a long life he did pick up gold and silver. But in all these years, while he was looking for them he saw not the heavens were bright above him, and nature beautiful around. He never once allowed his eyes to look up from the mud and filth in which he sought the treasure; and when he died a rich old man, he only knew this fair earth of ours as a dirty road in which to pick up money as you walk along.

Woman like ivy—the more you are ruined, the closer she clings to you. A vile old bachelor adds—Ivy is like woman—the closer it clings to you, the more you are ruined. Poor rule that won't work both ways —Knock down the bachelor!

WONDERFUL POWER OF STEAM.—Some gentleman on board the steamer Diamond, the other day, were conversing about the wonderful power of steam, the great facilities it had given to travelling, &c. One gentleman remarked that a man might leave New York in the morning and arrive the same night in Baltimore, thus being in five States in one day.

"Only five, is it ye say?" said an Irishman present, "and it's meself who was in nine States on Monday last."

The company were incredulous, and called on Paddy to explain how such a thing could be possible, which he did as follows:

"Well see gintlemen, I was marriedin New York last Monday Morning at six o'clock, and went with my dear Bridget to Baltimore the same day; and sure before I got there, I was after getting drunk as a baste. So ye persave I was in the State of New York, the State of Sobriety, the State of Single Blessedness, the State of New Jersey, the State of Connubial Felicity, (that's what we call matrimony,) the State of Delaware, the State of Maryland, and the State of Intoxication all in one day, and the whole of which was owing to the wonderful power of steam."

A WELSHMAN'S ADVICE.—Think before thou speakest—1st, What thou shall speak? 2nd, Why thou shouldst speak? 3rd, To whom thou mayest have to speak? 4th, About whom thou art going to speak? 5th, What will become of what thou mayest speak? 6th, What may be the benefit of what thou shalt speak? 7th, Who may be listening to what thou shalt speak? Put thy words on thy fingers, and before thou speakest turn these seven ways, and there never shall come any harm of what thou speakest.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—In chronic dyspepsia, where the stomach has become callous to all ordinary remedies, and stimulants fail either to provoke appetite or facilitate digestion, these Pills, by their multaneous action upon the fluids which dissolve, assimilate and adapt to the purposes of nutrition the food taken into the system, will quickly impart a healthy tone to to whole physical machinery. Indigestion, and all its concomitants and consequences, including general debility, liver complaint, nausea, pains between the shoulders, headach, low spirits a feeling of oppression after meals, sleeplessness, languor, flatulence, bowel complaint, etc., are among the ailments invariably cured by a course of his inestimable remedy.

The Prototype says that at the meeting held in London for the purpose of considering the advisability of petitioning for the establishment of a District Lunatic Asylum in that city, the object was fully approved of. Previous to the close of the meeting a resolution approving of "the proposed change recommended by the government in abolishing the lunatic asylum tax and supporting that institution out of the provincial revenue," was carried without one dissentient voice.

WM. COOPER, a coloured man of Buffalo, himself a fugitive slave, has endeavoured, it is said, to betray his wife—for twenty years legally free—into Slavery. The coloured citizens of Buffalo have, therefore, held a meeting and denounced Cooper declaring that they will not associate with him nor permit him to enter their houses; and that they will discountenance any coloured person who shall hereafter associate with him or permit him on their premises.

A good story is told of a Yankee who went for the first time in a bowling alley, and kept firing away at the pins to the imminent peril of the boy, who so far from having anything to do in "setting up" the pins, was actively engaged in endeavoring to avoid the balls of the player, which rattled on all sides of the pins without touching them. At length the fellow, seeing the predicament the boy was in, yelled out, as he let drive another ball, "stand in among the pins if you don't want to get hit!"

"Class in middle geography stand up What is a pyramid?" A pile of men in a circus, one top t'other." "Where is Egypt! "Where it allers was." "Where is that, my son?' Dunno, sir." Go down to the foot, you scoundrel!"

THE BATTLE OF LIFE.—A perpetual conflict with natural desires seems to be the lot of our present state. In youth we require something of the tardiness and rigidity of age; and in age we must labor to recall the fire and impetuosity of youth; in youth we must learn to expect, in age to enjoy.

Two young ladies, the other day were discussing the important question whether a certain gentleman wore any beard. One of them exclaimed: "I know he has, for it pricked my cheek!" What an indisreet admission!

A HAPPY FIRESIDE.—Home is the residence not merely of the body, but of the heart; it is a place for the affections to unfold and develop themselves: for children to love and learn and play in; for husband and wife to toil smilingly together, and make life a blessing. The object of all ambition should be to be happy at home; if we are not happy there, we can not be happy elsewhere. It is the best proof of the virtues of a family circle to see a happy fireside.

LEIGH HUNT says—Those who have lost an infant are never, as it were, without an infant child. They are the only persons who in one sense, retain it always, and they furnish other persons with the same idea. The other children grow up to manhood and womanhood, and suffer all the changes of mortality, this one alone is rendered an immortal child."

Arrival of the Alps.

PALMERSTON MINISTRY DEFEATED!

BOSTON, March 20.

The steam propeller Alps arrived with Liverpool dates to 4th. Her news is important.

The steamer Africa arrived out on the 2nd instant, and City of Baltimore on the 3rd.

Treaty of Peace has been signed at Paris between England and Persia.

In the House of Commons, after a protonged debate, ministry, (Tuesday night, 3rd.) were defeated on motion of Mr. Cobden, disapproving the bombardment of Canton, having been carried by 16 majority.— The vote stood 263 against 247. It is thought Palmerston will resign or dissolve Parliament at once.

Sir J. F. Crampton, late Minister to the United States has been appointed Minister to the King of Hanover.

Hong Kong dates by the Oriental are to Jan. 16th. There appears to have been no further operations against Canton.

CHINESE ATTACK ON BRITISH SHIPPING.

Despatches from Sir John Bowring and Admiral Seymour give accounts of the attempts made to retake Keytoum Fort, and of an attack on the British shipping by a vast number of Chinese junks. The attack was well concerted, and made at low water, when the large men of-war could not safely manœuvre, but it was brilliantly repelled.

Sir Michael Seymour had thought to abandon his post at Dutch Folly and the Factory Ga dens, and had strengthened his position at the forts lower down the river.

The details of the massacre of Europeans on board the Mistole were also communicated in these despatches.

On January 12th, the whole of the suburbs west of Canton was burnt by the British forces. A large fire had also taken place inside of the city.

PROCLAMATION OF MANDARINS TO ASSASSINATE EUROPEANS.A

The Mandarins have issued a proclamation in various districts against the English and have offered large rewards to those who may succeed in assassination or incendiary in Hong Kong. The Chinese have been ordered to quit the service of foreigners and return to their homes, and so powerful is the Mandarin system that disobedience entails much trouble, if not positive destruction, on the relatives of the offender. The consequence is that nearly all the Chinese servants have left or are leaving.

PARIS, March 8.—The treaty with Persia was signed here to-day.

CANTON IN FLAMES—TRADE WITH THE ENGLISH PROHIBITED.

The latest report from Canton asserts that the fire kindled by the bombardment had spread into the city, which was one sheet of flame when the overland mail left.

The Paris Journal says:—We learn by letters from China, under date of Dec. 15th, that the Court of Pekin has published a decree prohibiting all subjects of the Celestial Empire from trading with the English. Disobedience is to be punished with death.

Yesterday's Gazette officially advances the news that the Persian war is at an end.

The Paris correspondent of the Morning Post writes on Monday evening:—The basis of treaty between Persia, and England are not yet signed. Hostilities are suspended, but there is no regular armistice. No representations have been or will be made at Teheran, by friendly Powers, until the bonds of the treaty are signed.

The Spanish Minister has addressed a note to the representatives of Spain at the European Courts, explaining the quarrel with Mexico.

The expedition to come astrain at Havana will, altogether, consist of 30 vessels of war, with a numerous army on board.

The Spanish Government deplores the necessity of resorting to such measures towards a nation united to Spain in blood, language and religion, and hopes everybody will understand the obligation it is under to avenge the national dignity.

A Hamburg letter of Saturday, Feb. 28, says merchan s here have received private news from Hong Kong and Singapore by the overland mail of a very satisfactory description. The bombardment and confiagration of Canton had excited the Chinese to a general movement against all Europeans, and the Chinese populace were beginning to show a courage quite unwonted, and from which danger is to be apprehended.

The movement was not confined to them alone but had become visible at Singapore.

The English and German residents of Singapore have been obliged to arm them selves against attacks in the street from the infuriated Chinese, who were joined by the Malays.

The Hamburgher Borsen Halle states positively it has received advices from Hong Kong to 2 o'clock p.m., 15, per steamer Madras.

The fire produced in the outskirts of Canton by the British bombardment had extended itself to the city, and the latter had become one sheet of flame.

LONDON, March 3.—The ten market has again advanced to-day, and 2 a 1d per pound has been paid for 5,000 chests of common Congou.

A letter from Paris states that the Neufchatel affair is not improving, and from what we can hear, all the parties concerned are in a very bad humour with each other.

The Emperor Napoleon cannot but feel mortified at being duped by the King of Prussia.

Central America.

The N. Y. Daily Times of Tuesday, says:—

"We understand that letters from reliable sources in Costa Rica, have been received by the George Law, putting an entirely different complexion upon the news which had previously reached us from Col. Lockbridge.

"It is stated that the engagement at Hippa' Point amounted to nothing at all, and that the Costa Ricans retired in perfectly good order,—losing no arms and suffering no defeat. It was believed that they had withdrawn in pursuance of a pre-arranged plan, to permit Col. Lockbridge to go up the river as far as Castillo, and then to cut off his retreat. The report that Castillo had been taken is said to be wholly without foundation,—nor had Col. Lockbridge captured 400 rifles, as was previously reported. The Costa Ricans are very confident that an attack upon San Carlos, if made by the American force, will be repulsed, as this fort is well defended; and it is then designed to cut off the retreat of the assailants, and prevent their joining any reinforcements that may arrive from the United States. Nothing decisive or very reliable, in regard to these matters, can be known until the arrival of the Tennessee, which will be due here in about a week. The letter which we publish this morning signed "The Voice of Nicaragua," will be found to present in a very strong light the views of those who oppose the Walker movement, and contains information of decided value in forming a judgement of the actual state of affairs in that country. The S. L. Stephens, what was to leave San Francisco a few hours later than the Sierra Nevada, would it is said, carry down 200 recruits for General Walker.

Interview of the New British Minister with the President.

WASHINGTON, March 16th, 1857.

Lord Napier was at one o'clock to day introduced to the President by General Cass and presented his credentials as Minister from England.

Lord Napier, in addressing the President as the Envoy of her Britannic Majesty, said he was instructed to convey to him the earnest desire maintained by the Queen to preserve and advance on all occasions the interests and happiness of the people of England and America, which are so deeply involved in their amicable intercourse, and to manifest to him the hearty good wishes which her Majesty cherishes for the prosperity of the United States. He ventures to congratulate the President on his accession to the highest elective position in this country and the world saying:—"May you enjoy it in health, peace and ever increasing honour, and may the period of your government be distinguished by all the features of public welfare. Permit me (he continued) to express to you my gratification in being selected to renew and avow at Washington those relations of international friendship which have been so ably sustained by your representative in London. This important and grateful duty might have been committed to other more capable of doing justice to the sentiments of benevolence which animate my sovereign, her ministers, and every order of her subjects: but no one could approach your excellency with greater respect for your person and your office, or a warmer good will to the American people."

Lord Napier then delivered the credential letter which her Majesty had been graciously pleased to intrust to his care.

The President in reply, offered to Lord Napier hearty welcome as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from her Britannic Majesty to the United States.

Your sovereign (he said) I am convinced, could not have selected a more acceptable presentive than yourself to renew those relations of international friendship which, I trust, may never be interrupted. The earnest and gracious desire expressed by her Majesty to preserve and advance upon all occasions, the interest and happiness of England and America, and the hearty good wishes which her Majesty cherishes for the prosperity of the United States, are cordially reciprocated on my part, and will elicit an enthusiastic response from the hearts of the American people. No independent powers have ever been bound together by material interests of such magnitude as those which bind the people of Great Britain and the United States. Indeed, the prosperity of the one is necessarily involved in that of the other; but mutual interests, however vast, without mutual regard, are not always sufficient to preserve friendship between nations. How happy, then, and it to receive the assurance from your sovereign, her ministers, and every order of her subjects are animated by sentiments of benevolence towards the government and people of the United States. During my administration it shall be my agreeable duty as well as my earnest desire to improve the friendship and mutual good will now so happily subsisting between the two countries, and to render these sentiments strong and enduring. With such sincere and heartfelt dispositions on both sides, should difficulties ever arise between the two governments, they will be easily adjusted in a spirit of mutual forbearance and concessions. I return your lordship my thanks for your kind expressions and wishes in reference to myself, and feel confident that in our future intercourse we shall proceed harmoniously and satisfactorily in discharging our respective duties.

SANDWICH, MARCH 20, 1857.

SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

The ministerial measure for referring the subject of fixing the locality for the permanent Seat of Government, to the Imperial authorities has been under discussion in the House. And from the various sectional interests that are affected by the measure it would appear that it would almost be impossible for the Legislature to come to a decision upon the matter, that is to choose a position. That the country is in favour of having a permanent seat established, the different divisions when the matter was under discussion shows plainly the feeling is in its favour, and we are inclined to think that they have adopted the most judicious course in leaving the matter to an independent arbitrator whose only interest can be that for our benefit. This will have the effect of bringing the matter to a close, for as long as the question is kept for a decision before the Legislature—no decision will be come to, and the same perambulating system carried on for years.

We give below the division upon the numerous amendments to the motion of the Attorney General, to go into Committee of the whole.

We will take the motions of last evening in the order in which they were put. First in order came that of Mr. LORAINGER, which in amendment to Mr. Dorion's, affirmed the expediency of selecting Montreal as the permanent Seat of Government. This was negatived by the following overwhelming majority: Yeas, 33; Nays, 75.

Following this was Mr. DORION's motion, which, affirming as it did, the power and capacity of the Provincial Legislature to deal with all motions of purely local concern was, as we predicted, well sustained. But still, so strongly runs the feeling of Parliament in favor of a final disposition of the question at issue, that even so popular a motion as this was voted down by the following decided majority:—Yeas, 53; Nays, 63.

Thus, then, upon the main question, whether it is expedient to refer the matter of selecting a permanent capital to England, the voice of Parliament is so directly with the Ministry, that there is no longer room to doubt the wisdom of their policy, nor to cavil at the alleged infringement of the conceded right of local self government.

Succeeding the motion of Mr. DORION was a foolish and ill-timed amendment by Mr. PATRICK, asserting the claims of the young City of Ottawa. This unfortunate motion was discountenanced—as Mr. POWELL and other Ottawa members predicted it would be, by the following disheartening majority:—Yeas, 10; Nays, 101.

So much for Ottawa, which so far as its geographical position is concerned, we are free to admit has claims inferior to few places in the Province—and which but for Mr. PATRICK's ill-advised motion, might have been represented at the fest of the Throne at least as well as any other city, yet named in connection with the Seat of Government.

Succeeding Mr. PATRICK's motion was one by Mr. MASSON, in favor of Quebec, to which an amendment was moved by Mr. ALLEYN, and lost on the following division:—Yeas, 44; Nays, 70.

Following this was Mr. CAMERON's motion, affirming the expediency of continuing the perambulating system, which was negatived as follows:—Yeas, 33; Nays, 80.

Then followed a motion by Mr. FELTON, declaring in favor of Kingston, which gave for that city the subjoined vote:—Yeas, 27; Nays, 84.

The chances of Toronto were measured by a motion of Mr. CLARKE's which fell through by a vote as follows:—Yeas, 30; Nays, 81.

Mr MASSON's motion, in favor of Quebec was then put with the following result:—Yeas, 14; Nays, 100.

A SCENE WORTHY OF RECORD.

The parties in these presents, we will suppose, live in the good old town of Amherstburg—we say, suppose to live there; if they do not, they no doubt live somewhere.—Well, we will take it for granted that they do, and therefore the plot will be laid there. Amherstburg, we all know, lies upon the Detroit River, about fifteen miles, more or less, from Sandwich, the County Town of Essex. In the last-named Town is a Gaol, as many may also know, if not from experience, by some other means. From said gaol escaped, a short time ago an individual whom we will designate as JULIUS CÆSAR. This person is possessed of a somewhat dark complexion; and having come from the sunny South, as they say all coloured gentlemen do, and having, in times of yore fled from bondage, did not relish the idea of being held in durance vile in this free and enlightened land—this Canada, where none are slaves. Well, then, nothing could be more natural than that Julius should attempt to breathe the pure air without the iron bars. This, thanks to the somewhat insecure state of the old cage, was not a difficult matter to accomplish; so Julius bid adieu to the Sheriff and all his other friends on one fine night, and betook himself to the neighborhood of Amherstburg, where, like a bird escaped, he soared fearlessly through the sunny fields nigh unto that Burg, than which few will surpass in beauty.

Having provided himself with a snug little roost, where nothing, as he supposed would disturb his quiet rest, lived alone to enjoy the sweets of liberty, which being stolen, were all the sweeter.

Alas! could he not thus be permitted to live on? No. Constables there are in the aforesaid Town, who in their anxiety for justice, and being no doubt persuaded thereto by the High Sheriff of Essex, must needs disturb him in the enjoyment of his quiet. There was Caleb Hancuff, the chief, and Hazel Fizzle, the next in command, with two others specially enlisted for the occasion, sallied forth, armed with staves and Colt's sixwinkes, carrying with them all the majesty which the law allowed, in their grim visages, marched to do battle with Julius, and if possible to bring his body, dead or alive, unto the prison of our county. They accordingly took up their line of march for the roost of Julius, and when arrived within a convenient distance, halted and placed themselves in battle array.—Caleb Hancuff, as commander of the forces, proceeded to demand the body of Julius Cæsar, in the name of our high and gracious Sovereign, with warrant to seize and detain the body of said Julius Cæsar, a fugitive from the grip of the law. Caleb being endowed with a large degree of deportment, bowed, and with oily words and most persuasive countenance, desired to possess himself of the prize, and did his utmost to persuade one Lucinda Wrinkle, a good old dame of more than eighty summers, from whose countenance the friction of time could not remove the gloss of a deep jet black—the same colour that had shone so brightly in younger days, had not bleached with the dews of ages.

Lucinda Wrinkle was too old a bird to be caught with chaff; therefore, in the simplicity of her heart, demanded to see the warrant which was to deprive her of the companionship of her Julius.

"Warrant!" says Caleb Hancuff, fumbling in his pocket. "Warrant, did you say?"

"Yes; warrant. I demand to see your warrant."

"Hold! I have it." Then thrusting his hand into the last pocket, what was the state of his feelings when he discovered that in the hurry of preparation he had forgotten it. "Alas," he exclaimed; "I have no warrant. It is at home"

"Then, avaunt!" said she; "or I'll riddle you like a sieve." And suiting the action to the word, she seized a good old musket, that had, no doubt, sent many a deadly messenger to the unwelcome foe.

"Oh!" cried Caleb. "You would not kill me, one in her Majesty's service! I promise thee, that no harm shall come, provided you spare my life. It is not for you I came; it was for one Julius Cæsar."

"I tell thee, wretch, that there is no Julius Cæsar here; and if he were, this gun of mine would guard him from the touch of Caleb Hancuff; so I tell thee, go." And cocking the old gun with a truly military air, soon brought the commander to a true sense of his position; and not feeling disposed to part with life just then, took to his heels and run. Now it so happened, that Caleb had provided himself with a pair of iron wristers, with which he would have made Julius fast, if he could. These were in the same pocket with a little flask, commonly called a pocket pistol, wherewith the spirits were occasionally refreshed; and well it was so, for the night being exceedingly dark, Caleb and his companions in arms would have parted company, when he called upon them to follow their leader and beat an inglorious retreat.

The said iron wristers and the pocket pistol in the pocket of Caleb, did good service, by making a rattle, which served as a guide for the rest of the force in the retreat; for so dark was the night, and so rapid the flight of the commander, that they would, without doubt, have been lost in the confusion of the flight that followed their exit.

Lucinda Wrinkle being somewhat elated with her conquest, shouted after her retreating foes, with all her might and main, "that to the victors belong the spoils. Julius is therefore safe in her hands.

THE WOODSTOCK SPIRIT OF THE TIMES.—

ESSEX BUILDING SOCIETY.

The Seventy sixth loan and a Special Meeting will be held at the Secretary Treasurer's Office, at half past three o'clock, P. M. on Wednesday, first of April, 1857, to elect two Directors in place of Messrs Grillot and Kennedy, said out of the Society.

☞ We would call attention to the advertisement in another column of the Sandwich Foundry, where Ploughs of Superior Manufacture can be obtained upon the most reasonable terms.

The stock on hand is large and varied, and Farmers are advised to encourage home enterprise.

THE RAILWAY ACCIDENT.—IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

We are informed by telegraph from Hamilton, that the locomotive has been raised from the bed of the canal to the level of the water, wheels uppermost, and that it has been discovered that the front wheel of the truck was broken off at the shoulder inside bearing. This confirms the statements made by the company's officers, and substantiated by the state of the rails and track, that there was a break down before the engine reached the bridge.

The new bridge was tested with three heavy English engines attached, and there was hardly the slightest vibration perceptible. It seems remarkably strong.

Provincial Parliament,

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

TUESDAY, 17th March.

Mr. RANKIN—Before the vote was given upon this question was desirous of saying a few words. He desired to avail himself of this opportunity of expressing his opinion upon the general policy of the government. Whenever this question had come up he had freely expressed his regret that the government were not prepared to take the responsibility of this important question upon their own shoulders, and at once advise upon the movement upon the site which should be adopted, and he (Mr. R.) was still of opinion that it behove the government to take upon themselves the responsibility of tendering that advice. These were circumstances, however, which led him to look upon their course with some degree of levity, and that feeling had arisen from the fact that they have shown a disposition to approximate to a more liberal and enlarged policy than what had formerly governed them, thus giving hopes that they propose for the future to turn their attention from small things to grapple with some of those larger questions which hitherto had stood in abeyance. He would instance the speech from the throne, containing that question of deep and paramount importance to Canada, the Hudson's Bay territory. It had been disputed as to who should have the credit of having originated this movement, and whether it had proceeded from this or that side of the house; but it was sufficient to know that the government had taken the initiative in this matter. He was well aware that a gentleman now in the government was the first to take this question up; and therefore the plank was not stolen, as had been so frequently and so erroneously stated. Another subject he (Mr. R.) had urged upon the attention of the government, and which they had subsequently taken up, was a subject of the greatest importance, he alluded to the improvement of the Ottawa, and he was glad that the advisers of the crown had turned their attention to subjects of so much importance, and he had no doubt if those improvements were followed up, they would be attended with most beneficial results, and he trusted that the matter would not be allowed to fall to the ground. A good deal of fault had been found with the government, and where there was reason, parties were perfectly justified, but fault finding was an easier task than suggesting a proper course to be adopted, and there was this advantage, to the fault-finders had no responsibility resting upon their shoulders. Taking a pretty close observation of what had transpired during the recess, he would observe that he took his view not as a party man, but as one determined to support that party who would put any selfish end of his own in view—viewing the spirit of faction which had been so rife during the recess, he had come to a conclusion very different to what he had adopted last session, when he had with some others taken up with the endeavours to outset the Government from their position.

The SPEAKER here interposed and said, that the hon. gentleman could not be permitted to enter upon matters which were not connected with the resolution before the house.

Mr. RANKIN continued that he was of opinion that the government had evinced a great want of strength in referring this question of the seat of government to England. He did not think, however, that any satisfactory vote could be arrived at in that house, constituted as it was; and the house should have been dissolved and appeal made to the people. However, as that course had not been taken—as the present course of sending it to England had been adopted—a good deal of jealous feelings would be thought, be avoided. There was another view of the subject as connected with the great question of the Hudson's Bay Territory; for when that was decided it would be a matter for consideration of the Imperial authorities if the seat of government should be fixed at Toronto or at Pentanguishene. (Loud laughter.) It would be in a measure of deep consideration taken in connection with the proposed ultimate union of the whole of the North American provinces, and that great question was of far greater importance than either the Hudson's Bay Territory or the seat of government, Montreal, Quebec or Toronto.—But as he had given notice of bringing up that subject before the house he would not now discuss it. He was further of opinion that an appeal to the country would not be effectual, as instead of retaining members to settle that question of the seat of government, out of every 100 members returned 50 of them would come back prepared to vote upon a representation by population. Then again it would be just possible that the Attorney and Solicitor Generals next may agree upon a measure, but it would be different with the learned gentleman from the Lower Province, as they doubtless would support their own locality. Viewing all these difficulties he was quite disposed to vote for the division of Her Majes y, and should vote against the amendment.

ADJOURNED DEBATE ON THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

The house resumed the furt er consideration of the amendment proposed by Mr. A. A. DORION to the question, that the Speaker do now leave the chair for the house to go into committee to consider certain propo-ed resolutions relative to the selection of a permanent seat of government;) and which amend ent was "That in the opinion of this house the reference of a question of purely local interest, such as selection of a permanent seat of government undoubtedly is, to Her Majesty, to be decided by her without the advice of Her Provincial Parliament, or of ministers responsible thereto, would be at variance with the principles of local self government, so long contended for by the people of this province, and the full recognition of which has been productive of the most happy results," and Mr. Loranger's am-ndment to Mr. Dorion's, "that the proposed amendment be by striking out all after the motion, but that it be resolved, that, in the opinion of this house, Montreal should be the Capital of Canada, and that the seat of government should be permanently fixed there at."

Mr. RANKIN declared himself prepared to come to the rescue of the government because they had of late evinced considerable courage. Hitherto he had opposed them because he thought they did not show sufficient animation. He held that resolution—self reliance in their own judgment and determination to carry on their measures, were highly requisite and to be admired in all public men who appealed to the public for support. When he (Mr. R.) addressed the house the other night he intimated his intention of assenting to the views and policy of the government, and at the same time he had intimated that there was a present difficulty, that however had been removed. The view he took of this question was that the settlement, by reference to an impartial umpire, was the only way to settle the difficulty, and such was the one he trusted her Majesty would also take on the question.—Scarcely a single gentleman had addressed the house but had spoken of the question as one beset with great difficulty. His honfriend the member for Toronto, whose speeches he [Mr. R.] always listened to with great pleasure, himself stated that he would support the alternate system because he found the other question surrounded by difficulties. Yet the permanent seat of government was fixed, but unfortunately the money could not be had, and therefore looking at the course on that question taken by his gentlemen around him, he viewed their vote for the permanent seat of govern was mere bunkum. It had been said that there was scarcely any two members of the government but what took different views of this question on account of their leanings to that side which may be most acceptable to their constituents; but the same may be said of hon. gentlemen on his side of the house, and such being the position of the house, they had not been able to come to any rational conclusion. He [Mr. R.] expected an independent position to be taken by hon. gentlemen looking for place, power or pay, inde-d nothing would induce him to take upon himself the present deep responsibility of ministers. After all the allusions which had been made even by the opposition, he had come to the conclusion that the best course to take to relieve ourselves from these difficulties will be to refer the matter to the decision of her Majesty.—He had further pleasure in supporting the government, because they had promised their aid and assistance in setting question of far more vital importance to the general interests of Canada than even the seat of government question. He would instance the Hudson's Bay Territory question—the improvement of the Ottawa—steamers on the St. Lawrence, and to Liverpool. They had, in fact, promised to turn their attention to all the great questions which he had urged upon them for years, and on this account he would not from any factious feelings oppose them, and regardless of the sneers of individuals or the attacks of the press, he was prepared to support them.—He would gentlemen have recapitulated his reasons, and again defined his position for so supporting the government; because out of six leading questions he had brought under their notice, they had adopted five of them. He concluded by stating that he did not consider the matter so far settled as it ought, until the question, and that her Majesty would refer it back again to Canada; meantime a couple of years would elapse, and in the interim he was not desirous of transferring the government of this province into the hands of a set of fanatics.

A division was then taken on Mr. Dorion's amendment, which was negatived by 63 to 53.

Died.

In this Town, on Thursday last, Charles Edward, youngest son of Mr. Jacob Stultz, of the township of Sandwich, aged 1 year and 5 days.

In the City of Toronto, on the 7th Inst., after a painfull illness, Mrs. Jane Allison, the beloved wife of Mr. Andrew Allison, formerly of Glasgow, Scotland, aged 64.

On Monday evening, 16th instant, at 6 o'clock, all that is mortal of Elizabeth Mary, wife of T. Mercer Jones, Esq., of this town, was borne on its way to the tomb of her family in Toronto. The death of this estimable lady has left a blank in society in Goderich, which will not be easily filled up.—Marrying very young, she came with her husband to live among the settlers and pioneers of Huron, now a more ladies and dispirited lady, dismayed by the loneliness of the backwoods, but as the cheerful wife, mother, and friend. In this her adopted home, Mrs Jones was known, her sterling worth appreciated, and by her equals in social life, as by the humblest but no less respected peasant, her death is sincerely regretted. To all it will be gratifying to learn that her end was peace, in her own words she declared "that of course life is sweet, but I bow my head in humble submission to the will of a Heavenly Father—my spirits were always cheerful, but I have thought deeply on this day. Surrounded by kind friends, and her spiritual necessities ministered to her by her pastor and her own affectionate father, she enjoyed constant communion about heaven and heavenly things, communicating to her Saviour through his most precious sacrament, "Peace be both to thee. Peace to thine house. Peace be unto all that thou hast."—I SAMUEL, XXV.—Huron Signal.

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

Have by the test of experience, become satisfied that Sir Astley Cooper's Pills are composed of simple but powerful curative ingredients; they are at once mild and excellent in every respect that the most delicate lady or tender child may take them with the greatest safety. For bilio s disorders, liver complaints, indigestion, loss of appetite, costiveness, sick-headache, depression of spirits, pains in the back, gravel and lumbago, Sir Astley Co per's Pills will be found a safe and admirable remedy. Invalids should use them immediate trial of this excellent, long-tried and successful medicine.

The citizens of the United States and Canada have found them a friend indeed, to their Liver and Stomach. The Fair Sex, certainly the most handsome in the world, at a certain period lose their teeth and good looks while yet in the prime of life. These evils may be effectually remedied by continually keeping the blood pure, and the liver and stomach in a healthy condition, when life will flow smoothly. To say fearlessly, that health and life may be obtained for years beyond the ordinary limits, if Sir Astley Co per's Pills are taken to purify the blood, in accordance with the directions which accompany each box,

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—To prevent imposition, be sure to ask for the Genuine Sir Astley Cooper's Pills, prepared in London and New York; if you ask for Sir Astley Cooper's Pill only, you will get a spurious compound, which will not have a beneficial effect. The Genuine Pills have an excellent likeness of Sir Astley Cooper on the top of each box; also the fac-simile of the signature of the Proprietors MacPhail & Co. London and New York, on the directions.

Sold at 25 and 50 cents per box, and in family boxes at $1 each. There is a great saving by purchasing the larger size.

Sold by Simpson and Dougall, Druggists, Toronto; John M. Thornton, Dundas; Andrew Oliver Galt; A. H. Cook, Brantford, General Agents, by whom Country Druggists and Dealers will be supplied at London and New York prices.

GREEN'S

GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighbouring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that he can compete with his Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to carry their money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.

HEALTH OR SICKNESS.

CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victim of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endorsements!

The 'American' Horses and four Mile Heats.

(From Bell's Life in London.)

MR. EDITOR: Some months ago I heard that an American gentleman had brought over to this country three horses, and had challenged our Turf men to a race, of four-mile heats, for £5,000 a side. Since then I have seen a paragraph in a sporting paper, published in New York, stating that the "American horses excited great curiosty and interest in England." Wishing to learn something respecting the said horses, I made many inquiries of men owning race horses and connected with the Turf, and I found that so far from "great interest and curiosity in England," respecting these horses existing, the fact was they created no sort of interest here, and few racing men could give me any information about them! I know that the result of the running of these American horses will be looked upon by the Turf men in the United States with the utmost interest; and should a match of four mile heats be made, it will create quite a furore amongst the American racing men. It will be looked upon as a national affair, and the Yankees will bet heavily on the result. Their cry is four-mile heats: best pace from the post; and then, 2 to 1 on the Yankee horse." We, on this side of the water look much more cooly on such matters. We consider the so-called "American horse" to be what it really is, the English blood horse imported into America. The blood in both countries is exactly the same, the only question being whether the English blood horse is improved or deterioated by the climate, food and system of rearing and training in America?

Many people in this and other countries consider that the English blood horse has, of late years, lost much of his fleetness and stamine. This I do not believe. At what period were there such horses as the last few years have produced? The Flying Dutchman, Harkaway, Nirago, Wild Dayrell, Teddington, Stockwell; Rataplan, Kingston, The Hero, Fisherman, Mellissa, Fandango and many others, which in any country but this would be considered "flyers." It cannot be said that because we do not run four mile heats, our horses could not run the distance. All our great stakes are for short distances, and most of them for young horses. Our racing men, therefore breed, rear and train their horses for these great stakes; but only make it worth while for the owners of race horses to keep their horses for longer distances by giving larger purses, and horses would soon be found to run. Four mile heats are with us, considered a barbarity, which went out of fashion about the same time as bull baiting and dog fighting. Some years ago, when on a visit to the United States, I witnessed a four mile race on Long Island Course I write from memory, but think the names of the horses were Black Maria, Trifle, Chance, and a horse I cannot remember;Black Maria, a mare of great power, won the first heat; Trifle, a very small but neat compact horse, won the second: there was then a dead heat between Black Maria and Trifle; the next heat was won by Chance - the next by Black Maria and Trifle having in this heat, broken down. These horses, therefore ran twenty miles, and, I remember, it was one of the hottest days I ever felt. Now, only conceive such an affair coming off at one of our great meetings for a large stake, when there would be 20 or 30 horses to start, for a race of four mile heats! I should be obliged, Mr. Editor, if you would just make a little sort of calculation, and let me know how long you suppose it would take to bring such a proceeding to a close. If the race was commenced on Monday morning early, do you think it would be over by the latest hour of daylight on Saturday evening?

The Turf men in America judge our horses and their own by the test of time. Now this test is another of the antiquated fashions which departed about the period I before mentioned; with all due deference to our Yankee friend's cuteness I have an idea, if he has no better test, he will be "put in the hole." He will also find a vast difference running four mile heats on turf, often deep and sticky, and up and-down hill (as most of our courses are) to four miles over a made track as level and smooth as a billiard table. Idoubt whether we shall see a four mile heat race with those American horses. All our best horses are deeply engaged in handicaps, &c. which races are for about two and a half miles in general. If a match is made, the horse taking it up, must be thrown out of his engagements, and the owner put to great expense in paying forfeits. A horse to run such a race must be prepared for that particular distance, for it would be absurd to run a horse four mile heats, that has been trained to run two and a half, and very likely been racing all the season and become somewhat stale, and then pitted against a horse trained for a long race, fresh and kept for that race only. Of the result of a match viz. four mile heats, with any horse the American produce, I should have but one opinion, and I believe that some of our leather platers would be quite good enough to sew up any I ever saw run in the United States, and a very long residence in that country, and very frequent attendance at their race meetings, gave me a good opportunity to judge. Still it is bad policy to disparage any rival, and Mr Ten Broeck has brought over three of the best horses on the American Turf to contend with us, viz. Lecompte by Boston out of Reel; 6 years old; Pryor by Glencoe out of Gypsy, 4 years old; and Prioress by Sovereign out of Reel, 3 years old. Lecompte has proved himself to be one of the fastest and stoutest horses ever bred in the United States. He has made wonderful time and although beaten by Lexington, is considered by his friends as quite equal to that horse. Lexington is said to be the best horse that ever ran in the United States, that is to say he has made better time than any horse which ever ran there. Boston the sire of Lecompte was for many years the hero of the American Turf; he ran and won more four mile heat races than any horse ever bred in that country. He was at last vanquished by Fashion, but his admirers say he had lost his speed—no wonder! Lecompte therefore may be considered a very first rate specimen of an American race-horse. Pryor is by Glencoe, a horse all English Turfmen know well. His stock in the United States are very first-rate. Pryor is a good four mile horse and from all I hear, the best looking of the string. Prioress a three year old is a strong clipper for a mile and a half—so say the Yankees. I was in hopes Mr. Ten Broeck would have entered his horses for some of the Spring Handicaps—say the New Market Chester Cup or Metropolitan. He would have met horses in those handicaps that would have tested the powers of his flyers, and if they are so very long winded as to be able to go away from the post at full speed and keep it up for four miles, they would stand a capital chance of cutting down our horses in two and a half miles. I can, however, only find one entry, viz. for the Stewards' Plate—Stockbridge—"Prioress." There are some good horses entered—Fisherman, Melissa, Ayacanora, Vengeance, &c. and I hope to see a race between some of them and the "Yankee Girl." In default of a match being made, such as would suit the American taste, I suppose we must wait until the Ascot Cup, or perhaps Goodwood, to test the racing powers of the English blood horse breed in America. I like to call things by their proper names. We have made so called "foreign horses," now every year contending for our prizes—French, German, Prussian, Arabian; and America at last sends her sample. Most of these "foreigners" are trained by English trainers, and ridden by English jockeys, and they all are got by English-bred mares; and, if by chance, they win a race (and there is no reason they should not run as well as the horses owned by Englishmen) their owners throw up their hats, and dance for joy at having beaten the renowned English race horse with a "foreigner!"

I know no country in the world where any foreign sportsman is so gladly welcomed; where he is so certain of meeting warm hearts; and every indulgence is shown him, should he enter horse, yacht, man, or beast, to contend for our prizes. All we ask in return is, that he will "call things by their proper names." There is no doubt our system of running horses at two years old is bad, but it does not destroy the breeding powers of the horse; and; therefore, I say our stock is still superior to all the world, and I have no fear of being beaten by any other blood that can be produced from any country. I also believe our system of breeding and rearing to be better than any other country; that our trainers are better, our jockeys are better, and our grooms are better; and to prove this, I say to ALL, "Come on —and d—d be he who first cries 'hold, enough.'" —Yours, &c.,

ONE WHO LOVES THE ENGLISH HORSE.

Hints for March.

In the opinion of some of our best orchardists, this is the month in which pruning may be done to advantage. There is more leisure than at any later period. The trunks of the trees in the orchard should be examined, and any that are mossy should be scraped; and it would be as well to give all a good scrubbing with a brush and soft soap. If the ground is thawed all suckers that appear around the roots of the trees can be removed; and all shoots on the trunks should be carefully cut away. For standard trees, little is necessary beyond thinning out the small branches, to admit light and air freely to all parts of the tree, and removing all straggling branches and those that cross each other. In doing this, aim as far as possible to obtain a handsome, well balanced head. Grape vines, and trees bearing stone fruits, may also be pruned in this month. Dwarf trees may also be pruned now, and it should be done thoroughly.—Pruning and manuring are essential to the growth of fruit from dwarf trees. If the weather be favorable, Hot Beds may be started, if designed for growing cucumbers or melons. If intended only to raise plants, for the open ground, the 1st of April will be time enough.

Fences, as every good farmer knows, should be looked after at the earliest possible moment. When the spring fairly opens, there is always enough to engage the attention, without being obliged to repair rickety or broken down fences. Those who intend to plant fruit trees this spring, should be looking about them. Send your orders to the nursery early, so that you may get your trees in the ground before they have begun to bud. Late spring-planted trees seldom do well.

Marketing, if any remains to be done, had better be got through with now. Prices are surely high enough for every kind of produce. Wheat is not likely to go up much beyond present rates. At all events, those who are holding over for better prices are just as likely to lose as to gain by the operation.

To Destroy Vermin.

The celebrated Raspail, well known as one of the best French chemists, has given an important recipe for destroying vermin on animals, and also on plants and trees—important, at least, if true. The process he recommends is, to make a solution of aloes—a quarter of an ounce of that gum to two pints of water—and, by means of a large brush, wash over the trunks and branches of trees with this solution. This simple process, says Raspail, will speedily destroy all the vermin on the trees, and will effectually prevent others from approaching. In order to clear sheep and animals with long hair, they must be bathed with the solution, or be well washed with it. Raspail mentions several trials he has made with the mixture, all of which have been attended with the most complete success, and he recommends it very strongly to general use.

CARTING MUCK.—Some farmers remove the manure that has accumulated in the sheds and yards during the summer, at this season, and make piles of it upon the green sward that is to be turned up next spring. Then put in muck enough to absorb the grass and make the heaps high, so that they will not take too much of the rain. This helps forward the spring work very much, and on this account is a good usage. Where this is done the yards and stables should be immediately supplied with muck, thrown out from the swamps and ditches a year ago. Muck is to be always on hand, as work to fall back upon, when other business is not pressing. It must not be neglected even in the busiest season. The making of manure is a fundamental business upon the farm. It is to cultivation, what action is to oratory, the first, middle, and last thing; and if the farmer would make his crops speak with Demosthenian eloquence, he must insist upon manure, manure, manure. Keep the teams carting muck until the yards, sties, privies, and stables are well stored.—American Paper

ALMOND MACAROONS.—Take a pound of sweet almonds blanched and nicely pounded. Add a little rose water (to prevent their oiling,) and a pound of sifted sugar. Then whisk the white of ten eggs to a solid froth and add to the above. Beat the whole together for some time. Have ready wafer-paper on the plates, and drop the mixture over it in quantities the size of a shilling or smaller. Sift over them a little sugar, and bake them.

SILVER CAKE.—Stir to a cream one cup of butter with two of sugar; add the whites of six eggs beaten to a stiff froth, one cup of milk with one half a tea-spoonful of soda dissolved in it, and flour so as to make it as stiff as pound cake. With the flour stir in one teas-poonful of cream tartar. Flavor as you please, with lemon, nutmeg, or rose water.

Happiness, is like a pig with a greased tail, which every one runs after but nobody can hold.

TO STOP BLEEDING FROM THE CAVITY OF AN EXTRACTED TOOTH.—Noticing the case of Mrs Locke, who bled to death in consequence of the extraction of a tooth, Dr. Addington of Richmond, Va. says he never fails to stop the bleeding by packing the alveolus from which the blood continued to trickle, fully and firmly with cotton moistened in a strong solution of alum and water. He cured a brother physician in this way, whose jaw had bled for two weeks.

On Sunday night, about a quarter after nine, says the Montreal Gazette, a lady and gentleman were on their way home Aylmer Street); and when about half-way up the street, two ruffian-looking fellows came up with them on the narrow footpath; while passing, one of them made a clutch at a gold chain which hung suspended from the lady's neck, giving her a pretty hard blow on the hand, which she raised, and thus saved the chain. The gentleman being a short distance behind, did not notice the attempt. The lady said nothing, dreading the consequences, for the gentleman (her attendant), in view of previous outrages, had armed himself with a revolver, and might have fired on the miscreants. Many persons, who are out late at nights, have considered it safe to put themselves in a position to defend themselves, as is so commonly the case now in New York and some other cities since garotting has come into fashion.

The Albany correspondent of the N. Y. Times, writes that Mr. Clinton, counsel for Mrs. Cunningham and Eckel has forwarded to Gov. King charges against Coroner Connery, embraced in some nineteen specifications. Copies of these specifications have been forwarded to the Coroner for his edification. He has ten days to deliberate whether he will plead guilty or innocent to each count in the indictment. If at the end of that time he says "not guilty" to all of them, it becomes the duty of the Governor to appoint a proper person (I think a Judge of the Common Pleas) to take testimony. Upon this testimony the Governor must base his final action. It is refreshing to know that there is "crowner's quest law" that will reach such a case.

CORK CHECKS.—A well authenticated story has been told of a certain vicar who. several years ago, lived at a few miles from Loughborough. He was rather eccentric and not easily imposed upon. On a particular occasion he and several of the principal inhabitants dined together at one of the inns in the village: and one of the company, thinking that the affair would not be remunerative to the landlord, suggested that he might charge an extra bottle of wine or two on the bill by way of making it up. "That," said the landlord, "might be done, but the vicar put every cork in his pocket as a check to the account.

Things are queerly connected. A late statisician says, if all our old maids should marry, the manufacturers of single bedsteads would be ruined.

Somebody, describing the absurd appearance of a man dancing the polka, says: "He looks as though he had a hole in his pocket, and was trying to shake a shilling down the leg of his trowsers.

A young lady has written down in her album code, that kissing is a capital offence

PROSPECTUS

OF THE

AMHERSTBURG, ANDERDON AND MALDEN.

BUILDING SOCIETY,

Established February 17th, 1857, in conformity with the act of the Provincial Legislature.

PURSUANT to Notice a meeting was convened to day at 10 o'clock, A. M., for the purpose of organising the AMHERSTBURG, ANDERDON & MALDEN, Building Society, when the following Gentlemen were duly elected Directors and office Bearers for the current year, viz.

MAJOR DONALDSON, President.
HENRY WRIGHT Esq., Vice President,

DIRECTORS

J. DUNBAR, H. CUNNINGHAM, J. GOTT, J. TAYLOR, W. MCGEE, J. DALL, J. HAMILTON, J. S. TAFFLEMIRE, and T. KING, Esquires.

A. BORROWMAN, Secretary Treasurer,

After which the constitution and Rules of the Society were read and adopted, and ordered to be printed for the use of the Members.

The Secretary was also requested to forward a copy of the proceedings of the meeting to the Editors of the Maple Leaf and Windsor Herald, for publication.

The object of the above Society is to assist persons of limited means to acquire Freehold or Leasehold property, and to aid persons of small periodical incomes to accumulate Wealth The Society appears to be eminently and efficaciously adapted to effect its purposes: It combines to a certain extent the advantages both of the permanent and terminating Societies, and as an economical and prolific source of wealth may be considered as superior to either.

The Society consists of shares of £50, each, payable by monthly subscriptions of five shillings per share.

To persons desiring to buy out their shares, the money is advanced on mortgage security and the sale of monthly payments to such persons, according to the following scale, which increases the rate as the period diminishes.

	Monthly Payment	Yearly Payment	In 9 Years
1st year,	$2 50	$30 00	$270 00
2nd "	2 62	31 44	262 52
3rd "	2 75	33 00	255 09
4th "	2 95	35 40	248 40
5th "	3 25	39 00	243 00
6th "	3 75	45 00	240 00
7th "	4 55	54 60	234 00
8th "	6 00	72 00	228 00
9th "	10 00	120 00	216 00

It is calculated that the Society will terminate in nine years, and from the above statement it will be seen that the highest aggregate amount paid by any member will only be $270, or $70 above the money which he receives out of the Society, and consequently two dollars less than 4 per cent per annum, while those who do not buy out their shares will have paid at the end of that period $108, for which they will receive $200, about $19 06 per cent per annum simple interest.

According to the prospectus of the TORONTO PERMANENT BUILDING SOCIETY, if a member pays £64 in advance, at the end of six years he gets £100, which at that rate requires about 10¾ years to double his money; while if members pay in advance, (for which they are allowed 6 per cent,) into this one, the share gains centum per centum in less than 4½ years. I should, however, add, that from the Toronto one members get a dividend of the surplus fund, but it must be very large to make it equally lucrative with this one.

Select Poetry.

Success to the Farmer.

Success attend the farmer bold:
I love to hear his name;
His eyes so bright, his heart so light,
So honest is his fame.

I love to hear him talk of cows,
Of oxen and of grain;
His soul so free, so full of glee,
In sunshine and in rain.

I love to see him turn the sod:
I love to hear him sing
Of olden times, in golden rhymes,
Of winter and of spring.

I love to see his waving corn,
His horses and his sheep!
Their fleeces white, their lambkins bright,
To see them skip and leap.

I love to see his harvest ripe,
And see his cradle swing.
His arm so strong, his strokes so long;
He's happier than a king.

I love to see his harvest home;
His wheat, his oats, his hay;
All safe and sound, laid close around,
In his capacious bay.

I love too see his thrifty wife,
So busy and so kind;
She takes due care his toil to share
Of body and of mind.

I love to taste her new milk cheese,
So good, so rich, so mellow;
I love to eat her bread and meat.
Her butter clean and yellow.

Love to see his children grow;
Their parents joy and pride;
His girls so neat, his boys complete;
In union side by side.

Who would not wish the farmer well?
The soul of all the rest,
In peace and health, in joy and wealth,
Who would not wish him bless'd?

WILLIAM PETHERICK.

The Fatal Test.

A STORY OF NEW ENGLAND.

An aged man, my fellow-traveler, related to me the following story, as we sat in the chimney corner of a comfortable country tavern, after a day's travel in a stage coach. He assured me that the tale was tried during his father's time, with such results as are here narrated.

The snow was falling thick around a small house, at some distance from the little village of——, in Massachusetts, on a cold evening in the early part of a winter, seventy or eighty years ago. The widow within did not give it a thought, for she expected the arrival of no husband, and her children were snug and warm by the fire.

There came a knock however, and she answered it speedily, with an exclamation of surprise at such an occurrence on such a night.

A youth stood without, who asked permission to warm himself, as he felt the death-sleep creeping over him. Instantly the widow's eldest son drew him into the house, and taking the reins of his horse from his stiffened hands, zealously attended to the comforts of the beast. The eldest daughter prepared some hot coffee, and the mother herself took off the stranger's hat and coat. Everything that kindness could suggest, was eagerly done for him; and, when he had become in some measure comfortable, questions, as to his inducement to travel, &c., were put with an earnest simplicity, which rather warmed the stranger's heart, than gave offence.

He had been several times much moved by the tenderness shown; and he did not hesitate to tell them frankly all about his affairs. He was Arthur Vernon, the only son of a rich widow. He was now on his way to New Hampshire, taking a large sum of money from his mother in Boston, to his aunt, who was left in debt by the sudden death of her husband. The stage routes were impassable from deep snow; and he intended, as the need was urgent, to perform the journey on horseback, then the most common mode of travel.

He had stopped at the village tavern at ——, having determined to spend the night there; but as he imprudently mentioned the money he carried before several travellers in the bar room, the landlord privately advised, even urged him, riding as fast as possible, that he might not be obliged to travel the next day with those who had heard his rash words, and that while they supposed him asleep, he might be on his way far from them and possible danger. Arthur was still cold, and his horse fatigued; but the landlord supplied him with another, and sped him onward.

The deep snow of the road was entirely untrodden, therefore he had ridden slowly and become chilled. Thinking it better to risk the danger of delay, and of being overtaken in the morning, than to become sleepy and fall from his horse to certain death by the wayside, he had concluded to stop and warm himself by their fireside, before he entered the forest, through which the road now led. The little family had listened breathlessly, and for some time the silence was unbroken, until Mary said, with a shudder, "It's a horrible road. People say—"

"Hush, dear," said her mother; "don't repeat those idle tales. No sensible person, such as this young man, would believe them, to be sure; but when he is riding through the woods alone they may seem fearful to him."

Arthur asked for pen and paper, to write a few words to his mother, and Charles promised to take the letter to the village post-office.

"I will not lose what is perhaps my last chance of letting her hear from me," he said.

When he had finished the note he insisted upon continuing his journey; and they did not urge him very much to remain, trusting much to the wisdom of the landlord. Charles Morrison brought his horse, and after a farewell, almost as affectionate and sad as if he belonged to the family, he departed, Charles accompanying him to point out the entrance to the wood, and Mary calling after him to "ride fast."

He said just before leaving the door "Oh how unwilling I am to leave you! But go I must,"

When Charles returned they talked until bed time to their admiration of the stranger and their pity for him. Mary's heart bled for the poor youth, hastening onward through the winter's night, haunted by a dreadful fear.

Early the next morning Charles Morrison stopped on his way to school to enquire of the landlord concerning the stranger who had so deeply interested them. He had learned joyfully that the horse which Arthur had promised to leave at the next tavern, had been found there and brought home, thus making it almost certain that he had escaped danger, at least for that night.

No one at the tavern, however, had seen the youth, but it was probable that he had feared to enter and after putting the horse in the stable had sought shelter at some hospitable farmer's. He would be likely to continue to do so, and for a day or so avoid the inns.

The landlord who feared losing custom if he displayed such a suspicious temper, swore that young Vernon was a fool who could not keep his tongue between his teeth, but must needs betray his friend who out of prudence for him had risked getting into trouble himself. He protested he suspected none of his guests of any design upon the young man's money, but thought it best to send him on, as he himself had led to his imprudently mentioning his business before strangers. But when Charles took a private opportunity of questioning him, he confessed that he had felt a little uneasy when he saw an ill-looking man glaring at young Vernon several times. After he had seen the youth away, he took occasion to say at the supper table, that the poor fellow had fallen asleep on his bed without undressing, "just like a baby!" He noticed that this remark roused the attention was attracted. Soon after he had missed him, and learned that he had been to the stables, and had been told by the hostler of Arthur's departure. When the fellow returned to the bar-room he said he had been so refreshed by the supper and something warm, that he believed he would ride on.

"I shook in my shoes, Charley," the landlord concluded; "but I should have been most too smart if I'd meddled, for it's all turned out right. The man stopped quietly all night at the next tavern, and Vernon left my horse there all safe."

Charles ran home light-hearted with the news, and Mary sang for joy.

"If he don't dog him and catch up with him yet," muttered her brother.

A few weeks afterwards came two men with eager enquiries about a young stranger called Arthur Vernon, who had left home on a journey into the interior of New Hampshire, and of whom the last news came from this village. They could trace him no farther, and were obliged, after a vain search, to return to his sorrowing mother without any clue to the mystery of her son's fate. Neither could they discover anything about the suspected stranger, except that he had gone quietly through several villages on the road to Maine.

The landlord really grieved over the poor youth. He feared that he had lost his way, and died with cold, or that the widow's family would not believe that he could meet a fate so hard, and thought him ill in some out-of-the-way place.

The winter passed away, and the matter was still a mystery.

The deep snows of New England winter lingered still late in the spring, in the wood near Widow Morrison's house. It was totally unfrequented, as it was believed in those superstitious times to be haunted by a murdered woman, whose cry of dying agony still resounded through its depths.

Charles however was free from fear; and he often roamed through it, in search of game. He was out with his gun one day in spring when attracted by the screaming, hovering crows, he approached a wild, rocky spot, and saw gleaming among the loose stones, long, golden hair. He believed he recognised it. Another glance, and he turned sickened and sorrow stricken to hasten to the village, and direct the proper persons to the spot.

A rifled pocket-book, with the name of Arthur Vernon upon it, left no doubt of the identity of the body. A fractured skull, and a bullet wound, told only too plainly the most certain that he had been murdered. Yes, murdered almost within sound of a pistol shot from the widow's cottage, so that death had been waiting for him just outside its hospitable door! Charles and Mary remembered how his last words had been of his unwillingness to leave them, as if his instincts told him for what he was exchanging their warm shelter.

Many years passed. Charles Morrison became the schoolmaster in——, Mary was married to the young orthodox minister, and the landlord still welcomed travellers.

It was November. Again the snow fell in driving waves, and pattered like hail against the windows of the little cottage, where the enlarged family of Morrisons dwelt in love together.

There came a knock at the door; and the widow saying it reminded her of poor Arthur's knock, sent one of her sons to open the door. The hostler from the tavern said the landlord wished to see Charles immediately. His coat and hat were on in a moment, and he followed the messenger as rapidly as possible.

The landlord was awaiting him in a private room, and told him that the man he could not help suspecting to be Arthur's murderer, had arrived and taken a room for the night. He confided to Charles his plan for his detection by an old superstitious test. He felt so sure that the murderer was in his house, that he sent for Charles and several other men of the village, to witness the conviction and secure the guilty.

Supper was not yet ready, and though the stranger was very hungry and impatient the landlord hoped to detain it long enough for the others to arrive.

As each came he was informed of the suspicion the landlord had formed—and then they dropped into the tap-room accidentally. All entertained full belief in the efficacy of the means proposed, though Charles in a different manner from the others. When he entered the room, he stamped the snow from his boots and drew near the blazing wood-fire, beside which sat a stout, grizzled man, of dark and savage aspect, gloomily playing with the tongs.

"A cold stormy night," said Charles.

"Aye," answered the traveller.

"And one to make a man fear evil things —have strange fancies, and look on the gloomy side."

"More cause for shutting up about it," was the surly reply.

When all were assembled and drawn around the fire, Charles led the conversation to a natural topic on such a night, when the driving storm without seemed like infernal revels to the witches of olden time. There were those present who still believed in them, and this led by apparently natural transition of ghosts and the haunted places, among which Morrison's woods were mentioned. The sullen stranger seemed displeased with this turn in the conversation, and for the first time opened his lips to protest with an oath his disbelief in ghosts.

"Stranger," said Charles, "you will not find many people about here to agree with you in your disbelief. Many a person who has been induced to the wood-road after dark, has heard what they dare not talk about in a lonely place—neither can they disbelieve. But I have not heard it, but those who have are here to tell for themselves."

"No, let's be done talking about it," said the stranger to the old Justice who was giving a preparatory 'ahem.'

He would not be silenced, and began in a weak, trembling voice, "I have heard it, and since neighbor Wright goes home my way, and I'll have company, I don't mind telling you about it, though I think it no shame to be prudent."

"About what!" said the stranger fiercely.

"Well I had to come through the wood that night, and I was determined to close my cars to every sound, but I was more than half-way across when it came and I trembled like a leaf. It was a most dreadful cry——"

"Who cried! Did you say any one cried or groaned!" broke in the greatly perturbed stranger."

"I dont say who, but it was a long moan or wail, that sounded as if it gurgled through blood. Ugh! It makes me shudder now."

Charles narrowly watched the stranger. For a moment he seemed almost paralysed with dread. But he rallied, shook himself slightly, as if to loosen the fetters of fear, and asked sneeringly, if that did not happen long ago in old times, when such things were common.

"No," said the justice, "I heard it myself, stranger, and not three months ago."

Gloom again sank upon his brow, and he remained silent. The conversation was resumed and the topic discussed, the stranger seemed to listen with secret uneasiness and terror."

"Heaven is just," said Charles; "that is why murders will out, or perhaps the bones of the murdered testify, as they really do according to the belief of the people here, when the murderer touches them."

"How so!" asked a traveller who was present."

"It is an old usage," replied Charles, disregarding the winks and coughs of the landlord, "to make a knife and fork handle of a bone of the murdered man, and place them at every stranger guest's plate at the public inn. If the murderer should take them up, they will adhere to his hands and convict him. Now our landlord here has such a knife and fork. I have been looking at them to-night—they have a skull and cross bones traced on them. They never have catched any one yet."

"But they may," said the Justice "for I heard that the man has been tried beneabouts and found true."

"Well, I've no need to be afraid to touch them, thank God," said the traveller, who asked about them.

The gloomy stranger's face was hidden by his handkerchief, which he pretended to be using.

"Supper is ready," screamed a shrill voice from the kitchen. All received a hearty invitation from the landlord to partake of it, and all arose, but the stranger fell back to his seat again, for his knees refused to support him. He stooped to pick up his handkerchief, and the others passed to the table before him. It would have been regarded by them all as proof positive that he dared not undergo the trial, being guilty, had he refused to come to the table—but he did not—he soon followed them and took the vacant seat.

His hard old features were pale and ghastly. His eyes rested with horrid fear on his knife and fork. They were common looking enough—he saw no death's head.

His color came back, and he looked up boldly, but as his glance travelled around it met every eye keenly bent upon him, and there was a dead, awful silence. He paled slowly before the fixed and suspicious gaze, but turning his eyes slowly away from its fascination, he again locked at the knife and fork narrowly. He saw the fatal sign, and he fell back insensible.

"It is the judgment of God," said the landlord, solemnly: and the Justice said, "Amen."

"It is the power of conscience," said Charles triumphantly.

It began, however, to seem to seem not the legitimate thing They wished to see the knife and fork adhere, and these soon busied themselves in endeavouring to revive the senseless man. They partially succeeded; a strong shudder passed through the huge, stout frame and he opened his eyes. After vacantly staring for some minutes, he suddenly started up, looked with bold defiance into every eye, and though his face and limbs twitched convulsively, he seemed to be recalling the force of his will.

Pressing his hand for a moment over his ungovernable features, he burst into a mocking laugh, and seized the fatal tests. Instantly his hands closed upon them, and he was thrown into frightful convulsions.

It was not over for an hour. Even after death the rigid hands could not be made to unclose, and he was buried with those tokens of his guilt still grasped tightly.

The verdict of the coroner's jury was "Visitation of God." In our day it would probably have been "Epilepsy."

Bell's Life states that the vigorous measures adopted by the authorities for suppressing the London betting houses are likely to be completely successful.

A LAWYER'S DUTIES.—Judge Story said, "The first duty of a lawyer is to his God and his religion; secondly to his country and the law; thirdly, to himself, and, lastly, to his client. Never mistake the law. Lie for no man, deceive no man. Be true to the court, true to your client."

DAMAGES VS REPAIRS.—Hello, Sharp said to Pop, meeting him, in the street; "you hobble, my boy. What's the matter with you?"

"Oh, I had my feet crushed through the carelessness of a conductor, the other day, between rail-road cars—that's all!"

"And don't you mean to sue for damages?"

"Damages?—no, no, I have had damages enough already. Had'n I better see for repairs?"

It is generally believed that women never stammer, and their established reputation for fluency is quite well sustained by statistics; for it is found that amongst men one in every twenty five hundred stammers, whereas amongst woman only one in every twenty thousand.

The Colonist of Thursday says that the Zimmerman Bank will continue its operation, redeeming its notes in specie at the counter, and that the notes will be as freely received as before Zimmerman's death. The well-known wealth of the deceased, and the respectability of all connected with the Bank are considered by the leading financiers to afford ample guarantees for its substantiality.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—The sudden changes of temperature in this climate have a terrible effect upon the skin, the muscles, and the glands. Hence the prevalence of salt rheum, erysipelas, blotches, boils, rheumatism, quinsy, sore throat, and the many other complaints so frequently generated and always aggravated by this cause. Fortunately, in Holloway's Ointment we have the means of promptly removing this class of diseases, and of so thoroughly invigorating all the exterior organs and integuments as to prevent their recurrence. The Pills operating in harmony with the ointment, regulate the secretions, and discharge from the fluids of the body any acrid matter calculated to produce external inflammation or internal disease.

LOSS OF LIFE AT SEA.—New York March 25.—A letter from St Helena, dated Feb. 19th, says that the British steamer Engaged, which arrived at this port from the cape of Good Hope, reports that on Jan. 21st, when in lat. 25.50, long. 32.20, having picked up a raft with Capt. Baker and one seaman, being the whole survivors of the American whaling barque H. H. Crapo, capsized in a heavy squall on the night of January 19th. Twenty of the crew supposed to be drowned.

It is calculated that the expenses incurred in investigating the Boyd Street tragedy, New York, will not amount to less than $1000.

A gentleman being asked whether he was seriously inured when a steam boiler exploded, replied—"I have become so used to being blowed up by my wife, that mere steam has no effect upon me."

"Ma, didn't the minister say last Sunday that sparks flew upward?" Yes, my dear, how came you to think of that?" "Because, yesterday, I saw cousin Sally's spark staggering along the street and falling downward." "Bridget put that child to bed she must be sleepy."

GREAT BRITAIN.

The country is excited by electioneering movements. The supposition is that Palmerston will carry a majority, but a small one. He continues to receive addresses of confidence.

In the House of Commons' Notice Book is a motion by Mr. Gordon to interrogate the Government respecting the present state of relationship with the United States. Lord Elgin had a similar notice in the Lords for Tuesday the 17th inst.

The House of Commons recommends to the Queen to bestow an appropriate reward on Sir John McNeil and Col. Tulloch for their services as Crimean Commissioners.

Lord Clarendon has moved for copies of the correspondence respecting the proportion of the costs of the war with Persia to be charged upon the Indian Revenue, or relating to the ways and means by which provision for such expenditure is to be made in India. In making this motion, he expressed his wish for information with regard to the treaty just concluded with Persia.

The Earl of Clarendon replied that the treaty was of the most satisfactory nature. Persia undertook to evacuate Herat within three months after its ratification, and upon the fulfillment of that condition, England would immediately evacuate the Persian Territory. Commercial advantages were also gained, as England was to be placed on the same footing with the most favoured nations, while all further disputes between Persia and Afghanistan were to be referred to the arbitration of England.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Gordon inquired whether it was true that the Government, in the treaty concluded with Ferouk Khan at Paris, had abandoned the right to protect Persian subjects, and express his opinion that if such was the case, other nations would be to abandon that right.

Lord Palmerston said it was extremely inconvenient to discuss a treaty which was not upon the table; but with regard to the points referred to by the honourable member, he thought that very great inconvenience had arisen and was likely to arise from the practice in Persia, by which foreign governments were entitled to extend protection to Persian subjects, and he thought it most desirable for the permanence of friendly relations that the practice should be discontinued, and her Majesty's Government were quite willing to abandon that right for this country, except with regard to persons actively employed in the service of the Embassies or Consulates. At the same time, he quite agreed that the right ought to be abandoned by other countries as well as our own. The treaty was in all respects a better treaty than Persia had offered to accept at Constantinople.

Mr Labouchere said that from the most recent information it appears that the Northern ports of China were perfectly tranquil.

The House having gone into Committee, Lord Palmerston moved a resolution placing at the disposal of the Crown £4,000 per annum, to be conferred upon the Speaker for the term of his natural life.

SPAIN.

News from Circassia had been received to the effect that the Circassians had again beaten the Russians on the banks of the Laba, and that the Russians were driven over the river with the loss of four hundred men, four pieces of cannon and all their baggage. The Russians were seeking to take possession of the Chutais, and its sovereign had demanded the interposition of the Sultan.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 2.—A Russian corps of 30,000 men has been received with enthusiasm at Tabriz.

The Russian army destined to act against the Afghans has been reinforced.

Russia is seeking to occupy the Khanate of Khonkand, with a view to the extension of the frontier to the English possessions. The sovereign of Bokhara alarmed at these projects of invasion on the part of Russia, has solicited the mediation of the Sultan to secure the independence of Khonkand.

CHINA.

Dates from Hong Kong to January 30 confirm the news that Admiral Seymour had withdrawn from the Gardens and Dutch Folly Fort. As a reprisal for the recent attack on the British fleet, Admiral Seymour had burned down the western suburbs of Canton.

Nine Chinese had been arrested for joining at Hong Kong.

At Foo Chow teas were arriving slowly and prices were high. At Shanghiae holders were demanding a further advance.

The Paris journal Patrie states that accounts from the frontier of China received at St. Petersburg announce that the Government at Pekin is in a state of dissolution; that the Emperor has no cash; that he is forced to issue iron coin; that all the money had left the city, and that the Chinese and Manchoos are in open hostility.

PERSIA.

The intelligence from Bushire is to Jan. 28.

The health of the British force was good, and the supplies were plentiful.

No further negotiations had taken place, except that Col. Jacobs had sailed for the Persian Gulf with 1,000 cavalry and a regiment of infantry.

THE LATEST.

LONDON, Saturday Morning.

The Earl of Elgin has accepted the office of Plenipotentiary to the court of Pekin, and will proceed thither as soon as he has been made sufficiently acquainted with the views of her Majesty's Government.

Commenting on the evidence given at the Burdell inquest, the London Times remarks:—"What the result of the trial will be we cannot venture to predict, but this much is clear,—that to Mrs. Cunningham the death of Dr. Burdell was a question of comfort as against penury. She had the most vital interest in making away with him, and is shown to have been a most unscrupulous person. If she was concerned in the murder so must Eckel likewise have been, for the deed was above woman's strength and they admit that they were together at the time. The complicity of the young lad Snodgrass appears more doubtful, for in the purchase of the weapon he may well have been a mere tool, and so terrible a design would scarcely have been intrusted to a young and giddy boy."

The London Post of March 4 says:—It should not be forgotten, in considering the China question, that the Court of St. Petersburg is now closely allied with the Court of Pekin, and that the Russian mission enjoys advantages to which all European nations are equally entitled. M. Tinkowski, who concluded a treaty with China, has long resided at Pekin, and it is said he has recently concluded a treaty with Chusan as a naval port. These are significant facts, and may explain the diabolical treachery exhibited towards Great Britain.

BY TELEGRAPH.

NEW YORK, March 28.

The steamer Illinois arrived here at 8 o'clock this morning, with California dates of the 5th and nearly $1,200,000 in specie, and connected with the Golden Age. The latter boat passed, on the 10th, off Cape Carricutes, the steamer Sonora bound up.

The steamer Panama arrived at Panama with 225 deserters from Walker. They were in a most destitute condition. Their passage to the United States was paid by the Costa Rican government. One hundred left on the Grenada, the number remaining came in the Illinois.

The Illinois left Aspinwall on the 19th of March.

The Costa Rican papers state that 3,000 troops are to be added to the allied forces.

General Cavas would march with 1,500 men on Rivas, and 1000 would march against San Juan del Sur. The intention is to surround Walker with 6000 troops.

Nothing later from Walker's position. His case is considered desperate.

At latest dates from Bagota the propositions of Mr. Moore, our special envoy to Grenada, were under consideration. There seemed to be but little chance of an amicable arrangement. The tone of the press and a majority of Congress is of the bitterest opposition. The publication in El Tempo of what purported to be Mr. Moore's proposition had created great excitement on the Isthmus. The natives are anxious that the government should refuse the proposition, although they expect the result will be the military occupation of the Isthmus by the United States.

Some of the deserters from Walker state that his troops had unanimously refused to leave Rivas to fight, but were willing to defend their position.

SANDWICH, APRIL 2, 1857.

THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

We are informed that steps have been taken which will put an end to the disputes which necessarily would arise, when there existed two boards of Directors. At Amherstburg, on Saturday last, (28th March), there was a meeting held, and the Chancery suits were withdrawn which had been instituted against the McLeod and Park Board, and an understanding come to, which, we believe will put the company upon a better footing, as it was agreed upon by both boards of direction, that at the next election, certain parties are to be chosen, who will have the support of all the stock holders. John McLeod will be the President of the new board, and Theodore Park, the Vice-President; these are the only persons who will be chosen from this end of the route.

There was an understanding also come to, that the contracts should be given to Messrs Wise and Co., who will no doubt prosecute them in a proper manner.

These arrangements were entered into upon the understanding that the Road should be built with one terminus at Amherstburg, and another at Sandwich, and to branch off within ten miles of the former place, thereby securing for the Amherstburg Board all that they asked for.

There is no doubt but that the road will be built, so soon as the necessary arrangements can be made; and we have reason to congratulate the County upon the present fair prospect that exists of a speedy completion of the Southern Railway.

MAGISTERIAL DISMISSAL.

We are pleased to find, by the reports of the Legislative Council, which are copied below, that the Hon. John Prince has brought the matter before the Council, in order that an explanation may be made of the reason that induced the Government to dismiss Messrs. Wilkinson and Woodbridge from the Commission of the Peace. It is most likely, when all the documents are brought forward, that some light will be thrown upon the matter, and we will then be able to judge if improper influences have been brought to bear against them.

In the Lower House, the Hon. Attorney General McDonald, in referring to their dismissal a short time since, stated, that they had been removed from the Commission of the Peace on account of their having sent a negro from this side to the States, that he might be again taken into slavery. Now this statement is so at variance with the facts of the case, that we would be at a loss to conceive how he had been so misinformed, if it were not well known that certain parties have labored hard to make out a case that would be injurious to those gentlemen. That parties from this neighborhood are at the bottom of this foul and dastardly design to injure those magistrates is certain; for the Attorney General would not of his own accord make such an assertion, without having previously been prompted to do so, by some contemptible wretch unworthy the name of man. For all the circumstances connected with their dismissal, show clearly that a plot had been laid for the purpose of injuring their characters. The Government could not have dismissed those magistrates upon the mere assertion of the negro who was made the puppet to screen the real actor, without strong representations having been made against them by other parties; and that these representations, too, have been false and malicious, the work of the Attorney General clearly show. For any person who remembers the circumstances as they were given in this journal at the time of the dismissal, will remember how utterly unfounded was the statement, that they had sent the negro into slavery. It has been clearly shewn by the best of proof that he was not a slave, but was arrested for horse stealing, and has been convicted, and is now paying the penalty of his crime in the States' prison of the State of Ohio.—And further, that the magistrates, although they issued a warrant for the apprehension of the fellow, never saw him, or knew what had become of him. There is no doubt that the officer who came from Cleveland to secure his arrest, may have been guilty of kidnapping, but surely that was not the fault of the magistrates, nor could they be held responsible for his being carried away, when the prisoner had never been before them.

It is needless for us to say more upon this subject—the facts are already so well known in this neighborhood, that it would be only repeating what is already in the knowledge of every person who appreciates truth and justice.

We hope in our next issue to be able to furnish the result of the investigation which the magistrates have called for, and which, through the exertions of Col. Prince in the Upper House, will bring to light every thing connected with their dismissal.

MONDAY March 30.

The Speaker took the chair at three o'clock. The usual routine proceedings were transacted.

Hon. Col. PRINCE moved "That an humble Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor General, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to send down to this Council copies of all the correspondence and papers which passed between the Government and any person or persons relating to the charges against John Alexander Wilkinson and Thomas Woodbridge, Esquires, which resulted in the dismissal of those gentlemen from the Commission of the Peace for the County of Essex; and also a copy of the Memorial from the inhabitants of Sandwich to His Excellency praying His Excellency to restore them the said Commission, and the names signed thereto."—Motion Carried.

Hon. Mr. PRINCE presented the report of the committee to whom was referred the Act entitled "An Act to alter the Constitution of the Legislative Council." The committee reconsider certain amendments, forbidding persons who are members of either branch of the Legislature to offer themselves as candidates for the other branch, and providing that in case of a dissolution of the house, their seats shall be declared vacant at once, which report was seconded by Mr. Paton, that the report be taken into consideration on Tuesday next.

Hon. Mr. DEBLAQUIERE—It was the rule of the House of Lords that at the second reading of a Bill, parties opposed to its principles should offer their objections. The Bill was then referred to a committee, who it was then competent to move amendments to its details if advisable, and the same was debatable, but in the present case he would ask the hon. gentleman going to take up the details of his Bill after they have been so discussed in committee. If so, he did not think he could support such a course in a most unjust close one, and extremely irregular.

Hon. Mr. MOORE, while agreeing generally with the remarks of his hon. friend, yet would observe that in this case where amendments had been made to the Bill in the Lower House, it was the right to discuss those amendments, because they may involve the very principles of the Bill, and on this account he trusted his hon. friend would consent to postpone the consideration of the report of the committee until Thursday next.

Hon. Col. PRINCE was desirous of carrying the Bill through its various stages before the recess; he had no objection, however, to meet his hon. friend in the matter if it would suit the arm gement of the hon. President of the Council to discuss the merits of the case on Tuesday next, and he (Col. Prince) would postpone the motion to that day.

Hon. Mr. VANKOUGHNET has no objection to his assent, it was fixed as order of the day for Tuesday.

ELECTION OF SPEAKERS.

Hon. Col. PRINCE introduced his Bill for the election by the houses of its own Speaker, and in doing so offered a few explanatory observations, stating that it was his intention to move an humble address to her Majesty upon the subject. There was, he continued, no doubt that the House, in point of law, had the right to introduce a measure for the election of its own Speaker, but still with the consent of her Majesty so to do. He would, therefore, now have to introduce a Bill to render the office of Speaker of that House elective.

The Bill was then read a first time; second reading on Wednesday fortnight.

From the Colonist.

The Dismissed Magistrate for Essex.

TO THE PUBLIC.

In the debate in the House on the 23rd instant, on the election of Coroners, the Globe of the 24th says:—"The Hon. Attorney General gave an account of a slave who had come to Canada, and had been returned to slavery by two Magistrates, &c." It is no my intention in any way to blame the honourable gentleman for the assertion, neither do I intend to ask pardon for speaking here; but merely to assure him and the House and the People that he, the Attorney General, has been imposed upon by some designing person from Essex. Because, the "slave," as he is called was no "slave," nor ever had been one, but had stolen two horses, from a gentleman in Ohio, and was arrested for the crime and made his escape from the custody of the Sheriff, who afterwards heard of his crossing over to Canada, and the Sheriff came across to Sandwich and applied to the magistrates for a warrant to apprehend him, bringing him a requisition from the Governor of the State, sealed with the seal of the State, and other documents in proof of his guilt. The warrant was issued, and in one week after the magistrate heard from the constable to whom the warrant was given, that the man was arrested. He was delivered over to the Constable who was looking for a Magistrate. Neither one or other of the Magistrates ever saw the man, unless I took part in sending him back to slavery—for that man I missed," but he does not tell the House on what grounds. Now the cause alleged in the dismissals, that the magistrates had no right to issue their warrant, inasmuch as the offence was not a felony, according to the "Ashburton Treaty," which a reference to the document will prove, or to the Secretary's Office from whence the dismissal emanated, but the Attorney General further stated "they (meaning the magistrates) had since been elected Reeves, &c." when only one has been elected to that office, and was a Reeve at the time of the original commission from Toronto at the time, nor did they bring any witnesses to prove anything but personal vindictiveness has been the cause of all, for reasons which I will, in order to "define my position" be given before the country, and in particular before the Government, to whom I know my colleague Mr. Wilkinson as well as myself have been misrepresented. The Hon. Mr. Cameron said, and well said on the same subject in the debate that, if the thought perhaps there might be two sides of the matter in question, and by an inquiry I am sure it will be found to be so.

We shall yet have justice done to us, I do verily believe, by the Chronicle the Governor General.

Yours &c.,

THOS. WOODBRIDGE.

Dismissed Magistrates and Reeve of Sandwich.

We have this week to chronicle the appointment by the Corporation of P.J. Salter, Esq., of Sandwich as Stipendiary Magistrate for Windsor. In the acquaintance with Mr. Salter's character and capabilities this will be considered a good appointment.

A change of Postmaster has taken place in this village, and Mr. Ouellette is succeeded by Charles G. Fortier, Esq. With all deference to Mr. Fortier, we must regret this appointment, as we fear it will deprive the public of a most accommodating and worthy servant. We allude to Mr. Wagner, who has officiated under Mr. Ouellette for some time, and by his obliging and respectful disposition won the good will of all with whom he was connected.—Windsor Herald.

The Hamilton correspondent of the Leader dated the 31st, says:—

TINKERING UP THE OLD BRIDGE.—As fast as work can do it, the fatal bridge over the Desjardins Canal is being repaired. All the timbers that have in any way been injured are being replaced and new piles put in their places. It is expected that the bridge will be in a sufficient state of repair to enable the train to run over it in four or five days at most.

The tinkering up of the old bridge, after as fatal a lesson as to its security, is looked upon by all parties by all but the owners of it. It seems to them too monstrous for belief. Yet the repairs go rapidly forward, and unless something happens in the meantime to prevent it, does not seem at all impossible that a repetition of the late massacre may be near at hand.

THE HOG CHOLERA.—The western paper have had a good deal to say about hog cholera lately—a disease which it was noticed made its appearance only among the occupants of distillery pens. A correspondent of the St. Louis Leader pretends to give a true story of the cause of the cholera, as follows:

There was an unprincipled man, who sold recipts or directions, to the distilleries through that section of country, warranting that for every bushel of meal distilled, they should have a yield of five gallons of proof whiskey—that by using a certain quantity of two and a half gallons of proof whiskey, some false remedy had to be resorted to, and that remedy was nux vomica, or strychnine and tobacco juice, and those poisonous substances being put in with the meal mash, was let to the hogs—so powerful was the poison, that every hog which got the slop died in an hour afterwards.

AN INVENTORY OF THE CABINET.—The New York Herald has been taking an inventory of the private fortunes of the members of Mr. Buchanan's Cabinet, and gives the following magnificent summing up. It says:

Most of the members of the present Cabinet are wealthy, and as a unit they represent an aggregate wealth of some four and a half million of dollars. It may be thus divided among them:

Lewis Cass, say - - -	$2,000,000
Howel Cobb - - -	500,000
Jacob Thompson - -	1,000,000
John B. Floyd - - -	500,000
Messrs Toucey, Black & Brown	500,000
Total	$4,500,000

The President is also a rich man; and accordingly as the Democracy, at wealth makes men honest by destroying the temptation to steal, it logically follows that we shall have an honest administration.

THE AMERICANS IN PERSIA.—Persian Treaty, supplying free access for American shipping to inaccessible ports, and leave to purchase any cargoes of articles, unknown to Occidental use or commerce, to market who e they will not sell, is by this time, we presume, ratified, and on its way to Teheran. Whether a "Persian Sherbet Company," which we find named in a list of corporations just created by the Legislature of Massachusetts, owes its origin to the encouraging terms of this Convention, we are not informed. —N. Y. Daily Times.

CHOLERA PORK.—The Indianapolis (Iowa) Journal warns its readers against buying lard or pork, as 500 hogs which had died of "hog cholera" had been sent there in the shape of hams and lard from Hendricks County, and that some of the meat had been converted into Bologna sausage.

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

Have by the test of experience, become satisfied that Sir Astley Cooper's Pills are composed of simple but powerful curative ingredients—that they are mild and excellent in every respect that the most delicate lady or tender child may take them with the greatest safety. For bilious disorders, liver complaints, indigestion, loss of appetite, costiveness, sick headache, depression of spirits, pains in the back, graves and lumbago, Sir Astley Cooper's Pills will be found a safe and admirable remedy. Invalids should make an immediate trial of this excellent, long tried and successful medicine.

The citizens of the United States and Canada suffer much from disorders of the Liver and Stomach, and Dr. Sex, certainly the most bandsome in the world, at a certain period lose their teeth and good looks while yet in the headay of life. These evils may be effectually remedied by continually keeping the blood pure, and the liver and stomach in a healthy condition, when life will flow smoothly. We say fearlessly, that health and life may be acquired for years beyond the ordinary limits, if Sir Astley Cooper's Pills are taken to purify the blood, in accordance with the directions which accompany each box.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—To prevent imposition, be sure to ask for the Genuine Sir Astley Cooper's Pills, prepared in London, and for the Genuine Sir Astley Cooper's Pills only, you will get a spurious compound, which will not have a beneficial effect. The Genuine Pills have an excellent likeness of Sir Astley Cooper on the top of each box; also the fac simile of the signature of the Proprietors MacPhail & Co. London and New York, on the directions.

Sold at 25 and 50 cents per box, and in family boxes at $1 each. There is a great saving by purchasing the larger sizes.

For Sale!!!

A FIRST-RATE LOCATION
AND DESIRABLE RESIDENCE, IN THE BEAUTIFUL
TOWN OF SANDWICH.

LOTS Nos. 11 and 12, containing about One Acre and a half, on the East Side of Russell Street, being situated about two miles from the Terminus of the Great Western Railway, and situated on the bank of the River Detroit, opposite the City of Detroit in the State of Michigan.

For a private residence, the beauty of the locality is unsurpassed in Western Canada.

On lot No. 11 there is erected a POTASH FACTORY, which is now, and has been in constant operation for years past, having been erected on an improved plan and on an enlarged scale, and being the only one in operation in the neighborhood, it affords the greatest facility for immediate and profitable operation. A GOOD sand-shed is a large Brick Yard, paying an annual rental of £25. which has been in operation for a few years past.

On lot No. 12, which fronts on Russell Street on the West, and on Chippewa Street on the South, is erected a TWO STOREY BRICK DWELLING HOUSE, 35 feet by 22 feet, now used as a SOAP AND CANDLE FACTORY, and favorably situated as a private residence, commanding a view of the beautiful and navigable waters of the River Detroit and of Detroit City, together with a Frame Kitchen, Frame Hog-house, half storeys high, fronting on Chippewa Street, with Barns, Stables, &c.; a Brick Milk House, a never-failing spring well, and all things connected, necessary for the use and comfort of a private family.

THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY, which is now awakening so much interest in this neighborhood, which is to be built and by shortly constructed, will much benefit this property, as the Terminus there if will undoubtedly be on or adjacent to the above property, or within a few rods of the Detroit ferry.

Terms, with all Fixtures, Apparatus and Implements now in use, Cash—£500.

Possession to be given one month after sale concluded.

Application to be made to the undersigned, if by letter post paid.

R. MAYCOCK,
Sandwich, Canada West.

WINDSOR NURSERIES.

JUST PUBLISHED, a DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE of the Fruit Trees for sale at the Windsor Nurseries, containing a more accurate description of a greater variety of Fruits for the Climate than any other Catalogue issued on this continent, the whole having been compiled by the undersigned, with great care from personal inspection of the Fruits as they stood on the bearing ground. Directions for Planting, Cultivation, Pruning, &c., will be found in the Catalogue.

Also, in Press, and will be published in a few days, a Descriptive Catalogue of Ornamental Trees, Shrubs, Roses, Tulips, Peonias, &c., &c.

Catalogues will be sent gratis, on application (by letter post paid), to the undersigned, at Windsor, C. W.

The stock of Fruit Trees, more especially Apples and Pears—both Standard and Dwarf—is extremely thrifty and well grown, and such as can be confided in by the Planter.

As the undersigned intends discontinuing the Nursery Business, those wishing considerable lots of Trees will find it for their interest to apply early.

Interesting from Japan.

The "Moniteur de la Flotte," a Paris paper, has the following interesting intelligence from Japan:

Our last accounts from the China seas mention in an exciting fact. The Emperor of Japan, being anxious to adjust various questions connected with the recent treaties he had concluded with the several Governments of Europe and America, held on the 23rd of June, at Jeddo, the capital of the empire, a solemn assembly of the principal lords and most influential personages of his court. It was decreed at the meeting that two ports of the empire, those of Nangasaki and Hakodid, should be opened to the vessels of all nations. There they might repair, take in provisions, establish depots of coal, &c. The other ports of the empire, moreover, are to be accessible to vessels in distress, which may take refuge in them, but which will have to put to sea the moment the danger is over.

The Spain and Mexico Quarrel.

A war between Spain and Mexico would appear to be almost certain. The Spanish Ministry has addressed a note to the representatives of Spain at the European Courts explaining the quarrel. Having mentioned the murders and robberies committed on the person and goods of Spanish subjects residing in Mexico, by the soldiers of Gen. Alvarez, the present chief of the Mexican Republic, the note declares that the Spanish Government does not desire to make the people and the Government of Mexico responsible for these atrocious acts, if the Mexican Government would take energetic steps to repair them. In this spirit the Spanish legation in Mexico has been instructed to demand from the Mexican Government the punishment of the offenders and the indemnification of the Spanish subjects who have been the victims. But at the same time, fearing that this demand is not complied wit , the Spanish government has ordered the departure of vessels-of-war and troops from the Havana in sufficient strength to protection of Spanish subjects. Five vessels-of-war will at once likewise leave Spain to reinforce the squadron at Havana. The expedition will altogeti er consist of thirty vessels-of-war, and will have a numerous army on board. The Spanish Government deplored the necessity of resorting to such measures towards a nation united to Spain in blood, language, and religion; but it hopes every body will understand the ob igation it is under to avenge the national dignity.

The Australian Mail brings the news of the election of CHARLES GAVAN DUFFY to the Australian Legislature. He represents the United Counties of Villiers and Heytesbury.

In the new parliament of Victoria the Legislative Council contains 10 English, 8 Irish, and 12 Scotch; 11 Church of England members, 13 Presbyterians, and 3 Catholics. The assembly contains 23 English, 17 Irish, and 11 Scotch; 30 Church of England members, 6 Methodists, and 4 Presbyterians, 6 Independents.—Northern Advocate.

CONVICTS IN WESTERN AUSTRALIA.—A statement urging the claims of Western Australia as a penal colony has been presented to Mr. Labouchere by a number of gentlemen connected with that colony. Among other things they urge that:—1. Because the expense of planting a convict establishment (which is always very great) has been already incurred, substantial prison and depot have been built, and the necessary officers prepared to receive a large number of convicts. 2. The free settlers (unlike most of other part of Australia) are willing to continue to receive convicts to employ them and to pay them great wages; they merely require some modification of the present system. The convicts can be beneficially employed in the advancement of the colony, such as making roads bridges and tramways int the timber forests, and to the copper and lead mines."

Washington Affairs.

The Paths-Clarendon Treaty, with the Senate's amendments, was despatched to London by the steamer of Wednesday last from Boston, the especial messenger having rather pompously announced as an attache of the N. Y Herold office. Whether it is to be gathered from this that the Herald is to be the official organ of the American Cabinet, we leave the future to determine. At present interesting point that way. We must leave also to the future to determine whether our Foreign Office will accept the modifications made in the Treaty itself. We have said sufficient on the subject heretofore; at least an easy settlement of the difficulty is anticipated by a large majority of the public here. So may it be!

Gloom seems to hang over the White House. We notice with regret that Mr. Buchanan's family circle is put suddenly into mourning, by the death of one of his nephews, brother to the Miss Lane who presides for him as Mistress of the establishment.

With respect to those foreign affairs, discussed or acted upon at Washington, in which we may take a legitimate interest, it is difficult to arrive at the truth, or to sift the multitude of flying rumours. Designs upon Cuba, and new purchases of territory from Mexico, are in the list—but with how much truth it were idle to surmise. Certainly, if our own national sensitiveness was slightly touched by the nomination of a distinguished Anglo-phobist to the management of the State Department, the civilized world at large may be permitted to open the eyes of astonishment, when it hears the names of two individuals appointed to several offices in this city—we mean Mr. Sanders, the new Navy Agent, and Captain Isaiah Rynders, the new Marshall of the United States. The one is the chief apostle of active revolutionary sympathies and interference—the other the confident abuser of Neutrality Laws that operate against his own views and cliques. They form in fact the completest exemplars of political rowdyism extant—the one presiding over the foreign, and the other over the home branch of that most flourishing institution. Nevertheless, we opine that the world will wag on its course, and that these two pot-sant gentlemen will be discreetly quiet during their four years enjoyment of the spoils.—Albion.

Gascounding.

If General Walker's soldiers in Nicaragua cannot prevent his being cooped up within very narrow limits by his having fellow citizens who would gladly pay him back some portion of the infinite miseries that he has inflicted on them—at least, not a few of the letter writers in his employ carry a high head and make him out a mighty potentate. A very funny tale is in print respecting a visit recently paid him by Captain Sir Robert McClure, commanding H. B. M.'s steam corvet e Esk. This officer, well-known as the practical solver of the great Arctic problem, touched at San Juan del Sur, on the evening of the 10th ult. He found in port a little schooner in Walker's service, commanded by a Captain Farnaux. The latter's vessel was flying the Nicaraguan standard; but having neglected the international courtesies, universal amongst naval officers, Sir Robert not unnaturally concluded that she was a semipiratical craft. He therefore summoned the Captain to bring his commission on board the Esk; which the latter declined to do, but after some further messages exhibited the needful document, and apologised for his previous neglect of customary forms. Hereupon our Captain was satisfied, and the trifling squall blew over. After this Sir Robert McClure proceeded to visit the redoubtable Walker himself in his camp, which, whatever may be his faults or his fortunes, is an object of some curiosity. Over this visit, certain correspondents of the press here have made merry, and have—in their own opinion—exalted their great hero by describing him as an unarmed bruiser. Now we know him to be unscrupulous and unwise, but we can't on such doubtful evidence believe that a man, generally represented as cool and phlegmatic, should be so absurd a fool as to lose his temper and insult a British officer. If we could believe even that, we should be staggered by the further statement that Sir Robert quietly submitted. Really, these scribblers must think us all very credulous hereabouts. For their own sakes, they should not draw the bow thus indiscreetly. —Albion.

INTERESTING CLIPPER RACE.—The three clippers, Panama and Wild Pigeon, of New York, and Florence of Boston, left Shanghae China, together, on the 15th of December last, coming out of the river in company, and so continuing through the Straits of Sunda. The Florence and Wild Pigeon were often in sight of each other, but the three parted company off Java Head, and saw nothing more of each other. On the 31 of March the Panama spoke the United States ship Falmouth, hence 35 days for Rio Janeiro, in 1° 30 north latitude, and on the day following the Wild Pigeon was boarded by the officer of that ship, exactly on the equator, and in longitude 34 °, the same parallel in which the Panama crossed on the 31. The officers and crew of the Falmouth were all well, and sent a letter by the W. P. The Panama arrived on Friday, the Wild Pigeon on Saturday, and the Florence Monday forenoon, each vessel having experienced about two or three days' delays, from calms and gales of wind.

Making the natural allowance for these adverse circumstances, it would be as difficult to decide which of these ships is the best sailor, as it is sometimes to tell which of two or three fast trotters on the Union Course beats his competitors. The length of passage was 98 days.

FOOLISH BUT BOLD.—An extraordinary feat of horsemanship was performed in our city on Wednesday night by Mr. Courtney, of Ballydimond, county of Cork. In pursuance of a wager laid for a considerable sum with a brother member of the Kilkenny Hunt Club, Captain Bernard, while at supper in the clubhouse, he sent for his grey horse Whiz-King, and, having mounted the animal in the clubhouse hall, proceeded deliberately to ride up stairs—two flights—into the club room, round the supper table, and having leaped a fire-screen set up for the purpose in his route, he rode down down the stairs in perfect safety, and without White Lion once stumbling or evincing for a moment the slightest indication of a sense that he was called on to perform any uncommon feat. The wager was cleverly won, to the admiration of all beholders. The difficulty and danger of which I own state, in particular, were largely enhanced by the circumstance of each step being bound with thick plates of brass, on which, had the iron-shod foot of the animal once come, it would have been impossible that he could have kept his legs under him.—Kilkenny Moderator

GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighbouring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that he can compete with his Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to carry their money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.

A MEDICAL REVOLUTION!

THE WORLD UNANIMOUS!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

THE GREAT COUNTER IRRITANT!

The virtue of disease often makes its way to the internal organs through the porces of the skin. This penetrating Ointment, melting under the hand as it is rubbed in, is absorbed through the same channels, and, reaching the seat of inflammation promptly and invariably subdues it, whether located in the kidneys, the liver, the lungs, or any other important organ. It penetrates the surface to the interior, through the sounder, nerves that communicate with the skin as summer rain passes into the fevered earth, diffusing its cool and regenerating influence.

Skin Diseases & Glandular Swellings!

Every species of exterior irritation is quickly reduced by this anti-inflammatory action of this Ointment. ANGRY ERUPTIONS, such as SALT RHEUM, ERYSIPELAS, TETTER, RINGWORM, SCALD HEAD, NETTLE RASH, SCABBY or ITCHY SORES, by one box or more, under its application. Hospital experience in all parts of the world prove its infallibility in diseases of the skin, the muscles, the joints and the glands.

Ulcers, Sores & Tumours!

The effect of this unrivalled external remedy upon Scrofula and other virulent ulcers and sores, is almost miraculous. It first discharges the poison which produces suppuration and gangrene of flesh, and then cures which its healing properties afterward complete are safe as well as permanent.

Wounds, Bruises, Burns & scalds.

In cases of the fracture of the bones, injuries caused by steam explosions, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Rheumatism, Stiffness of the Joints, and contraction of the sinews, it is employed and warmly recommended by the faculty. This marvellous remedy has been introduced by its inventor in person into all the leading hospitals of Europe, and no private household should be without it.

Undeniable Testimony!

The Medical Staffof the French and English Armies in the Crimea have officially signed their approval of Holloway's Ointment, as the most reliable dressing for sabre cuts, stabs, and gun-shot wounds. It is also used by the surgeons of the Allied Navies.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases.

Bunions,	Skin Diseases,
Burns,	Swelled Glands,
Chapped Hands,	Sore Legs,
Chilblains,	Sore Breasts,
Fistula,	Sore Heads,
Gout,	Sore Throats,
Lumbago,	Sores of all kinds,
Mercurial Eruptions,	Sprains
Piles,	Stiff Joints,
Rheumatism,	Tetter,
Ringworm,	Ulcers,
Salt Rheum,	Venereal Sores,
Scalds,	Wounds of all kinds,

 Sold at the Manufactories of Professor Holloway, 80, Maiden Lane, New York, & 244 Strand, London, by all respectable Druggists and dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in pots, at 25 cents, 62½ cents, and $1 each.

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each pot.

☞ CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernible as a water mark in every leaf of the book of directions. Also round each pot or box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. Contraction of the Hoof.

A Correspondent informs us that he has a valuable mare, the subject of contracted feet, and desires to know if faulty shoeing is not the cause of the same.

Altered structure, sores, and various other affections of Horse's feet, are often attributed to the above cause, and no doubt a rational, and improved method of preparing the foot, and adjusting a suitable shoe for the same, may lessen the liability to some such diseases: we contend that there is other causes than the above, over which the blacksmiths has little if any control. We allude to that universal law, termed the hereditary predisposition; which provides that "like shall produce like." We know that the "Black Hawk," "Messenger," and many other permanent varieties of breed, transmit to their offspring a peculiarity of form, temperament, quality, color, by which the lineage of the latter can with certainty be determined. And should the parent labor under any permanent disease, defect or vice, the same is very apt to be, directly or indirectly, transmitted. The very color of the hair, accompanied by particular or distinctive marking, often extend and reappear through several generations. Hence a colt begotten by a sire defective in so important a part of the animal economy as the foot, (or took no "heed," to prevent it necessarily, in accordance with nature's immutable Law, inherit the same idiosyncracy. Therefore, the very best system of shoeing practised on nature's criminals, would fail, when attempting to reverse her decrees.

A horse, inheriting the least predisposition to faulty feet, is at all times liable, when used for draught, or speed, or paved thoroughfares, to disease of the same, which may end in contraction, it being, in nine cases out of ten, the result of primary disease of the foot.

A defect in the conformation of a horse's foot, may be so slight as to escape ordinary observation, yet the defect is there, liable to augmentation, and sooner or later the evil is discovered.

That a tendency to contraction of Horse's feet does lurk in some breeds, we have abundant authoritative proof to offer, if necessary; consequently, faulty shoeing cannot be classed as the direct cause of contraction.

A point-blank argument in favor of the blacksmiths in this view, is founded on the fact that contraction of the hind feet, which undergo the system of shoeing, seldom, if ever, become the seat of this deformity.—Among our truck horses, may be found many of the Pennsylvania, New York and Vermont breeds, that have escaped the evils of shoeing, as well as of domestication; yet a great proportion of them enjoy immunity from contracted feet. Therefore, the latter are not predisposed; they have good open heels, the foot is well proportioned in all its parts, and bears a symmetrical relationship in size, form and action, to the limb and body, which it aids to support and move.

Hence contraction, as many other forms of disease which are observed in the feet of the horse, have their origin in hereditary predisposition; therefore it is a matter of impossibility for a smith to make a good foot out of the one that was originally defective.

Another Bloody Murder in New York.

About 2 o'clock this morning, Officer McCord, of the 5th Ward, heard the cry of murder in the vile den No. 3 Worth street, and on entering the hall found a woman lying on the hall floor, with her throat cut from ear to ear.

The woman, in a dying condition, was conveyed to the station house where she expired immediatly after admission. Sergeant Smith, in the meantime, commenced a search at the house in which the murder was committed, and in the hall found a piece of the handle of a razor, the instrument with which the deed had probably been perpetrated. Blood was tracked directly to the room of John Dorsay a Saint Domingo negro, on the fourth floor. Blood marks were on the door knobs both inside and outside. Dorsay then lying in bed, He had washed himself in a basin on a washstand in the room, and that basin was besmeared with blood.

Blood was also found on his face and his clothes, and there remains no doubt in the mind of the officer that Dorsay was the murderer The negro was forthwith arrested, and locked up to await the action of the coroner. At 10 o'clock this morning, Coroner Perry commenced an investigation, and the circumstances of the strongest kind pointed to Dorsay, who however, denied knowing anything of the occurrence. No evidence to the contrary which would a horrible murder could be obtained. There did not appear to have been any intimacy or any difficulty between the parties, yet it is thought the motive was either jealousy or malice.

The deceased whose name is Ann Hopkins, was a native of Ireland, aged 23. She had been a most reckless prostitute, and had become so degraded that recently she lived with negroes in the abovementioned house.

A piece of the handle of a razor, corresponding with the piece found in the hall, was found in Dorsay's possession, and a blade of a razor, supposed to have been the one with which the murder was committed, was found on the roof of the house. John Wilson, another negro residing on the premises, indentified the broken razor as belonging to Dorsay.

The coroner's Jury, in view of all these circumstances, and there being no suspicion against other parties, rendered a verdict that Ann Hopkins came to her death from wounds inflicted by John Dorsay. The accused was held for examination.

Killing the President.

Accounts from Washington inform us that President Buchanan has been made seriously ill by the swarm of office beggars which has congregated at the capital. From East Port to Oregon—from the Saint Lawrence to the Rio Grande, those devouring locusts have taken their flight and settled upon the Executive mansion in incalculable numbers. The principle of rotation in office having been promulgated in semi-official style, the new administration is not only bored with the office seekers, but with the office holders, who are all in an agony of suspense, which none but the place holder with his head under the guillotine can know. This hungry mob storms the president's door and will not allow him a moment of peace. Mr. Buchanan has been familiar with the climate, the water and other peculiarities of Washington for thirty or forty years, and during that time he has been a hearty, robust man, and when elected to the Presidency he was in the highest physical condition. A few days before the inauguration he visited the capital, and on returning to Wheatland was slightly affected with an epidemic prevailing at the capital, and probably caused by the sudden change of the atmosphere for which the District is noted at this season. A few days rest at Wheatland restored the President to his usual state of health; but the fatigue of the journey and the constant annoyances from office beggars, before and since the inauguration, brought on a relapse of the complaint. It is hardly to be believed that although it is well known at Washington that the President's illness is a source of disquietude to his friends, still the place hunters persist in tormenting him in every possible way. They would if possible, force themselves into his private apartments, and bore him to death about their petty village squabbles and small sinecures. Your office beggar is the most persevering of bores—the most hungry of leeches—the most ravenous of rats. We trust that the men who are now applying, declining and torturing the President will be sent about their business, such as it is, with very sharp fleas in their very long ears.—N. Y. Herald.

The River Pirates.—The five river pirates who were brought from Keyport on charges of stealing about $3,000 worth of bonded goods from the Cunard wharf Jersey City, were, Thursday afternoon brought before Recorder Smith, on a writ of habeas corpus. The counsel for the thieves argued ingeniously to get his clients off, contending, as they were brought here by force with out due process of law, they could not thus be deprived of liberty, notwithstanding Governor King's warrant on the requisition of the Governor of New Jersey. Mr Sedgewick, Assistant District Attorney, appeared for the prosecution. The Recorder ruled against the object of the writ, and ordered that the prisoners be given in custody of the New Jersey authorities. The officers were in attendance, and took the river pirates, who were handcuffed, to Jersey in a express wagon.

A Novel Oath.—The Allos Adviar reports a singular case just heard at the burgh police court. A mason named Mitchell, was charged with being drunk and disorderly, having often, it appears, offended in a similar way. Mr. M'Neilan, the presiding magistrate, asked the panel (or defendant) whether he would sign the pledge? The man said he would, and the pledge book was sent for. A relative of the panel suggested that it was not an oath he had to take; it was only a pledge. Magistrate—It must be made binding by something more than a pledge. But here is the officer. The officer stated that Mr. Carmichael had given him a pledge card, and pointed out where the individual taking the pledge had to sign his name, The Magistrate.—Now I shall read over to you the pledge of United we is called, and you will attend to it: "I do hereby agree that I shall not use intoxicating liquors as a beverage, nor traffic in them, nor provide them for others, and that I will in all suitable ways discountenance their use in the community." Are you prepared to sign that bond? Panel.—Quite prepared, Sir. Magistrate.—Then hold up your hand, and repeat the oath after me;" I do solemnly swear before Almighty God, and as I shall answer to God i the great day of judgement that I will not use intoxicating liquors as a beverage, nor traffic in them, nor provide them for others, in all time coming." The panel took the oath, as desired, and then wrote his name on the pledge card. Magistrate.—The court also fines you in the sum of five shillings. The panel seemed rather taken by surpyse, and said he had not five shilling to five. The Magistrate remarked that he had not recorded any alternative punishment, and asked if that would be necessary. Superintendent said it would be unnecessary, as the five shillings would be forthcoming.

A First-rate Puff.—A large dry goods establishment was recently burned down in Cleveland, when one of the large fire safe manufacturers of New York, who knew they had one of their articles in the building, wrote and requested the proprietors of the ruined store to state how the safe had withstood the conflagration. The answer was as follows; "Gent emen, your s fes are wonderful. Nothing can surpass them for protecting books and papers, though they have some unfortuna e opposite effect. One of our clerks, on Saturday, bought a Shanghai rooster, and at night, unknown to us, put it for safe keeping in the safe. That night our establishment was destroyed by fire, and the safe and its contents were exposed to a tremendous heat for thirty six hours, at the end of which time it was hoisted out red hot. As soon as posible, it was opened, when you may judge of our surprise, we found within it the Shanghai rooster leaning against the ledger frozen to death!"—Porter's Spirit of the Times.

We learn from New York papers that the Dallas-Clarendon Treaty has been confirmed by the Senate, with amendments, which England will probably find no great difficulty in accepting. Its great features are still retained as they came from the hands of the original negotiator. England gives up all claims whatever to the Bay Islands, and recognizes them as the possessions of Honduras, and the United States enters with her into a joint protectorate of the Mosquito Indians. These two points are the hinge of the Treaty, and are unaltered by the Senate."

The changes made are principally the designation of the boundary, and the striking out of the clause which excluded the introduction of slavery into the Bay Islands.—This latter is an incurrence with a most important feature of the original treaty which, it strikes us, English Ministers can not but regard in any other light than an obstacle purposely put in the way to prevent acquiescence in the other alterations, so as to keep the "Central American question" alive for the new Buchanan Cabinet. Negotiations, special commissions, &c., &c., afford the Government plausible reasons for distributing patronage among its needy supporters, and at the same time indeed the "public service" requires it. But "we'll see" what John Bull will say.

PROSPECTUS

OF THE
AMHERSTBURG, ANDERDON AND MALDEN.
BUILDING SOCIETY,

Established February 17th, 1857, in conformity with the act of the Provincial Legislature.

PURSUANT to Notice a meeting was convened to day at 10 o'clock, A. M., for the purpose of organizing the AMHERSTBURG, ANDERDON & MALDEN, Building Society, when the following Gentlemen were duly elected Directors and office Bearers for the current year, viz.

Major Donaldson, President.
Henry Wright Esq., Vice President,

DIRECTORS

J. Dunbar, H. Cunningham,
J. Gott, J. Taylor, W. McGee, J. Dall,
J. Hamilton, A. S. Twitchell,
T. King, Esquires.

A. Borrowman, Secretary Treasurer,

After which the constitution and Rules of the Society were read and adopted, and ordered to be printed for the use of the Members.

The Secretary was also requested to forward a copy of the proceedings of the meeting to the Editors of the Maple Leaf and Windsor Herald, for publication.

The object of the above Society is to assist persons of limited means to acquire Freehold or Leasehold property and to aid persons of small periodical incomes to accumulate Wealth The Society appears to be eminently and efficeiously adapted to effect its purposes: Business to a certain extent the advantages both of the permanent and terminating Societies, and as an economical and prolific source of wealth may be considered as superior to either.

The Society consists of shares of £50, each, payable by monthly subscriptions of five shillings per share.

To persons desiring to buy out their shares, the money is advanced on mortgage security and the sale of monthly payments to such persons, according to the following scale, which increases the rate as the period diminishes.

	Monthly Payment	Yearly Payment	In 9 Years
1st year,	$2 50	$30 00	$270 00
2nd "	2 62	31 44	282 52
3rd "	2 75	33 00	255 09
4th "	2 95	35 40	248 40
5th "	3 25	39 00	243 00
6th "	3 75	45 00	240 00
7th "	4 55	54 60	234 00
8th "	6 00	72 00	228 00
9th "	10 00	120 00	216 00

It is calculated that the Society will terminate in nine years, and from the above statement it will be seen that the highest aggregate amount paid by any member will not be $270, or $70 above the money which he receives out of the Society, and consequently two dollars less than a per cent per annum, while those who do not buy out their shares will have paid at the end of that period $108, for which they will receive $200, about $19 06 per cent per annum simple interest.

According to the prospectus of the Toronto Permanent Building Society, if a member pays £264 in advance, at the end of six years he gets £100, which at the rate required about 10½ years to double his money; while if members pay in advance, (for which they are allowed 6 per cent,) into this one, the share gains at the centrum in less than 4½ years. I should, however, add, that from the Toronto one members get a dividend of the surplus fund, but it must be very large to make it equally lucrative with this one.

Select Poetry.

To the Farmers of Canada.

BY MRS. TAIT.

Ye loyal lads of Canada,
Who till the generous soil,
Dame Nature makes you rich returns,
For your elaborate toil.
She decks herself in rich array,
For profit and for pleasure,
And she metes you out with a lavish hand,
Her varied autumn treasure.

Ye prosperous lads of Canada,
Wealth travels on your track;
By your victorious axe and arm,
How quick the woods do back!
And leave their old ancestral homes—
Possessed since time was born—
Yielding their claims, by warfare lost,
To herbage, wheat, and corn.

Ye happy men of Canada,
How fair your homesteads look,
Your stately house with shade-trees round,
Your orchard, garden, brook;
Your sons raised up like olive plants,
Revive you of your care,
And your daughters rich in beauty's charms,
Your household duties share.

Ye wealthy men of Canada,
How changed the scene you see,
Since ye toiled hard in service once,
For the dear old country.
Ye ride in your own carriages,
Or on the snorting steel,
And ye call each gem that's to be found
In Fortune's flowery meed!

But what is luck or prosperous times?
What's plenty, or what's pelf?
Without a motive to make glad,
More than one's narrow self.
'Tis only when those blessings meet,
The humble, generous heart,
Inclined to do all mankind good,
They lasting joy impart.

So ye Canadian farmers, pray,
Take counsel from a friend,
Since Providence has cast your lot,
In this distinguished land,
Give liberal heed to His rich, free gifts,
Let conscience frame the measure,
In duty's path-way find your joy,
In works of worth, your pleasure.

A Dismal Plight.--A Good Story.

Sir John Mandeville, an old British navigator, gives some astonishing reports of adventures in the Arctic seas — such, for example as the following:

We were scattered by a storm in the latitude of seventy-three, insomuch as that only the ship which I was in, with a Dutch and French vessel, got safe into a creek of Nova Zembla. We landed, in order to refit our vessels, and store ourselves with provisions. The crew of each vessel made themselves a cabin of turf and wood, at some distance from each other, to fence themselves against the inclemencies of the weather, which was severe beyond imagination. We soon observed that, in talking to one another, we lost several of our words, and could not hear one another at above two yards distance, and that too when we sat very near the fire. After much perplexity, I found that our words froze in the air before they could reach the ears of the persons to whom they were spoken. I was soon confirmed in this conjecture, when upon the increase of the cold, the whole company grew dumb, or rather deaf; for every man was sensible, as we afterwards found, that he spoke as well as ever; but the sounds no sooner took air than they were condensed and lost. It was now a miserable spectacle to see us nodding and gaping at one another, every man talking, and no man heard. One might observe a seaman that could hail a ship at a league's distance, beckoning with his hand, straining his lungs, and tearing his throat; but all in vain:

Nor voice, nor words ensued.

We continued three weeks in this dismal plight. At length upon a turn of wind, the air about us began to thaw. Our cabin was immediately filled with a dry, clattering sound, which I afterwards found to be the crackling of consonants that broke above our heads, and very often mixed with a gentle hissing, which I imputed to the letter s that occurs so frequently in the English tongue. I soon after felt a breeze of whispers rushing in my ear; for those being of a soft and gentle substance, immediately liquified in the warm wind that blew across our cabin. These were soon followed by syllables and short words, and at length by entire sentences, that melted sooner or later, as they were more or less congealed; so that we now heard everything that had been spoken during the whole three weeks that we had been silent, if I may use the expression. It was now very early in the morning, and yet to my surprise, I heard some lusty sayr, Sir John, it is midnight, and time for the ship's crew to go to bed."—This I knew to be the pilot's voice, and, upon recollecting myself, I concluded that he had spoken these words to me some days before though I could not hear them until the present thaw. My reader will easily imagine how the whole crew was amazed to hear every man talking, and see no man opening his mouth. In the midst of this great surprise we were all in, we heard a volley of oaths and curses, lasting for a long while; and uttered in a very hoarse voice, which I knew belonged to the boatswain, who was a very choleric fellow, and had taken this opportunity of cursing and swearing at me when he thought I could not hear him; for I had several times given him the strappado on that account, as I did not fail to repeat it for his pious soliloquies, when I got on ship-board.

The Prince and the Doctor.

The incident given below, which occurred between Alexander the Great and his physician, is one of the most remarkable which history records. This prince in the midst of his conquests in Persia, was seized by a violent fever; and according to the account we have of his vast mind, his thoughts were more employed about his recovery as it regarded the war, than as it concerned his own life. He professed, a slow method was worse than death to him; because it was, what he more dreaded, an interruption of his glory. He desired a dangerous, as it might be a speedy remedy. During this impatience of the king, it is well known that Darius had offered an immense sum to any one who should take away his life. But Philippus, the most esteemed and most knowing of his physicians, promised that within three day's time, he would prepare a medicine for him, which would restore him more expeditiously than could be imagined. Immediately after this engagement, Alexander receives a letter from the most considerable of his captains, with intelligence that Darius had bribed Philippus to poison him Every circumstance imaginable favoured this suspicion; but this monarch, who did nothing but in an extraordinary manner, concealed the letter; and while the medicine was preparing, spent all his thoughts upon his behavior in this important incident.—From his long soliloquy, he came to this resolution: Alexander must not die here alive to be oppressed by his enemy. I will not believe my physician guilty; or, I will perish rather by his guilt, than by my own diffidence.

At the appointed hour, Philippus enters with the potion. One cannot but form to one's self on this occasion the encounter of their eyes, the emotion in those of the countenance of the physician. The hero raised himself in his bed, and, holding the letter in one hand so Philippus could easily behold its contents, and the potion in the other, drank the medicine, while the physician read the terrible charge. It may be imagined with what keenness the prince watched the face of Philippus, as the former drank and the latter read, to note by the expression of the physician's face whether the medicine was to restore him to health, or to hasten his death. When the potion had been drunk and the letter read, Philippus turned to Alexander and said:

"Sir, my life never depended on yours more than it does now. Without knowing this secret, I prepared the potion, which you have taken, as what concerned Philippus no less than Alexander; and there is nothing here in this adventure, but that it makes me still more admire the generosity and confidence of my master."

Alexander took him by the hand, and said, "Philippus, I am confident you had rather had any other way to have manifested the faith I have in you, than a case which so nearly concerns me; and in gratitude I now assure you, I am anxious for the effect of your medicine, more for your sake than my own."

Rules for Restoring the Drowned

BY MARSHALL HALL, M. D. F. R. S.

The following rules are the result of half a year's investigation of apnœa and asphyxia —a subject which I prosecute still further, knowing that truth only comes of long continued labor and research. I will especially to put to the test of careful experiment, the correctness of the dogma, that if the heart has once ceased to beat, its action can never be restored—a dogma calculated to paralyze our efforts in many cases in which hope may really not be totally extinct:—

I. Treat the patient instantly on the spot, in the open air, except in severe weather, freely exposing the face, neck and chest, to the breeze.

2. Send with all speed for medical aid, and for articles of clothing, blankets, &c.

3. Place the patient gently on the face, with one arm under the forehead, so that any fluids may flow from the throat and mouth; and, without loss of time;—

I.—TO EXCITE RESPIRATION.

4. Turn the patient on his side,—and (1st.) Apply snuff or pungent vapors to the nostrils. (2d.)—Dash cold water on the face previously rubbed briskly until it is warm. If there be no success, again lose no time; but

II.—IMITATE RESPIRATION.

5. Replace the patient on his face; (when the tongue will then fall forward, and leave the entrance into the wind-pipe free;) then,

6. Turn the body gently, but completely, on the side and a little beyond, (when inspiration will occur,) and then on the face, making gentle pressure along the back, when expiration will take place alternately; these measures must be repeated deliberately, efficiently, and perseveringly, fifteen times in the minute, only; meanwhile,—

A Poudre in the North-West.

It is well known that the surface of the great sandy deserts in the East are sometimes disturbed by the violence of the wind —and that whole caravans, consisting of many thousands of human beings, with their beasts of burden, have been buried beneath these arid waves of the desert.—But it may not be equally well known that the voyagers, when passing over the immense plains and forests in the tract of country in the vicinity of, and north of Lake Superior, sometimes have to contend with difficulties of a nature not altogether dissimilar.

In the winter season, the snow on a level is usually five or six feet deep—and the thermometer a great portion of the time, below zero. When bands of these voyagers are passing through these tracts, on snow shoes, the usual mode of travelling in that quarter —if the sky is overcast, and there appears to be but little wind, the experienced will cast a look into the distance, to be early aware of the approach of a poudre. And when he sees a white but dense mist, rising to a height of two or three hundred feet—and extending on each side to a distance of two or three miles—and evidently advancing towards him, urged onwards by some mysterious current of the atmosphere—he knows that a poudre is approaching, and that no time must be lost in preparing for its approach.

The packs are thrown aside—and with their snow shoes in lieu of shovels, they go hastily to work, and in a few minutes excavate a trench or cave in the snow, large enough to contain the whole number, with all their property. In this trench they snugly ensconce themselves—covering the aperture with skins of beasts, with which they are always provided—and here they calmly and fearlessly await the approach of the poudre. It passes onward—and sometimes piles the snow over their heads to the depth of several feet—but they wait with patience in their "narrow cell," unscathed—and after the danger is over, with their snow shoes they dig themselves out, and go on their way rejoicing!

The poudres appear to be caused by whirlwinds acting on the snow—the atmosphere is completely filled with inconceivably fine particles, as fine as poudre, or dust—insomuch that there is imminent danger of suffocation, as well as of inhumation, if overtaken by one of these curious phenomena, without having taken proper precaution. Indeed, cases have occurred where parties of Canadian voyagers have been unexpectedly overtaken by a poudre—and every man has sunk down in the snow to rise no more.

Sober Humour.

Dacon Marlow was a sober fellow, and we heard him say that he never laughed in church but three times in his life, and then he said he would defy a turkey to keep a straight face.

I was preaching one Sunday evening, when I noticed a one-eyed little chap, away back in the corner, take a pin and a piece of thread out of his pocket; bite the thread and then poke it round towards the fiery eye of a person who sat in a pew ahead, and then pretend to thread his needle. This he did several times.

Another time I noticed a young man, with his head lying back and his mouth wide open, snoozing it off as comfortable as might be expected, when an urchin in the gallery above, took out a chew of tobacco and let it drop, but instead of its entering his mouth, as intended, it took him slap on the nose, just as I made use of the sentence "And he caused the rain to fall in torrents" and being awakened he slowly put his hand to his face and exclaimed. "And oh what drops." Thirdly while preaching from a text in the 11th chapter of the 1st Book of Kings, I made use of the sentence, and he had seven hundred wives," when an old Irish chap who was half awake exclaimed, audibly enough to be heard all round the church. "Is it so, eelsay! it must cost him something for broomsticks, if they are all like my Betty."

SLEEP.—The unwisest of all economies is time saved from necessary sleep, for it begets a nervous irritability, which masters the body and destroys the mind. When persons become sleepless, their intellect is in danger. A restored lunatic, of superior mental endowments said:—"The first symptoms of insanity in my case was a want of sleep; and from the time that I began to sleep soundly, my recovery was sure." Let this be a warning to all who are acquiring an education. Every young person at school should have eight hours sleep out of every twenty-four; for as the brain is highly stimulated all the time, in the prosecution of study, it will break down, just as any other part of the frame, unless it have time for full recuperation. Better, a thousand times to give another year to the completion of specified studies, than, by curtailing sleep, to endeavor to get through that much sooner, at the risk of madness.—Hall's Journal of Health.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The case of Mr. C. W. Dimon of Seneca Creek, M.I., afford a remarkable evidence of the efficacy of these pills in bilious disorders. Mr. Dimon resides at the mouth of the creek, near the Little Falls of the Potomac, in the midst of a district so unhealthy, that in the months of August, September, and October, half the population are sick of bilious remittent fever. In October last, Mr.——was pronounced by the physician who attended his family, to be at "death's door." Calomel and quinine, the "hobbies" of the faculty in that region, had been administered in vain. As a dernier resort, at the instance of a friend, he determined to try Holloway's Pills. In three days the cold paroxysms ceased, in a week he was about the house, and in one month able to attend to business.

ADVERTISING.—The Albany Journal says:—We have just laid down a copy of the London Times with the feeling which that journal always awakens in us—astonishment at, and admiration of, the prodigious extent to which Englishmen, in the pursuit of wealth, advertise their business. Its Advertising Supplement, and its own spiff columns of infinitely varied announcements, are a wonder as unequalled in our journalism, as it is characteristic of the most systematic and successful property acquirers on the face of the earth. Whatever the English have got to sell they advertise. The solid columns of the London Times are a reflection of the industry of a large part of the British people.

EVIL COMPANY.—The following beautiful allegory is translated from the German:—"Sophronius, a wise teacher, would not suffer his daughter to associate with those whose conduct was not pure and upright. 'Dear father,' said the gentle Eulalia to him one day when he forbad her in company with the volatile Lucinda, 'you must think us very childish if you imagine we could be exposed to danger by it.' The father took in silence a dead coal from the hearth, and presented it to his daughter. 'It will not burn you, my child; take it.' Eulalia did so; and behold the beautiful white hand was soiled and blackened, and, as it chanced, her white dress also. 'We cannot be too careful in handling coals,' said Eulalia, in vexation. 'Yes, truly,' said the father; 'you see, my child, that coals, even if they do not burn they blacken; so it is with the company of the vicious.'

THE NILE WATER.—The Nile water is particularly soft, it fills the mouth with a rich creamy taste; and drinking it in order to enjoy it, it is well to spread it over every part of the palate. It should be drunk not to quench the thirst, but create high pleasure. It should not, therefore, be swallowed in large draughts at one time, but taken in short intervals every hour or so. In the house, the water jar—the admirable Egyptian water jar, which is much more porous than the Indian jar—should be at hand by day and by night continually. Much refreshment of soul will be obtained by rising frequently during the night, and taking repeats d draughts—allowing them to remain some little time in the mouth, so as to keep up an abiding sense of pleasure on the palate. The passion for Nile water, like the love of everything that is intensely exquisite in its way, with its enjoyment. No one who has once or twice tasted Nile water, and has a capacity for pleasure, will ever after consent to drink of it poisoned with the infusion of any other liquid. Jealous of its own honor, it appears to be the most averse of all waters to join in harmony with wine. Indeed, mixed with wine, it is the most nauseous compound. The Plastrious river seems to abhor all alliance with ignoble fluids, and to court admiration and love in its own simple character, without the foreign aid of ornament.—Bruce's Sights in the East.

CHOICE IN MARRIAGE.—Lord Byron used to say that a man ought to marry by all means, although he owned that the greater part of marriages are unhappy. A man cannot live happy without a wife. Yet it is strange what little liberty of choice can be exercised on most occasions. Many a man, too, fancies he marries by choice, whereas he marries only by compulsion.

A MAN'S troubles are born and grow with him; by habit he becomes able to endure them. They who go out of the common track to speculate upon happiness, not only have, but deserve, a larger share of misfortune than they keep on the well-known beaten track, contented with being moderately happy.

People who let apartments have a strong partiality for single gentlemen. They don't dine at home; they don't look anything up; they seldom grumble at "extras" in the bill; they are perfectly innocent of any acquaintance with the price current of bread, meat, tea, or sugar; they don't make a fuss" if the rooms are not dusted. In short, they are easily "done for." In one grave sense of that very comprehensive expression.

Brilliant thoughts are often slow in their formation, like the diamond. Thomas More was frequently occupied three weeks in writing a song. Theodore Hook often took about the same time to perpetrate an impromptu, and Sheridan was frequently employed all day in getting up a joke, which was supposed by some to be the inspiration of the moment.

The success of the half holiday movement in London has been such that business appears to be very nearly suspended on the last day of the week.

As the diamond is found in the darkness of the mine, as the lightning shoots with most vivid flashes from the gloomiest cloud, so does mirthfulness frequently proceed from a heart susceptible of the deepest melancholy.

Wendell Phillips defines a politician as "one who serves God as far as he can without offending the Devil." This is epigrammatic and not far from the mark.

Provincial Parliament,

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

WEDNESDAY, April 1st, 1857.

NEWFOUNDLAND FISHERIES—ADDRESS TO THE QUEEN.

Hon. Col. PRINCE brought forward the following motion upon the subject:—That an humble address be presented to her Majesty on the subject of the convention said to have been lately entered into between her Majesty and the Emperor of the French, relative to the rights of fishery on the Coast of Newfoundland and the neighbouring coasts, and beseeching her Majesty to protect the rights of her brave and loyal subjects in that colony from being forfeited, infringed upon, or subjected to any injury or risk. And in rising said that the motion he had now the honour to submit is one of an extraordinary character, and he was not at all aware, if it would be carried, but such was its deep importance, that he trusted hon. gentlemen would not offer any opposition to the measure. There may be some hon. gentlemen who think that this House has nothing to do with interfering in a matter so introduced by her Majesty and connected with her ally, the Emperor of the French. That her Majesty has done wrong it was not his intention to argue, because "the King can do no wrong," but he did contend that no sovereign of Great Britain or elsewhare, could deprive their subjects, or any portion of them, of their vested rights. He (Col. Prince,) had not any direct authority in reference to this fishery question, but merely spoke from the reports which had been circulated through the public press, but from them he learned that our fellow subjects of Newfoundland, from some convention entered into by her Majesty's principal Secretary of State, (for he it was or the Executive Government) were about to be deprived of the rights of fishing on the Coasts of Newfoundland and Labrador. It was not his intention to censure the Crown of England, or the Executive Government of England, but when he considered the very deep excitement which this obnoxious measure had raised amongst his fellow subjects of Newfoundland, when he saw that letter written by one of her Roman Catholic Bishops, and find from the language of that letter, that the people of that colony are alarmed for their privileges, and annoyed and exasperated at the attempt to wrest them from them for the benefit of a foreign power. Then hon. gentlemen is it not time for this House to show its sympathy for their fellow colonists, and that it should be intimated to the Crown of England that there are some doubts of the correctness or validity of such convention, which has been entered into with the Emperor of the French. It is a fact clearly laid down in all law books, connected with all sovereigns, that the sovereign cannot deprive the subject of his rights, neither can it abridge them. Therefore when such an attempt was made upon our fellow colonists, were not the people of Canada called upon through her representatives, to urge upon her Majesty's Government to pause before pressing forward this most singular convention. How was it, he would ask, that the sovereign could not thus alienate the rights of the subject. It is thus, the subject owes to the sovereign allegiance, and cannot under any circumstance shake off that allegiance, although we often hear it said by parties coming to this continent and settling in the United States, "Oh, I was a British subject, but I am a citizen of the United States, and have taken the oath declaiming any allegiance to the Crown of Great Britain."

A messenger from the Lower House having been announced in the usual manner, the gallant Colonel paused, remarking that was a knock down blow to his argument.]

In continuance, the Colonel urged that no subject could circumscribe the privileges or prerogatives of the Sovereign, nor by coming from Great Britain to America and taking the oath of allegiance to the President and people of the United States could he shake off the duties he owed as a subject of Great Britain. In return for this inalienable subjection to the Sovereign, the subject has a right to expect from the Sovereign the protection and maintenance of all his rights and privileges, so that the compact was mutual, the loyalty on the one hand claiming the protection secured by Charter, and Laws from the other, or rather in virtue and consideration of that protection he gives his loyalty to the Sovereign. It appeared, however, by the public reports of the day, and which he (Col. P.) must presume to be correct, the people of Newfoundland, since the conquest of Quebec, have enjoyed privileges on the coasts now about to be ceded to a foreign power. It would appear strange that a people that have, by those fisheries, been the means of nursing British sailors—that a trade that has been the means of manning for so many years our British fleets, should be so dealt with, and have those inherent rights swept away by one fell swoop in the manner contemplated by this convention. The people of Newfoundland are a hardy race; they have been proverbial as a loyal race; have ever evinced their deep attachment to the British Crown and British Institutions. They are a race who earned their livelyhood by a hardy and arduous employment. And what are we told? Why, that England is about to deprive them, (so the British and Provincial press tells us,) of that very ground upon which they were born, and that coast where for generations they have fished; and not only are the Newfoundlanders to be deprived of a right, but Canada too, for she has a right to the fisheries on the coast of Labrador. It was manifest the act by which those privileges would be confered exclusively upon a foreign power, was an act of gross injustice, and would inflict incalculable injury not only upon Newfoundland, but upon these Provinces. It was fortunate there was a tribunal to which they could appeal in protest against the infliction of so deep an injury, their Legislature, and it was fortunate that they, with us, had Responsible Government, and there was no doubt that the subject would be ably discussed. He (Col. P.) trusted the day was not far distant when there, as had been the case in Canada, such an absurd convention would be scattered to the four winds. The Crown of Great Britain could not deprive the Colonists as British subjects of their political rights as such; and as it could not take them away, neither could it intermeddle with their vested rights. For some purpose or another a course has been adopted by Great Britain subservice of the rights and privileges of our fellow colonists of Newfoundland, and though, as already remarked, they are an industrious, hardy and loyal race, yet it appears that they have been sacrificed to the ambition, or for some aim and end of his Majesty the Emperor of the French, who has by some means induced her Majesty's ministers to transfer very important privileges which are the inherent right of the inhabitants of Newfoundland. And this leads to the observation that in everything connected with her North American colonies Great Britain had invariably been out-witted by commissioners, diplomatists and statesmen, from the time of Franklin in 1783, to the present moment. At the time when George III. acknowledged the Independence of the thirteen United States, and it would be evident to all that the Americans were only entitled to such portion of the continent as were embraced in the then thirteen United States. But what was the case? The Americans laid claim to the whole western territory. The commissioners who were appointed must have been imbecile, or they never for one moment could have entertained the imposition. But so it was, and what with the commissioners and Mounseer the Frenchman, John Bull was at that time completely outwitted, and they gave to them that vast territory which has been proved to be so valuable; and the only excuse they had for so doing was, because George III. had agreed to acknowledge the Independence of the thirteen United States. Again, at the treaty of Ghent, in 1814, the commissioners from England were again outwitted, and gave way to a single commissioner from the United States. And so it had been from the beginning, on this continent, and so he (Col. P.) feared it would be to the end of the chapter, unless the colonists themselves look sharply to their own interests. It may have been supposed that England had been taught wisdom from past experience, but unfortunately it does not appear to be the case. It may be argued, with some justice, that we are upon friendly terms with the Emperor of the French; still that it is no reason why the rights of British subjects are to be sacrificed, and the Emperor of the French had no right to expect it. But what, he would ask, were the sentiments of the people of Newfoundland upon this question. Why, it was a fact that they felt deeply exasperated at this attempt to invade their rights, and they, whatever may be the issue of the affair, would have a string long rankling in their breasts, feeling that their tenderest feelings had been tampered with. He (Col. P.) would here remark that the object of his address was not to pass a censure upon the Crown of Great Britain, but humbly to request, by the address which he moved, that Her Majesty would pause before giving her sanction to a measure fraught with so great injustice to her loyal Newfoundland subjects. It was highly requisite that there should be a pause, because her Majesty's Ministers had not seen fit to enquire from the leading men of Newfoundland, what their views were upon the subject, and it was obvious to every one that they in courtesy should have been so consulted. The only excuse offered by Mr. Labouchiere is, that it was done in a hurry, and that there was no time to communicate, but such excuse was untenable. It was necessary to let the Ministers of England know that if they do carry out such invasions of the rights of the colonists, they will offer them a great inducement to throw off their allegiance to the British Crown, and place themselves in the arms of the United States, who have been long ready to receive them. It was obvious from the tenor of the Convention that the sovereignty of this territory would be given to France. Such being the case, it would appear that our British Ministry no longer contended for the prosperity of ships, colonies and commerce. Once cede this territory to France and she would be made happy. She would have power to build those, and soon it would be seen that a fort would spring up which ultimately would prove most disastrous not only to Newfoundland but to the interests of Canada, commanding as it would the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and at a time when our steam communication was assuming so great an importance, connected with postal arrangements by this route for Liverpool. The projected cession was the more strange and proved how very little the British authorities were acquainted geographically or otherwise with the value or advantages of these North American Provinces, for if such were not the fact they would know that one of our steam routes is through the Straits of Belleisle; and if these were so ceded to France—if she were allowed to build forts, then ultimately she could command the Gulf of St. Lawrence; and in this case in what position would we of Canada be. It was preposterous that the Emperor of France should demand such a cession; it was most absurd that the British Ministry should have entertained it for a moment, having no more right to do so than they had to entertain the proposition for a cession to the United States of the exclusive right to our portion of the waters of the great lakes. At present the United States were exercising rights which did not appertain to them, by coming over to Canada side of the Detroit river to fish. If it was the intention of any hon. gentleman to oppose the address then he [Col. Prince] would expect some explanation from them why in the face of the treaty of Ghent, France had any right to expect any such cession of a right of fishing in our waters. It was the more requisite that an opinion should be at once expressed, as it may be the case that upon the representation of the British Ministry—and the terms of the convention lead to the supposition—it may be urged upon the Newfoundlanders to make this cession, as her Majesty is engaged to recommend such a course, and influences may be brought to bear antagonistic to the general interests of the North American Provinces. It was also essential that the British Ministry should know that the Canadians deeply sympathized with their fellow colonists in this most extraordinary movement. The gallant Colonel proceeded at considerable length to detail the great and lasting injury which such absurd cession would inflict upon the Colonists and introduced a petition upon the subject, which he had received from Randell Jones, who was a resident of the coast of Labrador, which had been brought up by his hon. friend Mr. Ferrier. He [Col. Prince] would not further take up the time of the House by reading that petition, but he would remark that he thought that it would be generally ceded that the fisheries of, and the coast of Labrador were part and parcel of the Provinces of Canada, and Mr. Jones in addressing her Legislature, prays that measures may be adopted to protect her Majesty's subjects in their rights in these fisheries on the said coasts of Labrador. It also appeared that the United States had long been in the habit of interfering with these fisheries, and they and the French had already a great advantage over the colonists, inasmuch as a bounty was paid by the respective Governments of 10 per cent. and while Great Britain offered no such encouragement, America and France sent fleets therefore the protection of those fisheries. The hardy Newfoundlanders had long felt and sorely that they had to carry on their labours and hardy toils without any such protection or encouragement. Under all the circumstances he, [Col. Prince] thought that a fit case was made out, which called loudly for a remonstrance, and that an united one from the colonists, and such remonstrance as was embraced in the address which he would now beg to read to the House. Having done so he would move, seconded by hon. Mr. Crooks, that the same be adopted.

Hon. Mr. CROOKS said he had great pleasure in seconding the address, and perfectly coincided in all the arguments adduced in its support by the hon. mover. He had, however, expected that he [Col. Prince] would have gone more fully into the deep interest which Canada had in the question; for if this control of the Straits of Belleisle were granted to France, she may control the whole of the waters of the St. Lawrence.

Hon. Mr. VANKOUGHNET trusted that his hon. friend would consent to withdraw his motion. The hon. member for Essex had stated that he had founded his arguments upon what he had read in the public prints, but he had quite forgotten to state that there was a clause in the convention leaving the matter to the decision of the Legislature of Newfoundland; at the same time, he [Col. P.] had said that they could not be trusted.

Hon. Col. PRINCE explained that the hon. President of the Council had misunderstood him.

Hon. Mr. VANKOUGHNET—There is the less need of passing the proposed address, inasmuch as the Legislature of Newfoundland has rejected the measure; consequently, the treaty falls to the ground. It was possible that the newspapers had given incorrect information upon the subject; therefore, it would be useless in this House, and very inexpedient, to address the Queen at the present juncture, and he trusted the gallant Colonel would consent to withdraw the motion.

Hon. Mr. FERGUSSON took the same view of the case as the Hon. President of the Council, and thought that Canada had not the right to interfere in the matter.

Hon. Mr. DEBLAQUIERE also expressed a wish that the hon. mover would not divide the House upon the address, which at the present juncture was not called for, as the matter had been decided by the vote of the local Legislature of Newfoundland.

Hon. Mr. MORRIS also would join in a request that the motion might be withdrawn.

Hon. Col. PRINCE said it had, from the first, been his intention to withdraw the measure if there was a single voice raised against it. At the same time, he assented to the strongly expressed wishes of his friends he must be allowed to remark that he could not but view the movement made by her Majesty's British Ministry as a most unwise step. In reply to the remark of his hon. friend, the President of the Council, that just with as much reason might the Newfoundlanders interfere between her Majesty's Government and Canada, in respect to the Hudson's Bay territory, as the latter to interfere in respect to the fisheries. He [Col. Prince] would remind the hon. gentleman that there was this difference, the fisheries were established as the rights of Newfoundland, whereas in the case of the Hudson's Bay territory, Canada had not a vested right, it being a question with the Imperial Government, if the Hudson's Bay Company's charter should be renewed. He [Col. Prince] had had that moment placed in his hands a paper by which he found that the Legislature of Newfoundland has passed an address to her Majesty, condemnatory of the proposed cession of their rights; at the same time, had that information been earlier known to him he [Col. Prince] would have taken the same course, believing as he did, that the time was arrived that the colonists should exercise eternal vigilance to counteract the designs of foreign foes; and let it be known that confidence could not be placed in England with regard to matters affecting the colonies of which they were, generally speaking, in total ignorance, or she could not have been duped in the manner in which she had, had not she been totally unacquainted with the value of her North American territories, and in confirmation of the fact he would instance her admiralty sending out tanks filled with Thames water for the use of the armies in Canada, and also materials for ships of war to be constructed in Canada, as if she had no forests.

Leave was then granted to withdraw the motion.

GREAT BRITAIN.

LONDON Saturday Morning.

It was announced in Parliment last evening that it was the Queen's intention immediately to dissolve Parliament in order to ascertain in the most constitutional manner the sense of the people in the present state of affairs

A despatch from Paris says the King of Prussia had finally agreed to settle the Neufchatel difficulty, renouncing his rights on condition that the title of Prince of Neufchatel be resumed for the Prussian crown—that he be allowed for four years the revenues of his ancient domains in the canton, and an amnesty be granted to his partizans there.

The final sitting of the Paris conference on Turkish affairs chiefly concerning the Principalities, will be held in June.

The Sardinian Chamber of Deputies have voted 5,000,000f. to put the fortifications at Alexandria in an immediate state of defence, in view of approaching hostilities with Austria.

Full instructions were sent from Cadiz on the 12th of March to the Governor of Havana, respecting the difficulties with Mexico.

The Irish Liberals have adopted their electioneering programme, of which the following are the leading points:—

1. Tenant right, as recently modified.
2. Disendowment of all religious sects, and the abolition of the Irish Church as a State Establishment.
3. Religious equality, involving the repeal of ecclesiastical titles.
4. involving county franchise.
5. Abolition of property qualification.

The Maple Leaf,

SANDWICH, APRIL 9, 1857.

Those in opposition to the arrangement, which we announced had taken place, in last week's paper, in regard to the Southern Railway, which as far as we have been able to learn, are of a most satisfactory nature as far as this county is interested, appear determined to throw as much discredit as possible upon those concerned, without assigning any just, or in fact, any reasonable grounds whatever for their disapproval of the plans adopted. We suppose I at least that the public would have been informed why the so called bogus Board of Directors were not worthy of credit, and in what respect the genuine board held a better position than their opponents. But in this we have been disappointed, and in their stead we are treated to a thundering volley of abuse, showered upon the devoted heads of all those who took part in what any reasonable person would conceive to be the only course by which the road could be built; and the only way in which the public could become satisfied that there is an intention of proceeding with the road, was by some description of compromise. That there are a few who would not consent to such a course—perhaps from personal motives affecting their own private interests, is evident; in fact, it could not be expected to be otherwise. This compromise has been effected to a certain extent, and will no doubt be carried out; for the principal obstructions being now removed, nothing is wanting but to mature the plans that have been agreed upon. Those, as we stated before, are quite satisfactory, so far as the interests of the county are concerned. And unless the parties who have not already come into the present agreement choose to cast aside their own interests for those of the public, the board, as at present constituted, will work without their aid.

If the McLeod board, with the infusion of the new material which has recently been added, were not likely to work out of the difficulties which have been cast in the way of prosecuting the undertaking, irrespective of those who now appear to be the real obstructives, there would be no necessity of attempting to decry their endeavours, but the real fact of the matter is, that a few persons who have not the ability or the stamina to build the railway, are jealous that other parties who are competent, should step in and take the work out of their hands

The McLeod board as at present constituted, we believe are fully prepared and determined to carry out the undertaking with all possible despatch. And the false alarm that has been got up by a few of the old Zimmerman Board of Directors, will be of no avail whatever, and the more they say in the shape of abuse, is only so much said to their own discredit. And if the Woodstock people are so blind to their own interests, and do not choose to amalgamate their line with the Amherstburg and St. Thomas one, it will be necessary to obtain an extension of this line to the Niagara River, which will then place them in the position which they most dread.

The names of the parties who are placed in the new Board, are a sufficient guarantee that the works will be proceeded with; and not even the thimble rigging of the Times, and its echo the Canadian, and their party of interested sharpers, will have the least power to prevent the execution of the plans of the now real Board of Directors. Had they in a proper spirit joined with the parties in this arrangement of the difficulties, the public would then give them credit for having acted for the benefit of the road.—But their opposition to an arrangement of the difficulties which existed, only shows too clearly, that private motives have more weight with them than the general good.

In another column will be found an Act for the better prevention of Accidents on Railways in this Province, as passed by the Legislative Council. This act has been passed to prevent a reccurrence of the frightful destruction of lives, which took place a short time since, at the Desjardins Canal Bridge; it was most necessary that some such strict law should exist, for the protection of the lives of travellers—A law that will ensure at least protection, as far as human means will go. And this one, though arbitrary in some of its enactments, will have the effect of compelling railway companies to keep their lines in thorough repair and good working order. And being under the control of a Board of Railway Commissioners, whose duty it will be to inspect all railways, and to see that nothing is wanting to render them safe, will, we hope, put a stop to the wholesale sacrifice of human life, such as it has been our most painful duty on so many occasions to notice.

The provision in the fourth section of the act for the prevention of railways, opening for the conveyance of passengers until the same shall have been inspected, is an excellent one, and will put a stop in a great measure to the system of building cheap and insufficient works, that have in many instances been the cause of serious accidents, and we hope will bring into existence a more substantial and permanent description of railways Upon the whole, we believe the act to be a good one, and the enactments which effect railway bridges will compel the introduction of a better class than those now in use, and will tend to produce a greater feeling of security in the minds of the public than at present existing.

COUNTY COURT AND QUARTER SESSIONS.

The County Court of the County of Essex met on Tuesday the 7th of April.

Alexander Chewett, Esq., Judge; and Thomas Woodbridge, Thomas Salmoni, Joseph Bratt and James Develin, Esquires, Associates.

CIVIL DOCKET.

Sprague et al vs. Miller.—Defended Issue. Verdict for Plaintiff, £30 17s. Wm. Johnson for Plaintiff; Mr. McLean for Defendant.

Brett vs. Lee.—Replevin. Verdict for Defendant. Messrs. Prince and Eliot for Plaintiff: Mr. O'Connor for Defendant.

Dumard vs. Doe—Defended Issue. Verdict for plaintiff £50. Mr. O'Connor for Plaintiff; Mr. Prince for Defendant.

Boussay vs. Pringle—Defended Issue. Made a remanet by consent. Mr. Leggatt, for Plaintiff; Messrs. Prince and Eliot for Defendant.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

GRAND JURY.—Thomas McKee, Foreman; John Anderson, Michael Byrne, Henry Bruner, Joseph Cates, Thomas Horsman, Antoine Jannisse, Joseph Marentette, Noah Marentette, Joseph Malott, John Maloney, William Pattypiece, Thomas Powers, John Stokes, James White and Alexander McGee.

The usual list of Heir and Devisee claims was read.

Certificates from S. S. Macdonell, Esq. of the Naturalization of Jefferson Lee, William Banyard, and Charles E. Hatfield.

CRIMINAL DOCKET.

The Queen vs. Charles Dunkard—Larceny. Verdict, Not Guilty.

A case of Appeal was brought up, in which Henry Teakle appealed against the decision of Joseph Miller, Esq, J. P., who was convicted upon a charge of assault upon Elizabeth Dunkard, and ordered to pay a fine of 10s and costs. This suit and the appeal were in consequence of the former alleged larceny. The evidence went to show that in the attempt to take the fowls which were claimed by the appellant, Teakle appears to have by accident struck the repellent, Elizabeth Dunkard.

Conviction affirmed.

Appeal case—Antoine Melosh, Appellant Farrel Conroy, Repellant. Conviction quashed for informality.

The Queen vs. Henry McQuade:—

The Grand Jury found a true bill for larceny against defendant. The prisoner having escaped, will not be tried at the present sessions.

The Queen vs. Robert Horseley—Appeal case.—The conviction in this case arose out of a By-Law of the Municipality of Amherstburg, regulating Tavern Licences. The appellant Horseley appealed against the conviction on the ground that it did not follow the By Law. The By-Law stating that no wearing apparel, &c., shall be taken by any Tavern Keeper in pawn for Liquors, whereas the conviction states that two shirts were taken in payment.

Conviction quashed.

The Queen vs. William Gott.—Appeal Conviction quashed.

PRESENTATION to Mr MACDONELL

In January last, the County Council of Essex, in appreciation of the manner in which Mr. Macdonell conducted the affairs of the County, appropriated a sum of money for the purpose of presenting him with a suitable testimonial, and with this sum, a handsome silver Claret Pitcher and Salver beautifully chased, was procured with the following inscription:

Presented to Samuel S. Macdonell, Esq., by the Municipal Council of the County of Essex, as a token of their appreciation of the faithful manner in which he discharged the duties of Warden of the County for the years 1855 and 1856, Sandwich, January, 1857.

And on Wednesday evening, this beautiful piece of Plate was presented on behalf of the County Council, by Theodore Malott Esq., Warden, in the following neat and appropriate speech:

MR. MACDONNELL,

I have great pleasure as the warden of the County of Essex, at having to present you with this Testimonial. Slight though it be, it conveys, as it was intended to do, the appreciation of your conduct and ability as the warden of the County for the years 1855 and 1856.

It is particularly gratifying to me to have to perform this duty, having witnessed the zeal and ability with which you performed the duties of County Clerk for so many years first of the old Western District, then one of the United Counties, and the county of Essex, and finally for the two last years as its Warden.

The study which you must have given to our Municipal Laws enabled you to bring no small amount of legal knowledge into the Council, and which was always exercised by you for its benefit, in that unassuming and kind manner which is so natural to you, and which no doubt has been the means of keeping us out of many troubles.

In conclusion, allow me to congratulate you on the recent addition to your family, and may this present, with its inscription, not only be a source of pride and pleasure to yourself and your amiable lady during your lives, but may it pass as an heir loom to your children and children's children, as a lasting memorial of the faithful manner in which you performed your duties to this County.

After which, Mr. Macdonell replied in his usual happy style, as follows:

MR. WARDEN,

Accept my heartfelt thanks for this beautiful present: and for the praise you have been pleased to bestow upon me.

It hardly required this handsome testimonial to render me sensible of the kindly disposition of the Council towards me. For I have ever had reason to feel gratified to that body for their goodness to me, and for the confidence they have always reposed in me in the various relations in which I have stood towards them during the last eight years.

It is sir, most gratifying to me to receive this assurance from yourself, who have been so long connected with our Municipal Institutions. I regard Municipalities only as noble confederacies, for working out good to our country; and for advancing it towards national wealth and a high civilization. And in that view, I have ever esteemed it a privilege and a happiness to be in any way associated with them.

I thank you for your congratulations—and for the kind allusion to Mrs. Macdonell, who shares with me all my hopes and wishes for the political, social, and intellectual advancement of the County of Essex, our future homes and our children's homes, and who prizes over as I do, this beautiful memento of the approbation of the County of my humble services in the conduct of its public affairs.

Mr. Macdonell's services as the late Warden of this County are so well known and appreciated by all, that it would be needless for us again to repeat the many services which he has rendered the County, and the lateness of the hour will prevent our saying as much as we would have wished to.

After the presentation, Mr. Macdonell was entertained at a dinner, by a number of his friends at the Hennell House, where every thing went off in the very best manner. Mr. Hennell on this occasion as on all others, showed his talent for getting up a first-rate dinner. The eatables were all that the most fastidious palate could wish for, and the wines could not be surpassed.

ST. CATHARINE'S POST.—We are pleased to find the Post, after a suspension of a few weeks, caused by the destruction of the office by fire, again revived with even renewed vigor, and looking charmingly in its new dress. The loss to the proprietors must have been considerable, and they deserve credit for the manner in which they have got up the new establishment, in spite of their late misfortune. They have our best wishes for a long and prosperous career.

☞ St. John's Church, Sandwich, has been repaired and painted throughout, and will be re-opened for Divine Service tomorrow, Good Friday, at 11 o'clock A. M.

☞ In another column will be found an advertisement of real Property for Sale by Mr. R. Maycock, which affords a splendid opportunity for investment, being well located, and upon the whole a first-rate property.

☞ We have received a circular containing the correspondence and an explanation of Mr. Buchanan relative to the Southern Railway, which came too late for publication this week, will insert next.

☞ Col. Prince will please accept our thanks for a plentiful supply of Parliamentary Papers and documents.

Appointments.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Toronto, 4th April, 1857.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL has been pleased to make the following Appointment, viz:

WILLIAM GATFIELD, of the Township of Anderdon, Gentleman, to be a Preventive Officer in Her Majesty's Customs.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL has been pleased to grant License to practise Physic, Surgery and Midwifery in Upper Canada, to

STEPHEN DENNIS CRAWFORD, of Paisley, Esquire, M. R. C. of Surgeons, and

WALTER LAMBERT, of Amherstburg, Esquire, Bachelor of Medicine, Trinity College, Toronto.

A Tea party in aid of All Saint's Church Building Fund will be given in the New Town Hall, Windsor, on Wednesday, April 15th, under the management of the following Ladies:

Mesdames Clarke, Curry, Dewar, Dewson, Elliott, Forde, Hirons, Kennedy, Partridge, Peacock, Pekins, Reed, Richards, Shipley, Sutton.

Tickets, Fifty cents each, may be had at the store of Mr. Sutton

And on Thursday, April 16th, 4 P. M. for children, at 12½ cents each.—Herald.

EXTENSIVE EMBEZZLEMENT AT THE FREIGHT DEPARTMENT OF THE GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.—We understand that the cashier in the above department has left Windsor without giving or receiving notice, taking with him about $5000. It appears that he has not been more than three months at his post, having come at the same time as the present freight agent, who placed in him the most implicit confidence. He was fresh from England, and had been in the employ of Chaplin & Horn, the great carriers. If the Great Western Railway Company wish to keep their confidential servants honest, perhaps it would be as well to pay them a little better for their services. We know of one very efficient clerk, who for some time has been paid but $8 per week. We think there is great room for improvement here.—Herald.

Births.

On the 3rd instant, the Wife of S. S. Macdonell, Esquire, of Windsor, of a Daughter.

At Windsor on the 4th instant, Mrs. O'Connor, of a Daughter.

Essex County Agricultural Society.

A MEETING of the above Society will be held in the Old Court House, Sandwich, on Thursday the 16th instant, at two o'clock, P. M., for the purpose of deciding where the Fair will be held next Fall.

North Shore Line of Steamboats

DETROIT AND BUFFALO.

THE new and magnificent steamers PLYMOUTH ROCK, WESTERN WORLD, and MISSISSIPPI, will form this line the ensuing season, and commence running immediately upon the opening of navigation, as follows:

PLYMOUTH ROCK,
P. J. RALPH, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Mondays and Thursdays
" " Buffalo, Tuesdays and Fridays.

WESTERN WORLD,
J. S. RICHARDS, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Wednesdays & Saturdays
" " Buffalo, Mondays and Thursdays

MISSISSIPPI,
S. G. LANGLEY, Commander.
Will leave Detroit Tuesdays and Fridays.
" " Buffalo, Wednesdays & Saturdays

These steamers are all new, of the largest class, being about two thousand tons each. The Commanders and Officers are gentlemen of great experience and capability. They are fitted up and furnished for the convenience of passengers in a style of comfort and luxury, entirely unequalled, and are in all respects considered the safest and most desirable steamers that sail upon the Western Waters.

For the transportation of freight, the line will surpass anything ever before offered to the public, having arrangements with parties between New York and Boston, and all points west of Buffalo to St. Louis, which will enable them to forward merchandise with greater despatch than has ever yet been attained

For the transportation of live stock these steamers offer facilities to drovers which cannot be surpassed or equalled.

Shippers of merchandise from the East, should mark packages to the care of Messrs SEYMOUR, Buffalo: merchandize from the West should be to the care of JOHN HOSMER, agent, Detroit.

C. B. SWAIN, Agent.

Detroit, April, 1857.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

THE Partnership heretofore existing between G. & G. A. BULLOCK has been this day dissolved by mutual consent, the business will hereafter be conducted by G. A. BULLOCK to whom all Debts due the late firm must be paid.

For Sale!!!

A FIRST-RATE LOCATION AND DESIRABLE RESIDENCE, IN THE BEAUTIFUL TOWN OF SANDWICH.

LOTS Nos. 11 and 12, containing about One Acre and a half, on the East Side of Russell Street, being situated about two miles from the Terminus of the Great Western Railway, and situated on the bank of the River Detroit, opposite the City of Detroit in the State of Michigan.

For a private residence, the beauty of the locality is unsurpassed in Western Canada.

On lot No. 11, there is erected a POT ASH FACTORY, which is now, and has been in constant operation for years past, having been erected on an improved plan and on an enlarged scale, and being the only one in operation in the neighborhood, it affords the greatest facility for immediate and beneficial operation. On the same lot is a large Brick Yard, paying an annual rental of £25, which has been in operation for a few years past.

On lot No. 12, which fronts on Russell Street on the West, and on Chippewa Street on the South, is erected a TWO STOREY BRICK DWELLING HOUSE, 35 feet by 22 feet, now used as a SOAP AND CANDLE FACTORY, and favorably situated as a private residence, commanding a view of the beautiful and navigable waters of the River Detroit and of Detroit City, together with a Frame Dwelling House, one and a half storeys high, fronting on Chippewa Street, with Barns, Stables, &c.; a Brick Milk House, a never-failing spring well, and all things connected, necessary for the use and comfort of a private family.

THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY, which is now awakening so much interest in this locality, and which it is believed will be shortly constructed, will much benefit this property, as the Terminus thereof will undoubtedly be on or adjacent to the above property, on the borders of the River Detroit.

Terms, with all Fixtures, Apparatus and Implements now in use, Cash—£550.

Possession to be given one month after sale concluded.

Application to be made to the undersigned, if by letter post paid.

R. MAYCOCK,
Sandwich, Canada West.

An Act

For the better Prevention of Accidents on Railways.

Whereas it is expedient to make further provision, for the prevention of accidents on Railways: Therefore, Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of Canada, enacts as follows.

I. The Board of Railway Commissioners constituted by the Seventeenth section of the Act passed in the Session held in the fourteenth and fifteenth years of Her Majesty's Reign, Chapter seventy-three, intituled, An Act to make provision for the construction of a Main Trunk Line of Railway throughout the whole length of this Province, shall, in addition to their present powers and duties, have and discharge the powers and duties in this Act prescribed, and may from time to time appoint some fit and qualified person to be Secretary of the said Board in the stead of the Secretary of the Commissioners of Public Works, who shall thenceforth cease to be the Secretary of the said Board.

II. It shall be lawful for the said Board of Railway Commissioners, to appoint and authorize any proper person or persons to inspect any Railway constructed or in course of construction; and it shall be lawful for every person so authorized, at all reasonable times, upon producing his authority if required, to enter upon and examine the said Railway and the stations, works and buildings, and the engines, cars and carriages belonging thereto: And it shall be the duty of every Railway Company and the Officers and Directors thereof to afford to such Inspector or Inspectors every information and full and true explanations so far as may be in their power or knowledge on all matters inquired into by any such Inspector or Inspectors, and to submit to such Inspector or Inspectors all plans, specifications, drawings and documents relating to the construction or reconstruction, repair or state of repair of such Railway or any portion thereof, whether a bridge, culvert or other part: And such Inspector shall have the right to use the telegraph wires and machinery in the offices of or under the control of any such Railway Company, for the purpose thereby or therewith of communicating with any of the officers of the said Company or transmitting any order of any such Inspector relating to such Railway, and the operators or officers employed at the telegraph offices of or under the control of the said Company, shall without delay obey all orders of any such Inspector for effecting such communications and transmitting messages for the purpose aforesaid, and any such operator or officer refusing or neglecting so to do, shall forfeit for every such offence the sum of Ten Pounds: and the authority of any such Inspector shall be sufficiently evidenced by a paper in writing nominating him an Inspector of Railways or of any Railway in particular signed by the chairman of the said Board of Railway Commissioners and countersigned by the Secretary thereof: Provided always, that all appointments made under the authority of this Act, shall be subject to the approval of the Governor General in Council, where such appointments shall be otherwise than temporary, for a longer period of service than fifteen days.

III. Every person wilfully obstructing any person duly authorized as aforesaid in the execution of his duty shall, on conviction before a Justice of the Peace having jurisdiction in the place where the offence shall have been committed, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding ten pounds, and on default of payment of any penalty so adjudged immediately or within such time as the said Justice of the Peace shall appoint, the same Justice or any other Justice having jurisdiction in the place where the offender shall be or reside, may commit the offender to prison for any period not exceeding three calendar months; such commitment to be determined on payment of the amount of the penalty; and every such penalty shall be returned to the next ensuing Court of Quarter Sessions in their usual manner.

IV. No Railway or portion of any Railway shall be opened for the public conveyance of passengers until one calendar month after notice in writing of the intention of opening the same shall have been given by the Company to whom such Railway shall belong to the Board of Railway Commissioners and until ten days after notice in writing shall have been given by the said Company to the said Board of Railway Commissioners of the time when the said Railway or portion of Railway will be, in their opinion, sufficiently completed for the safe conveyance of passengers, are ready for inspection

V. If any Railway or portion of any Railway shall be opened without such notice as aforesaid, the Company to whom such Railway shall belong, shall forfeit to Her Majesty the sum of fifty pounds for every day during which the same shall continue open, until the said notices shall have been duly given and shall have expired.

VI. If the Inspector or Inspectors appointed by the said Board of Railway Commissioners to inspect any such Railway, or portion of Railways, shall after inspection thereof, report in writing to the said Board that, in his or their opinion, the opening of the same would be attended with danger to the public using the same, by reason of the incompleteness of the works or of the permanent way, or the insufficiency of the establishment for working such Railway, together with the ground of such opinion, it shall be lawful for the said Board of Railway Commissioners, with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, and as often from time to time, as often as such Inspector or Inspectors shall after further inspection thereof so report, to order and direct the Company to whom such Railway shall belong to postpone such opening not exceeding one calendar month at any one time, until it shall appear to the said Board that the opening may take place without danger to the public; and if any such Railway, or any portion thereof, shall be opened contrary to any such order or direction of the Board of Railway Commissioners, the Company to whom such Railway shall belong shall forfeit to Her Majesty the sum of fifty pounds for every day during which the same shall continue open contrary to such order and direction; Provided always, that no such order as aforesaid shall be binding upon any Railway Company unless therewith shall be delivered to the said Company a copy of the report of the Inspector or Inspectors on which such order shall be founded.

VII. It shall be lawful for the Governor General in Council upon the Report of the said Board to authorize or require any Railway Company to construct fixed and permanent bridges or substitute such bridges in the place of swing, draw or moveable bridges on the line of such Railway, within such time as the Governor in Council may direct; and for such said every day after the period so fixed during which the said Company shall use such swing, draw or moveable bridges of the said Company, shall forfeit and pay to Her Majesty the sum of fifty pounds; provided it shall not be lawful for any Railway Company to substitute any swing, draw or other moveable bridge in the place or stead of any fixed or permanent bridge already built and constructed without the consent of the Governor General in Council previously had and obtained.

VIII. When and so often as any bridge, culvert, viaduct or tunnel, any other portion of any railway constructed, or in course of construction, shall become unsafe or incapable for any locomotive car or carriage used or for use on any Railway shall have been condemned by the said Board of Railway Commissioners, with the approval of the Governor General in Council, or any change or alteration therein or in any part thereof, or the substitution of any new bridge, culvert, viaduct or tunnel, or of any material for the said Railway, shall be required by the said Board of Railway Commissioners, with the approval of the Governor General in Council, the Company to which such Railway belongs, or using, running or working the same, shall, after notice thereof in writing signed by the Chairman of the said Board and countersigned by the Secretary thereof, proceed to make good or remedy defects in the said portions of the Railway, or in the locomotive car or carriage which shall have been so condemned, or to make such change, alteration or substitution hereinbefore referred to as may have been required in manner aforesaid by the said Board.

IX. If in opinion of such Railway Inspector, it shall be dangerous that trains or vehicles should pass over any particular railway, or the portion of a Railway, until alterations, substitutions or repairs shall have been made thereon, or that any particular car, carriage or locomotive should be run or used, it shall be lawful for the said Inspector forthwith to forbid the running of any train or vehicle over any such Railway or portion, or the running of any such car, carriage or locomotive by delivering or causing to be delivered to the President, or Secretary or Superintendent of the said Company owning, running, or using such Railway, or the conductor or engine driver of or on any train, locomotive or car on such Railway, a notice in writing to that effect with his reason therefor, in which he shall distinctly point out the defects or nature of the danger to be apprehended; and forthwith the said Inspector shall report the same to the said Board of Railway Commissioners, who, with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, may either confirm or disallow such act or order of the Inspector; and such confirmation or disallowance shall be duly notified to the Railway Company affected thereby; and the said Board of Railway Commissioners may, with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, limit the number or times or rate of speed of running of trains or vehicles, upon such Railway or portion of railway, until such alterations or repairs as they may think sufficient shall have been made, or until such time as they may provide; and it shall be the duty of the Company owning, running or using such railway to comply forthwith with any such order of the Inspector or of the said Board, upon notice thereof as aforesaid; and for every act of non-compliance therewith every such Railway Company shall forfeit to Her Majesty the sum of five pounds.

X. From and after the passing of this Act, that at all times thereafter, every Railway Company which runs any trains for the conveyance of passengers upon any railway, shall provide and cause to be used in and upon such trains such known apparatus and arrangements as shall best afford good and sufficient means of immediate communication between the conductors and the engine-drivers of such trains while the trains are in motion, good and sufficient means of applying the brakes to the brakewheels of the locomotive or tender, or both, or of all or any of the cars or carriages composing such trains, by the power of the steam-engine or otherwise at the will of the engine-driver, or other person or persons appointed to such duty, and of disconnecting the locomotive, tender, and cars or carriages from each other by any such power or means, as shall best and most securely place and fix the seats or chairs in such cars or carriages, and shall alter such apparatus and arrangements or supply new apparatus and arrangements for such purposes as the Board of Railway Commissioners, with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, may order; and every Railway Company shall make such by-laws, rules and regulations, to be observed by the conductors, engine-drivers, and other officers and servants of such Company, and by all other Companies and persons using the Railway of such Company, as are requisite for ensuring the employment and proper use of such means of communication, application and disconnection, as aforesaid; and every Railway Company which fails to comply with the provisions of this section as to the means of communication between the conductors and engine drivers of trains, or of applying the brakes or disconnecting the carriages composing trains or of placing and fixing the seats or chairs aforesaid shall forfeit to Her Majesty a sum not exceeding Fifty Pounds for every day during which such default shall continue.

XI. In any case where a Railway not already commenced may hereafter be constructed or authorized to be constructed or across any turnpike road, street, or other public highway, on the level, it shall be lawful for the said Board of Railway Commissioners, if it appear to them necessary for the public safety, with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, to authorize and require the Company to whom such Railway belongs, within such time as the said Board shall direct, to carry such road, street or highway either over or under the said Railway, by means of a bridge or arch, instead of crossing the same on the level, or to execute such other works as under the circumstances of the case appear to the said Board the best adapted for removing or diminishing the danger arising from such level crossing; and all the provisions of law at present in force applicable to the taking of land by Railway Companies and its valuation and conveyance to them, and to the compensation therefor, shall apply to the case of any land being required for the construction of any works for effecting the alteration of such level crossing. Provided that hereafter every locomotive or Railway engine or train of cars on any Railway shall before it crosses the track or any other Railway on a level be stopped for at least the space of three minutes, and that no locomotive or Railway engine shall pass it, through any thickly peopled portion of any City Town or Village at a speed greater than ten miles per hour under a penalty of twenty-five pounds for any contravention of this proviso.

XII. If the Board of Railway Commissioners in the exercise of the powers herein before contained, order any Railway Company to erect at or near or in the line of any such level crossing of a turnpike road, or other public road as aforesaid, a foot bridge or foot-bridges over their Railway for the purpose of enabling persons passing on foot along the said turnpike road or public highway to cross the said Railway by means of such bridge or bridges, then and in any such case, from and after the completion of such foot-bridge or foot-bridges as shall be so required to be erected, and while the said Company keep the same in good and sufficient repair, the said level crossing shall not be used by foot passengers on the said turnpike road or public highway, except during the time when the same shall be used for the passage of carriages, carts, horses or cattle along the said road.

XIII. Every Railway Company shall as soon as possible, and at least within forty-eight hours, after the occurrences upon the railway belonging to such Company of any accident attended with serious personal injury to the public using the same, or whereby any bridge, culvert, viaduct or tunnel on or of the said Railway shall be broken or so damaged as to be impassable or unfit for immediate use, give notice thereof to the Board of Railway Commissioners; and if any Company shall wilfully omit to give such notice, such company shall forfeit to Her Majesty the sum of Fifty Pounds for every day during which the omission to give the same shall continue;

XIV. Every Railway Company shall within ten days after the first days of January and July, in each and every year, make to the said Board of Railway Commissioners, under the oath of the President, Secretary or Superintendent of the said Company, a true and particular return of all accidents and casualties [whether to life or property] which have occurred on the Railway of the said Company during the half year next preceding each of the said periods respectively, setting forth the causes and natures of such accidents and casualties and the full extent thereof, and all particulars of the same, and shall also at the same time return a true copy of the existing By-Laws of the said Company and of their rules and regulations for the management of the said Company and of their Railway; and the Board of Railway Commissioners may order and direct from time to time, the form in which such returns shall be made up, and may order and direct any Railway Company to make up and deliver to them from time to time, in addition to the said periodical returns, returns of serious accidents occurring in the course of the public traffic upon the Railway belonging to such Company, whether attended with personal injury or not, in such form and manner as the said Board shall deem necessary, and require for their information with a view to the public safety And if any such returns, verified as aforesaid, shall not be so delivered in the respective times herein prescribed or within fourteen days after the same shall have been so required as aforesaid by the said Board, every such Company shall forfeit to Her Majesty the sum of twenty-five pounds, for every day during which the said Company shall neglect to deliver the same: Provided always, that all such returns shall be privileged communications, and shall not be evidence in any court whatever.

XV. The provisions of the act passed in the session held in the 19th and 20th years of her Majesty's reign, chapter 11, intituled, "An Act for the punishment of the Officers and Servants of Railway Companies, contravening the By-Laws of such companies, to the danger of person and property," shall apply to cases of non-observance or contravention by any such officer or servant of any order or notice of the said Board of Railway Commissioners, of which he shall, before such non-observance or contravention, have had cognizance in any of the ways referred to in the second section of the said act; and it shall be the duty of every Railway Company, as soon as possible after the receipt of any such order or notice, to give cognizance thereof to one or more of each of the classes of its officers and servants; and all orders of the said board of railway commissioners shall be considered as made known to the said Railway Company by a notice thereof signed by the chairman and countersigned by the secretary of the said board, delivered to the President, Vice-President, Secretary or Superintendent of the said company, or at the office of the said Com'y

XVI. No inspection had under this Act nor any thing in this Act contained or done or ordered or omitted to be done or ordered under or by virtue of the provisions of this Act, shall relieve or be construed to relieve any Railway Company, of or from any liability or responsibility resting upon it by law either towards Her Majesty or towards any persons, or the wife or husband, parent or child, executor or administrator, tutor or curator, heir or next of kin or personal representative of any person for any thing done or omitted to be done by such Company or for any wrongful act, neglect or default, misfeasance malfeasance or nonfeasance of such Company, or in any manner or way to weaken or diminish the liability or responsibility of any such Company under the existing laws of the Province.

XVII. All penalties incurred under this Act, except penalties under the third section thereof, may be recovered in the name of Her Majesty, by Her Majesty's Attorney General in any Court having competent jurisdiction thereover.

XVIII. In the construction of this Act, the expression Railway Company shall include any person being the owner or lessee of or contractor working any railway constructed or carried on under the powers of any Act of Parliament.

XIX. This Act may be cited for all purposes as "The Accidents on Railways Act, 1857."

WINDSOR NURSERIES.

JUST PUBLISHED, a DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE of the Fruit Trees for sale at the Windsor Nurseries, containing a more accurate description of a greater variety of Fruits, than can be found in any other Catalogue issued on this continent, the whole having been compiled by the undersigned, with great care, from personal inspection of the Fruits growing in the open ground. Directions for Planting, Cultivation, Pruning, &c., will be found in the Catalogue.

Also, in Press, and will be published in a few days, a Descriptive Catalogue of Ornamental Trees, Shrubs, Roses, Tulips, Peonias, &c., &c.

Catalogues will be sent gratis, on application, (if by letter post-paid), to the undersigned, at Windsor, C. W.

The stock of Fruit Trees, more especially Apples and Pears—both Standard and Dwarf—is extremely thrifty and well grown, and such can be procured in no other Nursery. A large portion of them are just commencing to bear, and having been twice transplanted, can be removed with perfect success.

All orders promptly attended to, the Trees carefully packed so as to carry any distance with safety, and forwarded with despatch.

As the undersigned intends discontinuing the Nursery Business, those wishing considerable lots of Trees will find it for their interest to apply early.

GREEN'S

GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighboring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that his can compete with his Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to carry their money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.

Farmers

Call at the Great Western Boot store, where you will find every article in the Boot and Shoe trade to suit you.

HEALTH OR SICKNESS

CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, theliver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and healing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endorsements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review," and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints	Indigestion
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflammation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits
Diarrhœa	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venereal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds,

 Sold at the Manufactories of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and 244 Strand, London, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62½ cents, and $1 each.

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box. v1n43

☞ CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernable as a water-mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each pot or box, the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

The Snowdrop.

Sweet harbinger of lively Spring!
We hail thy advent with delight,
For back to memory then dost bring
Full many a balmy night,
When underneath the waving trees
Did softly sigh the evening breeze.

Dear wintry bud! there is a charm,
Attends thy coming, calls the flowers,
And spreads afar the sweet alarm,
That summer wakes amid the bowers;
It tells them that the zephyr sighs
Beneath the blue and arching skies.

Most beautiful amid the snow,
Thy modest buds attract the eye,
For charmingly they let us know
The wished-for summer now is nigh,
When Flora smiles upon the plain,
And bids awake the shepherd's strain.

And when at length the summer's come,
Thy lovely mission is not o'er,
Thy gentle voice is mute and dumb
Till summer comes again as yore,
And cheers the heart of those who long
For summer time, the fields to throng.

Somebody says "devil" is a mean word any way it may be written. Remove the d and it is "evil," remove the e and it is "vile," remove the v and it is "il," remove the i, and l remains, which has the aspirate sound of "hell."

"Where did you come from?" said Wilkes to a beggar in the Isle of Wight. "From the devil." "What is going on there?" "Much the same as here."—"What's that?" "The rich taken in and the poor kept out."

John Phœnix went to the theatre once when Mrs. Smith was advertised to appear in two pieces. After the performances he determined the return of his money, for he said Mrs. Smith appeared whole during both performances.

A chicken fancier is trying to get up a new race of pullets by crossing weather cocks with Shanghai hens. We shall watch his success with much interest.—This is a progressive age. Rope-walks will yet be make to trot.

A Pat Question.—In a jolly company, each one was to ask a question. If it was answered, the proposer paid a forfeit. or, if he could not answer it himself, he paid a forfeit. Pat's question was—"How the little ground squirrel digs his hole without showing any dirt about the entrance?" When they all gave up, Pat said—"Sure, do you see, he begins at other end of the hole." One of the rest exclaimed—"But how does he get there?" Ah!" said Pat, "that's your question; can you answer it yourself?"

"Ma," said a little girl, who had just commenced lessons in geography, "whereabouts shall I find the state of matrimony?" "Of!" replied the mother, "you will find that to be one of the United States."

Have Away.—The Scotch have a habit of telling their servants, after meals, to "have away," instead of to "take away." A sweet lassie was married to Irishman, who, on hearing her tell the servant, after breakfast, that she might "have away," quickly remarked "Arrah, be asy, lovel if you are after the may have away after that fashion depind upon it she'll be always having a way of her own!"

When we look abroad upon the great potato patch of the world, we see innumerable hills filled to overflowing with the very smallest kind of taters, and a feeling of sadness comes over us at the thought that they will never be any larger.—That's so:

The ancient Scandinavians used the antlers of stags for drinking cups. This is evidently the origin of the phrase, "taking a horn!"

As modesty is the brightest ornament of a woman, the want of it is the greatest deformity.

A Virginia postmaster has been inquiring of the department the meaning of the little "pictures stuck on the letters, and another official in Iowa desired the department to sustain him in a decision he had recently made against a fellow who insisted that "them pictures of Washington, on the letter paid the postage."

Two negroes were on board a sailing vessel crossing the Atlantic, when a severe storm arose. The sailors swore it blew "great guns," the two colored men thought they would pray; one of them, whose name was Sam said:—

"O! Lord, save us dis time, and I'll give you a lump of gold as big as my foot."

"Where you get it!" says Gulf.

"O! never mind, you dam'd fool, I only just tell him so."

Cardinal Richelieu one day said to M. de Sart, a celebrated physician—

"I am gray headed, and yet my beard is black, and your head is black and your beard is gray.—Can you account for these appearances, doctor?"

"Easily," replied M. de Sart, "they proceed from exercise, from labor of parts; your eminence's brains have worked hard and so have my jaws!"

A beautiful mind in a beautiful body, is one of the finest object shown us by nature.

A clergyman at an afternoon's service was asked to read a notice for a woman's right lecture, which he did in this wise:—"At half past six o'clock, at the school house in the first district a lass will attempt to crow."

A lazy fellow once declared in public company, that he could not find bread for his family. "Nor I," replied an industrious mechanic; "I'm obliged to work for it."

A Church Notice.—The following notice appeared on the west side of a country meeting house:—"Any person sticking bills against this church will be prosecuted according to law or any other nuisance."

Matrimonial Difficulty.—A young man who has recently taken a wife, says he did not find it half so hard to get married as he did to get furniture.

Good from Evil.—Adversities are blessings in disguise. We know a man who has hired six months on a sprained ankle He belongs to half a dozen societies, and draws four dollars a week from each. He once spent a whole summer at Saratoga on a sore throat.

FARM WORK.

It is a matter of great importance to the farmer, that he should lay out the work of the season before hand, and now is the time to do it. We need much more thorough system in our farming operations. Determine upon the fields you will cultivate, and what shall be allotted to oats, corn, rye, wheat, buckwheat, potatoes, and other root crops; what walls shall be reset, and what ditches shall be dug; and how much labour will be needed to accomplish the work. Leave nothing to be decided upon in haste. A great deal of time and mental labour will be saved by making your plans deliberately at the beginning of the year. If there are doubtful matters, consult the best farmer in your neighbourhood, and give his opinion due weight in your decision. A neighbor's experience will often save a useless expenditure of money and labour. When your plans are laid, carry them out, month by month, and week by week until the year is completed. If you need capital for your legitimate business, hire it. You can as well afford to pay interest for this purpose as well as any other business man. Turn not aside to speculation in any thing that you do not understand. Glory in the farm and live by it.

To Sweeten Rancid Butter.—An agriculturist, near Brussels, in Europe, having succeeded in removing the bad smell and disagreeable taste of some butter by heating or mixing, it with chloride of lime, he was encouraged by this happy result to continue his experiments by trying them upon butter so rancid as to be past use; and he has restored to butter, the odor and taste which was insupportable to all the sweetness of fresh butter. This operation is extremely simple and practicable for all. It consists in beating the butter in sufficient quantity of water, in which had been mixed 25 30 drops of chloride of lime to two pound of butter. After having brought all its parts in contact with the water, it may be left for an hour or two; afterwards withdrawn and washed anew in fresh water. The chloride of lime used, having nothing injurious in it, can safely be increased; but afterward having verified the experience, it was found that 25 or 30 drops to two and a half pounds of butter, were sufficient.

Cement To Mend Earthen and Glass Ware.—The cement sold about the country as a great secret, is nothing more than shellac melted and drawn out into sticks. Heat the article a little above boiling water heat, and apply a thin coating on both surfaces of the broken vessel, and when cold it will be as strong as it was originally.

To protect Hens from Vermin.—It is said that pennyroyal, woven into their nests, will perfectly and certainly protect hens from the annoyance of vermin. Some poultry raisers make the nest entirely of this strong-scented herb.

Asparagus Beds.—A good depth of soil is necessary—say from 2½ to 3 feet—well worked and with rotten barn yard manure. Thorough and effectual drainage should also be provided. Early in every spring apply a dressing of salt, to the extent of one or two pound to each square yard. An additional dressing of rotten stable manure should also sometime be given. Asparagus is an marine plant, hence an occasional application of salt should by no means be omitted.

Enrich the Soil.—It should be the object of every tiller of the soil to leave his land in good condition after the removal of a crop, and, at the same time obtain as remunerating returns as possible. This can be done only by husbanding all sources of fertility upon the farm and adding thereto in every available manner. This is the Alpha and Omega of progressive agriculture.

To Preserve Shade Trees.—to prevent horses from biting the shade trees, Mr. John N. Bradford contributes the following receipe, which he says has been thoroughly tested. Boil a pound of mutton fat, two dozen aloes, and a quarter of an ounce of Cayenne together, and put the mixture with a brush upon a tree once or twice a year. Horses will not touch a tree which has been thus treated, and it will also promote the health and growth of the bark. It is certainly worth trying, as the difficulty of protecting trees by ordinary means is very great.

Lithium.—This is the name of a new metal, first isolated by Sir H. Davy, from the alkali lithia, obtained from lepidolite. M. L. Troost in a paper read to the French Academy of Sciences, stated that he has succeeded in obtaining a large quantity of this metal, an ingot of which is presented to the Academy. "Lithium" occupies that place among metals forming the base of alkalies, which among those metals alone forming the base of the alkaline earths. It forms alloys with sodium and potassium, some of which are lighter than naptha; and undergoes no alteration when kept in a glass vessel filled with air.

Water Proof Clothes.—M. Payen, a Parisian chemist, is the inventor of a simple and cheap method of rendering clothes water-proof, which has been extensively tested, and its importance acknowledged, both in France and England. His process is to take one large measure of alum, and dissolve it in about eight gallons of water. On mixing the two liquids, there will be a precipitate in the form of a powder created, which is the sulphate of lead. Turn off the liquid which retains in solution the acetate of alum, and plunge into it the article to be rendered impermeable. Maltreate the article by kneading it with the hands till it becomes thoroughly saturated, when, after a few moments, take it out of the liquid and hang it in the air to dry. Goods rendered impermeable by this process retain no unpleasant odour.—French Paper.

Select Poetry.

The Merry Cottage Girl.

Let others seek where beauty shines,
The things which most they prize,
Let each one go where fancy leads
In quest of lips and eyes;
To me more dear than brightest gems
Of diamond, gold, or pearl,
Is this sweet child of low estate—
The merry cottage girl.

Away from Fashion's busy world
She dwells in sweet content;
Without a fear of coming ill
Her happy days are spent;
Soft golden hair floats o'er her brow,
In rich and graceful curl,
And she is all my heart could wish—
The merry cottage girl.

Beside her mother's humble cot
She spends the pleasant hours,
And wanders through the old green lanes
And fairy-haunted bowers!
Secluded from the restless crowd,
From Fashion's busy whirl,
She lives a life of happiness—
The merry cottage girl.

I've seen the fairest English belles,
The gayest of the gay;
I've joined the song and merry dance,
And proudly led the way:
But none I've seen like unto her
In all the mazy whirl,
None half so pure, so beautiful,
As this sweet cottage girl.

Robin's Come.

From the elm-tree's topmost bough,
Hark! the Robin's early song,
Telling one and all, that now
Merry Spring time hastes along;
Welcome tidings dost thou bring,
Little harbinger of Spring.
Robin's come.

Of the winter we are weary,
Weary of its frost and snow,
Longing for the sunshine cheery,
And the brooklet's gurgling flow;
Gladly then we hear thee sing
The revelrie of the spring.
Robin's come.

Ring it out o'er hill and plain,
Through the garden's lonely bowers,
Till the green leaves rustle again,
Till the air is sweet with flowers;
Wake the cowslip by the rill,
Wake the common daffodil.
Robin's come.

Then, as thou wert wont of yore,
Build thy nests and rear thy young,
Close beside our cottage door,
In the woodbine loves among;
Hurt or harm thou need'st not fear.
Nothing rude shall venture near.
Robin's come.

Swinging still o'er yonder lane,
Robin sings so merrily;
Rain-bird by the west refrain,
Alice claps her hands in glee,
Shouting from the open door,
With her clear eyes o'er and o'er,
Robin's come.

Kindness Rewarded.

Daylight was fast fading from the sky, on a cold and lowering evening in November, when a poor penniless, leading a little boy by the hand, rang at the door of a handsome house, in the outskirts of the pleasant town of S——. The girl who answered the bell soon returned and told the lady that a poor woman was at the door, begging a night's lodging. The lady cast a troubled look at the dead leaves that were whirling in eddies along the street and then at the dark clouds that were drifting to-ther overhead, and sighed. Her husband had a nervous dislike to admitting unknown persons into his house, and had often charged his family not to suffer any such to cross his threshold. She therefore arose with a heavy heart, and went to the door where the stranger stood holding the hand of a pale, sad-looking little boy, about six years of age. The woman depicted and care worn, seemed ready to sink with fatigue. The lady kindly inquired into her situation, and heard the following account: Several years ago she had emigrated to the West with her husband and five children, in hopes of bettering their condition. There hopes had been disappointed—sickness had entered their cabin—the husband and father was carried off by one of the fevers of the climate, and the children, one by one, had followed; the poor feeble boy which she held by the hand, alone remained. When all was over, she said the little property that was left, and, with the boy, began on foot their melancholy journey back to their native place. That evening, for the first time obliged to ask charity, but it was so hard to bring her feelings to it, that she had passed through the whole town without having courage to stop at a door, until she made her first application at that house. "But," said she, "we do not want food, nor clothes, nor money; we only ask for shelter for the night." The lady felt that this was a case in which she ought rather to risk the displeasure of her husband than to send the stranger away. Accordingly, she led them into the house, and, while the bed was preparing, the urged them to eat, but they both refused food, and when their bed was ready they retired and soon fell asleep.

When the master of the house returned and heard what had happened, he exclaimed angrily: "They shall not stay here. My father never would harbour vagrants, neither will I."

"But, my dear," said the lady, "they are now asleep—you cannot send them away now; it is very dark, and what harm can they do here?"

"They will get up when we are asleep and rob the house, and be off before we know anything about it. It is all a pretence to get inside of the house; but they must be up and off."

"Oh, pray, do not turn them out this dark, cold night," said the lady. "If you are afraid of their robbing the house, I will sit up and watch them: but they are worn out and unable to go any farther."

"We will soon see how that is," said he; and going into the small room where they slept, he called out in a loud voice, "come get up and be off—you cannot stay here—I cannot have you here."

The woman raised her eyes with a look of silent despair; but the boy, with a nervous agitation, painfully different from the motions of a happy, healthy child, sprang from the bed, and clasping his hands together, fell on his knees and cried out, in a shrill, imploring tone, "Oh, sir! don't turn us out this dark night! We are are tired almost to death. Oh, do let us stay till daylight!"

The gentleman relented at the appeal, and turning to his wife said, "If you choose to give up your night's rest for the sake of their staying, I have no objections; but you must watch them all the while."

The lady willingly consented, and soothing the boy, sent him back to bed. She then took a seat in the neighboring room, and prepared to fulfil her promise, by watching them all night.

The strangers slept heavily but not quietly. The poor woma groaned often, and murmured in her sleep of many sorrows. Once or twice she said with a deep sigh, "Well well! my heart is breaking, but the Lord is good."

* * * * *

In after years, that lady was called to endure loss after loss, and trial after trial, until her heart was almost crushed within her; and often, when she was ready to sink with despair, the sleeping words of that unknown widow came home to her heart and brought strength and comfort, and she felt herself fully repaid for a sleepless night when she had learned to say, "Well, well! my heart is breaking, but the Lord is good."

Poor unknown woman! if you are still an inhabitant of this world—if the Physician has healed your breaking heart, know that your words, unconsciously spoken, have often strengthened the spirit of a widow almost as desolate as yourself, and in return she nows longs to tell you what she has since learned. If we truly know and acknowledge that the Lord is good, our hearts will never break, but grow stronger and stronger under trials.

A Peep into the Bank of England

The Bank of England must be seen on the inside as well as out, and to get into the interior of this remarkable building, to observe the operations of an institution that exerts more in real power and influence than any sovereign in Europe, you must have an order from the Governor of the Bank. The building occupies an irregular area of eight acres of ground—an edifice of no architectural beauty, with not one window towards the street, being lighted altogether from the roof of the enclosed areas.

I was led, on presenting my card of admission, to a private room, where, after a delay of a few moments, a me senger came and conducted me through the mighty and mysterious building. Down he went into a room where the notes of the Bank received the day before were now examined, compared with the entries in the book, and counted. The Bank of England never issues the same note the second time. It receives in the ordinary course of business, about £800,000, or $4,000,000 daily in notes; these are put up in parcels according to their denomination, boxed up with the date of their reception, and are kept ten years; at the expiration of which period they are taken out and ground up in the mill which I saw running, and made again into paper. If, in the course of those ten years, any dispute in business should arise concerning the payment of any note, the Bank can prove the identical bill.

To meet the demand for notes so constantly used up, the Bank has its own paper makers, its own printers, its own engravers, all at work under the same roof, and it even makes the machinery by which the most of its work is done. A complicated but beautiful operation is a register, extending from the printing office to the banking offices, which marks every sheet of paper that is struck off from the press, so that the printers cannot manufacture a single sheet of blank notes that is not recorded in the Bank.

On the same principle of exactness, a shaft is made to pass from one apartment to another, connecting a clock in sixteen business wings of the establishment, and regulating them with such precision that the whole of them are always pointing to the same second of time. In another room was a machine, exceedingly simple, for detecting light gold coins. A row of them dropped one by one upon a spring scale—If the piece of gold was of the standard weight, the scale rose to a certain height, the coin slid off upon the side of the box; if less than the standard, it rose a little higher, and the coin slid off on the other side. I asked the weigher what was the average number of light coins that came into his hands, and, strangely enough, he said it was a question he was not allowed to answer.

The next room I entered was that in which the notes are deposited which are ready for issue. "We have thirty-two millions of pounds sterling in this room," the officer remarked to me; "will you take a little of it?" I told him it would be vastly agreeable, and he handed me a million sterling (five million of dollars,) which I received with many thanks for his liberality, but he insisted on my depositing it with him again, as it would be hardly safe to carry so much money into the street. I very much fear that I shall never see that money again. In the vault beneath the door was a director and cashier counting the bags of gold, which men were pitching down to them, each bag containing a thousand pounds sterling, just from the mint.—This work of money seemed to realize the fables of Eastern wealth, and gave me new and strong impressions of the magnitude of the business done here, and the extent of the relations of this one institution to the commerce of the world.

Lake Fish.

The numbers, varieties and excellent quality of the lake fish are worthy of notice. It is believed that no fresh waters known can in any respect bear comparison. They are, with some exceptions, of the same kinds in all the lakes. Those found in Lake Superior and in the Strait of St. Mary are of the best quality, owing to the cooler temperature of the water. Their quantities are surprising, and apparently so inexhaustible, as to warrant the belief, that were a population of millions to inhabit the lake shores, they would furnish an ample supply of this article of food, without any sensible diminution.—There are several kinds found in Lake Superior, and some of the most delicious quality, that are not found in the lakes below, as the sisquoelle and muckwaw, which grow to the weight of eight or ten pounds. The salmon and some others are found in Ontario, but not above the Falls of Niagara.

The following is a very partial list of a few of the prominent varieties:—the Sturgeon, white fish, Mackinac and salmon trout, mu-calunje, pickerel, pike, perch, herring, white, black and cock bass, cat, pout, eel pout, bull-head, roach, sun-fish, dace, sucker, carp, mullett, bill fish, sword-fish, bull-fish, stone carrier, sheep's-head, gar, &c

The lamprey eel is found in all, but the common eel is found in neither of the lakes, nor in any of their tributaries except one.

The weight to which some of these attain is not exceeded by any other inland fresh waters, except the Mississippi.

The fish seem to be more numerous some years than others, and likewise of better quality. The kinds best for pickling and export are the whitefish, Mackinac and salmon trout, sturgeon and pickerel. The fisheries at which these are caught are at Mackinac, at several points in each of the coast, at the southwest part of Lake Superior, Saginaw Bay and Fort Gratiot. The mode of taking them is in seines and gill nets, and the trout with hooks.

Born to Good Luck.

The St. Louis Leader tells the following story:—

"Not over a dozen years ago, a merchant of this city, well known and highly respected, failed in business, and after settling up his affairs, gave to his principal creditor a deed of trust of certain real estate, to secure the payment of $12,000. At the time, the property was barely valued at that, so the creditor put a deed in his safe, and there, so far as we now concern ourself, it rested. The merchant, broke down, disappointed, poor, but yet enterprising; went South, visited California, Mexico, and South America, speculated, made half a dozen fortunes and lost them again. A few weeks since he returned to the city, sick, travel worn, needy and disheartened. By chance, he met his old lawyer, a gentleman high in his profession and who is deservedly respected. After the first greeting, the lawyer remarked:

"I am glad to see you back, and as you seem to be in want of funds, the sale will be just in time."

The merchant looked hard at his friend and finally said "Sale! what sale? I've got nothing to sell."

"Nonsense, my dear fellow, you are richer than you imagine. Don't you remember the deed of trust I drew up for you some twelve years ago?"

"I do, what of it?"

"Well, at that time the property would not have realized the sum, so it was let lie, but it is now in the market, and I expect to close a contract for its sale this week."

"You amaze me;—what price do you expect to get?"

"I've asked 8,000!! and shall get it too. Your debt and interest will amount to $21000 or thereabouts, so you will have $65,000 to go upon."

The sensations of the party may be more easily imagined than described, as the penny-a-liners have it, but one thing is certain, Mr. A. went home a happier man than he had been for ten years at least.

What we have here related is simple fact.

Miscellany.

SCARECROWS.—A mess of boys were talking about scarecrows. "Scarecrow!" he!" he!" says one of the party—an overgrown, slabsided, spoony looking youth—"he!" says he, evidently to some remarks that had preceded his. "You don't know anything about scarecrows. If you'd seen one that Uncle Ben made, I guess you'd think so too. Why Uncle Ben made one and sat it up in daddy's cornfield, that nearly frightened the feathers off of every crow that had looked at it; and by golly! one crow that had been pecking around the field for two or three days, after he had seen it, actually flew away and brought back all the corn he had stolen in that time—fact."

REAL ESTATE IN PARIS.—The Emperor has purchased and presented to the Princesse Mathilde the hotel she has occupied for some years back in the Rue de Courcelles. Some idea of the rise of value in houses may be given by the history of this one. In the first Republic it was purchased by M Delorme for 100,000 francs in assignats, representing a few hundred francs in money. Forty years later the Queen Christina gave 500,000 francs for it, and the Emperor has bought it from her for 800,000.

APPOINTED AT LAST.—If a telegraph from London to Liverpool, on the eve of the sailing of the Europa, can be relied on, Lord Elgin has at length got an appointment. It is said he has accepted the office of Plenipotentiary to the Court of Pekin, and will proceed thither as soon as he has been made sufficiently acquainted with the views of her Majesty's Government.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—These potent remedies constitute a materia medica in themselves, for their is no internal or external disorder controllable by medicine, for which the one or the other of them is not a positive remedy. Eruptions, tumors, scrofulas, scurvy, cancer mercurial diseases, asthma, rheumatism, sore throat, gout, dropsical swellings, etc., subside and disappear under the action of the Ointment, and in cases of dyspepsia, dysentery, sick headache, diarrhea, liver complaint, piles, costiveness, debility, and other complaints originating in the internal organs, the Pills produce the most astonishing results.

Two pretty little girls, whose ages together barely exceeded a dozen years, were overheard ruminating over their future prospects. "They say," observed the elder of the two, with complacent smile and shake of her curls, "that you and I are the prettiest girls in the school." "Ah, but," interposed mamma, "you'll soon lose that, for you know, pretty faces turn ugly in old age." "Do you say so?" ejaculated the younger, with a look of surprise and disappointment, but, rallying her thoughts for a moment, the smile returned to her rosy cheeks, and drawing her stool closer to her juvenile companion, she whispered in her ear with evident triumph—"Never mind we'll get married when we're young and then they cannot put us away when we are old."

GENUINE IRISH RETORT.—At the Criminal Court a few days since, a learned gentleman, dissatisfied at his success with an Irish witness, complained to the Court, Paddy exclaimed, "I'm no lawyer, yer honor, and he wants to puzzle me." Counsel—"Come, now, do you wear your ears no lawyer?" Witness—"Faith, an' I do; an' I you may swear the same about yourself, without fear of being liable for parjury."

A Western poet sums up his experience in love matters in the following stanza:

"I sat me down in thought profound—
This maxim wise I drew:
It's easier to like a girl,
Than make a gir. like you."

HOMELY SIMILE.—The Lisbon correspondent of morning paper, in referring to the present state of affairs in Portugal, says—To define the position of affairs in the country is about as easy as to describe the exact pattern produced upon a table-cloth by a mashed egg."

A CONCEITED PRIMA DONNA, at the rehearsal of a new opera, said tartly to the leader of the orchestra, "The band play so loud, sir, that it is impossible to hear me."

"All the better for you madam!" coolly replied the conductor.

"At what times does your omnibuses start?" asked a Londoner lately of one of the conductors. "Our" business," replied that functionary, "runs a quarter arter arter, quarter to and at!" In English this means "every quarter of an hour."

"What does your husband deal in Marm?"

"He deals in cards chiefly."

"Well the devil will be apt to git him when the last trump is played."

We learn that the Welland Canal will be opened on the 20th inst. Men are now employed digging on the level between Locks 3 and 4, to clear any deposits on the bottom. St Catherines Post.

Col. Colt gives employment to between 600 and 800 men in his armory, whose pay amounts to more than $1,000 per day.

"An will ye be afther telling what kind of a baste ye call this?" said a newly arrived Irishman, holding up a wasp between his thumb and finger. "Och, murder! spake, for he is biting me!"

To a physician whom one would not trust with a bank check, a man will often trust his life.

Hard times produce one good thing. They check gossiping. Mrs. Clacker has only "had company once since last summer," the consequence is that the neighbor's characters now stand higher than they have done for the last five years.

Fanny Fern thinks it provoking for a woman who has been working all day mending her husband's old coat, to find love letters from another woman in the pocket.

HARMLESS MIRTH is the best cordial against the consumption of the spirits; wherefore jesting is not unlawful if it trespasseth not in quantity, quality, or season.

Deeds that are Deathless.

HOW TIME REVERSES HUMAN JUDGMENT.

Time tests the value of all human actions and deeds that were thought glorious at the period of their enactment wear a different hue when looked back upon, apart from the false surroundings of immediate victory. It is but a few years, comparatively, since we were assured that the Battle of Waterloo had settled the conditions of Europe upon a permanent and imperishable basis; the "era of revolutions," Lord Castlereagh declared to have gone by forever; and yet the Europe of to-day is practically ignorant of cause from the greatness of Wellington's achievements, and even the British Queen finds it prudent to forget, in the Nephew's alliance, the implacable hostility with which her aunt and grandfather pursued the Uncle.

These deeds of warriors and statesmen, so much noised about in their day, are of little significance when the true history of the world comes to be written. Fulton and Watt, and Morse, and Holloway—Jennings, the inventor of Vesciculon, and Arkwright, patentee of Spinning-Jenules,—it is to the lives of these the future historian must turn when he endeavors to account for the vast physical and mental progress which characterized the first half of the Nineteenth Century. He must consult the life of Holloway in particular for no where else can he find so perfect a type of that combination of activity and erudition which forms the distinctive component element of modern intellect. The wise and learned of former ages were omnipotent in the academy, but helpless as new-born babes in the rough conflict with the world. They confined the treasure of their genius to some half score or two of credulous disciples; but for the great masses of the people—the profanum vulgus, as they call them—they cherished a profound contempt and hatred.

What a pleasing contrast to this exclusive folly does the course of Professor Holloway afford! How much wiser, in the event has proved, was he to treat mankind with confidence, and rather seek to elevate them to his own intellectual and scientific platform, than to look down upon them from an envied and unapproachable height! He has now made friends of the world—of all races, creeds and tongues of man; he is looked up to by women from all corners of the earth as the physical redeemer who has disenthralled them, by his universal remedies, from the bondage of disease. The world has got a language in which the broad principles of his Pathology have not been emasculated; nor has the earth a race of human beings so utterly barbarian as to be ungrateful for the benefits his philanthropy has brought home to them. Indeed, ingratitude is by no means a barbarian vice. We find more of it among the polished circles of society than amid the natural rudeness of a savage camp. We could, at this very moment, lay our hands upon hundreds who owe their very lives to the use of Holloway's Pills and Ointment; and yet, because they think it "more the thing" to have a "family physician," you could not offer them a worse insult than an intimation of who it is that really has cured them!

In the reception of humanity from the pangs of physical anguish, by Holloway—in the telegraphic annihilation of distance, by Morse—in the labor-saving machinery of Arkwright and the lodgemanese we enjoy over wind and tide, through the dauntless exertions of Fulton,—the future historian of our race will find the deathless deeds which are to claim the tribute of his pen, and will exclaim, as he records the mighty miracles which they performed—"Ah, there were giants in those days! we never shall look upon their like again!"—W. T. "Examiner."

TO MY FRIENDS—ELECTORS OF THE WESTERN DIVISION.

You will not consider this unusual style of addressing you as affront, or as offensive in any way, because nothing of the sort is intended by me. Believe me, I feel as grateful to you as I ever did, for the distinguished honor you conferred on me at the last great election; and you send me here as your chosen Legislative Councillor to promote and guard your interests in the Parliament of Canada. That was the legitimate position for which I was elected, and for that purpose only, ought I to be here, because my public duties, if properly performed, are quite enough to occupy all my time, and my most sedulous attention.

I arrived in this City on the 26th of February last, and can it be believed? the importunities of men respecting their own affairs have absorbed at least two-thirds of that time, the whole of which I ought to have devoted to the public service!

Since I came here, I have received Three Hundred and Fifty-seven Letters, not fifty of which relate to my parliamentary duties, but to land business and other matters of private interest to those who write. The majority of these correspondents require my constant personal attendance at the public offices, and my frequent personal interviews with the Heads of Departments, with whom it is next to impossible to obtain a satisfactory interview for even fifteen minutes! Two hundred and fifteen of those letters I have replied to; the rest remain unanswered, and may so remain for a long time yet to come, from circumstances over which I have no control; and such is the nature of the business, and I beg you to reply on my recommendation of them. The time has, therefore, now arrived for you, who are my friends in Essex and Kent, and who honored me with your votes and confidence at the last great election, to understand my true position; and to relieve me from a renewal of the oppressing, harassing, heavy, and uncalled for inebus under which I have been so long and so severely laboring, and which detains me here, while other members of the Legislature are spending Easter with their families and friends at home! And it now behoves me to make you acquainted with the course I shall hereafter pursue in all matters affecting your private interests, about which you may desire my assistance. But first, do not forget that each County has a Representative in the Lower House. Let division of labor be the policy here as elsewhere. Look for that, and I'll take my share; but I must now, once and for all, honestly tell you, that I shall decline attending personally, on behalf of any body, at any of the public offices, or upon the Heads of any of the Public Departments. In short, I cannot give my time or personal exertions to any out-door business. Any Elector, who whenever my Friend requires my assistance, let him address me fully, plainly and carefully, as to the subject of his wants, and upon what premises he grounds his claims, and let it be such a letter as I can openly submit to the Head of the Department. I will then take care that it be faithfully delivered; and it shall be no fault of mine, if he does not get an answer in due time. Nor can I, any longer, submit to the frequent mortifications which I, in common with others, have, up to this very day, endured in "dancing attendance," as the vulgar saying goes, on "officials," and in wasting one's valuable time in soliciting from such persons employment, and offices, and patronage, for one's fellow-men; more especially where, as the fact is, disappointment is sure to result in at least nine in four out of ten. Therefore, in these latter cases, all I can undertake to do henceforth, will be, on application, my name and signature, any memorial or letter of recommendation sent to me by any friend (provided I approve of it, and it be signed by others also) and to have it delivered at the proper quarter, and to do all I can to obtain an answer in his favor. To my services, as here described, you are, and shall be, most truly welcome. But often they must be made subservient to my duties as your Legislative Councillor. Pardon my style of addressing you. I am a plain man and I write plainly, perhaps not sufficiently courtly, according to some person's notions of dignity.

As I told you over and over again, from the Hustings, you shall never find my zeal abate in endeavouring to promote your own and the public welfare, and the cause of Liberty and Justice, so long as I have health and strength to stand by you in our Legislative Halls. But you must not think me capable of performing every thing, and I know that your great good sense will dictate to you that an upright and independent Senator cannot but ever believe private affairs to be of secondary consideration to the public duties which he owes to his constituents and to the country which he aids in representing in her greatest Council.

Believe me to remain, as ever, your obliged and faithful friend, and servant,

JOHN PRINCE.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

In an article which appeared a short time since in these columns, wherein it was stated by us that satisfactory arrangements had been entered into at Amherstburg, which would in all probability hasten the completion of the Southern Railway. These arrangements would no doubt, when carried out, have materially affected the interests of certain parties on whose behalf our Town cotemporary appears to be anxiously labouring. In the above article, we are accused of making a premature assertion—and that either they or ourselves had been misinformed, as they had asserted quite the contrary of what we had. Now, we naturally supposed that the public would have been enlight-ned upon the subject and put right upon the misinformation that we had published; but in this we are disappointed, as we were only treated to a contradiction. Now, with all due deference to our cotemporary's correct information upon railway matters, we are forced to the conclusion that they were misinformed, and that in fact the arrangements were made which we stated had been. In support of our assertion, we would beg to tender them proof of the correctness of our statement,—In the first place, we will copy from the Woodstock Sentinel, a paper that has taken an active part in the strife which has been carried to such an extent. After speaking of the Eastern section, and the difficulties which had surrounded them, it says:

Since writing the above, the Board of Directors met yesterday, and arrangements were made which resulted in a remodelling of the Board of Directors. The first act of the Board, when thus constituted, was to rescind the resolution passed at the last meeting of the Board, already alluded to, censuring Mr. O'Reilly — and damaging to the prospects of the whole scheme—and then they agreed to the necessary change to be made. Messrs. O'Reilly, Sadowith and VanNorman retired from the directory, and the Board as reconstructed stands as follows:—

The Hon. J. C. Morrison, President,
T. G. Ridout Esq., Cashier of the Bank of Upper Canada,
Isaac Buchanan, Esq.,
T. C. Street, "
James Kintrea, " } Directors.
R. G. Benedict, "
J. A. Woodruff, "

This arrangement we are pleased to understand, is calculated to be a solution of all those difficulties, which formerly stood in the way; and equally satisfactory to the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway Board of Directors, which is now unanimously recognised as the legal board of the Western section of the Great Southern Railway. Contending parties are now reconciled, and as far as human foresight can penetrate the dark vista of futurity, the speedy completion of our Railway may be now considered a fixed fact.

And the Woodstock Times of the 18th instant, a paper, by the way, opposed to the McLeod Board, writes thus:

Thos. G. Ridout of the Bank of Upper Canada, Hon. Joseph C. Morrison, Receiver General, and Mr. Isaac Buchanan take the places of Messrs. Sadworth, O'Reilly and VanNorman; and Mr. O'Reilly as contemplated, transfers to Messrs. Gzowski & Co. the Zimmerman interest in the work. By this arrangement all interests are protected; all opposition removed, and the work put in a fair way for a speedy completion. It is reported that Messrs. Kinnear & Co. will work will be in the amalgamated board. Two of the McLeod board are also to have seats, and two of Mr. Rankin's board. The manufacture of the rolling stock is, we understand to be given to Messrs. Benedict & Co.

Beyond the information here given we believe there is nothing of importance to communicate. A month will hardly pass ere an amalgamation of the three companies will take place. This done the attention will be secured by the subscription of the capital stock requisite, and the payment of the ten per cent. The cordial co-operation of the nominees of Mr. O'Reilly in the plan submitted by Messrs. Buchanan, Morrison, and Ridout, must go sufficiently far to remove any impression that may have been formed as to these persons having actuated by any other than proper motives in the proceedings of a former meeting.

We must now refer the reader to an article from the Leader, which will throw a little more light upon the subject.

The Leader thus speaks of the Railway:

"There seems to be every probability that the death of Mr. Zimmerman will not prevent the execution of the Great Southern Railway project, which his brain had conceived. The arrangements made seem to assure success. The Woodstock Board has assented to the proposed amalgamation with that of the Southern Road-improver. The contract was taken by Mr. Wythes, of London, England, and Messrs. O'Reilly and Street, as representatives of the Zimmerman estate; and within the last few days the to erest of the latter has been transferred to Gzowski & Co. The Western Extension difficulty is said to have been settled by a resolution to carry the road to some point in the township of Colchester or Gosfield, with in a few miles of the northern boundary line, where it will diverge in two directions, creating two western terminii, one at Windsor, and the other at Amherstburg. The municipalities interested in the Woodstock and Port Dover Road have all ratified the last agreement entered into with the late Mr. Zimmerman and his partners. The contract for the rolling stock has been made a separate thing. A gentleman who has not hitherto been in the Board will be President of the Company. It is but proper to state that Mr. Buchanan has repudiated an article on the subject of this enterprise published in the Hamilton Banner last week, and the appearance of which created a feeling of suspicion as to the integrity of his course in the minds of those who regarded that sheet as his peculiar organ. We are glad to find that Mr. Buchanan has cleared himself of that suspicion."

And connected with these, the fact that Mr. Rankin has attempted to legalize the proceedings of the Board by Act of Parliament, is another strong proof of the tight pinch in which he is placed.

As we have kept ourselves perfectly cool throughout—rather more so than our cotemporary—we would advise him to act upon his own advice a little. And if we asserted what was not correct, how is it that there are so many papers that have fallen into the same error, and only one which has not? And is that one better informed than any of the journals that we have referred to? We think not.

We naturally came to the conclusion that we were not misinformed, but that our cotemporary must have been.

Below will be found the explanations of Mr. Buchanan, in relation to his conduct in the matter, which we feel pleasure in giving a place to.

The Great South Western Railway.

To the Editor of the Spectator.

HAMILTON, 6th April, 1857.

SIR,—I find that certain parties for their own selfish ends, are attempting through the press to create impressions which would prejudice the public mind (and through it the mind of Parliament) on the subject of my proceedings in the carrying on of the Great South Western Railway, since the lamented death of Mr. Zimmerman. It is therefore due not only to myself, but to those connected with me, and to the safety of the great enterprise itself, that the whole truth be at once plainly made known. The following letters, and the appended resolution of the Directors of the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway, explain my whole movement, which is attempted to be misrepresented, in order to take advantage of the trust of the late Mr. Zimmerman, and the person of them will make it evident that the parties to this "Cry" do not make it for the sake of Mr. Zimmerman's estate, but for their own sake, and to grasp for themselves as individuals what is already firmly secured to Mr. Zimmerman's Trustees.

HAMILTON, 21st March, 1857.

J. C. STREET Esq.,
Representing George Wythes.
MILES O'REILLY, Esq.,

For himself, and as representing the late Samuel Zimmerman, Esq.

GENTLEMEN.—Mr. McLeod is here, and has repeated the former assertions of the Amherstburg Board (of the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway) that they are led to prevent me carrying out my brother's agreement with Messrs Wythes and Zimmerman only by the indication given by Mr. Zimmerman of his not being prepared to abide by the charters as to the Western terminii. He offers, on behalf of that Board to re-enact the By Law to secure my property in the railway; and, with my consent, to give a contract securing the road to go to Amherstburg—this seeming to be the best, if not the only way to satisfy all parties. In present circumstances, you seem the proper parties to assume the contract, after wards to be transferred to, or held for, the parties who are to carry out the agreement aforesaid to secure my outlay and responsibility for the Railway.

By now taking this contract, you have it in your power to receive for them the subscriptions of that which my brother undertook to put into their hands. I, therefore, now call on you to take the contract offered; and if you do not do so, with you must remain the responsibility of refusing this practical fulfillment, on my brother's part, of the agreement already made.

I am gentlemen,
Yours respectfully,
[Signed] ISAAC BUCHANAN.

HAMILTON, C. W., 27th March, 1857.

ISAAC BUCHANAN, Esq.,
Hamilton, C. W.

DEAR SIR,—We have to acknowledge your letter of the 21st instant, and to express ourselves prepared to take a contract from the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway Company, for the purposes therein contained, and having especial references to the fulfillment of your Brother's agreement of the 26th September last, with Messrs George Wythes and Samuel Zimmerman.

We therefore now give you this letter to show the understanding on which you assent to the Board of Directors of the Amherstburgh and St. Thomas Railway Company, giving us the contract about to be gone into.

We are, dear Sir,
Yours respectfully,
[Signed] M. O'REILLY.
[Signed] JAMES C. STREET.

Resolutions of the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway Directors, held at Amherstburgh, on the latter representing himself, and the Trustees of the late Samuel Zimmerman, Esq., said contract being for the sum of £——— and that the President be authorized to sign the same and attach to it the Seal of this Company."

Now, after reading the foregoing, will any fair and disinterested party say that there has been the slightest approach on my part to any overlooking of Mr. Zimmerman's interests, or that I have failed to act by Mr. Zimmerman's Trustees in this matter with the same scrupulous honor, with which I should desire any party to act towards my trustees in similar circumstance?

I may add a few words to show that my present more active interference is neither unnatural nor unnecessary. As the public well know, I first got the control of the charters, on which the Great South western Railway is to be built without any view of speculation or profit to myself, but with the simple view of putting it in the power of the Great Western Railway to lay out on this line (instead of along the present Great Western line) the money then ready in London to build its road track, and no good would now arise from my reflecting on how these views of mine were frustrated to my very serious personal injury as well as that of the Great Western Railway.

The public also know, through my report on my return from England in October last to the Directors of the Woodstock and Lake Erie Railway, that in order to prevent the Woodstock and Lake Erie charter being disso-ciate from the Great South Western through line (which would in reality have been the loss both of the cross road and of the money lent out by the municipalities) I had proposed to Mr. Wythes, in England that I would entirely stand out of the way, if he and Mr. Zimmerman would take over the charters, as held by me, and build on them the whole road between the Niagara and Detroit rivers, including the Woodstock and Lake Erie Railway. I also offered, on my br ther's part and my own, to give him all the assistance, both in England and America, in our power, asking no further interest in the matter than that I should be relieved by them of my responsibility and should get back the money I had outlayed.

The arrangement alluded to was made, but, to my deep regret, Mr. Zimmerman died, before carrying out the preliminary condition of relieving me from my responsibility, by transferring the Stock from my name or having back to me the deposits I had made, and thus I was left, as I am at this moment, the only party [except the Municipalities] having any pecuniar. interests in the Amherstburgh and St. Thomas and Woodstock and Lake Erie Railway Charters. In these circumstances, le twith the power which I had so much desired to be relieved of, I was forced to act, and the course which I thought proper to take is shewn in the forgoing documents.

You will easily perc ive how utterly false the insinuation is, that I have either desired to take or have actually taken, any advantage of Mr. Zimmerman's Trustees. The vast interests which I had, and still have, under the arrangement made by my brother with Messrs. Wythes, and Zimmerman dated Live pool 26th September last, left me no alternative but to act, seeing that my doing so was the only way my property could be protected; but I also saw that t e interest of Mr. Zimmerman's estate as well as of Mr. Wythes equally required me to do as I have done.

I am anxious not to add a word of r mark, for I believe that the attempt to inflame and to deceive the Municipalities will be equally vain as the attempt on the public and on Parliament. The Municipalities all along have had perfect confidence in me, and I m them, as p rties whose interests are identical; and they can never be made to regard me as otherwise than cutting their throats, whose object is to substitute a direct charter for that of the Woodstock and Lake Erie Railway, conceded though this subject may be in the false and wicked very that I have done more than carry out what the late Mr. Zimmerman had agreed to.

I am Sir,
Yours Respectfully,
ISAAC BUCHANAN.

Below will be found the verdict of the Coroner's Inquest, held upon the bod es of the unfortunate persons who were killed by the accident at the Desjardin's Canal Bridge

We have reason to hope, that sad experience has taught the Government the urgent necessity of a proper system of inspection of all Railway lines; and for this purpose an act has been passed, which was published in last we k's issue, which, if rigidly carried out, will in a great measure prevent the frequent recurrences of the frightful sacrifice of life that have taken place since the Great Western Line has been in operation.

1st. That the said enumerated persons being passengers, and several servants of the Great Western Railway Company, came to their death in consequence of the Company's locomotive engine Oxford and tender, with a baggage car and two first class passenger cars attached, composing the train leaving Toronto for Hamilton at ten minutes past four o'clock in the afternoon of the 12th day of March last, having been precipitated into the Desjardin's Canal by the breaking of the swing bridge over said canal.

2nd. The jurors aforesaid find that the immediate cause of the accident was owing to the breaking of the forward axle of the engine truck close to the wheel, on the right, at a point of the road not ascertained and in consequence of which the left forward wheel of the truck left the rail at or near the switch adjoining the Desjardin's Canal Bridge, causing the locomotive when entering on the bridge, to diverge to the right—crushing and tearing away its supports—precipitating the whole train into the canal—and resulting in the calamity which forms the subject of this melancholy enquiry.

3rd. The jurors further find that the locomotive "Oxford" had recently undergone a thorough repair, and six days previous to the melancholy o-casion, according to the evidence, had been turned out of the repair shop in a good and satisfactory condition. They likewise find that, before leaving the Toronto Station with the Train upon this fatal trip, the said engine was examined by the proper officer, and reported by him to be in good running order.

4th. The Jurors aforesaid also find that the said Bridge over the said Desjardin's Canal was built of wood, and constructed of sufficient strength for the conveyance and traffic of the line safely and securely over the said bridge, provid d that the locomotive and cars remained on the railway track; but they would further strongly urge on the Government to cause the same to be built forthwith, and also that the Toronto and Great Western lines should have separate tracks over said structure, thereby doing away with crashes, which are always objectionable in such places.

6th. The Jurors would further recommend the removal of the former bo-e, compelling trains to come to a dead stop before passing on this and all simi ar bridges, believing, as they do, that the lamentable accident might have been avoided had such precautionary measure been in operation.

J. W. R SEBURG, } Coroners.

CONCERT.

Those who were fortunate enough to attend the last Amateur Concert, given in this place a short time since, will not lose the present opportunity of again enjoying a rich treat in vocal and instrumental music. Those who did not, we would advise to not let this chance slip by, without availing themselves of the opportunity of enjoying good music.

The Ladies and Gentlemen who have kindly consented to take part in this concert, are fully competent to sustain their characters as good singers and musicians.

The proceeds of the conc-rt will be applied to liquidate a debt due by St. John's Church, Sandwich, and we therefore hope that there will be a full attendance. For particulars see advertisement.

☞ A prisoner in the Sandwich Gaol, committed for breaking into the Belle River Station House, attempted to commit suicide, by cutting his throat, yesterday (Wednesday). Fortunately, Dr. Dewson happened to be in the Court Room at the time, and rendered the necessary assistance. The wound which the prisoner inflicted was very severe, and had it not been for the timely assistance of the Dr, he would in all probability have died. He will now probably recover.

Poisoning the President.

There is now little doubt that the poisoning in Washington was the result of an attempt to destroy the life of the President. When he went to Washington and stopped at the National Hotel, the disease broke out, he and every one who dined at the public table being affected. When he left and went back no new cases occurred until he resigned at the inauguration, and then it broke out again in precisely the same way He took the precaution the second time of neither eating or drinking in the National, which saved his life. His nephew died of the poison, and several others have died in different parts of the country from the same cause. In view of all the circumstances it is impossible to suppose that the sickness and death of so many was not the result of a fiendish attemp on the life of the President. The rat story originated in jest; the water in the tank was not used for cooking at all; and the Board of Health of Washington must have wished to smother the truth in announcing that the mortality arose from malaria arising from a foul sewer. It is very probable that some crazy, political lunatic may have conceived the fie dish design of poisoning the President, and a proper investigation would have brought the truth to light.—Brooklyn Eagle, April 4.

AMERICAN WAR VESSELS FOR CHINA.—A Washington correspondent says the reinforcement of the East India squadron is under the consideration of the Naval Department; and that the sloop-of war Dale, under orders for Africa, will probably be sent to the China Seas, in addition to several other large vessels, believed to be already ordered for that service.

TRIAL OF MRS. CUNNINGHAM AND MR. ECKEL.—The New York Herald of the 7th inst. says:—In the Court of Over and Terminer yesterday, on motion of the District Attorney, the trial of Mrs. Cunningham and John J. Eckel was postponed till Monday the 4th of May. A panel of the hundred jurors will be ordered for this case.

THE CANADIAN LINE OF STEAMSHIPS.—The Inspector General's resolutions granting a subsidy of £50,000 per annum for a weekly line of ocean steamships from Quebec to Liverpool in summer, and to Portland or Liverpool in winter, have passed the Assembly without opposition. This is highly gratifying, and we may now look forward with pleasure to the prospect of Canada competing favourably with the steamship lines between New York and Liverpool.—Spectator.

TORONTO, April 13, 1857.

WHEAT—The market to-day was not very well supplied, the receipts reaching only 600 bushels. The demand was active but competition hardly as keen as usual. Nevertheless, loads moved off the market rapidly at 6s 4d a 6s 6d per bushel.

FLOUR.—The effect of the recent unfavorable news has been apparent on the flour market, and there is great depression everywhere There is not a great deal offering, and holders are firm and buyers cautious, so that no transactions transpire. Nominal quotations are—Superfine, 23s a 23s; Fancy 26s 3d a 27s; Extra, 28s a 30s per barrel

BARLEY in good local request at 4s per bushel. Rye not plentiful, and worth 3s 6d a 3s 9d per bushel.

OATS.—Oats are coming in freely, and prices are not very firm. We quote them at 2s 7d a 2s 9d per bushel.

PEAS in active request for seed, at 4s a5s per bushel for good varieties.

POTATOES are becoming plentiful, importation by lake having c mmenced. The stock on hand is not less than 2,000 bus. The price is, however, still high, varying from 4s 6d to 5s 3d per bushel.

Special Notices.

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

Have by the test of experience, become satisfied that Sir Astley Cooper's Pills are composed of simple but powerful curative ingredients, and have proved successful in every respect that the most delicate lady or tender child may take them with the greatest safety For bilio s disorders, liver complaints, indige tion, loss of appetite, costiveness, sick-headache, depression of spirits, pains in the back, gravel and lumbago, Sir Astley Co per's pills will be found a safe and admirable remedy. Unrivalled as a medicine as immediate trial of this excellent, long tried and success ful medicine.

The citizens of the United States and Canada suffer much disorders of the Liver and Stomach. The Pacific coast is truly the most handsome in the world, at a certain period lose their tooth and good looks while yet in the bloom of youth. These evils may be effectually remedied by constantly keeping the blood pure, and the liver and stomach in a healthy condition, when life will flow freely. We say seriously, that health and life may be prolonged for years beyond the ordinary limits, if Sir Astley Co per's Pills are taken to purify the blood, in accordance with the directions which accom any each box.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—To prevent imposition, be sure to ask for the Genuine Sir Astley Coop r's Pills, prepared in London and New York; if you ask for Sir Astley Cooper's Pill only, you will get a spurious compound, which will not have a beneficial effect. The Genuine Pills have an excellent likeness of Sir Astley Cooper on the top of each box; also the fac simile of the signature of the Proprietors MacPhail & Co. London and New York, on the directions.

Sold at 25 and 50 cents per box, and in family boxes at $1 each. There is a great saving by purchasing the larger sizes.

For sale by Simpson and Dunspaugh, Druggists, Toronto; John M. Thompson, Dundas; Andrew Oliver Gait; A. H. Cook, Brantford, General Agents, by whom Country Druggists and Merchants will be supplied at London and New York prices.
